SECOND OFFENDER FINED.

Pleading guilty as a second offender to a drunk charge, a local man was fined $50 and costs of 75 cents by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court today. The alternative was a month in jail.

CHARGES WITHDRAWN.

After hanging fire for over a month, charges against several persons of riding bicycles on sidewalks in North Monaghan were withdrawn this morning. The offenders have promised to confine their cycling henceforth to the road.

ROTARY'S BIRTHDAY.

Peterborough Rotary Club will celebrate the 34th anniversary of the founding of Rotary on Monday when former members of the club will be guests. The speaker will be W. J. Cairns of Montreal, former district governor and former president of the Toronto Rotary Club.

A SPLENDID RECORD

Earl Armstrong, genial manager of the United Cigar Store, has his fingers crossed this month. When February is over he will have completed ten years of service with company without a single day lost through illness. His sick leave has been piling up and will soon amount to a year.

UNUSUAL INJURY.

"Nigger," Pat Cullen's well-known black dog, was injured in an unusual manner a few days ago when he managed to get a paw caught in a snare some small boy had set out near the Normal School in the hope of catching a rabbit. The wire snare had cut the paw to the bone, inflicting a painful injury.

THE BABY MEMBER

James G. (Jimmy) Wharry the quiet little sales manager of the Quaker Oats Company was introduced to members of the Kinsmen Club last night as the newest recruit to the ranks of Kin. He was placed at the opposite end of the table to Emmett Sheehy so that he would be able to get a word in edgewise occasionally.

A YOUNG CARTOONIST

Robert Wood, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David Wood, 45 Weir street is making a name for himself with his art work. Robert, a pupil in the sixth grade of the King Edward School has just recently completed a poster on which appears drawings of Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin and Chamberlain. The drawings are remarkable likenesses of these four men.

X-RAYING HORSES.

A portable X-ray machine owned by J. H. Coones was used Thursday night in making plates of injuries to the legs of several race horses, the first time such a device has been used here according to Veterinary Surgeon Arthur Johnston, one of whose horses, Midnight Express, was examined. Another horse whose injured leg was X-rayed was Royal McKillop, owned by Dr. Thomas Kain.

29 REPORT FOR WORK.

Satisfaction was expressed at the City Hall this morning at the response of men on relief to an emergency call to help shovel snow from some streets. Notices were sent out from the relief office to 34 men, and 29 of them reported this morning ready to go to work. It was thought that probably most of the other five might be victims of the epidemic of colds.

WILL BE EXAMINED.

Charged with an indecent assault on a young girl, a twenty-year-old laborer in the Young's Point district was arrested Thursday by Provincial Constable Don Carruthers and arraigned in police court this morning. Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., asked that the prisoner be remanded without plea or election in order that he might be given a mental examination. He was remanded until next Thursday, bail being fixed at $1,000.

TWO GIFTED MUSICIANS

Mrs. Irene Quinlan and Miss Mickey Foster delighted the Kinsmen Club last night with a musical program that clearly indicated their exceptional musical talent. Mrs. Quinlan's manipulation of a saxophone astonished the members and the pair ran the gamut of musical selections from clasical music to modern, including the snappy number, "Somebody Stole My Gal," and the recent popular hit tune, "Old Folks."

Abel Hendren Laid To Rest At Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 24—Abel Hendren, the father of Lakefield's carpenters—and builder of many of Lakefield's private and public buildings, was laid to rest Wednesday afternoon in Hillside cemetery here. He was buried from the Lakefield United Church which was erected by him in 1909.

Born In 1851

Born in Dummer township on Sept. 16, 1851, Mr. Hendren came to Lakefield in 1875, when the village boasted only a few dwellings. Having learned his trade as a carpenter in the States, Mr. Hendren settled here, built a home for his wife and himself and began his work as a building contractor. He had the satisfaction of seeing Lakefield grow up around him — partly at least the result of his own labor —for he helped in the building of many of Lakefield's homes, and a number of her public buildings. The United Church which he and his family attended for years, and the present public school where his younger children were educated, are both the products of his skill, and stand as monuments to his fine workmanship. He did considerable work in Toronto and Peterborough and built the Viamede Hotel at Mt. Julian, Stoney Lake.

Parents Pioneers

Abel Hendren came of fine pioneer stock. He was the son of John Hendren and Jemima Helps, and spent his childhood and youth in Dummer township. He used to describe with relish the adventures of those early days, and one incident in particular he loved to tell his grandchildren. While only a lad, he was walking home alone from the store when he encountered a large bear, the story runs. Armed only with a shotgun and an axe, Mr. Hendren killed the animal single-handed. The graphic tale of how he wounded the bear with shot and then finished it off with the axe, has never failed to hold the attention of his listeners.

Mr. Hendren would tell too, of walking with his tools slung over his back, home to Lakefield, sometimes a matter of 16 miles, after completing some work which took him to Dummer township or some other outlying part of the county.

When about sixteen, Mr. Hendren went to the States where he learned his trade as a carpenter. He returned to Lakefield, and on July 26, 1875, married Francis A. Coates, a Lakefield school teacher, and settled on the property on which he lived till his death—at the top of the hill which every school child in the last half-century has fondly termed "Hendren's Hill."

Mr. Hendren had eight children by his first marriage, of which number, Myrtle, Hazel, Theodore, Norman and Harold predeceased their father. Gordon, Howard and Roy survive.

After the death of his first wife, Mr. Hendren married Ruth Delia Haight, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Haight of Uxbridge, on Oct. 19, 1909. There were three daughters by this marriage, all living.

Mr. Hendren was a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters. A devout Christian.

Enthusiastic Hunter

Mr. Hendren was a most enthusiastic hunter, not missing an autumn deer hunt over a period of twenty-one years.

The deceased is survived by his widow, and six children, Gordon, Howard and Roy all of Toronto; and Mrs. Wm. E. Foster (Elva) of Toronto; Mrs. Gerald Kennedy (Vivian) of Kirkland Lake and Miss Thelma Hendren at home. Seven grandchildren also survive.

Rev. G. F. Kelly conducted the funeral service, and spoke feelingly of Mr. Hendren's past life. He mentioned that he knew Mr. Hendren so little that it would be presumptuous for him to eulogize on his fine qualities. "You, my friends, knew him," he said. Mr. Hendren's favorite hymns, "Rock of Ages," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus" and "Nearer My God to Thee" were sung.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. Jack and Jas. Hendren of Lakefield and George Hendren of Peterborough, all nephews of the deceased, and Messrs. E. J. Millage, Charles Hunter and S. J. Charlton of Lakefield.

COSTUME STOPS TRAFFIC

She was dressed in a Sonja Heine skating costume and men and women, young and old all stopped and stared as she sauntered down George street with her skates over her shoulder, a picture of youth and beauty. The costume was not only striking but the skirt was so abbreviated that many felt the girl must be immune to the cold to wear it and be comfortable.

Bruce McNevin Is Re-elected

The surplus of the Farmers' Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company was increased last year by $18,000, to a total of $149,230.39, on December 31 last, in contrast with adverse conditions of some years ago, which required a levy on the policy holders. The surplus has grown from $80,-905.86 in 1935 to almost $150,000, in increase of nearly 100 per cent in four years.

Bruce McNevin, M.P., was re-elected president at the annual meeting last Saturday, and three retiring directors were re-appointed for thee years. They are Thomas Brown of Peterborough; F. H. Clayton, Beaverton R. R. No. 2; and Arnold McElwain of Gelert.

The company's fire loss last year amounted to $37,176.40, as compared with $36,561.40 in the previous year. The loss from 33 barn fires in 1938 was $23,943.39, a substantial part of the total loss for the year.

The number of policies in force was 6,417 for $18,162,565, and for the previous year was 6,469 policies for $18,051,771 insurance.

The larger sums of insurance paid in the Peterborough area during the year were: Wm. J. Davis, North Monaghan, barn and contents destroyed by lightening, $1,621.26; Albert Johnston, Cavan, barn and contents destroyed by lightening, $1,-296.05; Samuel Nugent and J. Roberts, Manvers, barn and contents destroyed by lightening, $900. John and Vincent Maguire, Galway, dwelling destroyed by heated pipes, $800. George Wilson, Cavan, barn and contents destroyed, cause unknown, $2,500. John Valois, Harvey, dwelling and contents, destroyed, cause unknown, $250. John Boyd, Emily, produce destroyed, $368.

Skating Parties Still Popular

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 24. — The Junior branch of the Lakefield Institute held a successful skating party in the Lakefield Rink on Tuesday evening. There was a fine turn out of skaters, who adjourned to the Memorial Hall about 10.30 and the group members served delicious refreshments.

Skating parties are having a run of popularity here just now. One is arranged by the High School for tonight.

Ashbury College Boys Beat Trinity Team

OTTAWA, Feb. 24—(CP). — Paced by Sid Drew's three-goal effort, Ashbury College defeated Trinity College School of Port Hope, 6-4 in an overtime exhibition hockey game here to-day. The Trinity hockeyists are on a tour of eastern schools. Drew scored his third goal early in overtime and Jim McGowen got his second and the final goal of the game before the extra time ended.

A TREAT FOR SPORTSMEN

Next Tuesday night at the Paragon Hall, the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association have arranged to show several interesting films. The public is invited and no admission fee will be charged. One film deals with lunge fishing in the Kawarthas, another with skiing in the Canadian Rockies, and the third is owned by Chris Graham and shows trout, bass and lunge fishing locally and also some interesting shots on skeet shooting.

Deer Are Seeking Refuge From The Wolves On Island In Stoney Lake—Scarcity Of Food

"Wolves are driving the deer not only down into the game preserve but out of it to seek shelter on islands in Stoney Lake," Roy Whetung of Crowe's Landing told The Examiner Thursday. "We counted nineteen deer crossing the ice in Young's Bay between the Burleigh shore and Waddell's Island one day this week, and the next day while we were cutting ice near Pammett's Island, east of the mouth of Eel's Creek we saw a large buck crossing the lake from the Dummer shore. We thought at first one of our colts had broken loose but when the animal got near we saw it was a deer."

Mr. Whetung says that the heavy crust on the snow is aiding the wolves in chasing the deer for the latter break through the surface occasionally while the lighter wolves scamper along the top. He believes the deer are having difficulty in finding food under the existing conditions and suggests that the Fish and Game Department should ship in supplies of hay to take care of the animals.

The howling of wolves has been heard by Crowe's Landing folk for several nights.

You Are Fortunate

Speaking at the Kinsmen Club supper Thursday night Mac McDonald explained the work planned by the Kinsmen Club for the year 1939 required $1,200 which must be raised by the sale of tickets. Every cent of the money will be used to get eyeglasses or eye treatment for children and adults in urgent need of the same who are unable to pay for it, and who may become blind if they are not attended to. He urged every member to push the sale of tickets, and said those fortunate enough to have their health and sight should not hesitate to contribute a little to the cause of eye clinic work. Valuable prizes go to lucky ticket holders.

Crown Attorney Is Bereaved

The many friends of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., will sympathize with him in the bereavement he has sustained in the death of his mother, Emerentia Harris, widow of the late J. E. McElderry at Guelph, on Thursday, after a lingering illness. Mr. McElderry had made many trips to see his mother in recent months and was called to her bedside again Wednesday.

The funeral will be held on Monday from Mrs. McElderry's late residence, 18 Norwich street, to the Church of Our Lady for solemn requiem high mass at 10 o'clock. Interment will be in Marymount Cemetery.

Two Break Hip On Same Day

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24—Two residents of this district are suffering from broken hips, both sustained on the same day. William Gaucher, 82, Seymour township, was going down towards his barn when he slipped on the icy crust, which covered the snow on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Jim Gaucher, a daughter-in-law, heard his shout from an upstairs window and assisted him to the veranda on a sleigh. Medical aid was summoned and it was found the hip was broken right at the joint. Mrs. George Smith, Grand Road, suffered a similar accident on the same day. She was taken to Peterborough for medical attention.

Mail Is Delayed From Many Points

"Our rural mail courier has not been able to reach mail boxes on most of the side roads," wrote the Examiner's Ennismore correspondent last Monday in a letter which did not reach this office until today. "Neither could we get out to the main road. It will be necessary to chop out the banks unless mild weather comes to soften it. Horses could not be put on the roads because the depth of crust would cut their legs severely. First we had a heavy fall of snow, followed by sleet and cold, forming a crust that could hardly be shovelled out."

Maternity Hospitals

HAMILTON, Feb. 24—If the present rate continues, all babies born in Hamilton will soon be born in maternity hospitals, Dr. Walter F. Langrill, medical superintendent of the Hamilton General hospital, told the hospital board yesterday. W. H. Cooper and Fred T. Brooks were re-elected chairman and vice-chairman of the board.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—(AP).—"Oscars," the coveted golden awards for the most notable in motion picture achievement, joined other "Oscars" to-day in the homes of Bette Davis, Spencer Tracy and Frank Capra, honored by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best acting and directorial accomplishments of 1938.

Winners in some less important classes admired their statuettes for the first time, but receiving the adulation of their fellows was no new sensation for Miss Davis and Tracy, two-time victors, and Capra, named for the third time in the 11-year history of the Academy banquet.

George Bernard Shaw was awarded one of the little statuettes for his screen play "Pygmalion," an adaption from the stage play. The award was received on his behalf by Francis Evans, British consul in Los Angeles.

It was a setting in the familiarly glamorous Hollywood fashion which was provided for last night's announcement of the selections—made by all Hollywood, from the biggest producers to the unsung electricians and extras, 12,000 in all.

Miss Davis, taking the feminine acting award for her part in "Jesebel," for Warner Brothers, said credit was "due entirely to the direction of William Wyler. It was in 1935 that her dole in "Dangerous" won her the same honor.

Tracy, chosen last year for "Captain Courageous," repeated this year with "Boys Town," for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. He described the character of Father Flannagan, which he portrayed, as "so great and so good that I am sure a little of his light shone even through me."

Capra, Academy president, won recognition for his direction of Columbia's "You Can't Take It With You," which also was selected as the year's outstanding production. Capra scored previously with "It Happened One Night" in 1934 and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" in 1936.

Havelock Jobless Get Organized

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 24. — The "Havelock Labor Organization" was formed last evening at a special meeting of the village unemployed held in the council chamber. Twenty-five men assembled to discuss the local unemployment situation, and elected the following officers: president, T. W. Quinn; secretary, Randall Wood.

Primarily a railroad centre, Havelock was hard hit when business on the C.P.R. grew slack, forcing the laying off of many employees. It was estimated that there are about seventy-five men now out of work in this village.

In an effort to seek some solution to the local work problem, deputations will interview both Rork Ferguson, M.P. of Norwood and Alex Elliott, M.P.P. of Peterborough on this question re continuance of work on the road north of Havelock will be requested.

A committee composed of Messrs. O. Seabrooks, A. Armstrong, F. Parcells, Jos. Cosgrave, Robert Jennings, and the president were selected to wait on the Havelock council at their next meeting.

TRACKS MISSING.

Police received a complaint late last night that a man had been seen on a fire escape at the rear of a George Street building. Investigation by officers, however, failed to show any tracks in the fresh snow, either on the fire escape or leading to it.

Municipal Board's Consent On Bylaw For Hospital Being Sought By City Officials

Three representatives of the city council are in Toronto today consulting authorities in regard to the terms of the forthcoming Nicholls Hospital bylaw. Mayor Hamilton was accompanied by M. E. Shaver, city treasurer, and W. F. Huycke, city solicitor It is understood they are interviewing the Ontario Municipal Board, whose assent is required to the bylaw, about such dealls as the period of years for which the debentures shall be issued, and enquiries will also be made around the city about prospective interest rates and the general outlook of the bond market, which has been expected so far to be favorable to the issue.

Kinsmen Given Proof Isms Are In Canada

A stern warning that Communism and Fascism are trying to gain a foothold in Canada and it is the duty of every Kinsman in the Dominion to resist this entry, was the highlight of a stirring address given at the Empress Hotel last night as the local Kinsmen Club observed Anniversary Night.

Harvey Lynes, of Toronto, director of the service Council was the speaker. He explained first that being a war veteran he was not an alarmist, but merely a level headed Canadian who recognized a danger when one existed, and he urged the Kinsmen to keep the thought uppermost in their minds that being Kinsmen, their first service was to the state.

Proof Isms Exist

"Public meetings across Canada is proof that these isms exist, and added to this we have a German owned newspaper in the city of Winnipeg publishing anti-British articles," said Mr. Lynes. Hamilton labor men are clamoring for an investigation into the activities of a radical group in that city, he added.

"You have the choice of keeping the present system of government or discarding it for the dictatorship and the isms which are flourishing in certain European countries."

With the isms having the upper hand we find absolute destruction of civil and religious liberties, no value attached to home life or family life. If you disagree with the government you are either shot or placed in a concentration camp and little value is placed on human life. Military training starts at age seven. Surely anyone with common sense would not wish to exchange our present system for such a plan of government.

A Duty To State

"We as Kinsmen are definitely charged with the preservation of our Canadian Government and the British Empire, and I charge you with devoting all your ability and energy in resisting the entre of these isms into Canada."

In dealing with the second phase of Kinsmenship Mr. Lynes spoke of service to the community and tendered congratulations on the fine work being done in eye clinic field. by the Peterborough club.

"Being a Kinsman means taking a personal interest and making a personal contribution in effort to the service work of the club. You as Kinsmen should be active for twelve months of the year, and not just have a line of work that requires attention for merely a few months of the year.

Broader Program Urged

He urged the local club members to broaden the program of service while they maintained the eye clinic work as the main venture. In outlining a few other avenues of service he mentioned that members might each take one family from the city on a motor drive in the country or to the lakes for an afternoon in the summer, and while on the trip buy them ice cream or other delicacies.

"Even in Peterborough you will find people who never leave their homes," he said.

"Visiting the sick, or those who are recovering from polio and who will be bedridden or confined to a wheel chair for months is a very praiseworthy form of service work."

You are not doing your duty as Kinsmen unless you make friends with these people. Treat them like human beings. Go and, sit with them for an hour or so. Don't allow their minds to become chaotic, radical or Bolshevik, which is likely to follow if they get the idea nobody care about them.

"Just remember that it is only by the goodness of God that you have good health. You might just as easily bet he one who is stricken with polio oro ne of the many terrible diseases."

Money Not Essential

Mr. Lynes stressed the point that members of service clubs should bear in mind that money is not essential in carrying out the creed of Kinsmen. He suggested that a member should give of himself, rather than of money, by visits or by little kindnesses to those on whom misfortune has laid a hand. Fellowship and friendship were the two requisites often missing in the diet of an invalid or an underprivileged person. Theatre parties for cripples, picnics for old people and the collection and repairing of old clothing were other ventures suggested as possible avenues for service work by the speaker."

"Those who devote some of their time an energy to helping their less fortunate fellow man will be repaid in a new currency, the currency of goodfellowship and friendship, something which cannot be bought," said the speaker at the close of his address.

Howard Shimer, chairman of the Sunshine committee, introduced Mr. Lynes to the members, and in his remarks paid tribute to the fine work Lynes was doing. The thanks of the club was voiced by Don Scott, chairman.

Kinsmen Expect 150 Delegates

Upwards of 150 delegates from points as far distant as Montreal and Toronto and all large centres between the two cities will visit Peterborough in June for the district convention of the Kinsmen Club. Early reports from delegates indicate that th scenic beauty, summer recreational facilities, and the fishing in the Kawartha lakeland is acting as a magnet to the delegates, with the result that more than the usual quota may be expected.

At the anniversary night supper held in the Empress hotel Thursday night, District Governor, Austin Murphy, of Montreal, said the district officers were boosting the convention and he felt sure many who had never visited the Lift Lock city would arrive in June for the three-day conference.

Need New Members

"Every Kinsmen Club should sign up ten new members a year, so that as the old members pass on, the strength and vigor required to keep the club active, will remain," said Mr. Murphy.

He spent some time telling the members of the great work which Harvey Lynes, chairman of the service council for two districts was doing, even with the handicap of being totally blind. "Harvey Lynes exemplifies the highest ideals of Kinsmanship and the spirit of service burns strong within him." He is a credit to this organization and we are proud of the work he is accomplishing and the inspiration he gives to other members."

The first Kinsmen Club was formed in Hamilton nineteen years ago last Monday, and a message from the founder was read by Dr. Ralph Honey. Don Loucks, national registrar, read the anniversary message from the national president, A. R. Richards.

Delightful Concert At Caledonian Club

An enjoyable concert constituted the program at the regular meeting of the Caledonian Club held in the Moose Hall on Thursday evening. J. Beggs was in the chair, and efficiently carried through the program, which was as follows:

Duet (violin and piano), "In a Monastery Garden," by Mr. and Mrs. J. Harrison; quartette, "Kentucky Babe," H. Wynn, E. May, F. Biddle, T. Williams; character songs by J. Withers; musical selections on saw by Ford Jarvis; solo, "Play That Melody Again," F. Biddle; recitations by A. Milne; tap dance by Irvine Parnall; solo, "You Are the Only Star," E. May; guitar selections, Ford Jarvis; piano solo, Jack Marshall; recitation, A. D. Clark; solo, "The One Rose," by Miss Rose Puddick. Jack Marshall accompanied on the piano throughout the program. A questionnaire was conducted by the chairman, the winners being Mrs. O. Sugden and J. Withers.

W. May, president of the club, proposed a hearty vote of thanks to all those taking part in the program. This was responded to in the usual way.

Refreshments were served by the committee, and an enjoyable hour of dancing brought the evening to a close.

George Elliott To Represent Cheese Patrons

George A. Elliott of Norwood was re-elected representative of Peterborough county's cheese factories at their meeting in F. C. Paterson's office Thursday afternoon to appoint a member to the sone group of four such representatives who are authorized to appoint one of themselves to the Ontario Cheese Marketing Board.

Mr. Elliott had been elected to this same position of delegate at the Peterborough County Cheese Producers' Association of which he was re-elected president, but the Marketing Act is based on the cheese factory patrons, and required Mr. Elliott's appointment to the district group to be made only by representatives of local factories.

The district or sone group is composed of representatives from Peterborough, Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward counties. They nominated E. J. Fyear of Stirling, president of the Hastings County Cheese Producers' Association, as the member of the Cheese Marketing Board from Central Ontario factories.

The appointment of Mr. Elliott Thursday afternoon confirmed according to the latter of the Act what the Association had previously done.

Peterborough county will have four or five members of its Association at the annual meeting in Ottawa of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association.

Message To Duffus.

The only other business Thursday was a resolution instructing Frank C. Paterson, secretary, to write to J. J. Duffus, M.P., now in Montreal extending to him the sympathy of the cheese producers of Peterborough county in his present illness, and also to wish him a complete recovery.

"Mr. Duffus has always had the interests of this Association and the farming community at heart," Mr. Elliott said, "and it might be a little help to him now to know that we are all hoping for him to get better."

Man Disappears From Hotel

The police department was notified today that a man had disappeared from the Montreal House on Monday of this week under somewhat mysterious circumstances. The missing individual is Billy Barrow, 55 or 60 years old, a woodsman, who had been staying at the Montreal House for a few days, but who suddenly disappeared on Monday, leaving all his personal property at the hotel. He is described as a man of dark complexion with gray hair and gray eyes, wearing a brown suit, a dark blue overcoat and a broad fedora hat. Anyone knowing anything about Barrow is asked to communicate with the Peterborough police.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE ENDS SCHEDULE—STARTS PLAYOFFS

Scoreless Draw By Juniors A Night Feature

The Church Hockey League finished its 1938-39 schedule and commenced playoffs at All Saints' rink last night with three contests. St. Paul's and All Saints' battled to their second scoreless draw in junior finals, Mark St. took a 7-3 decision over All Saints' in a juvenile final, and George St. blanked Knox 3-0 to end their schedule with George St. in a second-place tie with All Saints'.

To-morrow evening at seven at All Saints' rink, All Saints meet George St. in a bantam semi-final. Three games are listed for that rink on Monday, St. John's Bantams having a final against either All Saints or George St. at six, Mark St. meeting George St. in a juvenile final at 7.15, and Murray St. and All Saints playing their second, senior final at 8.30.

The scoreless draw last night was a good overtime game, but All Saints still lead the series two games to one. Both goalies shone in a fine effort to keep the score-sheet clear. All Saints had an edge in speed but the others evened it up with vigorous checking. The teams play next Thursday at the same time and place. The teams:

St. Paul's—Goal, McBride; defence, J. McMillen, Csumrik; centre, Lockington; wings, Dundas, Watson; subs, G. Easton, Dunford.

All Saints—Goal, Lacey; defence, Leether, Williamson; centre, Deering; wings, Abraham, P. Morley; subs., B. Horley, G. Smith, D. Smith, Carpenter, Robson.

Referee—C. Sproat.

Makes Finals.

In the juvenile joust, Mark St. had a 2-1 edge in the first frame and made it 3-1 in the second. D. Robinson got three and Curtis and Scriver two apiece for the winners; while R. Robinson netted all three for the other crew, Scriver really pulling one into his own net. Mark St. had a good margin on play to go into the finals against George St. D. Eason, Scriver and Curtis were outstanding for the victors, while Spooner and Robinson starred for All Saints, with Evans and Hill good. It was rough near the first, and D. Eason and Abraham wound up in the cooler after a scrap. The teams:

Mark St.—Goal, Ralph; defence, Scriver, Agnew; center, Curtis; wings, D. Robinson, D. Eason; subs, Harris, C. Eason.

All Saints— Goal, Spooner; defence, Abraham, Lacheur; centre, R. Robinson; wings, Reid, Evans; subs, Nattress, Ackford, Maudsley, Hill, McAdams.

Referee—D. Charlton.

The first period of the Bantam bout was scoreless, but Smith got one late in the second for George St., and Wellwood counted two more in the third. The George St.-All Saints' winner to-morrow plays St. John's in finals Monday. George St. had an edge on play over Knox but the latter's checking and Parnell's usual fine goal-tending kept down the score in a good game. Smith and Wellwood stood out for Reg Kingdon's winners. Teams:

Referee—T. McDonald.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

It's playoff time at the rink on the Rue Brock tonight, with the O.H.A. junior "C" group finals commencing at 8.30 this p.m. betwixt the large Midgets of Lindsay and our Monarchs. First fray in the best two out of three tilts to see which outfit ambles into Ontario playdowns. So a flock of 16-year-old Peterborough boys will be out there tonight battling for keeps against a powerful invading outfit, a team that boasts it'll cop a provincial title in this year of grace and war scares. Well, maybe they will, but they'll have to say it with pucks to convince the scrappy young Monarchs. The locals are like wolf cubs, getting harder and harder to hold as the season progresses. They cuffed Cobourg out of contention and then blasted the big boys of Bowman Villa into limbo in group semi-finals.

* * * * * *

They don't play the smoothest of hockey, these battling Monarchs, but they pester the life out of rivals and keep peppering away till the final tally discloses the surprising fact that more counters have been scored by 'em than against 'em. It's quite a system, and can't miss. They check the other gang to bits and take take time out for the odd speedy dash in to flip the colored cookie into the cage. And even the lordly Lindsayites might find this most disconcerting here tonight, y'know.

* * * * * *

Don't Pass It Up

Monarchs are made up to quite an extent of Italian lads who learned their hockey in rousing Southend Loop tilts on cold nights on an open rink. Coach Pete Vitarelli has Giardino, Rochetta, Vitarelli and DeCarlo on his lineup. Along with the Messrs. Morrison, Beggs, Mackness, Connelly, Clarke, Mortimer, Cauley and Nicholls. Whilst the Scugog squad boasts a bunch of big, experienced lads—several of them imports—who made a real splash in the provincial playdown puddle last semester. They're a "B" band, but snuck under the "C" wire when the O.H.A. had its back turned—or something. At anyrate, tonight's tussle will be a swelegant scrap, with speed and hotchs action to burn, and it rates a big Friday flock of fans. Not much more puck activity for local fanatics, so don't pass up these playoff jousts.

* * * * * *

Monday in Omemee, the Peterborough Aces and Omemee mix it in the second of their two-in-three district loop finals, Aces copping the first. Manager Bud Williams and Coach Eddie Williams have a pretty fair pack lined up, and they haven't dropped a game yet this season. Play a streamlined style of ganging-up hockey most of the time. They may meet the good Oshawa crew in playdowns, if they win this loop. Players include Wright, R. Cournyea, Heal, Currie, Mortimer, A. Cournyea, Vitarelli, O'Leary, Hill, White and Connelly.

* * * * * *

Comes a query today as to why we haven't blossomed out this winter with a columnistic poem of any length. Well, sir, it's like this: Petes pranced through their playoffs with Fliers so easily we had neither the time nor incentive to bust into rhyme; the Colts needed more than poetry to spark them through the Oshawa fiasco; and darned if we can think of a word to rhyme with Monarchs! It's hard lines for a guy once dubbed Grantland Rice (a real rhyming writer) by Pick Hines here, but maybe the worm will turn—and turn out another jingle, if anyone cares. Not long ago a guy named Davis slipped this carol in his column of the St. Louis-Dispatch: "As goes the shuttle to and fro, so doth the demon tennis pro carry on his friendly grudge—Vines today, tomorrow Budge!" A potent tale in brief poetic form.

* * * * * *

Quinte columnist thinks Eastern Ontario is again being given the business by the O.H.A. in having been ordered to hurry up their group playoffs and then being kept waiting. It's true with the senior "B", anyway, as the Petes and Fliers were informed to have a winner ready by Feb. 15th, and certainly no later than the 17th. Okay, the Petes were ready for playdowns at that time, but now 'tis Feb. 24th and the Kingston series isn't settled and may not be for several more days. So the locals, just at their season's peak, are given a couple weeks to cool off. It's not right. Brantford and the Falls tied at 5-all last eve in their fourth playoff game, so the Big Roar bumpers still have a 2-1 game lead. A win for Kingston tonight will give 'em their group but an R.M.C. win will sew up the serial. The Petes will practice away and keep waiting.

A Matter Of Opinion

One Lindsay scribe says the Midgets and Monarchs will dish up a nice series and the locals' checking may bother the Scugog squad plenty. Other writer remarks that Midgets should win handily in two tilts. O.H.A. bulletin this a.m. states this series calls for a game here tonight and one in Lindsay on Monday, winner then tackling Belleville Wednesday—but the Quinte crew might have to wait if this group persists in making the series two out of three. Bowmanville scribbler gives Monarchs credit for playing improved hockey to rub out the young Rubbermen. He adds that Coach Mo Breslin of Bowman Villa is quitting this year, having lost 16 pounds and $300 on the club this season—and we'd quit, too, under those circs.

* * * * * *

Only one gals' basketball game last night here, Quaker Maids taking a 10-5 decision over Quaker Debs. While the Aces and Westclox had their contest postponed. Port Hope senior gals and junior boys play P.C.I. teams tonight in the local Collegiate gym. Three senior men's bouts are billed for the "Y" tomorrow night, Dominions meeting St. John's at seven, C.G.E. playing Quakers at eight, and Hecias tackling St. Paul's at nine. In the L.O.B.A. Lakeshore Loop gals' setup, we find Cobourg ordered into the Ontario intermediate "A" playdowns, whilst the other three must declare a group winner to enter intermediate "B" playdowns. So Orfuns play Belleville two in three games, first maybe Tuesday in Bella Villa. Winnah meetsC.G.E. for group honors.

Maroons Win As St. Peter's Get 12-3 Verdict

St. Peter's Juveniles, who went through the South-end schedule this season without a loss, opened the two-out-of-three playoffs last night against King Edward at the Sacred Heart Rink and took it handily 12-3. All St. Peter's looked good and especially the forward line as they gathered a three-goal average each, with the defence also getting their share. Mason, Garvey and Henwood collected four goals each, while Eason and Scriver assisted on them all. The St. Peter's team had no subs.

The third and deciding game of the Intermediate series was won by the Maroons last night at the Sacred Heart rink by the score of 5-1 over Canucks.

King Edward Gang Rubs Out Beavers

King Edward Midgets eliminated Beavers in a sudden death game last night at the Sacred Heart rink. Play was fast and clean all the way with Beavers having the edge in the first two frames, but King Edward turned the heat on in the third to register three goals to win the game 5 to 4.

Welch was the standout for the King Edward boys, while Hodson turned in a fine effort, to get two goals, along with Cox, Dalliday and Blaby, having one apiece. These players, with Lawson stood out for King Edward. Goal getters for the Beavers were Grady, one, Laplant 2, and Ainsley 1. Luther was the pick of the stars for the losers. King Edward now meets the Westenders in a two-out-of-three series.

The teams:

King Edward: Goal, Welch; defence, Lawson, McGregor; forwards, Hodson, Cox, Dalliday; subs, Blaby and Close.

Quaker Maids Gain Cage Win

Maids took an 8-1 lead in the opening half and then fought off the Debs' challenge in the final, to win 10-5, in an all-Quaker Ladies' City Cage League game last night in the Collegiate gym.

They had good passing and a little the better offensively all through the close checking, fast battle. With 16 fouls called 9 were against the winners and 7 on Debs, the Maids making two tries and the losers but one, E. O'Leary was banished with 4 fouls, for the winning Maids.

M. Snowden was the big gun for the winners, making two baskets and a free throw, with M. Sullivan and I. Young also prominent. H. White and R. Fair lead the losers. The teams:

Quaker Maids: M. Sullivan, E. O'Leary, V. Wood, E. Alexander, A. Frost, D. Frost, I. Young, M. Snowden, E. Harte-Maxwell.

Quaker Debs: M. Duncan, J. McLean, E. Roberts, M. McGuire, H. White, R. Farr, B. Fenner, A. Laing, J. Metcalfe, A. Frazzelle.

Too Many Hot Showers Caused Stanislaus To Become Bald

By BILL COLLINS
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

Still trouping at the age of 63, Stanislaus admitted he could even now get into the ring and wrestle 40 minutes with the best of the groaners.

In fact, just to keep in shape for his managerial duties, the bald Pole grapples every week or two.

Bald Egg No. 2

It was noted that his protege, a monstrous person named Wladslaw Talun, was also bereft of hirsute adornment. In quasi-Oxonian—he once studied law at Vienna and became something of a linguist—Stanislaus explained.

"Until a year ago he was a woodsman in the Carpathian mountains. His baldness, too, is the result of too many hot showers."

This correspondent accepted the explanation while privately wondering about the existence of showerbaths for woodsmen in the Carpathian mountains.

Zbyszko started trouping the highways and byways, not neglecting the county fair circuits 40 years ago. During his long career he thrice won the world's heavyweight wrestling championship. And in the days when wrestlers wrestled. He met the great Frank Gotch twice, Hackenschmidt several times, Joe Stetcher, wrestled Strangler Lewis in nine spectacular matches, and during the years grappled with all the rest at one time or another in one place or another.

Gotch Gets Him

"I stayed with Gotch for an hour once," Zbyszko recalled. "But the second time I didn't even come close. He threw me in 26 minutes."

Zibby long ago adopted the United States as his favorite country, although he always capitalized on his Polish nativity. He said:

"Once you've had a taste of America and American standards of living, there is nothing to take its place."

So the pudgy Pole with the naked pate keeps on trouping the highways and byways, cornering many an elusive dollar, which he invests in Uncle Sam's bonds.

$1,500,000 Stadium For Detroit Games which claims a 50-50 chance of getting the 1948 Olympics, announced to-day plans have been drawn up for a $1,500,000 stadium to accommodate the Games.

The stadium would seat about 100,000 and woul dbe covered by a roof of corrugated wire glass providing full daylight on the field. The centre section of the roof would be removable to provide summer ventilation.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

There are now eight undefeated rinks left in the main event of the Neill Trophy—by nine o'clock tonight there will only be four. It now appears to be a wide open contest — only one of the remaining rinks have won a major contest this season, and that one is T. McArthur, a group schedule winner.

In the Consolation, we will reach the eights—and no one could even make a wild guess as to the outcome. While the main event has seven local rinks left against one Lakefield entry, the Consolation has one Millbrook rink, four Lakefield, and the balance Peterborough rinks.

Play will continue at 6.45 p.m. and 8.45 p.m. this evening.

If the boys are not too tired after a week of strenuous curling, we will hold our usual Saturday honspiel to-morrow at 1.45 p.m. Everything the same as usual.

RANGERS AND AMERKS DEFEAT RED WINGS AND BLACK HAWKS

Dutton Crew Ends Slump With 3-1 Win

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The National Hockey League's main aspirants to the Stanley Cup won't be satisfied till they've battered Chicago Black Hawks deep into the cellar.

The Hawks won the cup last spring when they eappeared sixth best team on paper. After winning only three games in their last 18 starts, the Chicagoans still stand a reasonable chance of being in there when the playoffs open—and the memories of the Hawks' 1938 march still haunt the boys up front.

New York Americans ended a long slump last night with a 3-1 victory over Chicago at New York. Everyone is doing that sort of thing to the Hawks, but they refuse to fall into the bottom of the league. They're in the sixth and last playoff spot, and, while the seventh-place Montreal Canadiens flurry once in a while, the Hawks persist in hanging on.

It was a typical Black Hawk day. The club sent Bob Gracie to Cleveland of the International - American League in the afternoon and took a beating before a small crowd at night. Gracie was demoted for "indifferent play," the same thing that resulted in Alex Levinsky's departure a few weeks ago.

Bob Gracie

Americans had won only once in 10 starts and it took them a time to promote this success. Hell scoreless through the first period, they went ahead on Nels Stewart's goal seven minutes after the second started. Sweeney Schriner raised the margin late in the third but Johnny Gottselig scored for Chicago almost immediately. Art Chapman completed the New York total in the last minute on a breakaway, after Mike Karakas had been pulled from the visitors' goal.

Another bad break accompanied the game for the Americans, riddled all season by injuries and illnesses. Lorne Carr had to leave at the end of the second period because of grippe that lifted his temperature to 102.

The Hawks stayed only a point behind the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings, for New York Rangers whipped the Wings 4-2 at Detroit. After Ebbie Goodfellow scored on his own team, Detroit, in trying to clear the puck in the first period, Rangers stayed ahead.

Lorne Carr

Goodfellow scored on the right net in the second, but Rangers already were up 2-0 on Neil Colville's goal. Cecil Dillon scored again for New York late in the same period, and after Pete Kelly completed Detroit's scoring Alex Shibicky fired the fourth Ranger score.

The Detroit and Chicago losses were all to the good of the trailing Canadiens, but they accepted a bit of hard luck in the loss of Wilf Cude for a week. The little goalie has been ordered to lay off because of an eye injury, and Claude Bourque has been called back from Kansas City to replace him.

Ching's Charges Hot

Only last year a National League star with New York Americans and before that for many years a standout with Rangers, Ching Johnson, ABOVE, is making good with a bang as coach with Minneapolis Millers in the American Association. Ching's team, with the veteran defence star still smacking 'em down at the blue line, has already set a new league record for scoring and promise to set up quite a mark before the schedule ends. In addition, the 41-year-old playing manager is tremendously popular and has the fans flocking.

Junior Playoff Here Tonight

Lindsay Midgets and the local Monarchs meet here tonight (Friday) at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink in the first game of their O.H.A. junior "C" group finals. It is best two out of three games, second one being in Lindsay on Monday. The Midgets finished first in their group schedule, while the Monarchs were well down but spurted strongly at the last to beat out Cobourg and then eliminated Bowmanville two straight games in the semi-finals. Winner of the present series goes into Ontario junior "C" playdowns, with the loser being through for the season.

It should be a bangup scrap here tonight between two classy young crews. In previous games this year, Monarchs tied Lindsay here but lost on Scugog ice. The visitors are big and experienced, with several imports — and they feel they can take the provincial title this season. But the Monarchs have been improving every game and are in fine form now, full of pep and fight, and they stand an excellent chance of copping the first playoff win on home ice. The tilt will be a rootin', tootin', exciting junior joust—packed with action and speed every minute—and it should draw a big crowd of fans.

Remember When—

President Frank Calder of the National Hockey League inaugurated the two-referee system 16 years ago tonight. Used for the balance of the 1923 season, the plan lasted until the end of the 1937-38 campaign. This season only one referee is used with a second official on skates calling only offsides.

Predict Wolves Winners Of English Cup

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(CP Cable)—Overwhelming defeat of two great teams during the past week has given soccer fans in England and Scotland food for seemingly inexhaustible discussion. Clyde provided the first sensation by its 4-1 Scottish Cup victory over Rangers at Ibrox Park and yesterday the 7-0 shellacking given Everton by Wolverhampton Wanderers in English League football brought headlines up and down the country.

In both countries clubs revert to league play at the weekend and the doings of the defeated teams, leaders in their respective leagues, will be watched with intense interest.

Several experts declare that the Wolves' display against Everton was the best in England for many years and if they can maintain the standards their emergence as English Cup winners and league champions is almost certain. The Wanderers will have another chance to prove their victory was no flash in the pan when they meet Everton in the cup competition on the same ground, March 4.

At Ibrox Park, supporters of Rangers believe the defeat of their heroes marked only a temporary lapse from the form that has carried them to the top of the league with an 11-point advantage over Hearts, holders of second place with 36 points.

Rangers At Home

Rangers are at home to Kilmarnock Saturday and generally favored to win but English critics are guarded in their predictions about Everton's chances at Leeds. Wolverhampton, only two points behind Everton in England's major league, goes to Liverpool.

Douglas McMahon, Winnipeg-born forward on the Wanderers' roster, is likely to find a place in the first team only if a member of the attack is injured. Major Frank Buckley will not make any changes in the present combination.

Departure of Dai Astley to Blackpool has been followed by the announcemnt that Derby county is prepared to receive offers for Sam Crooks and J. Barker, international stars. It is the club's policy to reduce the average age of the team. Blackpool is making seven changes in the side to play at Stoke and among those dropped is J. Buchan, high-priced inside-right who came from Glasgow Celtic last season.

Sheffield United it determined to keep up with promotion contenders in the second division and Bobby Reid, Brentford's international winger joined the Yorkshiremen this week for their match against Manchester City. Blackburn Rovers, leaders in the division are away to Tottenham Hotspurs.

Probably the most attractive match on the Scottish card will be played at Aberdeen where Hearts provides the opposition. Smarting under the 2-1 reverse that meant their elimination from Scottish Cup by Celtic yesterday, the squad from the Scottish capital will fight hard at Pittodrie Park where the Dons are still in the running for the cup.

Celtic plays Partick Thistle at Parkhead and Clyde will receive a big welcome at Dumfries where Queen of the South can be expected to go all out to retain fifth place in the league standing.

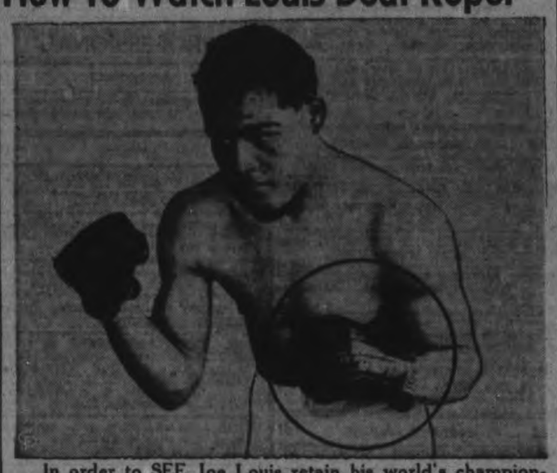
New Threat To Goalies

Spending most of the month of January with New Haven, Canadiens' International-American league farm team, was apparently beneficial to Rod Lorrain, right wing with Jules Dugal's rising Frenchmen. Since his return to the parent team, Rod has scored in five out of seven games, including the last four straight, with two each in the last two, as he and his teammates have surprised the hockey world with their battling and winning displays in their attempt to gain a playoff spot despite a series of discouraging injuries.

Big-Hearted, Just A Few Tips How To Watch Louis Beat Roper



In order to SEE Joe Louis retain his world's championship when they mercilessly throw old Jack Roper in against him, fans MUST keep their eye on the area indicated by circle. By merely sneezing or turning to yell "hey Joe!" it is possible to miss the ENTIRE FIGHT.

By BILL BRAUCHER
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Heartfelt is our regret that we cannot go to Los Angeles to see Joe Louis and Jack Roper meet in mortal combat. We have a severe case of hangnail which precludes a journey to the coast. Besides there's a good movie here that night.

But, for the benefit of the good folk of Los Angeles and vicinity, kindly allow us to offer a few well meant suggestions to those who intend to pay their way into the premises to witness this battle of the century.

Our first instruction is: DO NOT ARRIVE AT THE ARENA LATE FOR THIS FIGHT. Time yourself so that you get there at least to see the closing stages of the last preliminary. Watch the ring intently when Louis and Stringer (beg pardon, we mean Roper) enter their corners. Do not let anything interfere. If it's raining, do not bother to put up an umbrella.

All right, now Louis and Roper have received the referee's instructions, and have returned to their corners to await the gong. You notice at this point that one of your shoe laces has become unhitched. DO NOT STOOP TO TIE YOUR SHOE LACE IF YOU WANT TO SEE THIS FIGHT.

Or, suppose the men have gone to their corners after receiving the referee's instructions, and as they stand there shuffling their feet in the resin, a friend over in Row 8 calls to you, "High, Freddy-" or something like that. We come now to our third warning: DO NOT TURN YOUR HEAD TO RESPOND TO A FRIEND'S GREETING IF YOU WANT TO SEE THIS FIGHT.

Now that we have completed the list of "don'ts," let us give you the "do's." As the men come out of their corners fighting, watch Joe Louis' left hand. This is a fairly quick hand. It doesn't stay long in one place, and we don't want you to miss any of the action of this important struggle. WATCH LOUIS' LEFT!

For the sake of argument, we will say that Roper leads. He will paw and feint a little with his left hand in a kind of half jab. Do not pay any attention to this gesture. For when Roper's left arrives at a point about one foot from Louis' face, the Brown Bomber is going to let his left hand go.

There will be a lot of confusion at the ringside as Roper is counted out. Even in the press row the boys will be asking one another what happened. But if you have followed our instructions, you will be perfectly cognizant of the developments. You will be able to tell them all that Joe Louis knocked out Jack Roper in 37½ seconds of the first round, and he did it with a left hook, the only blow struck in the fight.

Our directions should enable you to see everything that happens when Jack Roper meets Joe Louis in Los Angeles. Years later you will be able to recall minutely the details of this clash. No one in the world will be able to give a better description of the punch, a better narration of the action, than you. Every phase of the fight will be at the tip of your tongue, because there will be nothing that you have missed.

Just get there on time, don't stoop to tie your shoe lace, and don't turn your head to nod to a friend.

Bold Tony Stops Feldman In Three Rounds

By Gayle Talbot
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 24—(AP).—In case bold Tony Galento does get that shot at champion Joe Louis next summer, which now seems assured, the very least he ought to do is cut honest Abe Feldman in for about 10 per cent of his end of the purse.

Abe did a lot to help Tony's cause by the sort of fighting he put up here last night before referee Dave Miller finally had to stop it early in the third round to spare him further punishment and possibly save Galento from a charge of manslaughter.

Bald Abe apparently did his level best to make a fight of it. If he didn't, then he took a terrible beating to make it look good. The crowd of about 10,000 counting deadheads, would have understood if Feldman had stayed down any one of the three times Tony smashed him to the canvas in the second round. They were yelling to Miller frantically to stop it when Abe sank to his knees from a terrific left to the body after 30 seconds of the third.

No "Fake" Yelps

By sticking it so gamely, Feldman at least gave Tony a chance to land a few visible blows. The crowd and the critics saw them hit Feldman, and there was no one to say fake. It was plain that Feldman, an honest ring-weary second-rater, simply was no match for the orange round man, who out-weighed him by some 37 pounds.

Tony gets a little more savage each fight as he sees himself getting nearer to a battle with the champion, he's determined to face Louis.

"Why shouldn't I get a chance at 'im?" he kept saying last night. "Sharkey and Carnera and other bums got a chance to make some big money didn't they? I'm no bigger bum that they was. I'll bust Louis open like I done Feldman if I hit him wit' my left."

Two Nights, Two Wins

This time last year reports were emanating from England of the ring doings of the Paul brothers, Danny and Packy. When they returned to their native shores they proved considerably less than sensations, so now they're over 'ome again and Danny, ABOVE, achieved some measure of fame by registering wins on successive nights, first against Johnny Fitzpatrick by a knockout, then against Dan McCorkindale, South African has-been via at 12-round decision.

Millbrook L.A. Lays Irish Supper Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 24. — The home of Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke was the meeting-place on Wednesday, at 3 p.m., for the Ladies' Aid of Grace Presbyterian Church. Miss Ruth Thorndyke assisting her mother in welcoming the many guests.

Mrs. J. R. Thompson, president, occupied the chair, and Miss Agnes Johnston read the 39th Psalm and led in prayer, after which the roll was answered with "Mottoes of Great Men." The secretary read a letter of appreciation from the family of the late member, Mrs. R. J. McKnight, and the meeting proceeded to make final arrangements for the Irish supper which the Aid is holding on March 16. Table conveners who have power to choose their own waitresses are: Mrs. Mervan Kinsmen and Miss Mina Gibson, and the meat will be purchased by Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Mrs. W. C. Thorndyke. H. A. Kerr will act as cashier, and Jean Syer will be assistant.

There will be no program for a change, the fee of twenty-five cents covering the supper. It was decided to again feature the "four P's" — pork, pickles, potatoes and pie—for the menu, with the addition of baked beans. The next meeting will be on March 22, with Mrs. S. E. Eakins and Miss Agnes Johnstotn as program committee, and the society is open for an invitation for a home in which to hold this gathering.

Sixty-seven names are on the roll, and these were all placed in a dish, the group leaders drawing one in turn until all had been drawn. This makes a new distribution of the membership for the current year, the leaders being: Miss Jean Syer, Mrs. H. A. Kerr, Mrs. S. Pritchard, Miss Mina Gibson, Miss Ruth Thorndyke gave a humorous reading, "The Indispensable Ladies' Aid," and tickets at a nickel each were sold on a very pretty apron left from the bazaar last December, Miss Vanita Ingram winning the draw.

The hostess and her daughter served a dainty tea during the social hour. Mrs. Thorndyke pouring tea at a table covered with a lace cloth and centered with a bowl of daffodils. The vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. H. C. Lord and heartily endorsed by all.

MILLBROOK

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

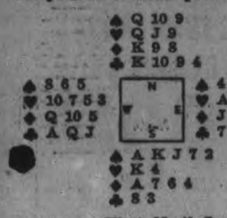
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

A PILE OF NICKELS

SOMEBODY ASKS IF you have a dollar with you. When you feel in your pocket and look in your wallet, you find not a solitary silver dollar or bill. But you do find a whole pocketful of nickels, dimes and quarters. You can't very well tell your friend then that you haven't a dollar — that is, unless you are trying to duck a "touch." It is the same in bridge. A handful of kings, queens and jacks can be a whole lot better than one which contains a couple of aces and then drops down to small spot cards.



(Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.)

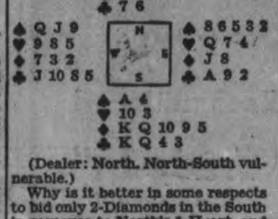
At every table of a duplicate game, South made a fourth-hand opening of 1-Spade on this deal. Then things varied. At one table a North player who likes aces didn't think very much of his cards. He bid a mere 1-No trump and South passed, for bottom score — pretty bad bidding for both partners.

In another case, North responded with 2-No trump and his willful partner jumped to 4-Spades. Still another development came in North responding to the 1-Spade with 2-Clubs. When South then rebid at 2-Spades, North hopped into 3-No trump and was allowed to play it there. Top score came at the table where, after North's 2-Clubs, South bid 2-No trump and North 3-No trump, not necessarily better bidding than that of the pair just before mentioned, but this South gave the hand a better play and got a little help too.

West led the heart 3 to the A, and East switched to a club to the A. Then West switched again to the diamond 5, the J falling to the A. Followed then the heart K, diamond K, heart J and five spades. As the last was played, West had to choose either his diamond Q as a discard or a club from the Q-J. If the former, dummy's 9 would be set up, so he picked a club and the club K-10 made the last two tricks, for five-odd.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

Why is it better in some respects to bid only 2-Diamonds in the South in response to North's 1-Heart, and why better in some respects to bid 3-Diamonds?

GAME BIRDS INCREASE

LANSING, Mich.—(CP). — After ten years' work Michigan game authorities believe their efforts to introduce Hungarian partridge in the state will prove successful. They now have a stock of 800 acclimatized birds.

RAM BUTTED IN

Havelock Church Lays It Jubilee Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 20.—St. John's Anglican Church, Havelock, one of the prettiest little churches in Peterborough county, will mark this year it's fiftieth anniversary. Plans were suggested at the annual vestry meeting to formally celebrate the Golden Jubilee of the building of the church sometime during the summer, and the membersof the advisory board were appointed as a committee to look after further arrangements.

The late Rev. John Gibson, M.A., rector of Norwood and Westwood parishes prior to 1889, who became first incumbent of St. John's church, was truly it's founder and builder. Untiringly during the summer and fall of 1889 he toiled side by side the members of this congregation assisting in the actual building of the church. The cornerstone was laid July 1, and the completed church was officially dedicated on December 8, the dedication ceremony being conducted by the late Archdeacon Thomas W. Allen of Millbrook.

Stone for the walls was quarried just east of the village on the farm now occupied by Mr. John Cochrane and all masonry work was done by the late Henry Weymark, assisted by his six sons, George and Albert, of whom still reside in Havelock. Carpentry work was carried on under the direction of the late James Scott of town and the late George Temple of Campbellford.

The first church wardens were the later Arthur Copp and the late Henry Weymark. Their names are inscribed on the church bell, which was the first in Havelock, and was obtained through donations from everyone in the village and surrounding district. The bell was first installed by the late William Mathison and the late Alex McCauley, and the peals besides being a signal for all churchgoers was used for many years as the village fire alarm.

Seven of the church's original congregation are yet living in Havelock, in the persons of Mrs. W. T. Curtis, Mrs. H. Faulkner, Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. James Scott, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Bryans and Mr. George Weymark. Mrs. Smith also has the distinction of being the first bride married in the church.

In Fine Condition.

Today finds the church in perhaps the finest condition of it's history, a great many improvements having been made in the last half century. Most important was the addition of a new wing to the north side of the building in 1929, while Rev. P. C. Howard, now of Bobcaygeon was the rector here. The upper part of this is used as a vestry while the lower half is completely outfitted as a kitchen. Although the church interior was partially destroyed in the summer of 1937, it was fully restored the same year, a modern lighting system and new organ being installed at the same time.

Presiding at the annual vestry meeting this year, Rev. R. E. Lemon brought up the matter of the church's fiftieth anniversary and suggested that plans be made to celebrate the occasion in a fitting manner.

Vestry Clerk Miss Madge Curtis read the minutes of church meetings held during the past year followed by the annual election of officers. Wm. Seabrook replaced Dr. Donald Holdcroft as rector's warden, but the office of peoples' warden was temporarily left vacant, E. J. Leeson asking to be relieved of his duties after two years service in that capacity. There wil be a special meeting of the vestry on Thursday evening in the church basment to elect some one to this office.

Other officers elected were: Rector's sidesmen, Messrs L. Thompson, W. Kirk, E. Sanderson, B. Longmuir, and J. Covert; peoples' sidesmen, Messrs J. Barlow, R. F. Covert, M. Isaac, M. Poste, F. J. Watson, George Weymark, J. Seabrook and R. Sanderson; advisory board, the wardens, Miss Curtis, Mrs. J. Holdcroft, Mrs. H. W. Roche, B. Longmuir and H. W. Roche; auditors, B. Longmuir, J. Covert.

Rev. R. E. Lemon reporting on the past year's activities said that there had been 16 communions, 55 regular and 17 week day services. There are a total of 45 families in the parish and nine single adults, making a total of 160 persons. There were three baptisms, five burials, five marriages, and 12 were confirmed into the church. The archbishop visited the parish last year as did representatives of the church army.

Reports were received from the different organizations as folows: Womens' Auxiliary, by secretary Mrs. Max Poste. Thirty-three meetings held during the year under the presidency of Mrs. Joseph Holdcroft. The amount raised for missions was $121.13; the amount for the parish, $135.

The Parish Guild under their president, Mrs. H. W. Roche raised $160.55, their expenditures being $119.61, leaving a net balance of $41.04.

Mrs. W. Drew, leader of the Junior W. A. reported that they had 27 meetings with a membership of 14. Total receipts were $52.97.

The Sunday School was Miss M. Curtis as superintendent and five other teachers, had an average attendance of 30 pupils. Receipts were $38.24 and expenditures $34.36, leaving a balance of $3.88.

H. W. Roche, leader of the Church Boys' League reported that they had a cash balance of $2.50 on hand.

Thanks was extended to Rev. R. E. Lemon, the wardens and the organazations for their co-operation during the past year.

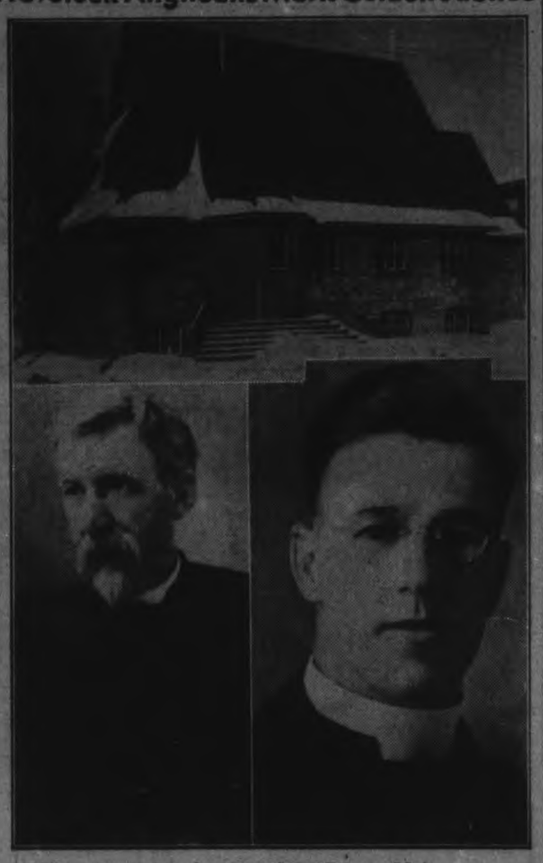
Havelock Anglicans Mark Golden Jubilee



Fifty years ago the late Rev. John Gibson, M.A., saw completed a long and arduous task that he had undertaken—the erection of St. John's Anglican church in Havelock, TOP. Mr. Gibson, LOWER LEFT, was founder and builder of the church and its first incumbent. This year Rev. R. E. Lemon, LOWER RIGHT, present rector, is in charge of preparations for the celebration of the church's fiftieth anniversary.

Seven-Year Search Reveals Author Of Peace Tower Inscription

OTTAWA, Feb. 24. — (CP). — Authorship of an inscription engraved in the Memorial Chamber of the Peace Tower in the Parliament buildings was determined today after a seven-year search.

The inscription, the last thing a visitor sees as he leaves the chamber, reads:

"All's well, for over there among his peers
"A happy warrior sleeps."

Several persons have interested themselves in finding the author of the adaptation of Wordsworth's "Happy Warrior" and Major J. F. Cummings said today it was written by J. C. Jones, now of Montreal, in 1919, or 1920.

When the memorial chamber was being planned the architect, John Pearson, read the words and made a note of them but he was unable to recall later who had written them. In 1932 Earl Baldwin, attending the Imperial Economic Conference here, became interested and parliamentary library officials began a systematic but fruitless search of anthologies, dictionaries of quotations and books of modern verse.

Major Cummings carried on the search and recently found Mr. Jones in Montreal. The author did not recall that the four verses comprising the full poem had ever been published.

The verses are somewhat disconnected and of uneven texture and do not, according to Major Cummings, reach the high standard of other of Mr. Jones' works. But the interest in the poem, he says, "lies in its connection with the inscription which, for its felicity and lovely thought, is by way of becoming a classic, so widespread is the attention it has attracted."

Home Is Destroyed In Centre Dummer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 23.—Fire destroyed the home of Russell Woodcock one mile north of Centre Dummer on the ninth line, Tuesday night.

It happened at six o'clock in the evening and before enough help could be summoned the house became a mass of flames. Very little of the contents were saved. The hen-house which had three tons of hay in it caught fire and also burnt to the ground.

The neighbors kindly offered shelter to the family for the night.

PAINFUL periods are nature's warning that something is wrong and needs immediate attention. To promote easy and painless periods and to aid functional regularity, take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for a while. Mrs. Wm. Cote, 582 Ottawa Ave., London, Ont., says: "When I was developing into womanhood I suffered so badly with cramps that I would almost double up with pain. I was quite nervous, weak, pale and my face, back and shoulders were practically covered with pimples. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription built me up, I gained weight, had no further cramps, wasn't nearly so nervous, and the pimples went away." Get it in liquid or tablets from your druggist today.

Cattle And Hogs Gain 25 On Week's Sales

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—(CP). — Cattle prices closed 15 to 25 cents higher on Toronto livestock market this week after a weak opening, the Dominion Livestock Branch reported. Calves were steady to strong while hogs gained 25 cents cwt. Lambs firmed 25 cents cwt. with sheep steady.

The cattle supply was light. Buyers operated sparingly Monday and values were a shade easier on some grades. As runs continued light, there was a scramble for cattle that brought higher prices.

Weighty steers ranged from $6 for common up to $7.50 for choice, with a few heavies at a top of $7.75. Good butcher steers and heifers traded at $6.36-$6.75; a few top light steers reached $7. Butcher cows brought $3.50-$5 cwt., canners and cutters $2.50-$3.25.

Butcher bulls sold at $4.50-$5 and bolognas from $4-$4.50. Choice fed calves were $8.50-$9 with mediums downward to $6.50. Light stockers made $5-$5.50 in small lots and a few feeding steers reached $5.85. Good milkers and springers were steady at $75 for tops but plainer kinds were almost unsaleable.

Choice veal calves were priced at $10.50-$11, with bulk of sales from $8-$10.50. A few common lights ranged from $5-$7 cwt.

Hogs Up to $9.50.

Hogs opened 15 cents higher at $9.35-$9.50 off trucks for bacons and gained to a general $9.50 on Tuesday, holding to the close. Sows sold at $6.75-$7 cwt. on the off truck basis.

Sheep and lamb receipts included 1,200 from the West. Good Western lambs opened at $9 and closed at $9.25 for a shipment of 400. Small lots of Ontario-fed lambs made $7-$9 with some at $9.25. One lot of clipped Southdowns brought $9.75. Sheep were $2-$5 cwt. for Ontario grades with light Western ewes at $5.50 cwt.

Centreville YPS Hears Fine Talk On Giving

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, Feb. 24. — Miss Ethel Belch was hostess to the Young People's Society of Centreville Presbyterian church on Tuesday night, with 35 in attendance.

The president, Miss Margaret Larmer, presided during the business period. A committee was appointed to meet with the Ladies' Aid Society and arrange for a banquet. Miss Muriel Whittington invited the society to meet at her home on March 7.

On motion of Mrs. Clifford Hall and Allie Berry, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered the hostess, and Mr. and Mrs. Belch for their hospitality.

The service convener, Smith McCutcheon, presided for a splendid program. Willie Lackey sang a very appropriate selection. Dorothy Anderson gave a fine reading on "Success." A special feature was a splendid address on "Giving" by Allie Berry. Miss Robena Tate gave a much enjoyed piano selection.

The program closed with a hymn and prayer, after which Gerald Anderson was sponsor for several games. Refreshments were served.

Mission Circle Hears Address On Prayer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24—Mrs. E. C. Roberts who gave an interesting address on prayer was guest speaker at the regular meeting of St. Andrew's Young Ladies' Mission Circle held on Tuesday evening. Held at the home of Mrs. Ben Frederick the meeting opened with a brief devotional period which was in charge of the president. Mrs. Victor Hay gave the scripture reading and after the minutes had been read Mrs. Wesley Stephens presented the treasurer's report. Mrs. Ray Phillips read the second chapter of the study book, "Moving Millions" followed by piano selections by Mrs. Stephens. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the hostess who was assisted by Mrs. H. Fowlds, Mrs. Ed. Henson, Miss Lillian Hay and Miss Margaret Anderson.

"IT IS YEARS SINCE I'VE FELT THIS GOOD BEFORE," SHE SAYS

Describes How Syntona Herbal Medicine Brought Relief From Acid Indigestion, Gas, Nausea, and Backache. Felt Nervous and Rundown.

Convincing proof of the splendid results that are to be had by taking a treatment of Syntona is found in the many excellent reports from men and women who have used this medicine faithfully and according to directions. Hundreds of former sufferers from stomach disorders, gas and indigestion, getting up nights, nervouaness, sleeplessness, and rheumatic pains are delighted at the way Syntona goes to the root of their troubles and soon has them feeling like different persons. Here, for example, is the splendid experience of Mrs. Eleanor Smith, 62 Highway Ave., London.

"More than half my lifetime I was a victim of a weak, nervous stomach, and about three years ago, following a serious infection, I became nervous and rundown, and my stomach got so bad that almost every morsel of food I ate would sour and cause gas, bloating and nausea. I was subject to dizzy spells, constipation, and the gas would press up into my chest and make me short of breath. I developed rheumatic pains all through my back, limbs and joints. I had tried so many things with little results that it seemed there was no help for me. I kept reading about how Syntona was successful in so many similar cases here and finally I got a bottle. The first bottle helped me so much that I decided to take a full treatment, and now I can say my faith in Syntona was more than justified. I can now eat well without all that misery afterwards, and the rheumatic pains have left me. My nerves are relaxed, and I sleep better. I haven't had a dizzy spell lately, and in every way I feel better than I did for many years previously. I will always be thankful for what Syntona has done for me."

Entire Policing Of Ontario To Be Reorganized Under New Conant Plan

Attorney-General Out To Curb Rise Of Crime, Believes Reshuffle Will Do It Without Great Increase In Tax Burden

TORONTO, Feb. 25 (CP).—Because crime and criminals today "know no municipal boundaries," Hon. Gordon D. Conant, Ontario Attorney-General, plans a re-organization of the entire police system of the province.

"I feel very strongly that we must revise our system to meet these altered conditions, so that, when necessary, all the police in the province may be available and alert to apprehend criminals, no matter where crime may be committed," Mr. Conant told the Ontario Safety League silver jubilee dinner here last night.

Outline of plans to combat the "big business of crime," include an increase in the size of the Provincial police force, if finances permit; redistribution of the Provincial force of 160 operating in Ontario counties, according to the density of population and amount of crime, allowing one Provincial constable to be located at each county seat.

Creation of county constabulary and the setting up of standards designed to ensure for the counties reasonably competent police, and more central control of all police forces in Ontario.

Mr. Conant said he believed that segregated municipal police hindered abolishment of crime. He said that a method of co-ordinating all police when necessary "certainly seems to be indicated if not indeed, absolutely necessary."

Check Up Scheme

Greater uniformity could best be accomplished "by empowering the attorney-general to appoint some qualified and competent person to investigate and report as to the policing of any municipality or the police force or any member of the police force in any municipality, either at the request of the municipality or on his own initiative.

"I believe that a substantial improvement in our policing can be effected without adding materially, if at all, to the burden of the municipal taxpayer," he said.

"I do not expect that the changes I have outlined will accomplish perfection in the policing of the province overnight. I believe, however, they are steps in the right direction and that out of them will develop policing which will make it safer for every man, woman and child in this province."

He suggested county police be given jurisdiction throughout Ontario and not limited only to the county in which they are engaged to serve.

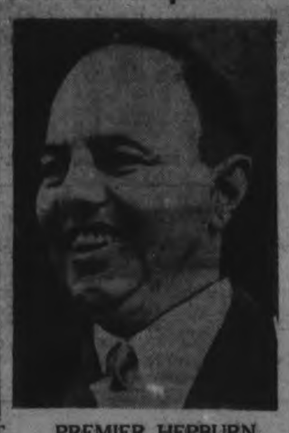
He said that simpler and faster machinery should be set up for the appointment and dismisal of county police and contended that the present system, effected by county judges at general sessions of the peace, was "too cumbersome."

"There is no place on the highways for the drunken driver," he said, "there must be no fixing of cases and no interference with our courts."

One of the most effective ways of minimizing traffic accident was by efficient and adequate police, he believed. A great many citizens were restrained by the presence or "fear of police."

Gordon Conant To Succeed Hepburn?

HON. GORDON CONANT



PREMIER HEPBURN

According to rumors going the rounds of the corridors at Queen's Park, Ontario's Premier Mitchell Hepburn, back from studying the economic situation in Australia, has tendered his resignation to his colleagues. Going even further, rumors state that Hon. Gordon Conant, attorney-general, will succeed Mr. Hepburn.

Second Suez Canal In Jordan Valley May Bolster British "Lifeline"

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(CP-Havas)—A British plan for the construction of a "second Suez Canal" linking the Palestine coast and Red Sea was reported last night by well-informed sources here.

In circles following the Arab-Jewish conference on Palestine there were unofficial reports that plans are under consideration by the British government for construction of a "secondary" canal linking the Palestine coast and the Transjordan Red Sea port of Akaba.

According to last night's information, the projected waterway would follow the Jordan Valley by way of the Dead Sea. Construction of such a canal would give Great Britain an alternate link in her imperial "lifeline" should the Suez canal be blockaded or destroyed during a possible future war in the Mediterranean.

Teaching Gambling

DETROIT, Feb. 25.—(CP).—Prosecutor D. C. McCrea termed penny gum-vending machines that pay off five cents for every speckled ball of gum obtained a "particularly vicious form of gambling" in a letter today to Mayor Richard Reading.

McCrea said the machines have appeared near schools and often 10 to 15 children could be seen in a store, gambling the pennies given them by their parents as school lunch money in these machines.

"You will readily see this machine has no attraction for adults and can have no other effect than to educate children of this city in gambling habits," McCrea said. Police promised to clean up the machines.

Ship Is Stoned

TAMPICO, Mexico, Feb. 25.—(AP).—A group of persons described by the authorities as Communist agitators stoned the German steamship Orinoco as she arrived from Veracruz to-day, in protest against the refusal of the ship's authorities to allow visitors to board her while in Veracruz.

The Orinoco's captain explained that because the ship had been overloaded he refused to let visitors aboard for fear of an accident.

Farmer Uses Sleigh For First Time In Past Eleven Years

"THIS is the first time in eleven years I have used this outfit," said a Douro farmer on the market this morning, pointing to the sleigh ride in which his products were displayed. "I could not get here any other way," he explained. "The Warsaw road is open but I live three quarters of a mile off it and the side road is blocked tight. Yesterday's high wind completed the job and the snow is packed so tight on the side roads that it is going to take a lot of plowing with a powerful machine to get them open."

Highways Are Only Roads Open To Motors

Feeder roads leading to trunk highways throughout the county were blocked tight again today. Friday's wind from the northwest had built up new drifts, particularly on the north and south lines. A mere handful of farmers with produce at the outside market today was proof of the fact that many had found it impossible to reach the city.

Highways are all in good shape and well plowed and motor traffic was proceeding without difficulty on the road between Millbrook and highway 28, but most of the county roads are quite impassable to motor traffic. Included among the roads still blocked Saturday morning and passable only to horse drawn vehicles were the Norwood Road, the boundary between Douro and Otonabee to the east, the middle line of Smith and the lower stretches of the flat road near Rice Lake. Edgar Wood, a farmer near Rice Lake drove a team and sleigh to the market and when he arrived here the team was in a lather. The snow he said was so deep in places that the horses floundered and had considerable difficulty struggling through.

One woman at the market said they had come in from Young's Point after driving three quarters of a mile in a car to the highway. At all points the farmers had been working for several hours with home made plows, to break a road for cars and unless a wind whips the snow into new drifts many roads should be in fair shape in a few days.

Generally speaking and basing the statement on reports from farmers at the market the only roads in good shape for motor traffic are the Provincial highways, Sixth Line from No. 7 highway to Keene and the Keene Road down through Zion.

Indications were that egg prices would start to climb because the cold weather was keeping the farmers home and the supply light. At ten o'clock there were not more than a dozen farmers including butchers on the outside markets offering produce to the buying public.

Team Tows Bus

Drifting snow borne of the wings if a strong north-west wind make motor travel difficult on the Sixth Line of Keene and No. 7 highway on Friday afternoon and the Keene bus carrying school children from Peterborough did not reach the village until 8.30 Friday night.

On the trip from Keene to Peterborough a team of horse driven by L. Downer went ahead of the bus and assisted passage of the heavy vehicle with a tow chain. The wheel tracks were filling in almost as quickly as they were made. On the return trip the bus stuck in front of the home of Henry Weir and while Mr. Weir assisted in shovelling the snow, his wife provided the pupils waiting in the bus with a warm lunch. Ivan Fletcher, driver of the Keene bus, kept the passengers warm by leaving the engine running. Three and a half hours elapsed between the time the bus left Highway 7 and reached Keene by way of the Sixth Line and the plow went down the road later in the evening.

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 25.—Ed Westlake, driver of the Lakehurst stage was forced to spend Friday night in Lakefield when he found the county road between Buckhorn and Lakefield blocked. He started out but only got as far as Patrick's Hill just outside of Lakefield. Harry Shearer of Buckhorn reported the road completely blocked in several other places and also that no person had been able to get into Buckhorn since Friday at noon.

Duffus' Condition Is Satisfactory

MONTREAL, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Condition of J. J. Duffus, Liberal member of Parliament who underwent a brain operation here two days ago, is "satisfactory," it was reported to-day.

Hospital attendants said Mr. Duffus, who represents Peterborough West, in the House of Commons, spent a "comfortable day" yesterday. He is in Montreal Neurological Institute.

Two Special Trains Leave Paris

All Living In Corsica Ordered Home As Soon As Possible

PARIS, Feb. 25.—(AP)—Several thousand Italian citizens living in France packed up today and prepared to board trains in a mass return to their native land.

The secretary of the Italian Embassy said two special trains were scheduled to leave Paris alone. The exodus was underway in other cities following reports of a similar impending emigration from Corsica.

(Italian dispatches reaching Rome from Paris set the number going from Continental France at 3,000 and said 500 would leave Corsica. French island which has been mentioned in the recent Italian clamor for territorial concessions.)

The exodus was officially described as in response to Premier Mussolini's repatriation order for Italians abroad.

(A Rome dispatch said foreign circles in the Italian capital regarded the mass homecoming as a further gesture of ill-feeling toward France.)

(Reports from Corsica yesterday said Italian consulates had advised all Italian residents of the island to return to Italy within the shortest possible time.)

Just a Beginning.

An Italian Embassy spokesman said the exodus was "only a beginning." Although the movement officially was in response to the repatriation order under which Italians in all lands were being called home, it was viewed in many quarters as a direct slap at France.

Officially the French government accepted Rome's official reason reason that the repatriation followed the Fascist plan to get most of the Italians living abroad back to work in Italy. But despite this reason, the occurrence of the repatriation at a crucial moment in Italian-French relations was viewed by responsible quarters as due to one of two things:

1. Either Italy feared war with France might come soon, or
2. Italy wanted "to frighten" the French into believing she was preparing to back up colonial demands on France with action.

(Italy estimates the number of Italians living abroad at 10,000,000 a figure which does not take into account naturalizations and includes the children born of Italians abroad. According to this figure there are 992,000 Italians in France, 3,719,000 in the United States, 1,837,000 in Brazil and 1,826,000 in Argentina. Mussolini wants to get as many as possible of these under the Italian flag.

5 Express Cars Roll, 12 Hurt

LARAMIE, Wyo., Feb. 25 (AP)—The overturning of five railroad cars loaded with westbound vacationists left 12 persons in a hospital here today.

Four Pullmans and the club car of the Union Pacific's 15-car "Pony Express," carrying visitors to San Francisco's Golden Gate Exposition and ski enthusiasts to Sun Valley, Idaho, last night careened down a 20-foot embankment three miles west of Bosler, Wyo.

Ambulances ploughed through a heavy fog, in zero weather, to bring 15 injured persons to hospital here. Most suffered minor hurts.

W. W. Jaeger, executive vice-president, and E. H. McConney, actuary and vice president, of a Des Moines, Iowa, insurance company (Bankers Life), were among those hurt.

At Omaha, Neb., officials of the line said a broken axle on the diner caused the derailment.

Bachelor Boasts Adopted Son

To the best of his knowledge, Sydney Guialaroff, America's highest-paid hairdresser, who attends the hair of Hollywood's most famous actresses, is the only bachelor ever to adopt a child. Guialaroff, shown here with his 10-months-old adopted son, revealed that he adopted the boy from a New Jersey hospital when the child was but six days old.

Defence Cash To Be Better Spent Due To Bren Probe, Says Manion

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Canada's defence expenditures will be allotted on a more satisfactory basis because of the inquiry into the Bren gun contract, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, National Conservative Party Leader, declared last night.

Speaking at a reception in his honor, Dr. Manion said that whatever else results from the charges of Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, out of which the probe arose, the country had saved money and would be forced to adopt a better system of letting defence contracts.

"Col. Drew deserves the gratitude and encouragement of the Canadian people for these things," the Conservative Leader said. He pointed out that the Department of National Defence was the Federal Government's largest spending body with the exception of the Finance Department.

"They are spending $63,000,000 a year, and it is of the utmost importance to the Canadian people that not one dollar of this money is mis-spent," Dr. Manion asserted. "The very life of our nation may be at stake. Who in this room knows what next year may bring forth? Who knows that we will not be in the midst of a World War because the dictators call the game?"

Two Men Face Second Charge

Joe Champagne and Harold Peterson, who were sentenced in police court Friday to four years and three years and six months respectively in Kingston Penitentiary for the armed robbery of Wilbert H. Peel are likely to face another charge in court next week as the result of the visit to Peterborough Friday of C.N.R. Officer Church.

The railway investigator interviewed the two men in the county jail Friday afternoon and as a consequence they will probably be charged with breaking and entering the Canadian National express office in the station at Kearney, Ont., and committing theft. The break-in occurred in January and a small sum of money, a quantity of postage stamps and a nickel-plated revolver were stolen. The Kearney gun is thought to have been the weapon used in holding up Peel here.

Horse III, Set Free Runs Away, Found 4 Years Later

Rexburg, Idaho, Feb. 25 (AP)

FOUR YEARS AGO while Earl Nelson was out driving, his bay mare became ill with the colic. Released from harness, the horse lay down, rolled over, groaned, jumped up and galloped off down the highway. This week Nelson, answering a notice, found the animal impounded here. Harness marks showed someone had been working her since 1935.

Foresees Canada With Dictator

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—(CP)—Economic security is possible without freedom, in the opinion of Norman Jaques (S.C. Westaskiwin) but Finance Minister Dunning holds a different view. This became apparent in the House of Commons yesterday when Mr. Dunning interrupted the Social Credit member's speech on the Canada-United States trade treaty.

Mr. Jaques was arguing trade treaties were not a solution to economic ills which sprang from a faulty financial system. He went on to say that the people wanted economic security and if parliament could not provide them with it along with freedom, they would look for economic security without freedom and that meant dictatorships.

"Does my friend think that economic security without freedom is possible as a permanent condition?" asked Mr. Dunning.

"Yes," said Mr. Jaques, "and I should say that is the condition of the vast majority of people in the civilized world today.

So called freedom lingers on here in Canada. We have political freedom but certainly have not got economic security. In Germany they have economic security but no political freedom."

Security In Jail Too

"No," protested Mr. Dunning and the Social Crediter went on to say that a man in jail had economic security because he knew he would have his work, his meals and his bed which was more than a great many Canadians were certain of.

Mr. Jaques admitted he was more pessimistic about the future of the democratic system than Conservative Leader Manion. While Dr. Manion only gave the system 20 years to live if it failed to solve economic and social problems, Mr. Ja-

They will visit Boston, New York, Detroit and Toronto in the interests of the projected college.

Britain's Eight Million-a-Day Arms Program For '39 May Purchase Her Peace

Pace No Other European Nation Can Equal Likely To Bring Round Table Parley Matching Disarming Against Land Greed

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 25 (CP Cable).—Europe is moving in the general direction of a round table conference where disarmament and territorial ambitions will be played the one against the other.

When it will be held it is impossible to say, but many European observers believe the events of the past fortnight have brought it immeasurably nearer, particularly the British Government's announcement that it would spend £580,000,000 ($2,715,000,000) on arms next year in a colossal program involving $8,000,000 a day.

There is no other European country able to match an armament program of that size and Great Britain may purchase peace for herself in Europe by the paradoxical method of spending hundreds of millions of dollars on the implements of war.

The two biggest unknown quantities in Europe are Spain and the Italian territorial aspirations in the Mediterranean. There is also a third, but it is not quite so indefinite — Germany's colonial ambitions.

Table Or Trenches?

It is Prime Minister Chamberlain's ambition and the logical conclusion of his appeasement program to see that these problems are settled across the table because if they continue to breed international friction they eventually will be settled across the trenches.

At the moment Mr. Chamberlain believes there is not sufficient confidence and evidence of mutual trust to warrant an international conference. His present job is to foster confidence and one of his methods is to send trade ambassadors to Berlin, Warsaw, Moscow, Helsingfors and Stockholm. Another is to seek, in speech after speech, a sign from Chancellor Hitler that he is willing to abondon the policy of armed aggression for one of peaceful negotiation.

Poland a Key Nation.

Great Britain's trade negotiations with Berlin, Warsaw, and Moscow are particularly significant. Poland is Germany's eastern bastion, and if the Polish Foreign Minister, Joseph Beck, who is visiting London soon, can be induced to throw in his lot with Great Britain and France it will solidify their position.

Still more important are Great Britain's approaches to Russia, because they have political as well as economic significance. After Munich Mr. Chamberlain was accused of cold-shouldering Russia, which had lined up with Great Britain and France against German aggression in Czecho-Slovakia.

Russia was not invited to Munich and was not consulted about the terms of the settlement, which profoundly re-arranged the economic and strategic maps of South-eastern Europe. Now, however, Mr. Chamberlain is making fresh approaches to Moscow which will not be overlooked in Berlin and Rome and may

DONALD McDONALD

Toronto police, after weeks of investigation in the gang-land shooting of James Windsor, Toronto "bookie," last Jan. 7, have laid charges of murder against 30-year-old "Mickey" McDonald and his 19-year-old brother, Alex. Both McDonalds have been in custody for some time on other charges, and were out on bail when Windsor was shot and kicked to death in his home.

Hitler Admits Opposition At Home And Abroad—"But Won't Fight"

BERLIN, Feb. 25.—(AP).—Chancellor Hitler and Propaganda Minister Goebbels have joined in acknowledging opposition to the Nazi party in Germany and attacking "German-haters" abroad.

"German-haters abroad and a small clique at home are seeking to drive a wedge between the people and the leadership," Goebbels said.

"Even atheistic Bolshevism fraternizes in this with the Catholic church because both are enemies of authoritarian states."

Threats, said Hitler, "will make no impression on us—should they ever bring the peoples to the madness of a war, we shall never capitulate. The year 1918 will never be be repeated in German history."

Hitler declared: "A few opponents still remain but they are dying out. They are the well-known friends of the black, red and gold coalition (the former German republic) who are arrayed against us as they are arrayed elsewhere in the world."

Further Oppression At Home.

China Swings To Mules, Cart Caravans For Rangoon Trail

Shanghai, Feb. 26 (AP)

TO SAVE gasoline and oil the Chinese government is planning to use hundreds of horse, mule and donkey-drawn carts to haul supplies over the new Burma-Yunnan highway. Rubber-tired carts to be used for this work will have one-ton capacities. The cart caravans, bearing munitions and other supplies, are expected to require about a month to travel the 2,100 miles from Rangoon to Kunming, be smashed.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Eight members of the Canadian Branch of the Empire Parliamentary Association will be selected to attend the 1940 conference of that body at Wellington, N.Z., Dr. Arthur C. Beauchesne, Clerk of the House of Commons and Secretary of the Canadian Branch, said here on Friday.

Premier Michael J. Savage has announced that the New Zealand Government will defray the expenses of the delegation from their port of embarkation in Canada and return.

Hungarian Nazis Reform Under Cover

BUDAPEST, Feb. 25 — (AP). — Hungarian political police investigated tips today that the Hungarist Nazi movement, abolished in nationwide raids yesterday, was re-forming to continue underground as an illegal political organization.

A question giving concern to authorities was whether they had smashed the troublesome movement, by raids in which more than 500 persons were arrested, only to have it replaced by a more disturbing undercover activity.

Several Hungarists had boasted they did not fear being outlawed because they already had set up a framework of activity outside the law.

Experts at the interior ministry deciphered documents in code seized at Hungarist headquarters. Police said keys to several codes were found. Some confiscated sheets were filled with columns of numbers thought to be membership lists which could be ready only in conjunction with other lists containing jumbled names.

Out For Violence

Police declared they had evidence that the Hungarists aimed at a change in the state by violence. The Hungarist program was known to be pro-German, but authorities said they could not supply direct evidence that money was sent from Berlin to support the movement.

Hundreds of police conducted the raids yesterday. It was announced that 60 "leading personalities" in the Hungarist party had been sent to a concentration camp at Kistarosa. Authorities said they found scores of prominent Hungarians listed on membership rolls seized in the raids.

The leader of the Hungarist "Black Corps," the allegedly terrorist section which was accused of having bombed the Domany street Synagogue Feb. 3, was still sought. He is known to police and hungarists as "Cheerful Nick."

BIG BOWEL begging for help?

Relieve Constipation With a Laxative That Works Where Waste Usually Jams-up.

You have above 25 feet of intestines, but most constipation occurs right in the big bowel (marked X), when body waste has travelled almost to the point where bowels should m-o-v-e.

So when you're constipated, it's only good common sense to take a laxative that works where the help is needed; one that won't upset other parts of the bowels. Doses like calomel do most of their work on the other end of the bowels, more than 20 feet away! Salts flush from end to end, may leave you weak and worn-out. Oils act chiefly on the small intestine. But Chocolate Flavor Cascarets concentrate their help in the big bowel, where body waste commonly piles-up. They move it those last few inches, bringing welcome relief overnight. Chocolate Cascarets can do this because they contain cascara, said to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic, which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours.

If you've never enjoyed this sensible kind of relief, get Chocolate Cascarets now. Each foil-wrapped tablet is a gentle, effective dose, and pleasant to take because the taste is that of fine milk chocolate. All druggists, or write Dept. P-8, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

soothe any ruffled feelings the Soviets may have.

Mr. Chamberlain's biggest venture at the moment is an attempt to win Chancellor Hitler on a dollar and cents basis. In his Reichstag speech the Fuehrer said Germany must export or die, and in effect, Mr. Chamberlain has replied, "All right, let's see what we can do about it."

Billion On Air Force

To give the "tight little isle" a strong weapon to protect vulnerable key targets such as London, Birmingham, and Liverpool, the British government plans to spend $1,000,000,000 this year on the air force alone.

The royal navy, which many experts say is still the empire's strongest safeguard against attack, is engaged on the biggest building program in its history, with warships being launched at the rate of more than one a week.

Two battleships will be laid down during the 1939-40 fiscal year, bringing the total number under construction to nine. This will almost equal the combined program of battleship building by Italy, Japan and Germany. A start will also be made on another large airplane carrier, four cruisers, 16 destroyers and 20 new type fast escort vessels.

Because the navy lacks trained men for its fleet additions it has opened its ranks to officers and seamen pensioned off when disarmament cut short their service careers.

The army, compact, swiftly mobile, and largely mechanical, has planned for September the biggest manoeuvres it ever has held.

The volunteer territorial army, responsible for home defence, is expanding under a program designed to plug gaps in coastal and anti-aircraft protection disclosed by last September Czechoslovakian crisis.

Under Lord Chatfield, the new minister for coordination of defence, Britain expects a new speed-up of defence plans and smoother operation of the entire arms organization.

Army Shuffle In India.

Lord Chatfield, who planned present naval expansion program when he was first sea lord, recently completed a three-month survey of Indian defence. He probably will recommend complete reorganization of the army in Indian, and transfer of control to make it directly responsible to the war office in London. This would increase mobility in the event fo war and give military commanders on the spot immediate control of troops. The government of India now is responsible for equipment and disposition of land forces.

In the Mediterranean, naval, military and air experts are tuning Malta and Gibraltar, twin guardians of Britain's Suez canal route, to wartime efficiency.

At Malta a 10-year program to make it a hornets' nest of warplanes is under way. One airdrome at La Venezia, five miles out of Vallietta, capital of Malta, will be guarded by guns hidden in a 600-foot hill range. Hangars being built art partly underground.

A second airdrome is under construction and a third is planned. Barracks also are being built for six infantry battalions, 500 engineers, and 1,000 British and native artillerymen.

New African Fort

Worried because the Mediterranean-Suez canal route to the Far East might be closed in wartime, Britain is fortifying Freetown, best natural harbor on the west coast of Africa, to protect an alternative route to the Orient. Gun emplacements studding the coast also will guard the navy's recently enlarged oil fuel base at Freetown.

Possible German interest in the Azores and the Canary Islands as naval bases makes it important that Great Britain should have a strong African base.

At Cape Town, second "corner" on the Cape route to the Orient, the South African government is spending $75,000,000 on harbor reconstruction that includes a drydock to take ships up to 50,000 tons.

South Africa recently took delivery of a first batch of eight-gun high-speed fighters for her rapidly-growing air force.

Australia Prepares.

Hawker hurricane monoplanes with a known top speed of 360 miles an hour, have been ordered by Australia and New Zealand.

Forts mounting 15-inch guns are being built on Robben Island, commanding the entrance to Cape Town and 25,000,000 has been earmarked for expansion of air services and construction of arterial roads.

In Ceylon, headquarters of the East Indies fleet, a $2,500,000 airport is being built at Trincomales, north coast naval base. The Ceylon government is financing reorganization of the local defence force.

At Singapore Britain has built a vast $150,000,000 naval, military and air base to guard the eastern entrance to Malacca Strait, main highway from the Indian Ocean to the China Sea. A major feature of this heavily-armed key centre for naval operations in Asiatic waters, opened last year, is a $45,000,000 drydock. Admiralty officials say Britain's entire navy could be based there.

At Singapore the navy has surface and underground tanks for 1,250,000,000 tons of fuel oil, underground ammunition stores, and a 600-acre airfield with steel hangers t ohouse an entire air force. The island's hills, ringed with barbed wire, have been turned into concealed gun emplacements alive with 13-inch coastal and anti-aircraft batteries. Many small islands around Singapore also have artillery batteries with effective range of 30 miles.

Britain recently decided to build a powerful anti-aircraft base on the island of Penang, guarding the western entrance to Malacca Strait. Less than 500 miles from Singapore, defences of Penang will include heavy and medium calibre guns and "the most modern anti-aircraft units."

A British Air Mission, similar to the one that visited Canada last year, now is in Australia discussing plans to establish an aircraft industry.

Reserves in Bermuda.

At Bermuda, headquarters of the America and West Indies Squadron, the Admiralty is accumulating an important war reserve of arms and equipment. The naval dockyard on Ireland Island, remote from the haunts of tourists, is getting additional coast defences. Many naval plans, apart from those carried in squadron cruisers, are based at Bermuda.

Across the Atlantic, in Central Africa, the British colonies founded by Cecil Rhodes also are preparing for "the next war." Southern Rhodesia, mapping a defence program directed by British military experts, has ordered mobile artillery and armored cars. It also is expanding its colonial defence force. Northern Rhodesia has formed a volunteer force composed of Europeans.

Tanganyika, the British East African Protectorate which was a German colony before the Great War, is developing a volunteer national service scheme for wartime emergency, including protection for the mines and industrial plants.

Quilt Is Quilted By Bethany W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Feb. 25.—The W.M.S. of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. Waddell on Tuesday afternoon. A quilt was quilted in preparation for the bale. After the quilt was finished a supper was enjoyed by all.

After supper the regular monthly meeting was proceeded with. Mrs. Kyle took the main part of the meeting, giving the study chapter from "The World in Canada," telling how the church reaches out to heal and minister in isolated parts. Touching accounts were given of different cases that had been helped in mission hospitals and on marine vessels.

A lengthy discussion followed and great concern was expressed regarding the carelessness and indifference of the people of today to the worship of God and religious services especially on the Lord's day. Other great nations have fallen because of these things, the neglect of which leads to all kinds of vices. God can only come into the lives of people as they allow Him or invite Him.

Prayers were offered by different members.

Flu Easing Up

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 25 — (CP). —Windsor doctors said to-day they saw a reduction in influenza cases here in the last two days. They reported one school where 400 were missing earlier in the week because of the illness had 100 of these students back by Friday. New cases showed a decrease, doctors said. Doctors estimated about 50 per cent. of the population has been affected by the mild variety of flu.

No Decision Is Made On Debenture Term

Mayor Hamilton informed the Examiner to-day that the Ontario Municipal Board made no decision Friday on the essential matter of the term of year for which the Nicholls Hospital bonds are to be issued. His Worship was accompanied to Toronto by City Solicitor W. F. Huycke and City Treasurer Shaver. Both twenty and thirty year debentures were discussed, and one impression that might be gained from the conference was along the line that the Municipal Board would prefer to give their sanction to the twenty rather than the thirty year term. However, no definite opinion was expressed, but Mayor Hamilton said he expected to receive a definite reply from the Board in a few days.

by Toronto Conservatives was Col. Drew. Most of Dr. Manion's address had to do with defence measures. He pointed to the vulnerability of central Canadian power developments to attack from the air by planes that might be launched from Charlton Island in James Bay or from an island in the St. Lawrence.

"With a base at Charlton Island in James Bay it would be only 500 miles to Montreal and 600 to Toronto," he said. "Niagara Falls would be just over 600 miles."

Canada's vulnerability to attack made the Bren gun inquiry and all other matters pertaining to the defence department of vital interest to all Canada. He described the Bren gun contract as a "most pernicious one."

"It has been said that the Bren gun contract is an important thing, but to me there is nothing quite so fascinating—quit so subtle—as the findings of Mr. Justice Davis," he declared. "There is not one thing in those 52 pages that exonerates the Department. The Commissioner agrees that his office was so hedged around with legal technicalities that what was to be examined was of the vaguest nature."

On page 51 of the 52-page report there were two little paragraphs excenrating all concerned from corruption, but "on 40 pages there is a complete condemnation of the Government if you read the subtle implications," Dr. Manion charged. He thought the battery of lawyers hired by the Government might have been responsible, declared the Commissioner was "so hedged about" by legal difficulties "he couldn't make a direct report."

The Conservative Leader charged the Government with failure to enact social measures and called Prime Minister Mackenzie King a "weaver of words, a dreamer of dreams—mostly pipe dreams."

Freighter Asks Aid

LONDON, Feb. 25 — (AP). — A Reuters dispathh from Algiers today said the 2,431-ton British freighter African Trader, carrying refugees from Spain, had sent an SOS from a point 18 miles northeast of Oran Algeria. First accounts of the freighter's call for help were merely that she had reported herself in distress. Later Lloyd's received word from Oran that the freighter had anchored at Mers El Kebir, near Oran.

Kinsmen Appeal For Funds Eye Clinic Work

Nine years ago this month the Peterborough Kinsmen Club came into existence with the election of A. L. Elliott as first president. In those nine years the Kinsmen have contributed greatly to the welfare of the underprivileged in this city and county. The club's first atempt at service work was aiding the Peterborough health association in its drive for funds. This was immediately followed by activity on the part of the club in raising money for relief purposes. In those days for every dollar that was turned over by the Kinsmen club to the Central Charity Board an additional two dollars was contributed by the governments.

Three exceedingly successful amateur plays were presented and the funds were used for relief work. Milk was also supplied children at school and parents on relief with large families were given an additional supply of milk.

However, six years ago the club felt that a real objective must be set in service club work and after a very exhaustive survey it was decided that their was a place for eye clinic work amongst the underprivileged.

450 Cases Handled

In these six years more than 450 cases have been handled and several major operations. The funds for this work have been raised principally from shows and Hallowe'en carnivals, but now with no place in the city where a show can be properly staged, the Kinsmen have had to look to other ways of raising money. Hence shopping certificates are being sold.

Twice have the Kinsmen stood in second place amongst the service clubs during eye clinic work in the province and never have they been lower than fourth place. The clubs which have surpassed them have always been in much larger centres than Peterborough.

Of the ten presidents which have served the club only two are not still active members and these have been moved out of the district.

said to fear further Nazi repressive measures.

Hitler and Goebbels were understood to have conferred on the domestic and foreign situations because their attacks came so close together.

Some foreign correspondents for newspapers patricularly hostile to National Socialism recently received intimations that their Berlin offices may be closed permanently.

Goebbels attacked democracies, Jews, Markists and the church in an article in Hitler's newspaper, Voelkischer Beobatchter. Hitler spoke last night at the anual gathering in Munich of 1,300 of his oldest follow, observing the 19th anniversary of the formation of the Nazi party program.

"When a man started from this place (the Munich Ofbrau Beer Hall) 19 years ago with only a few dozen comrades around him to conquer the great Reich, often faced by howling, hostile mobs, can you imagine for one moment such a man now holding power would quail before threats?" Hitler asked. "I never was afraid of them and am not now."

Humorously the Chancellor remarked that "people judge me differently according to whether they are friends or foes; to some I am a prophet—to others a criminal. One thing I have in common with criminals—I am drawn back to the scene of my crime."

We Want Peace.

Goebbels, writing on the topic "Is war in sight?" said: "We want peace and for peace it is never too late. "What do democracies really want? Democracies declare their people must burden themselves with tremendous sacrifices to protect themselves against authoritarian states.

"We do not want to attack these democracies nor convert them to National Socialism, and yet they say we are threatening them. Democracies had better look after themselves. They ignore the strength of our armies and defence works."

He referred to Nazi colonial demands as "Germany's natural rights" and blamed "international Jermy, Free Masonry and Markism" entirely for an "anti-German" campaign.

"We treat their lies with sovereign contempt," he asserted. "For the German people there is but one watchword: 'Look to the Fuehrer'."

WEEKLY GRAIN REVIEW.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Only minor buying and selling was required to move wheat futures prices either way during a series of quiet sessions on the Winnipeg market this week. Export and mill support was spasmodically light and offerings from the Wheat Board were scarce as values slipped slightly from the previous week's close.

When trading finished on Friday quotations were ½-¾ cent lower, with May 62¼, July 62⅞, and October 63¾ cents.

Most of the business in the Winnipeg pit was made up of intermarket spreading involving purchases at Winnipeg against sales on United States exchanges. Importers bought sparingly and forward bookings for shipment of wheat overseas were disappointing.

Export sales of Canadian wheat were estimated at around 1,000,000 bushels, worked form both seaboards and chiefly to the United Kingdom although some supplies were sold to Norway for shipment out of Boston.

While Australia sold one or two cargoes to the United Kingdom and some Argenitne wheat was reported taken by Germany, bulk of the Southern Hemisphere wheat sales were made to non-European countries.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 25 (CP).—Mining shares finished the week on the Toronto Exchange with prices tending upward and most groups of the industrial section also showed a narrow margin on the up side.

In the base metals fractional gains were posted by International Nickel, Hudson Bay, Smelters and Noranda. Action in the silvers was dull, with Eldorado trading at an advance of 5 cents or more.

McIntyre sold at its record high price of 55½. Prices were higher by 5 to 10 cents for Lamaque, Pamour, Pickle Crow, MacLead-Cockshutt, Powell Rouyn, Kerr-Addison and Oro Plata.

Papers came back for moderate gains and the steel and utility groups were strong at the close. The Walker issues firmed along with Distillers-Seagrams.

More than 20 experts will accompany the British mission to Australia to investigate the possibility of manufacture of British aircraft in that country.

Biblical Thoughts For the Shut-Ins

By Rev. E. R. James, Toronto

A RULE OF SPIRITUAL CULTURE

JACOB said unto his household: Put away the strange gods that are among you, and purify yourselves and change your garments; and let us arise and go up to Bethel. Gen. 35; 2.

The Jew from the earliest days was a specialist in religion. He had a genius for making contact with God. Jacob with all his faults had a spiritual sense for the things of God. When he left his father's home he discovered that his father's God had not left him. At Bethel he realized His Presence and made a vow to give a tenth to God. More than twenty years later he is preparing to fulfill that vow.

It will help you to understand the Old Testament Scriptures when you keep in mind that God's revelation of Himself to His ancient people was a gradual, progressive revelation. "As they were able to bear it"; Our Lord's own principle. Jacob believed that the God of Abraham and the God of Isaac was also his God; the family deity. He also believed that there were other gods who claimed the loyalty of his friends and neighbors. Jacob calling to us across the centuries lays down a rule of spiritual culture.

"Put away the strange gods that are among you." Jacob had accumulated many possessions. When he fled from Laban, his father-in-law, his wife Rachel stole the images of her father's gods hoping that they would bring her a blessing. It was very primitive. Is the modern mascot an advance, or the extra ordinary belief in astrology, that the stars have an influence on our lives?

Have you any strange gods which must be put away before you draw near to God? Are your amusements, your week-end parties your modern gods? Idols are found in every age and are a deadly peril. Lent is a challenge to honest examination and cultivation of the soul. "The beginning of wisdom is the desire for discipline," said an ancient teacher. If you wish to advance in the spiritual life this must be the first step.

"Purify yourselves." In those far off days religious people practiced certain forms of outwards purification. They instinctively felt that they must purify themselves before coming into the Presence of God. With our remarkable discoveries in science we are apt to look down upon this instinctive principle which primitive man felt to be true.

Have you the desire to realize the Presence of God and are you making any effort to purify yourselves by confession of sins and amendment of life by the help of the Holy Spirit. For the Lord Christ Himself says:— "The pure in heart shall see God."

"Change your garments." There must be an outward and visible sign that you are preparing to enter into the Presence of God. It is not enough that you put away the strange gods and purify yourselves. This very probably is only known to God and yourself. There must be the outward sign that others may see and bear witness that you are preparing to enter into the Presence Chamber of God. Your garments are the outward and visible sign. This may be the instinctive reason for Sunday clothes.

Isaiah cries:— "Put on your beautiful garments." To the thoughtful, devout man the command means spiritual garments. Lent is the opportunity for weaving such a garment. The outside world, including your family, must see these garments, habits and acknowledge that you are different from them. It means self discipline. Mr. Gladstone wrote to his children urging them to put "habit on the side of the spiritual life."

How much time do you spend in striving to realize the Presence of God before you say your prayers? Do you read, mark, learn and inwardly digest some portion of Holy Scripture so that automatically you will think about God when you awake? It is for you to decide what particular habit you shall cultivate during this Lent so that it may become part of you during the rest of the year. So that as the years go by you may be able to present your bodies a living sacrifice unto God which is your spiritual worship.

Cathedral Musings

It would be very wonderful if one who was a fine Greek scholar and also a profound occultist, gave us a fresh translation of the New Testament. Such a version would throw a flood of light upon many passages and make clear much of what is now hidden. It is to be feared, though, that many bitter disputes would be engendered thereby. It might well be that a new theology would arise based on a wider conception of spiritual things. It is likely that such a conception would rest, as in early days, upon the ACQUIREMENT and USE of the spiritual power, rather than upon a mere belief that they once existed.

Eyes Of World Turn To Rome

Cardinals of the Roman Catholic church from all over the world are now in Rome preparing for the conclave, to be held March 1, to elect a new Pope. Six of the Cardinals are pictured, BOTTOM, as they arrived at the Lodge of Raffaello, Vatican City. Prince Chigi Albani, TOP, will preside at the conclave of Cardinals when they meet to elect a successor to the late Pope Pius XI.

A National Message

THE DUAL GOSPEL—I.

The Christian Church is to-day preaching a single-tracked Gospel: The Gospel of Salvation.

The Old Testament reveals a double-tracked Gospel, each track carrying forward an institution which embodied the essence of the phase of the Gospel to which it gave expression and effect.

Thus, in connection with the Gospel of Salvation, expressing all that pertains to that phase, was the Tabernacle and its ordinances and later the sacrifices and worship carried forward by the Aaronic Priesthood in the Temple. Much has been written regarding this phase of the Gospel, and the Christian world is more or less well acquainted with it.

In connection with the Gospel of the Kingdom of God, expressing all that pertains to that phase of the Gospel, was the State and its statutes, carried forward by the Levitical Priesthood.

At the beginning the central personality of this organization was Moses, "King in Jeshurun," who was assisted by a national council of seventy leaders of Israel. Under this phase of the Gospel came the services, including universal military service, the tithings for revenue and worship, the Law courts, the educational organization and all the departments of national administration. Later in the history of Israel over this department of the kingdom, the House of David was appointed to bear rule, and to carry forward the national administration.

The Book of Leviticus is the handbook of the ecclesiastical organization and practice. The Book of Numbers is the handbook of national organization.

So far our statements will be accepted very generally by Biblical scholars and exponents.

The point we wish to make clear in this study is that the two aspects with which the Gospel is opened out in the Pentateuch are not only carried forward unwaveringly to the end of the Old Testament, but also to the end of the New Testament. All the Biblical writers, and all the teachers and preachers whose words and writings are preserved for us in that Book, teach and write according to this fundamental organization of Gospel truth and of Gospel action; that is to say, they all keep in mind that the Gospel of Salvation is not all of the Gospel, and that the Gospel of the Kingdom of God is not all of the Gospel, but that it is necessary to keep the two phases of the Gospel before the minds of the people of God at all times.

In any event, we would probably have a new concept of "heaven" and of the after-world, so that the word "hell" would be disassociated from the idea of "eternal" punishment. Perhaps the most gain would be in the better evaluation of the teachings of the Apostles, especially those of St. Paul. For if there is one thing certain, it is that St. Paul was a trained and evolved mystic and occultist. In other words that he was an initiate of the Mysteries. It is also certain that knowledge of the occult was a part of the early Christian teaching, for the use of the spiritual forces, up to the third century, was not uncommon. Another gain would be in a more faithful rendering of the text. When St. John speaks of being in the "breath" on the Lord's Day, he means exactly what he says. To translate the word as "spirit" while correct in a sense, fails to convey the world of meaning to the student that the original possesses. Again, of what nature was the "power" that went forth from Jesus when, amid the crowd, the sick woman touched His garment. The translators entirely missed the point when they rendered the Greek word "dunamis," or "dynamis" as "virtue." It was far more than virtue. It was living conscious force. Also, St. Paul in very thinly veiled terms, speaks of his excursions into the astral world and of those he had met there. He also speaks of many other things that are as a closed book to the non-instructed. All these things deserve serious consideration and are not merely academic. Their proper understanding would do much to restore Christianity to its pristine vigour, while also helping to free it from a lot of hampering material that has accumulated in the course of time.

The promises of the Christ are quite clear. How is it then, that in the main, they are not fulfilled? It is a fair question, for a tremendous burden of responsibility rests upon the spiritual leaders of this world in this hour of humanity's crucifixion. The only possible answer is that in the early days, knowledge of spiritual things existed that has since been lost by the custodians to whom its was entrusted.

Highlights On Sunday School Lesson

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

PETER PREACHES TO GENTILES

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 5 is Acts 10: 1-48, the Golden Text being, Isaiah 45: 22, "Look unto Me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth: for I am God, and there is none else."

Gradually it has been dawning on Peter that God intends the new religion of Jesus to be preached to all men not alone to the Jews. In today's lesson driven he has the lesson driven home very forcibly, and convinces his fellow disciples that henceforth they must preach to Gentiles.

In Caesarea there lived a Roman captain or centurion named Cornelius. He was a very fine man who loved God and who was very charitable. One day, while Cornelius was at prayer he had a vision. An angel came to him and told that God had blessed him because of his good works. He was told to send to Joppa for a man by the name of Peter, whose surname was Simon. He would find him, said the angel, in the house of a tanner whose name was Simon, who lived in a house by the side of the sea.

When the vision was gone, Cornelius sent for two of his servants and one soldier who was very devout. He told them to go in all haste to Joppa, and find Peter and bring him to Cornelius' house.

In the meantime, Peter too had been having a vision. Peter had gone to the house top to pray at a certain time, as was his custom, and he became very hungry, and fell asleep and dreamed. In his dream he saw a vessel let down from heaven with all manner of live beasts in it. A voice said, "Arise, Peter, slay and eat." But Peter objected, saying he never yet had eaten anything that was unclean—according to the Jewish law. Then the voice said: "What God hath cleansed, that call thou not common."

Peter was not at all sure what this vision meant, but he awakened to find three men were seeking him, and the voice that had spoken to him about the food again spoke and told him that he was to go with these men. So Peter went to them and they told him that Cornelius had had a vision and had been commanded to come to Joppa for him, and he invited them to stay with him. The next day all journeyed to Caesarea to Cornelius' house.

Cornelius told Peter about his vision and how he had been told to send for Peter, and then Peter began to realize what his own vision meant—that he was chosen to preach to this Roman soldier and his household and friends. So Peter told them about Jesus, how He had gone about doing good and preaching, and had ben crucified and risen from the dead. And as he preached they were convinced and Peter baptized them and the Holy Ghost fell on them, even as it had on Peter and the other disciples.

But when some of his followers heard about this, they were displeased and censured Peter for living in the house and eating at the table with these Romans. Then Peter told them about his housetop vision and what it meant, and how the Holy Ghost fell on these Gentiles, and all were impressed with what Peter said, and glorified God.

In the week's reading, reference is again made to the story of the who was aided by the Samaritan, to show that, as Peter said, when preaching to Cornelius and his friends, "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons."

And further: "But in every nation he that fearest Him and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him."

All this lesson refutes the claim of some that they or their nation is superior to any other. "Are we not God's children, all"? as the hymn says. And should we not have respect and deal kindly and in a spirit of friendship with all? If we truly are Christians we will do so.

Picture Sermon Of Rev. H. H. Smith

The life of Mr. Smith reads like a novel. He was born at Sussex, England; when he was eight years old both his father and mother had died. At the age of 16 years he ran away from home, and enlisted in the General Service Cavalry, afterwards he was sent to India. God spoke to him whilst there, and he became what is known as a Blue Light, a Christian soldier. There were just three active Christians in a regiment of 640 men. In a short time through Smith's persuasion there were 2 0and later 40 who rejoiced in the experience of salvation. Mid-week prayer meetings were held, and the fire spread from regiment to regiment.

He married a young lady missionary of the Presbyterian Church. Instead of going back to England as he had intended, he began to study for missionary work. He secured a job as a telegraph operator and later as a stationmaster. They were attracted to the missions of the Presbyterian Church of Canada.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Peter in Samaria — By Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Acts 8:4-25.

Peter visits Samaria and by the laying on of hands the Holy Ghost descends upon his converts. Simon, a magician, sees him and offers money if Peter will show him how to give this power.

Now we go back to the time when Jesus was on earth, when He, too, preached to Samaritans and converted them to Christianity after His talk to the woman at the well.

Later He went to Jerusalem, and finding men selling and bargaining in the temple, He drove them out with a scourge, saying, "Make not My Father's house an house of merchandise."

"Yet every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath; For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God."

Rather Stupid

Two men who held up Wilbert H. Peel in Peterborough and took more than $200 from him received sentences of four and three years in penitentiary. There was only a short space in between the crime and the final disposition of the case. F. D. Kerr, K.C., representing the Crown, said he had every sympathy for men who are today "on the road," but he entertained small regard for those who used weapons to commit crime. It would take only a pressure of the finger to turn a threat into a murder.

Those remarks will cover a good share of public feeling toward such an occurrence. One of the men had used four names at various times, and the other had found it advisable to make use of three, and that in itself is of no service to them when they get into trouble. At best it is a foolish sort of habit, possibly the product of a mind which considers that changing a name will make the past all right and grant immunity against records of other days. The double or triple name is in itself sufficient to put its user under suspicion. It actually comes in the classification of things which can be called rather stupid.

He Left It Unfinished

There are occasions when Mr. Speaker in the House of Commons steps in at the right moment to inform an hon. member that he has exhausted his time, meaning of course that he has spoken for 40 minutes and therefore must cease. In the early days of the session the custom was to ask for a few more minutes to wind up, and that can be granted only by unanimous consent of members. More recently the 40-minute limit has become a thing of fixed proportions. Anything which looked like elasticity has been taken from it.

Dr. H. R. Fleming, Liberal member from Humbolt, Sask., took up a fair share of his time warning the government—of which he is a member—that 1939 would be a poor time to go to the country. He comes from the great open spaces and he was speaking in a great open way. His theme was that the combines had the West in a grip and kept up the prices of agricultural machinery and gasoline, and if the government could not smash the combines then the government itself should be smashed. Apparently the hon. member was out to see some smashing done even if it left a lump on his own skin.

When he was in between the 39th and 40th minute, Dr. Fleming was delivering himself as follows:

> "I say to the Liberal government that if they do not do something for the people of Western Canada by reducing the price of farm implements and gasoline, and increasing the prices of farm products, then there will be such a revolt when the government goes to the country——"

And right there Mr. Speaker broke in to intone his time-honored remark: "The hon. member has exhausted his time." Dr. Fleming resumed his seat and the remainder of his dire prediction was not uttered. It may be Conservative members would have been willing enough to have the member continue to a dynamic conclusion, and it may also be that Liberal members may have considered he had already said too much.

Now Then—Apply The Cure

Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs, told the annual gathering of the Good Roads Association that increases in the costs of government are not so much due to the governments themselves but to the demands which the people are making upon them. Mr. Cross said he often enough has delegations in his office suggesting or demanding the expenditure of money, but he cannot recall having had visitors who were ready to point out to him where money could be saved.

No doubt there is a degree of truth in the claim. Possibly a large one. But we find it hard to understand how that lets the government out. Certainly we do not have governments for the purpose of being mere clerks who will give to us everything for which we ask. We give to them the power of making decisions based on the merits of the case and the ability of the government to foot the bill. We know of no enactment which says a government must always reply in the affirmative when a suggestion for spending money is made. We know of no reason why it should follow such a course unless it were anxious to purchase popularity and good will by bribing the people with their own money.

If a government were to tell deputations plainly: "No—this cannot be done because we are hopelessly in debt now and we are spending more money than we are receiving," then the deputations would begin to recede. They would reason with themselves in advance and say "There is no use asking for this because it will be refused."

Now that Mr. Cross has come so definitely to the cause of much spending he is in the position of a doctor who has correctly diagnosed his patient's case. After which he is in the place where he can proceed intelligently to apply remedial treatment.

Abused For a Long Time

There was a short discussion in the House of Commons about the cost of sending ballots to members of parliament at Ottawa. George C. McCullagh had these printed in the Globe and Mail together with the request that readers should clip them out and forward them to the member of parliament for their riding, and also advising that it was not necessary to affix a postage stamp. So the claim was made that the increased use of this free mail (or franking) privilege was costing the government some money.

And that is possibly correct enough. The fact that a letter is going to a member of parliament and therefore bears no stamp does not eliminate the cost of postal service; it merely ignores it.

It comes as no surprise to find that some members were inclined to smile at the idea of abuses of the franking privilege being seriously questioned at Ottawa. It may be the members feel they have exclusive rights, and if there is any abuse of these rights then they will attend to it themselves.

The rules are laid down plainly enough and they are also ignored the same way. One can send a letter to a member of parliament while the House is in session or ten days previous to that date and it requires no postage stamp. The member can reply and by placing his initials on the envelope it goes free through the mail. But the business does not end there. When a member makes a speech in the House he places an order with the King's Printer and the speech is lifted from the pages of Hansard and printed as a nice booklet. These he proceeds to distribute to voters in the home riding and no postage is collected. There have been cases where members have sent out circulars pertaining to their private business. It is common enough to receive by franked mail copies of papers and pamphlets issued by the headquarters of political parties.

Such abuse of the privilege of free access to the mail service could never have been contemplated when the rules were made, but it has been going on for years. There are plenty of restrictions which others have to observe. If a newspaper happens to have on any one day more than fifty per cent. advertising in its pages then up go the postage rates. We are not complaining about such restrictions as the postal service is well managed, but some of the powers of restriction should be made applicable to members of Commons and Senate. They have been openly ignoring them for years.

Hard Winter For Deer

Roy Whetung of Crowe's Landing says it was possible to count 18 deer on a recent day as they crossed the ice to islands in Stoney Lake (in which there are 1,100 islands).

They had probably come from the game preserve and the reason was that wolves were after them. The crust which has formed on the rather heavy snow in recent days puts the deer at a disadvantage. They are apt to break through owing to their weight and small feet, while the wolf can get along splendidly on the surface.

Whether anything could be done with Mr. Whetung's suggestion that hay should be placed at various places for the deer is something not easy to answer as we can see a good many obstacles at this season. There are game preserves where provision is made for the winter feeding of deer and it seems like a humane and entirely reasonable thing to do. At best there is little for them to get in days of deep snow and in their starved condition they have little strength to attend to the ever-present business of keeping away from the wolves. Exterminating the wolves would help, but we have not yet learned how to do that.

Sauce From Dried Apples

The Toronto Telegram pays heed to a business deal which has come to completion by which Germany bought the whole pack of Nova Scotia's dried apples at 2 1-2 cents per pound over and above the market price. Then the Toronto paper begins to cogitate or something similar and wonders if the Germans being filled with our dried apples are then going to turn about and fight us.

Leaving such matters in the background the Tely editor harks back to the days when dried apples were in the rack above the kitchen range, and says plainly that he hated the whole business, including both the racks and the apples we suppose. He had no mouth for dried apple sauce.

But there was a good deal of it served on the Tenth Concession. In the fall some of the lesser apples went down to the mill and became cider. Possibly any worms which had lingered late in the apples went through in the same batch, and later on when the cider had begun to age some of it went into the mince pies, and the hired man always contended that a little was good for his stomach, although we cannot recall when there was anything particular wrong with that organ.

The better apples generally went to market, and many of those which were not quite so good came into the kitchen to be peeled, sliced and put up on the racks. Dried apples in the making. The one exception was for a couple of trees of Russets and they went in the pit along with the vegetables, and they never came out until the first of March. A Russet apple which has spent the winter in the pit stands in a class almost by itself.

But there was nothing wrong with the sauce made from dried apples and we can think of no reason at all why the Telegram man should want to turn up his nose at the stuff now. A few slices of lemon or some ginger root cooked along with the apples, so good in fact that people would be passing back for more. So let the man from the Telegram bring down his proboscis from its high elevation. If he doesn't like dried apple sauce then there are plenty of others who did and possibly still do.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Man in Collingwood was disappointed because on his 84th birthday the doctor told him it would not be advisable for him to dance. Probably there were 84 reasons why he should not do so.

Famous bull fighter in Mexico was seriously injured in his latest performance. We cannot offer much sympathy as people who try slinging the bull are always getting into trouble.

More than 1,000 drivers of motor vehicles who have gone for a year or more without an accident were honored at a function in Toronto. Praising the good ones is just as important as punishing the careless brothers.

Japan bombed a railway station within British Hong Kong, and on the following day explained that it was a mistake. Nine people were killed in that raid and the official explanation leaves them just as they were—dead.

A little lad of seven years rolled down a cliff 250 feet near Toronto and had only a few bruises. Providence must have a way of looking after these little fellows until they get old enough to look after themselves.

The German-American Bund Association held a rally in Los Angeles on the occasion of Washington's birthday, but those of divergent views were on hand to pelt eggs. And of course if one gets hit with a Rock egg the thing hurts.

German Jews have been told they must hand over all precious stones in their possession to the pawn shops which are operated by the Nazis. Which means there will be no opportunity to bargain over the price to be paid.

Provincial legislature of Saskatchewan has approved the continuance of a fixed price for wheat to be paid by the Federal government. How joyfully do any one of our several governments suggest that some of our other governments go ahead and pay for something.

There was reference made in this column to 225 men on relief in Toronto having been called for snow removal, but only 8 responded. A more recent explanation of the situation shows that there was no call issued on that occasion, and on that account the comment in this paper was unfair and we regret having made it.

James Cagney moving picture star, was paid $234,000 in 1938. As this information was disclosed at Washington by the United States Securities Commission, we have a faint suspicion that by the time the tax department puts Mr. Cagney through the fanning mill the salary will look as wrinkled as a prune.

WEE ANGUS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Wee Angus questions now and then, about the ways of things and men, of some down low or high; and after he has told his case, and named the people and the place, he asks the reason why.

¶ He says Dan's father's work is through, because there's nothing more to do, he thinks that kind of tough; and Dan was telling him today, they hadn't any laid away, and going was rather rough.

¶ Dan's father wants to work he said, so he can keep them clothed and fed, Wee Angus says he's smart; but he goes trying here and there, and Angus thinks it's not quite fair, that he can't make a start.

¶ Wee Angus went on farther too, and tried to follow it all through, he'd heard Dan tell it all; Dan's father had to quit before, they didn't want him any more, and that was late last fall.

¶ Wee Angus says he'd like to know, why there's no place where he can go, and start to work today; so he will whistle as he goes, and pay for all his rent and clothes, when he brings in his pay?

¶ I try to answer but it's lame, I know it sounds both thin and tame, on poverty and wealth; the answers to Wee Angus halt, and I admit I am at fault—for I don't know myself.

Tariff Gets A Slight Airing

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): Hon. gentlemen opposite will remember the time when the Robb budget was introduced. Industrial people from the cities in this vicinity paraded in front of the public buildings with placards on their breasts and backs, declaring that their industries would be closed down and that they were facing starvation on account of that Robb budget. Mr. Robb quietly told those gentlemen to go home and just take their time and see whether the budget would not work out for them a great deal better than they expected. The result was that the automobile industry in this country never had such a period of expansion as it had under the Robb budget.

Mr. STEWART: Can the hon. gentleman tell what changes were made in the budget before it was adopted in the house?

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): Very few. Yesterday the hon. member for Lanark (Mr. Thompson) stated that he is still for high protection. When the Conservative convention was held in Ottawa and the new leader was chosen, they adopted a resolution stating that the party stands by its old principle of high protection.

Mr. MacNICOL: On a point of order, there is no use in the hon. gentleman making a statement that is not true. The party did no such thing as have a high protection plank.

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): I accept the hon. gentleman's correction, but his quarrel will have to be with the press, not me, because I have the clipping.

Mr. MacNICOL: I ought to know, because I was chairman.

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): History gives us to understand that the national policy of high protection was inaugurated in Canada to protect our infant industries, and when those infant industries got on their feet the party of our hon. friends opposite was pledged to do away with this high protection policy and adopt a policy of lower tariffs. But those "infant" industries, many of them now hoary with age, are still clamouring for more and more protection. And every time they shout, our friends opposite come to their assistance and are willing to give them higher and higher protection. When all those industrialists and manufacturers climb on the back of the farmer he has pretty heavy going.

Our hon. friends opposite must be either for or against this agreement. They cannot ride two horses; they cannot eat their cake and have it too. They will have to make a decision on this matter, and their time to make it is not far away.

On page 1164 of Hansard of this session the leader of the opposition (Mr. Manion) is reported as saying that he is absolutely opposed to a prohibitive tariff. But from 1930 to 1935 he was a member of a government which imposed in this country; if ever there was a tariff that could be described as a prohibitive tariff, that was it. And we know what the results were.

Mr. MacNICOL: It made a lot of good jobs.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): I heard one of our friends over there the other day lamenting the plight of the young people of this country. I tell my hon. friends that the prohibitive tariff imposed by that government threw more people out of jobs than any other thing that ever happened. And see the other results. Not only was the indemnity of every hon. member of this house cut—we do not complain so much about that—but the salary of every member of the civil service was cut—

An hon. MEMBER: Why shouldn't it be?

Mr. LAWSON: What has the tariff to do with that?

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): —and the business men followed suit, and so on right along the line.

Mr. POULIOT: The truth hurts.

Mr. MacLEAN (Prince): Our friends over there may protest as much as they like; all I have to say is that—

It is the set of the sails, and not the gales,
That shows the way they go.

There was a good cartoon in a recent issue of the Montreal Gazette, which to my mind sums up, better than anything else I can think of, the attitude of hon. gentlemen opposite. It showed a Conservative gentleman, dressed in black, looking very mournful, and applying black paint to one side of this trade treaty. And there was a charming, smiling, gentle looking Liberal on the other side painting it a lovely white.

Mr. MANION: It should have been red.

WHAT HE WANTED.

In his early days Cesar Ritz, the great hotel-keeper, had been a waiter at Voisin's, a famous Paris restaurant. One of the oldest clients was a titled Englishman, who used to lunch there daily during his stays in Paris.

Being near-sighted and having only an imperfect knowledge of French, he would request Cesar, at one of whose tables he always sat, to read aloud the menu from one end to the other, explaining when necessary any obscure passages. He would listen attentively, smacking his lips over some of the items, nodding his head with approval. And when the reading was finished he would order —a beef-steak and fried potatoes! Invariably.—(John O'London's Weekly)

GETTING READY.

THE SIZE of the international plowing match which will be held here next October may be gauged from the fact that no fewer than six farm properties, including the large Ontario hospital farm, will be required to accommodate the different classes. The match may not attract as large a crowd as that which attended he recent event in Simcoe County, but there can be little doubt that the community will be able to welcome many farmers and dealers from all quarters of the compass for the 1939 match.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

• High Taxes Scare Capital Away

PEOPLE want comfortable homes, clothes and good food and time and money to enjoy recreation, according to Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, who addressed the Ontario Property Owners' Association at Toronto recently, making a strong point against the idea that wealth can be redistributed by excessive taxation.

Sir Edward stressed the point that a "soak-the-rich" plan of taxation simply produced a situation wherein the taxes were passed on and burdened those least able to pay.

The landlord notes Sarnia Canadian-Observer, added the taxes to the rent and big business passed them along to the customers, who purchased the goods. Thus the eventual taxation rested upon those who rented homes, who purchased bread or meat or clothing, any of the products of industry or commerce.

It has become quite plain in Canada that the steady increase in taxation has been characterised by a proportionate withdrawl of capital from productive enterprise, thus making a shortage of jobs, so that many of our people have no longer the opportunity to make a living.

Governments can borrow money very cheaply, which is a sign of bad times, not good times.

Since 1920, bank assets in Canada have increased by $400,000,000, while loans to the public have decreased by $666,000,000 and bank holdings of public securities have increased by a billion dollars.

These figures show to what extent money has been withdrawn from productive enterprise because the owners of the money are frightened by progressive increase of taxes. Unfortunately, capital has been frightened. It is seeking safety and is therefore invested in government securities instead of being courageously employed in projects which would provide jobs for the population.

That is a situation that demands serious consideration by governments.

• Ontario Has 6,000 School Boards

THE Minister of Education, the Hon. Dr. Simpson, has let it be known says Brockville Recorder and Times, that his department is planning a simplification in the system of school administration which, apparently, bears a marked resemblance to the township school boards that have been proposed on various occasions and nearly always received with considerable suspicion by rural ratepayers.

Dr. Simpson points out that whereas Ontario, with a population of about 3,000,000, possesses no fewer than 6,000 school boards, Scotland, where an excellent system has always prevailed, manages to get along with only 35 local school boards serving a population of 5,000,000.

There is, of course, a great difference between Ontario and Scotland in point of territory. Scotland is relatively compact in comparison with such a large province as Ontario, and yet it does seem the reverse of reasonable that we should require the services of so many boards to administer our school system.

The minister thinks that "the first advantage of central administration would be a uniform school rate over the whole township area. School supplies could be purchased to greater advantage; nursing, medical and dental services could be provided adequately; itinerant teachers could be supplied for teaching special subjects."

On the other hand ratepayers in individual school sections would in a measure lose direct control over their schools, and this is probably one great reason why so many objections have been made to the proposed reform. That a change may be authorized, possibly on a local option system, is however, not at all improbable and when it comes, it may be discovered that the gains more than balance any losses which may be suffered.

ETERNAL MYSTERY.

With the streets full of slush and snow, the sidewalks sloppy and slippery, many of the girls go hopping along in their thin-soled shoes and silk stockings, disdaining overshoes. Meanwhile what few men do not wear rubbers are equipped with stout thick-soled shoes. How do the girls get away with it without all sorts of trouble from colds and other dangers from exposure? Yet they seem indifferent to wet feet and ruined stockings. Men take precautions against the rigors of winter, the women do not. They must be extra hardy.—(Boston Post)

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Let every one of us please his neighbour for his good to edification. For even Christ pleased not himself. . . .

Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be likeminded one toward another according to Christ Jesus: that ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ. — Rom. xv, 2, 3, 5, 6.

If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves.

Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. — Phil. ii, 1-3, 5.

HITLER SEES IT NOW.

SLAVERY IS not only offensive to humanity, it is disastrously inefficient, as all slave owners have eventually learned. And an essential Nazi idea is that of the master state over slave states.

Hitler is already discovering that although the Austrians governed themselves pretty badly, they did it better than his Storm Troppers can. He got an empire, but had to take over the administration costs, and having plundered his clients and lost the good will of their clients, he lost a market, directly and indirectly.

It is rumored now that he wishes the Sudetens were back where they came from. An amateur economist could have told him he would. But because he does what he does with enormous elan it is called genius.—(Dorothy Thompson in New York Herald Tribune)

ADVICE FOR YOUTH.

YOUNG PEOPLE would be well advised to clip out and paste in their hats the following suggestions offered to his sons by Wilfred J. Funk, maker of dictionaries:

Be patient.
Learn how to write.
Learn how to speak in public.
Plan your day's work and pleasure.
Learn how to get along with people.
Cultivate companions with fine minds.
Don't take life too seriously. Relax and play.
If you make money, learn to protect it personally.
Give your health the consideration you would a fine car.
Be modest, but develop an underlying base of self-confidence.

Kiwanis Ideals Outlined At Club Luncheon

The ideals of Kiwanis were vividly portrayed Friday at the club's luncheon when chairmen of committees tendered reports on activities contemplated for the coming year. President W. A. Richardson reviewed the reports at the conclusion of the meeting, showed the idealism that lay back of the collected efforts of members.

He pointed out that the club is able to raise the standard of living in this community by beginning its work with children of early age and continuing until they reach maturity. First step, he pointed out, was to take underprivileged children under the club's wing at Jackson Park. Work of this committee was earlier reported upon by Dr. C. M. Scott, who told that literally hundreds of prospective campers were examined each year, and those physically underprivileged were given preference, given a royal holiday each year. They were returned to their homes as near physically fit as possible, with tonsils and adenoids removed from those requiring such treatment. In the same connection, John I. Allen told of work his committee did in seeing that the camp was well appointed. He said that he expects to find running water at the camp this summer.

From Jackson Park camp, the club still maintains its interest through a committee on boys' and girls' work, headed by Major Neil Warrander, sees that as many youngsters as possible are steered along the path to become worthwhile, contributing citizens. That committee helps youngsters who find themselves ill adapted to life, or who have difficulty in adapting themselves to society.

Interested In Sports

Additional supervision of the city's underprivileged youth is gained by the club's sports committee, under direction of Milton Hardill, who told the club members his committee hopes to reopen the city's playgrounds at some time soon. The committee is sponsoring a "golf driving range" this year, hopes to net enough money to contemplate opening the playgrounds.

Another step in raising youngsters to worthwhile maturity is in the vocational guidance committee, headed by Fred Johnston and L. J. Pettit. Many students are misfits, need advice, they reason. Mr. Pettit has talked to every youngster in fifth form at collegiate with a view to helping him choose a suitable career. At one meeting soon two youngsters will address the club, one on "why I want to be a lawyer," the other on "why I don't know what to do."

It was to work like this, and other associated committees that Mr. Richardson paid tribute today. He told of efforts of individual members in helping young men and women to become established, related one story in illustration. Recently, he said, a young boy left his home and came to Peterborough in search of work. His father was dead, his mother needed his help. The boy went to the home of Kiwanian J. C. McKone in search of food. The Kiwanian became interested, fed him and made him presentable, then took him the rounds of Peterborough's industrial shops. In less than a week the boy became employed. The Kiwanis club advanced him enough money to see him through, and the boy is now contributing to his mother. "If each member of Kiwanis could do something like that once a year, this club would be very proud," said Mr. Richardson,

The program, was under direction of Bill English, vice-president, who took over the chair from President Richardson at the conclusion of the lunch. Charles Saunders officiated at the piano in the absence of Martin Chenhall.

Propose Summer Picnic

Other reports from committee chairman included one on agriculture by Leo Copp, who advised the club will continue its option on a wood lot on Gull Lake, and proposed a summer picnic at that location. He also suggested the club might sponsor some scheme for improvement of school grounds in the county during the coming year.

John Troke reported for the attendance committee, reported that the club has challenged Belleville for an attendance record during the month of March. More than 85 per cent of club members were present at to-day's luncheon, giving indication Belleville will find competition keen.

Herb Cranford reported on business standards and public affairs; John I. Allen on classification on membership. Mr. Allen said the club expects to increase its membership to fifty within a short time, asked for cooperation of the entire club. Vern Morphet reported for the finance committee, pleaded for a sound financial budget. W. A. English reported for the house committee, W. A. Richardson for the inter-club relations' committee in absence of Chairman Bill Ovens, stating that increased activity is expected this year.

Dr. J. C. Craig told of the work connected with his committee on Kiwanis education, and Jacob Low on laws and regulations. Mr. Low said that incorporation of the club is proceeding apace, and that by-laws will be brought completely up to date. Bill Derry reported briefly on the program committee, was complimented by President Richardson on a job well done. Archie Gates added a second report on vocational guidance, telling of much of the work that is being done there in connection with choosing careers for youngsters in the schools.

Rev. Dr. E. W. Young moved a vote of thanks to the chairman for their reports.

Her Dancing Charmed Hitler

The dancing of 19-year-old Marion Daniels, American acrobatic dancer, in the title role of the Merry Widow operetta so charmed Chancellor Hitler, when he saw the operetta in Munich two weeks ago, that he sent his special airplane to Cannes, France, so she could repeat her performance for him.

Mental Strain Major Health Enemy Of Children, Parents Are Warned

DETROIT, Feb. 25—(CP).—The Dionne quintuplets are proving to science that environment is more important that heredity, Dr. William E. Blatz of the St. George's School for Child Study of Toronto, told the Progressive Education Association's National Conference here.

"Physically and mentally they are above par," Dr. Blatz said. "Environment has made them what they are, and we are blessed to have such a fascinating experiment. It will be of inestimable use to science."

Educationists heard Dr. H. R. Stoltz of Oakland, Mich., warn parents that mental strain is the major enemy to health and happiness of children to-day. "Lives of children to-day are too crowded with extra lessons and their days are too filled," Dr. Stoltz said.

"Children now are pushed and hurried until they develop a sense of frustration that remains with them all their lives. Be sure you children get physical exercise which will relax them. Don't push them in their studies beyond their capacity."

A forecast the next generation will consist of spineless boys and strong-jawed women was made by Dr. Carolyn Zachry of the association.

"The mother's desire to dominate the home is having a bad effect on adolescent children," she said. "It makes the young boys too docile and tends to make the girls fight back, which in turn makes a new group of docile men and domineering women to carry on in the next generation."

Hollywood Insults Shaw By Ruling His Play Is Best Of The Year

London, Feb. 25 (AP).

BERNARD SHAW today commented in wrathful terms (whether he really meant it or not) on what he called Hollywood's latest "insult"—the award of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences to the screen version of his "Pygmalion."

(The Academy yesterday announced its selection of "Pygmalion" as 1938's best example of screen play and dialogue.)

Then, to show his opinion of Hollywood, Mr. Shaw rasped, "but it wouldn't have been if Hollywood had made it."

Semi-Pro Stock Showers, Done

TORONTO, Feb. 25 — (CP). — Ways and means of improving the judging and facilities for handling cattle and hogs at farm fairs were discussed at the 39th annual convention of the Ontario Association of Agricuutural Societies here to-day.

Commercialization of such fairs is one of the troubles of fair officials, R. M. Holtby of Port Perry, Field Secretary of the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada told the 600 delegates. Many exhibitiors will not show their cattle if they do not make money, said Mr. Holtby.

He suggested an evening-up of prize lists so that one exhibitor cannot win all prize money and told of one fair that had 122 prizes of $2 each—a prize for every entry.

The time has past when semi-professional exhibitors "can tour all the fairs in the district," H. J. Maybee of the Federal Livestock Branch told the meeting. This practice has "scared off" the general farmer and no longer would be tolerated.

Sixty per cent of hogs in Ontario are being rail-graded at the present time, said Mr. Maybee. Bacon-hog fairs now show on a dressed-hog basis and did not cater to professional exhibitors. Mr. Maybee added that the time is coming when hogs at fairs will be judged on the basis of carcasses.

Speaking for the Canadian Jersey Cattle Club, Hugh Hill of Goderich said cattle free of tuberculosis and Bang's disease should not be shown in closed stables with cattle that had not been tested for these diseases.

Dainty refreshments were served at the tea hour, including a birthday cake prettily decorated with candles to mark the event of three birthdays of the week: Mr. John Scott, Miss Doris Scott and Mr. George Brooks. A very happy time was spent.

Fred Marshall Tenders His Resignation

Fred Marshall tendered his resignation as president of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at a meeting of the executive in the Empress Hotel last night. Members of the executive were not out in full force and deferred action on the matter, until next Tuesday night. A special meeting of the full executive will be called for seven o'clock in the evening of that day, to be followed by a regular meeting of the association.

Mr. Marshall gave no indication of his reasons for resigning other than stating that he believed the organization would meet with more success if someone else where at the helm. He expressed appreciation for support accorded him by members of the association both during his period as game warden and as president. His thanks also went to the press for cooperation.

Every member of the association executive present declared he would not accept Mr. Marshall's resignation unless he remained a member of the executive. The organization could not function properly without Mr. Marshall being represented, all agreed. They were unanimous in recognizing him as the man best versed in fish and game protective matters in this entire area.

In an effort to overcome friction which members felt was being experienced, it was decided to ask D. J. Taylor, deputy minister of the department of game and fisheries, to attend a special meeting of the organization here soon.

Last night's executive meeting was called primarily to draft resolutions to be presented at the forthcoming meeting of the Ontario government's house committee on game and fisheries, slated for the 8th and 9th of March at Queen's Park. Charles Kingan and S. O. Shields were appointed delegates to attend the meeting and present reasons for resolutions passed last night.

The association decided to oppose an open season on beavers this year, a step which the minister of game and fisheries recently indicated would be taken in Ontario this year. A resolution will be forwarded to the department asking that such action be not taken in the counties of Peterborough, Haliburton, Victoria and Hastings, stating that an open season would cause the virtual extermination of beaver in this district.

All members were agreed there are still too few beavers in this area. President Marshall pointed out that a closed season on the animals was introduced only three years ago, and expressed the opinion the the intervening time was too short to permit their return to normal numbers. If protection is maintained for another two years beaver will be plentiful enough that an open season would be justified, he maintained. He pointed out that the increased price for beaver pelts will result in a considerable number being trapped even if the season remained closed, warned than an open season will see "the virtual extermination of beaver in this area."

Importance of the beaver cannot be overemphasized, he said, pointing to their value as tourist attractors, fire preventors, and ability to attract all forms of wild life o any area.

At the suggestion of E. A. Outram, the executive passed a resolution asking that the department issue no more licenses to travelling fur buyers south of the French and Mattawa rivers.

The executive will also ask that the eastern and northern game preserve boundaries in Peterborough county be properly defined, claiming that not even the game wardens know the limits of the preserve at the present time. Those boundaries lie on township lines, but are not marked.

Another request will be for additional Hungarian partridges in this district. A few pairs of such birds were released here eight or ten years ago and have multiplied to quite an extent, Fred Marshall said. He told that a number have been seen near Havelock and in Victoria county. He said they are good game birds, have apparently proved adaptable to the climate in this district, and should be encouraged.

The department will be requested to have seasonal fish overseers operate in future in districts other than those in which they reside. Fred Marshall asked that such a step be taken and that the men be paid more than they have been in the past, even at the sacrifice of such great numbers of overseers. His claim was that men who are employed for only a short period each year cannot be expected to lay charges against their neighbors, with whom they must live the year around. He argued that if those same men were operating in districts other than those in which they resided, more arrests would be made, better fishing conditions would result. The season workers are hired each spring to protect waters from pre-season poachers.

Fewer Sales

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 — (CP). — The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today there were 5,930 new motor vehicles sold in Canada last month for $6,616,269, compared with 6,832 for $6,687,703 in January, 1938, a decrease of 13 per cent. in number and 14 per cent. in retail value.

WE HAVE NOTHING UP OUR SLEEVE!

WE HAVE everything to disclose and nothing to conceal in appealing to the citizens of our own city for financial support in making adequate extension to our existing facilities at Nicholls Hospital.

The claim has been advanced that we should wait until some later time before attending to this matter. It was brought before the public in 1928 and again in 1929, and it was considered an urgent matter then, and the intervening ten years has brought about a situation where the trustees feel there is no other way open. They recognize they have a duty and a responsibility.

We have tried to operate Nicholls Hospital with all due economy, making the best possible use of the facilities at hand, but they have been limited. It has taken more time and more planning than it would to operate an up-to-date institution, and your trustees receive no remuneration, nor do they expect any.

The Trustees know the situation intimately, and their sense of responsibility to the public urges them to make their appeal to the people. They know the limitations and the handicaps under which the Hospital is at present operating. They know only too well some of the hazards which exist owing to old construction and to the presence of so many heating units—12 in all—in a plant which was built when fireproof structure was not stressed and developed as it is today. Having all these facts before them daily your trustees feel it is their duty and their plain responsibility to place the case and all the condition surrounding it plainly before the people who alone can remedy them.

The Claim for Putting It Off

WE HAVE been advised to put it off, and wait until some more convenient season. If your trustees were satisfied this could be done and that our Hospital service would not suffer as a result no deputation would ever have approached the City Council asking for authority to appeal to the people for building funds.

When we live with a situation from day to day and know the weakness and limitations and handicaps with which we are faced it is possible to do one of two things, (1) try and assume an attitude of complacency toward it and let matters drift, or (2) face the issue fairly and tell the people all we know about it and let them decide.

When we know there have been 200 occasions during the past year when sick people have applied for entrance and have had to be informed "No, we have no place for you," then we are certain our case is one about which we can no longer be complacent. The responsibility for denying admission of sick people to our Hospital is one which we believe should be shared by the people of Peterborough.

The Cases From Outside

WE HAVE been told there are too many cases from outside being brought to Nicholls Hospital and that in this way we are adding to our losses in operation. On the basis of a public ward charge the people from the city pay $1.50 per day and those from outside pay $1.75. In addition to that we receive a government grant of 60 cents per day, and that grant would not be forthcoming if we charged more. The idea is to make hospitalization within the reach of as many as possible.

The average cost per patient is $3.28 per day, so our loss per day on city patients is $1.18, and on those from outside 93 cents. Our rate for private room is $4 per day, and there are three rooms with bath for which the charge is one dollar more.

Our present plans call for the bringing into existence of more private rooms and it is the revenue from these which will offset the loss we sustain in furnishing hospital service to those who cannot pay the full charge. It is a plain case of those who are able to pay having to help carry those who are not so fortunately situated.

We Should Not Refuse Them

YOUR TRUSTEES feel they should not refuse to admit those from outside points who turn toward Peterborough when they are sick. Nor is it possible for us to do it and live up to the trust deed under which we operate.

Apart from that it is a fact that when an individual who in time of sickness turns toward Nicholls Hospital in Peterborough, and finds care and kindness waiting here, then such individual has become favorably impressed with our city and its facilities. It is also a fact that relatives and friends come for visits during such illness, and they never forget care and kindness.

We feel that if those who are in doubt about the complete justice of our demands would only come and investigate and see the actual condition and understand what it is we are trying to do they would extend their active sympathy in its fullest degree.

TRUSTEES OF NICHOLLS HOSPITAL.

P.C.I. CAGE SQUADS TAKE DOUBLE-HEADER OVER PORT HOPE

Senior Lasses Get 21-3 Nod And Boys Win

P.C.I.'s senior girls' and junior boys' basketball squads last night fought off the challenge of Port High and swept both ends of their Lakeshore C.O.S.S.A. doubleheader in the Collegiate gym. The girls outscored the visitors in the first half and coasted to victory 21-3 and the junior boys took command from the first quarter to win going away 24-9.

Taking the lead early and seemingly in command at all times the Garnet and Grey Senior Girls had a 13-3 lead at the half and then shut-out the visitors 8-0 in the final period. It was hard and fast all the way, with both teams having good offensives but poor shooting. P.C.I. started fast, had a 10-2 lead in the first quarter and were ahead all the way, had shooting around the Port Hope hoop keeping them from running up the score. Port Hope battled hard all the way. R. Dalliday and E. Saunders were the winners, spearheads on the attack scoring 20 points between them with J. Ottewell and D. Glover also starring. B. Cotter who scored all the losers' points and M. Keeler were best for Port Hope. The teams:

P.C.I. (21)—E. Saunders (12), R. Dalliday (8), J. Ottewell, J. Coleman, M. Juby (1), E. Craig, D. Glover, A. Richardson, H. Beatty, L. Reed.

Referee—H. McGregor, Peterboro.

Juniors Strong.

Held on even terms in the fast opening quarter, P.C.I.'s Junior Boys' got going in the second stanza and had a commanding 16-5 lead at the half, coasting the rest of the way. The visitors looked like they would make it a real battle in the opening minutes holding the Garnet and Grey to a 3-all tie, but from that point on, the homesters were ahead all the way. Port Hope battled hard, checking close and breaking fast, but they missed easy shots time and again. P.C.I. also spoiled a good passing, fast breaking attack with poor shooting from close in. P.C.I. was guilty of fouling 9 times to the losers 12, the Garnet and Grey making four points from the free throw line and P.H.H.S. 3 that way. The whole P.C.I. starting team of Clarke, McPherson, Gillespie, Rogow, Scott and Dundas looked good for the winners and Brown and Deyman starred for Port Hope. The teams:

P.H.H.S. (9)—Centre, Brown; forwards, Deyman (4), Thompson (1); guards, Cotter (2), Smith (2), subs, Gould, Warburton, Austin, Hodson, Fall, Newton.

P.C.I. (24) — Centre, Clarke (6), forwards, McPherson (8), Gillespie (4), guards, Rogow, Scott; subs, Dundas (6), Kay, Hall, Moorhead.

Referee, G. McIntyre, Peterboro; umpire, G. Eastman, Port Hope.

Add good old days: Ted Barrow, who is in the throes of a salary war with such tough hombres as the Messrs. DiMaggio, Dickey et all, likes to sit by his fire nights and recall how he once signed Hans Wagner for $125 per month.

HAT-TRICK PLUS 100

WHITTLESEA, Australia—(CP)—After taking six wickets for 25 runs, including a hat-trick in an inter-town game, Tom Draper, Glenvale cricket captain, made a brilliant century, hitting four sixes and nine fours.

Tiny Injured

Five stitches were required to close a wound in the eye sustained by Tiny Thompson, ABOVE, netminder for the N.H.L.'s Detroit Detroit Red Wings, when he was accidentally struck by a shot from the stick of Mac Colville in a game against Rangers. Tiny retired from the game and Chuck Conacher finished it out in goal.

Oshawa Juniors Tie Kingston 1-1

KINGSTON, Feb. 25.— Kingston and Oshawa played to a 1-all deadlock in the first game of their O.H.A. junior B playoff round here last night and the teams will start the second game of the round on even terms. Consistent checking and superb play by Glynn Udall in the Kingston nets prevented Oshawa gaining a lead. Udall stopped sixty-six shots during the hour of play and many of them were from close to his crease. Phillips in the Oshawa nets only had thirty-eight shots to handle.

The teams will play the next game in Oshawa either Thursday or Friday.

Referee—B. Holway, Belleville.

First Period.
1—Oshawa, Yourth 1.910
Penalty—Fraser.

Second Period.
2—Kingston, Carr-Harris (Jarrell) 3.10
Penalties—Fraser 2, Morris, Murphy.

Third Period.
No scoring.
Penalties—Fraser.

Public School Whips Havelock High

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 25.—The all star public school squad handed the first form high school a 2-1 defeat, in a match between the Havelock schools last night at the local rink, which after three closely contested periods went into overtime, for the younger boys to cop the decision.

There was no scoring for the first two sessions, the public school notching the first one of the game in the third frame, McQuigge being the goal getter, with C. Pollock and Hamilton assisting. C. Pollock combined with Baker shortly after for a high school counter, which deadlocked the score.

McQuigg again combined with Pollock and Hamilton to score the wining goal for public school in the overtime session.

There were five penalties handed out during the spirited tussle, four of these going to C. Currie, public school defenseman, and the other to H. Gordon of the high school.

The teams:

High School—Goal, Copp; defence, Dafoe, Cartwright; centre, Baker; wings, Gordon, Jamieson; alternates, Nobes, Buchanan, Yeo, Pollock.

Public school—Goal, Hill; defence, C. Currie, Hubble; centre, C. Pollock; wings, Hamilton, McQuigge; alternates, Green, Ketchen, F. Hamilton, Clark, M. Currie.

Referee—H. Hamilton, Havelock.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

By dint of much digging about, we can now come up with the present senior "B" playdown setup. The northern winner won't meet the O.H.A., and that leaves five group winners. But the T.A.H.A. victor may not bother entering provincial playdowns in senior "B"—they haven't decided yet. In Western Ontario, the Canuck winner of the Mich.-Ont. loop will go into these playdowns, possibly Chatham being again the team. Kitchener and Waterloo are now staging a series, and it sorta looks like the latter at this writing. These teams played in an intermediate "A" group but top two squads were advised to step up when playdowns arrived. Then there is the Falls and Brantford now battling it out, while the Petes and Kingston meet next week. Boiled down in another week, it may look like this: Petes, Niagara Falls, Waterloo, Chatham and possibly a Toronto team.

* * * * * *

The Petes had a lengthy layoff but will swing into action next week 'gainst Kingston. From what the Fliers said recently—and they played 'gainst the Kingston teams early this season — the Petes stand a good chance of surmounting this senior "B" obstacle and stepping into the Ontario semi-finals. But, of course, one never knows in sports. However, the locals will give a real account of themselves, if they haven't grown stale.

* * * * * *

Home And Home Tilts

Our local Monarchs dropped a 4-2 decision to Lindsay's large Midgets here last eve and that puts the Peterborough boys down two goals on the round. On account of the O.H.A. has ordered this junior "C" group series to be home and home games, goals to count. It was originally billed for best two out of three. Winner was to play in Belleville Wednesday and it begins to look, even to those partisan orbs, like Lindsay. We will be even more surprised than when Orfuns lived up to our prediction and won an O.R.F.U. game last year if the Monarchs now come through on top. But ya gotta give 'em credit for trying. The boys wouldn't quit at anytime; they really battled their hearts out in the speediest and best junior game seen here this semester. They won a moral victory in holding a packed Scugog squad to a two-goal edge.

* * * * * *

The score was 1-0 in the first period for the visitors but the Vitarelli squad held 'em to a 2-all middle heat. And Lindsay got the odd goal in the third. The fans something over 200—guess the folks just haven't got the lucre with the shops so slack—enjoyed this one plenty. It was faster than greased lightning and the boys' pants were dragging on the ice near the finish. They fought like wolves over a dead deer and kept up the speed and umph as long as they could skate. Lindsay had more speed and experience (as well as more non-passing individual stuff) but the young Monarchs had 'em disorganized a good part of the route with their checking. Looked like a bottle of mucilage spilled in front of the large Midgets.

* * * * * *

Au Revoir Or Adieu

And so we are tempted to say adieu to the Monarchs on home ice, though we may have to apologise Tuesday. Which we'll be tickled to do! But it looks to us as if the Lindsay "B"—er, we mean "C", team is a little better. At the same time, we must mitt the mighty Monarchs on a grand game here, and a fighting spirit that had the classy Midgets worried. They've got a good team, Lindsay, with Cook as shifty as a 40-year-old bachelor, Brennan faster than a frightened fawn, Jackson a downright dangerous young gent, Ferguson meaner than a movie villain on defence and Turner a doggone cucumber in the cage. Lots of speed and several years experience—even if they do hog the rubber a lot — and the local lads will have to be hotter than the hinges of Hades to pull it out now. But we're certainly hoping for a miracle.

* * * * * *

Lakefield's Legionnaires reached the end of their O.H.A. intermediate "B" trail last eve in Whitby, the Argos copping a 5-0 nod on home ice to take the round 8-5. Tough luck on Coach Mucker Legros and his gallant gang, but they made a good showing in their O.H.A. comeback this semester and provided the fans with some stirring puck duels in Lakefield. With a good showing this year, the Legionnaires will likely do a bit of building and toss a tougher team over the boards in next year's O.H.A. campaign. Buster Whitton may be an absentee, the mighty atom saying this is his hockey windup—and he made it a good one. So now Sutton and Whitby tangle for top honors to put a period to a good group schedule.

* * * * * *

So What, Mister O.H.A.?

While the Midgets and Monarchs were ordered to cut their junior "C" series to two games, so that the winner could meet Belleville next Wednesday, the Quinte junior "C" crew and Toronto Marlboros went ahead and arranged an O.H.A. playdown series in Belleville on Monday and Wednesday. So now what is to prevent the local group playoffs going ahead as scheduled? There also threatened to be a senior "B" mixup with the Petes ordered to play in Kingston Monday, but the Kingston teams not expecting to be finished their series by then. However, the O.H.A. again today says the Petes will play in Kingston Monday, and we have a wire fro mthe Limestone City saying: "Kingston and Peterborough will start home and home O.H.A. senior 'B' playoffs here next Monday with return game in Peterborough next Friday." So Kingston and R.M.C. had better finish their affair up today, eh?

* * * * * *

The a.m. sheet of Toronto tells of three Canadian members of Coach Pick Hines' hockey Baltimore Orioles who will get a tryout with Roger Hornsby's baseball Orioles of that city in the spring. They are Outfielder Pat Wilson of Toronto, Infielder Bill Calladine of Peterborough, and Catcher Larry Archambault. Trial will be in Montreal—but this doesn't mean much as the Orioles are in the International League, a Class A loop, so none of the players will hook on. It was mentioned some weeks ago in a Baltimore paper, but we expect Bill will be back here come summer time. Incidentally, they're still calling him Canoe Calladine down that way.

Oilers Forced To Default Trenton Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25. — Manager Gerry West gave the Trenton Couriers a win in their T.V.I. game against the local Oilers, which was scheduled to take place in Trenton to-night. Officials waited until six o'clock last night when they learned that there was no chance of No. 30 Highway being ploughed out before calling the Couriers to give them an additional two points which may give them a berth in the play-offs, which will in all probability begin next week. The locals hold the second place position with 23 points. They have a safe margin and their position cannot be altered despite the fact there are still two games left to play in the series. Right now Madoc and Campbellford difinitely hold first and second position respectively in the series and the opinion held here is that Norwood and Trenton will take the other two places in the play-offs, which may begin March 2.

Locals Drop 4-2 Decision Here To The Lindsay Midgets In Fast, Exciting Junior Tilt

Lindsay Midgets will carry a two-goal lead home for Monday's return O.H.A. junior "C" finals as a result of last night's 4-2 win for Lindsay here over the local Monarchs. It is a two-game series, with goals to count, the O.H.A. ordering the winner to be ready to play in Belleville on Wednesday.

A crowd of less than 300 saw a swell junior scrap here last night with the classy Lindsay crew pressed hard to earn the decision. It was a redhot, exciting and fast fray on a good sheet of ice, clean all the way, with Lindsay having a margin on territorial play but being checked up closely throughout. The score was 1-0 for the visitors in the initial inning and 3-2 for them going into the third.

All the Monarchs turned in a battling display, fighting hard every minute they were on the ice in a fine showing. Morrison turned in a swell game in goal, while Connelly, Clarke and Mortimer looked most effective of the forwards, with the rest close behind. For the winners, Cook, Brennan, Angiers and Jackson looked best on the attack, with Ferguson on defence and Turner in goal strong defensively. While the Midgets showed more speed and experience, the locals checked them hard and fought bitterly to keep the score down and did not look badly outclassed. Lindsay's failure to pass the puck cost them a few goals probably.

Hot And Even

It was fast, hot and even for a time in the first frame with Morrison robbing Cook early and Cauley nearly getting one by Turner. DeCarlo went off for tripping and it was tough on the locals till he got back. Jackson scored the only goal on a return pass at defence from Angiers on a nice play. Lindsay looked a bit better on their speed but weren't passing enough to be really dangerous. Vitarelli was gated for slashing and the visitors pressed again but good checking held them out. It was very fast and fairly even at the finish of the period.

The locals' second line held their own to open the middle chukker with the Midgets later having a little margin on the play as Morrison had to jump on half a dozen close stabs. Angiers split the defence to tally in close and then Ferguson went off for boarding. Monarchs pressed for a minute but English got through in a scramble to count another. They fought evenly for a time in a hot session with Cook and Vitarelli later getting the finger for roughing it, English following a few seconds later for boarding. The Monarchs swarmed in hotly and notched two quick ones, Clarke counting both inside the rival defence. With all players back again, the visitors assumed the offensive and tored in hard but they were checked closely by a battling bunch of homesters to finish the stanza, both squads looking tired at the finish.

Both Slow Up

The third was fast and exciting most of the way, though both crews slowed up plenty near the end after the hot pace they had set. Elliot was waved away early for interference as the locals' first line threatened and the young Petes tried hard. Brennan was gated for tripping and Lindsay were two shy a minute but no damage was done. DeCarlo got it then for tripping and play was speedy and exciting with Connelly almost counting on a nice solo effort. With all back, Lindsay pressed in around Morrison and finally scored their fourth, Cook taking Brennan's pass inside defence to blast it into the twine. The teams were tired and disorganized the last while, with Monarchs ganging up to have a slight edge at the finish.

The teams:

Lindsay: Goal, Turner; defence, Elliot and Ferguson; centre, Cook; wings, Brennan and English; alternates, Jackson, Angiers, Owen, Betts and Deyell.

Monarchs: Goal, Morrison; defence, Beggs and Giardino; centre, Rochetta; wings, Connelly and Vitarelli; alternates, Mortimer, Clarke, Cauley, Mackness and DeCarlo.

Referee, G. Rowden of Port Hope.

Summary:

First Period

Lindsay—Jackson (Angiers) ..10.00
Penalties—DeCarlo, Vitarelli.

Second Period

Lindsay—Angiers 5.00
Lindsay—English 7.00
Monarchs—Clarke 16.00
Monarchs—Clarke 16.30
Penalties — Ferguson, Vitarelli, Cook, English.

Third Period

Lindsay—Cook (Brennan) 11.00
Penalties—Elliot, Brennan, DeCarlo.

Hastings Boy Makes Good

A presentation by his townsmen of Hastings will be made in Maple Leaf Gardens tonight to Aubrey (Dit) Clapper, above, starry defenceman of Boston Bruins. Clapper is one of the members of the strongest defence in the N.H.L., on a team that looks a cinch for the league honors this year. He and Shore, with Portland and Crawford, provide a very tough roadway for any ambitious rival forward to travel before coming close to Goalie Brimsek.

Cross Country Race Is Won By Quebec Man

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 25 (CP)—A field studded with many of the big names of Canadian skiing tackles the tricky slopes of Mount McKay today in downhill and slalom events of the national championships.

Bud Clark of Ottawa attempts defence of the combined title won last year in his home city. His rivals include such noted runners as Peter Vajda of Vancouver, Ted Paris and Norman Knight of Banff, Alta., Rupe Edwards of Fort William, Louis Gorgas of Owen Sound, Ont., and Harry Pangmap and Punch Bott of Montreal.

The three-day meet, first ever held at the lakehead and 19th annual tournament of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, was ushered in yesterday by the gruelling cross-country race, won by 23-year-old Gault Gillespie of Ste Agathe, Que., who ran the 16 kilometres, 11.2 miles in one hour, 27 minutes, 53 seconds. Gillespie represented the Esterel Sport Club of Ste. Marguerite, Que., as he added the national title to his Quebec provincial championship.

Weather 17 Below Zero

The broad-shouldered, stocky youngster who started skiing a dozen years ago to save time in his two-mile daily trip to school at Ste Agathe, was fourth in the 1938 cross-country although his time then was 1.12:18. Gillespie attributed the slower time to slow conditions, chilled to powder in the 17-below-zero weather. Slide was reduce to a minimum.

Little Lou Ambers Cuts Arizmendi Down In Ten Rounds In Lightweight Division

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP)—It is always a pleasure to watch little Lou Ambers shake the man off his back, shuffle out and take command of a fight as he did last night in licking the Mexican, Baby Arizmendi, to look large once more in the lightweight division ruled by Henry Armstrong.

In cutting Arizmendi down in 10 bloody rounds Luigi from Herkimer, N.Y., did what Henry couldn't do in five fights and 53 rounds.

Lous' left hand cut and bruised the Baby's scrambled efatures and by the end of the ninth, the little Mexican was bleeding freely from cuts around both eyes. As the bell rang for the 11th and Arizmendi came out, temporarily patched-up and ready to go, the referee walked in front of him flinging his arms wide in the signal that means "that' sall folks."

Officially the end came after four seconds of the 11th.

An emblemished record of 21 wins went into the discard in the eight-round semi-final and Walter Franklin, a Hebrew hitter who formerly lived in Windsor and Hamilton, Ont., was on the receiving end.

He lost to rugged Cal Cagni of Cresskill, N.J., who simply knew too much for Walter. For three rounds it was close. Then Cagni staggered Franklin just before the bell ending the third and the action changed. Cagni had all the going in the later rounds.

Franklin weighed 156 to 153½ for Cagni.

Warsaw Players Please Audience At Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 25. — A rollicking comedy entitled "For Pete's Sake" provided a full evening of fun for a large audience here on Thursday evening. Members of St. Mark's Church, Warsaw, presented the laugh-provoking three-act drama in the Sunday School of Lakefield United Church under the auspices of Group C of the Women's Association of the church.

The unravelling of a plot—which became somewhat involved when the hero, his friend and his Latin tutor, enamoured with the charm-Clarkston girls, took positions as butler, gardener and maid respectively in the Clarkston household, provided plenty of laughs.

The presence of Aunt Sarah Pepperdine and Mamma Clarkston added spice to the production, while Thorndyke Murglethorpe, the Latin tutor, was the hit of the evening in his impersonation of the Clarkston maid.

The Cast.

Oshawa Wins 13-10

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 25.—Defeating the Trenton Flyers 13 to 10 here last night, Oshawa moved into the second round of the O.H.A. Intermediate "B" playdowns. Oshawa won the first game 13 to 0.

The Oshawa players flashed too much speed for the Flyers and swarmed in on Air Force time after time. During the last period the Flyers started to click, and the result was a wild scoring spree.

Goodyears Take First Game From Oshawa 3-1

(By The Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Feb. 25—Pre-season experts who called Oshawa and Toronto Goodyears to battle for the Ontario Hockey Association senior "A" title at the end of the schedule walked further along the same limb today and almost without hesitation decided that Goodyears would retain their title and enter he Dominion playdowns.

The Goodyear powerhouse rolled on in Torono last night with sufficient voltage to knock down Oshawa 3-1 in the first game of a best-of-five title series. The second tilt takes place at Oshawa Tuesday.

Although obtaining no better than overtime ties in their final three scheduled games with Oshawa, Goodyears stepped into their smooth-working opponents last night and snared the margin of victory through two goals in the opening period. Oshawa partially closed the gap late in the third on a clever goal but a counter-thurst by the victors little more than a minute later broke the Oshawa rally.

A fistic flurry occurred in the final two periods after Scotty McAlpine, Oshawa rearguard, and "Gentleman Frank" O'Brien tangled at mid-ice. A dozen others joined in and when the battle was over McAlpine and Lex Chisholm of Oshawa, and O'Brien and Bobby Laurent of Toronto trooped to penitence with major sentences.

Maundrell Out of Game

Cliff Maundrell, ace Oshawa winger, did not take part in the game. He is resting a groin injury but is expected to play in the second match.

Chum King started Goodyears on their victory ride after three minutes on a pass from Johnny Inglis. Peanuts O'Flaherty carried the puck the length of the ice on the play. Thirteen minutes later, Laurent beat Peg Hurst on a short pass from O'Flaherty while Wee Winkie Smith of Oshawa served time.

Oshawa's score ,after a pointless middle session, came from a face-off in Goodyear teritory. Smith beat goalie Harry McQuestion on a hard, high shot. Chisholm and Jerry Kinsella, a junior brought up to replace Maundrell, gained assists. O'Flaherty tagged the final goal on a pass from Inglis.

The senior "B" division, which has decided to pass up Canadian playdowns and concentrate on its own championship, disposed of but one game last night. That was at Kitchener where Waterloo Tigers took a 5-4 overtime win from Kitchener Green shirts. It was tht second straight victory for Waterloo in the best-of-five series.

Tied 4-4 in overtime, Vrooman won the game for Waterloo when his hard shot beat Bindernagel. Grau earned an assist on the play.

Kingston advanced in the "B" division without finishing their best-of-five series with Royal Military College, when the Cadets conceded the honors, Kingston scored a win and a tie in two games played.

Kingston now meets Peterborough in a total-goal, home-and-home series with the first game in Kingston Monday. The second tilt will be staged at Peterborough Friday.

Storey May Play With Winnipeg

Toronto, Feb. 25 (CP) — Buster (Red) Storey, who ran wild for three touchdowns on behalf of Toronto Argonauts in the Dominion senior football final last fall against Winnipeg Blue Bombers, may do his ball-carrying for the Bombers this year.

Storey was closeted for a couple of hours yesterday with Joe Ryan, manager of the Winnipeg club who is here to attend today's annual meeting of the Canadian Rugby Union. From the meeting, it was understood, Storey carried away a glowing impression of life in the West.

It was believed the 20-year-old halfback would move from the champions to the runners-up unless something arose within a few days to alter his plans.

All Tired Out Before Day Half Over

Women who should be strong and healthy become weak, run down and worn out, and are unable to attend to their household duties. They get up in the morning dreading the day's work ahead of them.

Some disease or constitutional disturbance has left its mark in the form of shattered nerves, impoverished blood, and an exhausted condition of the entire system.

Women will find in Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills the remedy they need to supply food for the exhausted nerve force, and one that will help them back to sound, perfect health again.

Waited 5 Hours To See Funeral Of Queen Victoria, Missed It

E. Hosking, a native of Maidenhead, England and one who delivered meat to the kitchens of Windsor Castle while working as a butcher in Windsor, now operates the John Quality Shop on George street north, but because of a disappointment and the pressure of business will not attempt to see the King and Queen when the Royal train passes across Canada.

Hosking came to Canada in 1911, enlisted when Britain went to war and spent 29 months of his four years as a Canadian soldier in the trenches, coming through the great conflict without a scratch. He served his apprenticeship as a butcher in his home town Maidenhead, then went to Windsor as an improver. While working as a junior butcher with a man named Harris, one time mayor of Windsor, Hosking was often called on to deliver meat to the kitchens of Windsor Castle when the Royal Family was in residence there. That was during the reign of the late King Edward VII.

Missed Funeral

The greatest disappointment of his life came when as a boy he walked the five miles from Maidenhead to Windsor to see the funeral of the great Queen Victoria. He arrived five hours early and found what he believed to be a vantage point near Windsor castle. He failed to reckon with the crowd however and being very short in stature was soon hemmed in tightly in the centre of a solid mass of spectators. He was unable to escape. He could not even see the mounted soldiers and his only satisfaction was in hearing the music of the bands in the funeral procession. The crowds which he believes will flock to see the King and Queen when they stop at the different places in Canada will be so great he probably might suffer a second disappointment were he to make the trip from Peterborough. This with the pressure of business and poor health has made him decide to stay away.

On Thames River

Many people have the erroneous idea that the late Queen Victoria is buried in the vaults of Windsor Castle, Mr. Hosking said but actually the Queen was interred at Frogmour in the grounds near Windsor Castle.

King Henry VIII who completed Windsor Castle is buried in the castle along with many other members of the Royal Family including the late King George V, Mr. Hosking said. He described the castle and the grounds as having rare beauty and directly across the Thames river from Windsor is Eton, home of the world famous school for boys.

He said that all tradesmen in Windsor who served Royalty were privileged to display a picture of the Prince of Wales Feathers over the doors or windows of their shops, and this privilege was much sought after by merchants and tradesmen in the surrounding district.

Three other residents of this city also lived at Windsor for many years. These are Arthur Knott, Sr., Maria street, Reginald Butler, 3 St. James street, and G. P. Malch, 321 Edison avenue.

Inside Sportin' Dope

by A. WISE CRACKER

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, after a week without no action our senior squad is going to see opposition next week when they clash with Kingston in the senior B playoffs. Them Kingston lads aint likely to prove no push-overs for our talent because they usually ice a pretty strong gang down in that neck of the woods but the Limestoners wasn't good enough to stop the Fliars in the pre-season league and what the Petes done to the Trenton game is a matter of recent history.

It should oughta be a interesting series but we for I is going to be mighty disappointed if the Buckaroos don't come down in front and looking back over their shoulder at the finish. Our gang has a lot of speed and teamwork and should have enough stuff to make the Kingstonians say uncle. After that the opposition will get tougher and the games that much more exciting again.

The Upset Crew

As for our juniors Mac, the feature has been the work of the class C entry, the Monarchs. The youngsters wasn't give a look in for the group honors a coupla weeks back, they was being financed on the proverbial shoe string and most folks thought it was just a case of playing out the string so far as they was concerned. And then all at once the Vitarelli outfit got clicking, they pulled a surprise win over the heavy Cobourg outfit to get into the playoffs and then tossed in against Bowmanville with the wise guys saying "Well that's that" they pulled another upset by walloping the Bees in both ends of a home-and-home serious and the result is the lads is in there against Lindsay for the group finals. This is being wrote ahead of the 1st game and it would not be surprising if the amazing Monarchs give the much-fancied Scugog Gang which really oughta be in the B section quite a run for their money before the group title is decided.

Colts Washed Up

Our Colts was exterminated the other nite when Oshawa B's took the 4th game of the serious 10 to 0. When you get walloped by a score like that they aint no use of post-mortems or alibis. You can't explain a 10 to 0 licking on brakes or refereeing or anything of the kind. Frankly the Colts has been a big disappointment all season. They had some fast and big lads on the lineup but for some reason or other they never succeeded in looking like a smart hockey team at any stage of the proceedings. They either done the wrong things or done the right things at the wrong time and the result was they was finally badly beaten by a team that individually didn't seem to have anything better than the local kids had to offer. From the viewpoint of future senior material the campaign of the Colts this year certainly won't go down in history as a glaring success.

The N. H. L. aint offered much out of the usual this week Mac. About the only interest now, outside of the individual scoring race, is the battle between Detroit, Chicago and Canadiens as to which 1 of the 3 will drop into the cellar and out of the playoffs. Boston and Rangers still look by long odds the class of the loop.

Well, that's about the week's allowance so I'll say pip-pip.

Sportfully Yours
A. Wise Cracker.

Lakefield Lost To Whitby 8-5 In Semi-Finals

Lakefield Legionnaires were eliminated in their O.H.A. Intermediate "B" group semi-finals last night in Whitby, when the Argos took a 8-0 decision to win the round, 8 goals to 5. The previous game of the home-and-home, goals to count, series in Lakefield last Wednesday wound up in a 3-3 score for the Legionnaires. Whitby will now meet Sutton for group honors.

The second period proved fatal to Coach Mucker Legros' gang last night. They held the strong Argos on their own ice well in the first and third periods, checking the homesters up tightly to keep them off the score sheet. But the Whitby crew clicked for five markers in a speedy, ganging-up middle heat, the Legionnaires becoming partly disorganized under the pressure of a prolonged power-play.

It was a fast, exciting and clean contest over most of the route. The tilt was staged on fast ice, with quite a few Lakefield rooters making the trip. Down two goals from the first game, Whitby battled their heads off the attack from the start, with Lakefield hanging on grimly and checking like demons. But they couldn't hold their rivals in the second stanza, and Whitby tied up the round and went three up on it. In the third ,the Legionnaires began ganging up and fighting fiercely to stave off elimination, but their luck was out and their failed to whittle down the count before the final gong.

None In First.

Neither crew could sink the disc in the initial inning, and there was but one penalty, Saunders drawing a minor. Five tallies were counted by Whitby in the second. Bagnell notched the first on Heard's pass early and Heard came right back a minute later to score on Bagnell's assist and sew up the series. Heard and Bagnell later teamed up for another, the former fooling Loyst. Brown gave them a two-goal edge on an assist in close by Phillips, and the latter later ended the scoring. In this heat penalties were drawn by Saunders, Chittick and Thompson. There was no scoring in the third, and Vipond drew the only penalty.

All the Lakefield gang turned in a good showing in a losing cause, the goalie booting a bunch out, his defence working hard under heavy pressure, and the forwards toiling desperately first to check Whitby and then later to score. Bagnell, Heard, Phillips and Clark starred for the winners. The teams:

Lakefield. — Goal, Leyst; defence, Whatley and Burton; centre, Whitten; wings, Jewell and Blewett; alternate, Chappell. O'Leary, Deeth, Creighton and Chittick.

Whitby.—Goal, Clark; defence, Vipond and Thompson; centre, Heard; wings, Bagnell and Saunders; alternates, Brown, Oke, Piper, Phillips and Watson.

Referee — Army Armstrong of Oshawa.

Roads Are Blocked Into Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25 — All roads leading out of this town were blocked Friday afternoon and several commercial travellers were forced to turn back after travelling about ten miles south of town on highway No. 30. According to Ken Ames, local bus driver, the road is "heavy all the way to Brighton." It took him nearly four hours to cover the twenty odd miles going south and on the return trip the going was considerably worse he claimed. At one point near Orland a dozen cars were stuck in the heavy drifts, while nearly eighteen men with shovels dug frantically in an effort to clear the road. "The wind was blowing it back nearly as fast as we could dig it out," said Ames.

All roads from Campbellford to Hastings, and Havelock and Stirling, were completely blocked for the first time in years, but according to road officials, it was expected they would be clared by midnight last night.

They held the strong Argos on their own ice well in the first and third periods, checking the homesters up tightly to keep them off the score sheet. But the Whitby crew clicked for five markers in a speedy, ganging-up middle heat, the Legionnaires becoming partly disorganized under the pressure of a prolonged power-play.

It was a fast, exciting and clean contest over most of the route. The tilt was staged on fast ice, with quite a few Lakefield rooters making the trip. Down two goals from the first game, Whitby battled their heads off the attack from the start, with Lakefield hanging on grimly and checking like demons. But they couldn't hold their rivals in the second stanza, and Whitby tied up the round and went three up on it. In the third ,the Legionnaires began ganging up and fighting fiercely to stave off elimination, but their luck was out and their failed to whittle down the count before the final gong.

None In First.

Neither crew could sink the disc in the initial inning, and there was but one penalty, Saunders drawing a minor. Five tallies were counted by Whitby in the second. Bagnell notched the first on Heard's pass early and Heard came right back a minute later to score on Bagnell's assist and sew up the series. Heard and Bagnell later teamed up for another, the former fooling Loyst. Brown gave them a two-goal edge on an assist in close by Phillips, and the latter later ended the scoring. In this heat penalties were drawn by Saunders, Chittick and Thompson. There was no scoring in the third, and Vipond drew the only penalty.

All the Lakefield gang turned in a good showing in a losing cause, the goalie booting a bunch out, his defence working hard under heavy pressure, and the forwards toiling desperately first to check Whitby and then later to score. Bagnell, Heard, Phillips and Clark starred for the winners. The teams:

Lakefield. — Goal, Leyst; defence, Whatley and Burton; centre, Whitten; wings, Jewell and Blewett; alternate, Chappell. O'Leary, Deeth, Creighton and Chittick.

Whitby.—Goal, Clark; defence, Vipond and Thompson; centre, Heard; wings, Bagnell and Saunders; alternates, Brown, Oke, Piper, Phillips and Watson.

RICHMOND HILL, Ont., Feb. 25 —(CP). — Referee Lloyd Percival of Toronto and members of the Mimico hockey club escaped injury following a playoff game here last night when attacked by a band of spectators on two occasions.

Mimico defeated North York 5-2 to win the round 9-6 and advance in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B playdowns.

Trouble began when two players parried with their sticks held high at the finish of the game. Percival stepped between them and a free-for-all fight began, with players and spectators participating. Percival and Mimico players eventually reached their dressing-rooms. When they ventured forth, hostile fans were waiting and another free-for-all fight began with Percival and the Mimico club finally making their escape.

Richmond Hill is approximately seven miles north of Toronto.

St. Peter's Win Bantam Playoff

In the first of the two-in-three Southend Hockey League bantam finals last night at the Sacred Heart rink, St. Peter's copped a 6-2 win over Red Aces. Next tilt will be Monday at six. St. Peter's had a good passing attack and checked their rivals closely in a clean, fast fixture. Monahan and Kennedy counted for the Saints in the first period, while Jones and Freeman made it 4-0 in the second, and Goodman tallied for Red Aces. In the third, Monahan and Jones scored for the winners, with Downer denting the twine for the other side. The teams:

Red Aces.—Goal, Williams; defence, Moscrop, Carson; centre, Goodman; wings, White, Downer.

St. Peter's.—Goal, Dewart; defence, P. Murphy, Freeman; centre, Monahan; wings, Jones, Fallon; subs., Kennedy, A. Murphy.

RELIEVING COLD DISCOMFORT THIS WAY!

Just Follow Simple Directions Below—and Use Fast-Acting "Aspirin" Tablets

It's the Way Thousands Know to Ease Pain and Discomfort of Colds and Sore Throat Accompanying Colds—Easy to Do

Try it. Then—see your doctor. He probably will tell you to continue with "Aspirin" because it acts so fast to relieve discomforts of a cold. And to reduce fever.

This simple way, backed by scientific authority, has largely supplanted the use of strong medicines in easing cold symptoms. Perhaps the easiest, most effective way yet discovered.

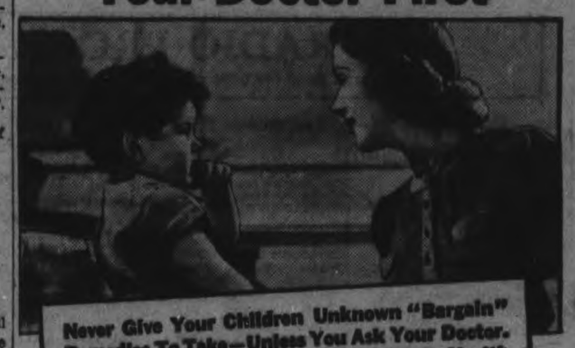
Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First



Never Give Your Children Unknown "Bargain" Remedies To Take—Unless You Ask Your Doctor. Unknowingly You May Be Risking Their Health —Just To Save A Few Pennies

A MOTHER may save a few pennies giving her children unknown, unproved preparations. But the life of a child is precious beyond pennies. So—Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

When giving the common children's remedy, Milk of Magnesia, never ask for "Milk of Magnesia" alone—but always ask for "Phillips'."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation — marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form—tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips', and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So—it is a fact that anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

BE WAS LOST

Police found a young lad from the Havelock district wandering on George street late Friday night in search of a relative whose address he did not know. Officers located the boy's relative and took the bewildered lad to the house.

HITCH-HIKING TOUGH

"These are tough days for hitch-hikers," a young transient who was applying for shelter in the police station said Friday evening. "I stood out on the highway for an hour and a half today and the snow was blowing so much I could hardly see the road and the few drivers who passed couldn't see me."

ABOUT TRANSIENTS

The number of transients applying for shelter at the police station these nights continues to run along at about the same average despite the fact that for some weeks meal tickets have been furnished the wanderers. Friday night there were eleven lodgers in the station, eight of them registering as natives of Canada, two born in Scotland and one in England.

FACILITIES OFFERED

Possibility that the government may provide some financial aid for aspiring airplane pilots who are unable to afford such training, was seen yesterday at Ottawa when representatives of eleven flying schools operated on a commercial basis offered their facilities to the Dominion Government to aid in setting up a reserve of air pilots for Canada. Included in the delegation were representatives of the Peterborough Air Service, Limited. Consideration was promised for the flying schools' suggestion of a student pilot subsidy for 10 hours dual instruction and the first 50 hours solo flying.

KITTEN MEETS FRIENDS

A kitten trapped beneath a grate in the sidewalk in front of the J. J. Turner & Sons building one cold night this week, and meowing for some friendly attention, attracted the attention of Constable John Rogers who was down on his hands and knees trying to release it. At that stage of the rescue Jimmy Conway of Hood and Cummings' garage happened along, and together the two men pried up the grate, and Conway took the kitten across the street to the warmth of the garage.

FUR IS MISSING

The whereabouts of the individual who picked up and walked off with a valuable piece of fur on George street this morning is being eagerly sought. A traveller stopped his automobile in front of the store of William Lech and Sons and started to carry a quantity of furs from the vehicle into the furriers' establishment. When he got inside he discovered that a brown sable neck piece valued at $100 was missing and realizing that he must have dropped it en route he hurried outside and found no sign of the missing fur. It is assumed that a passer-by picked up the neck piece.

Britain, France To Recognize Franco Monday

PARIS, Feb. 25 — (AP).—France and Great Britain were making a supreme effort to-day to restore peace to Spain and clear the way for their formal recognition on Monday of the Spanish nationalist regime.

Premier Edouard Daladier, who informed the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday of his intention to recognize Nationalist General Franco and won a vote of confidence on that proposal, notified the Spanish Republic Government of his intentions.

Diplomatic sources said the French Government, in this final message to Madrid, urged the Government of Premier Juan Negrin to give up its "losing" battle.

The British Government was cooperating actively in the campaign to end the Civil War.

Diplomatic sources said that, although France and Britain imposed no conditions on Franco in exchange for their recognition, Britain inquired at Burgos, Franco's capital, concerning the possibilities of reprisals against the Republican side of the war.

Franco's reply, described as "satisfactory," was relayed to the Madrid Government as another argument for surrender.

Several signs on the Spanish horizon were interpreted in diplomatic quarters as indicating the conflict was nearing an end.

Let Miaja Negotiate,

Negrin's Cabinet met last night in Madrid. It was announced that the ministers heard from the Premier an "imposing military and diplomatic report."

Some French newspapers reported Negrin's Cabinet was planning to quit Spain by plane on Monday, leaving to General Jose Miaja, military commander in the Madrid-Valencia-Alicante zone, the job of negotiating an armistice with Franco.

The eventual destination of some of the ministers was said to be Mexico.

Spanish sources said Manuel Azana, president of the Spanish Republic, who has been living at the Spanish Embassy here since the Nationalist conquest of Catalonia, would resign either simultaneously with or before the British-French recognition of Franco. His action could be either by formal announcement or by a simple withdrawal from the Embassy.

With the Reeves Discussing Good Roads Past Week Been Tough On County Clerk

This has been a tough week for Miss Jessie Batten, Peterborough county's clerk and treasurer. If she could only hear the rustling of Spring, or dream of it, by way of compensation, even the waking up and looking out on the familiar and vexatious February scene might be somewhat relieved, although more likely it would be grievously accentuated.

Everything that could happen in the shape and substance and calamity of winter roads apparently happened. Probably Miss Batten can't think of anything the Boreal elments and their confederates overlooked as they combined to tack on a real sting to the tail of winter.

"And this was Good Roads week," Miss Batten moans to herself as she looks out the window of her office at the snow swirls about the Smithtown countryside just beyond the city's northwest boundary. Probably a couple of man-sized howls—that is if anyone could conceive of Miss Batten emoting and emitting any kind of howl—releasing pent up peeves (to use a becomingly mild term) and something of grim and bitter humor at the perversity of things as they tied up the concession lines, including the tenth, during this week of concentrated winter.

More Than Sardonic Phrase

Good Roads week is more than a sardonic phrase. It means that something like 1,200 reeves and deputy-reeves of Ontario took a chunk of the week off to attend the Good Roads Association in convention. And along with them went County Road Engineers, who have an association of their own, leaving county clerks and treasurers to hold the fort until the good roads conclave has wound up its annual business (for particulars enquire from Alderman Stocker).

MISS JENNIE BATTEN

So, Miss Batten has been thrust out into the peak of the bad roads salient in the forunate circumstances of good roads week, and it may be that for all her ingenuity and imagination she has run out of reasons why this road and that hasn't been opened. Just about a whole week of waiting for the telephone's next peremptory ring. And did Central switch some of them off by the chance of wrong numbers? Not one Central was clicking perfectly. In fact the dials couldn't do half so well banging into the clerk's office.

Two Plows Busy

Two county plows were doing their bit to help the beleaguered Batten, and their drivers were extending some of their days until around midnight. But, alas these were just ordinary plows, they had only one corporeal and working form, instead of possessing the magic of ubiquity, so they could be here and there, Smith and Otonabee and North Monaghan, at the same time.

And if the snow had only been as light as stardust, so the plows could toss it over the fence on the run, that certainly would have helped a lot; but, being Good Roads week the irony of the weather had to send first a deep layer of snow and then an encasing crust, then more snow, and finally complaint on all but philosophic lips, and handy telephones to call for the plow.

The Examiner doesn't know how many of the members of the county council hied themselves to the Good Roads convention. One that didn't was Reeve W. A. Anderson who found he had all the good roads problems he could handle in his own township, although he looked in at the county clerk's office yesterday afternoon. Probably he wasn't of much help to Miss Batten. The Reeve of Otonabee can think deeply enough, but not quickly enough when it come to digging up new excuses to hand out to ratepayers wondering when one of the two county plows was going to reach their respective gates.

Well, "time and the hour runs through the roughest day"; this above-mentioned tough week has run its wintry course; ratepayers have been reasonable beyond their snow barriers; and with the wind up of the Roads convention possibly life will take a turn for the immediate better for J. B. who has learned something more this week about that experience which breaks now and then, and is sympathetically captioned: "When a feller needs a friend."

Inspector Copp Plans To Make Rounds On Skis

Somebody had better start rounding up a search party against the possibility of having to comb the silent snows and wilderness of East Peterborough next week for Leo Copp, public school inspector.

That suggestion no doubt has an alarmist ring to it, but not without cause it is passed on to Dave Silvester and other authorities, for Mr. Copp is contemplating the prospects of a solo slalom which perhaps should be discouraged. This week he took the line of least resistance, picking two urban spots, Havelock and Norwood, up and down No. 7, for inspection visits. But, today he has had a change of heart, afraid he might he getting soft or at least choosey, and so he is thinking of swinging to the other extreme where the going may be hard and also adventurous, and, who can say, not without peril.

Cross-Country Trip.

Mr. Copp's program briefly and in the rough outline is to polish up his skis and head off toward the lone school near Mount Nepheline, somewhere around the east end of Stoney Lake. He is talking of leaving his car in the garage, and making the week's rounds on foot. From there he plans to push along through the hill country and the slash lands to Lasswade, and it is in that long stretch something might happen to the inspector. After a professional visit with John Reynolds, providing Mr. Copp reaches that destination, he is going to ski on further to the north, presumably north of Apsley, where there are thre or four schools, and finally to cross over the Hastings boundary to Coe Hill and thence back home.

Of course motoring over that route is out of the question for the present, and the slalom stunt, hemannish and all that, will cause apprehension among his friends who are bound to feel that discretion is the better part of zeal and courage. Some mishap in the wilds north of Stoney Lake, and there'd be a young school inspector missing. That's where the hunt party would come in, trailing news hounds and queer birds with cameras, who have a great distaste for sub-zero snow banks.

A Word Of Warning.

The more Mr. Copp's enterprise for next week is considered the more advisable it seems to propose to Ross Downey a quiet little wise counsel session with his professional associate in the hope of dissuading him from this slalom and cross-country expedition all by himself. A word might be said of the attractions of Maytime, although those Dummer and Chandos drifts on such a day as this was probably exert a strong lure to Mr. Copp. However, it is all up to Mr. Downey, and as for jokingly promised pictures of deer, snapped along the way, probably the Examiner's management will be delighted to forego those exclusive features if Mr. Copp will only alter his plans so as to keep him within the bounds of civilization and out of the lonely game reserve where bears may be roaming about. And besides, what reporter wants to following along with the search party with the possibility of more bad weather next week.

Canadian Legion Notes

The long awaited Minstrel Show is now a thing of the past and the members of the cast, the committee, and Morley Plunkett can congratulate themselves on the result of their efforts. A very fine show that every Legion member can be proud of. The only thing wanting was favorable weather, which would have given crowded houses. The monthly meeting will be held on Monday and it is hoped a full turnout will be present to see the presentation and unfurling of the new silk flag presented by Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Merritt in memory of a brother killed in the war. There will be entertainment and refreshments provided and a good turnout will be appreciated.

The carpet ball league has arranged for one of the games in the semi-final of the President's Cup to be played at the Legion Hall on Wednesday next, when the competing teams will be St. Luke's vs. Trinity. The poor old Legion rooster is in poor shape these days and even such fledgelings as the Fire Hall can hit him in the neck without him retaliating.

The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary are cordially invited to attend the presentation of the flag on Monday evening next, Feb. 27.

Women Observe Day Of Prayer

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25 — Members of all Protestant denominations celebrated the annual World's Day of Prayer here Friday afternoon. The service took place in Christ church, and despite the weather and roads, there was a large attendance.

Those in charge of the service were presidents of the various Women's Missionary Societies and an official from the Salvation Army. The Missionary presidents in charge of the program were Mrs. F. de F. Fee, Mrs. E. C. Roberts, Mrs. A. C. Connor and Mrs. Sharpe. Those who lead in prayers were Mrs. P. B. Nelson, Mrs. A. D. Bennett, Mrs. Harold B. Neal, Mrs. J. P. Archer and Mrs. Carmen Runions Miss Gertrude Maynard assisted at the organ.

County Plow Is Unable To Open Roads

LINDSAY, Feb. 25. — Friday's storm added finishing touches to the highways in this district and today traffic is completely tied up on practically all the township highways with sections of the main highways filled in at different points. A county snow plough with teams attached attempted to open up the roads east of Lindsay, but the plough was stalled. In the western section —near the House of Refuge—drifts five and six feet high have plunged the roads, while the Lindsay-Fenelon Falls highway, in the vicinity of Cameron village, is badly blocked. Members of the local Rotary Club struck out to attend a Rotary meeting at Weston, but they were obliged to turn back on account of drifts. On the Lindsay-Peterboro highway, the blinding storm forced motorists to turn on their lights, and many were obliged to stop at intervals as it was impossible to see approaching cars. A hockey special with two locomotives struck out last night for Haliburton and it had difficulty in reaching the northern village.

Death claimed one of the leading citizens of Fenelon Falls on Thursday in the person of Dr. Blackbuen Johnston, who passed away at Ross Memorial Hospital from a heart condition. The funeral takes place on Monday to Vernonviule cemetery, Northumberland county. The deceased was a medical practitioner at Fenelon Falls for thirty-one years, and served for a number of years on the different municipal boards. He is survived by his wife, two sons, one daughter, and a brother residing near Colborne.

Fear Snow With Heavy Crust Has Depleted Stock Of Partridges In This District

Members of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association felt Friday night it was scarcely worth while passing a resolution governing the shooting of partridge next fall, for they were of unanimous opinion there will probably be too few of the birds to bother about.

The recent cold wave that followed mild weather and placed a thick crust over the snow, will have killed off huge number of the birds, in the opinion of the association members. Fred Marshall, former game warden, explained that only in extremely cold weather do partridges dig themselves into snow banks for protection. Many, he reasoned, would swoop down from trees and break their necks when they attempted to dive into the snow. Countless others he believed had burrowed into the snow before the crust formed and found themselves imprisoned there by the impenetrable sheet.

Supper Club Hears Robin C. Cumine

Modern advertising methods and requirements as they appear in national advertising agencies were clearly described in a most interesting manner to members of the Friday Night Supper Club by Robin C. Cumine, art director of Bomac Engravers Ltd. Toronto.

The speaker was introduced by H. L. Garner, managing director of the Examiner, and in the course of his remarks said their was ample opportunity for the clever artist to make his mark in the realm of advertising today. He explained that his job consisted of whipping into shape and putting on paper an advertisement that will sell a customer's product.

One thought which is paramount in the mind of the advertising man at all times is that the ad. must suit all type of people and offend no person. The ads should be suitable for reproduction in any magazine or newspaper. They must be readable at a glance and must be laid out so that they catch the eye and convey the message with ease to the reader.

Prior to the speech of the evening, Curly Gibson and Lloyd Boddison entertained the audience with guitar and piano duet.

Purchases House

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25.—Mrs. Thomas Dunk of town, was the vendor and Harry Cousins, Grafton, the purchaser of the two-storey brick dwelling situated on Lot 76, Block D, on the west side of Front street. The dwelling is solid brick and contains seven rooms with all modern conveniences. There is also a one car garage on the lot. The purchase price was not revealed and the transaction was handled by T. L. Diamond, local realtor.

Mrs. A. MacInnis To Address Club

Mrs. Grace MacInnis, secretary of the C.C.F. Group in the House of Commons, Ottawa is the guest speaker on Monday night when the C.C.Y.M., the youth section of the C.C.F. in this city will hold their annual banquet in the Moose Hall.

The speaker is the daughter of J. S. Woodsworth, heads of the C.C.F. party in Canada and the wife of Angus MacInnis, C.C.F. member of parliament for Vancouver East. Mrs. MacInnis has been active in the political party since its formation, and holds the office of National President of the Cooperative Commonwealth Youth Movement.

Her work is many-sided. At Ottawa she carries on publicity for the C.C.F., her column "What's Doing At Ottawa" being a regular feature in its newspapers. She has addressed meetings in every province in Canada, and participated in practicaly every federal and provincial election campaign since 1932. Her special interest is in meeting groups of people who will study and discuss present-day problems.

Two years ago Mrs. MacInnis and her husband visited certain European countries, notably the Scandinavian group where they made some study of cooperative, trade union and educational methods. A graduate of the University of Manitoba, Mrs. MacInnis has also had educational training in Ontario and British Columbia where she now makes her home. The winner of a French Government bursary, she spent a year in France at the conclusion of her university course and later taught school in Manitoba.

RELICS OF THE PAST.

Carpenters and decorators doing a renovating job on the law offices of Hall & Carley uncovered three old copies of the Examiner—one is dated 1888, one in 1889, and the other 1890. One of the first dictaphones used in this city and more than likely the original one as far as Peterborough is concerned, also came to light. The offices are being re-wired, new partitions, and a paint job.

Sales Girl Defies Orders Of M.O.H.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25 — A sales girl for a certain religious publication has been causing local health authorities considerable annoyance. According to the story being circulated, the lady in question has been entering certain houses, which are quarantined for scarlet fever, to give her sales talk to those who are ill as well as the ones in good health. She apparently didn't want to show any partiality. One report alleges the lady, who seems to have little regard for her own health, sang at the bedside of the patients. She was finally located by police, who warned her that she herself would be placed under a quarantine if she didn't keep out of those places bearing the pincard.

Tribute To Memory Of Late Principal

Friends of the late Rev. Dr. A. W. Mackenzie, M.A., of The Grove School, Lakefield, will appreciate the following tribute to his memory in the little volume recently published by a friend, John Morgan Gray:

"In his tribute to the late headmaster of The Grove, Lakefield, Mr. John Morgan Gray has perhaps been slightly under the unconscious influence of 'Mr. Chips,' and in a very natural way, when writing of a favorite principal of a boys' school, remembered in after years. But if that is the case, so much the more credit to Dr. Mackenzie in his work of building up an institution in the Peterborough district that ranks highly among its kind. He devoted forty-four years of his life to the task, from 1894 till his death in February, 1938. That his boys loved him and appreciated his ideal of unaffected manliness is the finest testimony that could be paid to his work. It is a striking fact that eight of the original fifteen boys he taught attended his funeral. The warm, unpretentious essay supplied by Mr. Gray is in every way fitting to the occasion. It will be treasured by former students and might well be studied by directors of similar institutions. Lakefield, as it stands today, is in its wholesomeness and simplicity a model of education for Canadians."

THE KING'S VISIT.

Patrol leaders and Cub Pack leaders in the city are busy attempting to find ways and means of financing the transportation of their entire troops and packs to Kingston next May when the King and Queen visit there. Most of the Scouts in the city would like to attend, but no definite plans have been made by any groups so far.

Hepburn Looking Much Improved

While in Toronto on business Friday, Alex L. Elliott, M.L.A., met Premier M. F. Hepburn, just arrived home from New Zealand and Australia, and received a cordial greeting from the Liberal leader.

"Mr. Hepburn is looking very much improved," Mr. Elliott said. "He made a comprehensive study of the advanced social legislation that has been tried out in both countries, and has also learned the results of their housing scheme and especially their marketing legislation in which Ontario farmers are now greatly interested. The Premier asked for the latest news about the condition of J. J. Duffus, and said he did not hear about the grave illness of Peterborough's federal member until his arrival home."

Workmen are engaged in extensive renovation of the Legislative building, Mr. Elliott said ,the first work of that kind that has been done since 1921. The preparations are being made for the visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth this spring, and will include new red carpeting for royalty in the legislative chamber. Mr. Elliott met Col. John A. Dewart in Toronto, and they were together in the visit to Premier Hepburn.

COLDS AND INFLUENZA

There is at present an increased number of individuals suffering from colds and influenza or "la grippe". These disease, while apparently minor illnesses may cause serious complications such as bronchitis, pneumonia, middle ear infection, etc., which may be serious.

Prevention of the common cold and influenza is possible. The following precautions should be observed:

1. Avoid persons already infected. These diseases are contagious, i.e., they are spread from person to person.
2. Avoid chilling the body by unnecessary exposure to cold or wet.
3. At the first sign of a cold go to bed and stay there.
4. Call your doctor.
5. Protect others in the community by remaining isolated until your cold is better.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER THIRTY-EIGHT

I WAS SMILING and sort of dreaming to myself when the clock chimed ten and I came down to earth with a bang. I grabbed my coat from the bed and ran down the front stairs and out of the house.

I had no idea where the linden tree was located, but as I hurried toward the aboretum I did not think I would have much trouble finding it. It was not likely that the woods would be overflowing with couples at this time of the night. And as it happened, I was not wrong. Before I had gone a hundred feet I caught a glimpse of something white moving among the trees. I dodged behind a coroner of the summer house on the estate.

As my eyes gradually became accustomed to the darkness, I saw that the something white was a man's shirt front. But I could not see the man's face nor hear what he was saying. The next tree from me was a good twenty feet, and Daphne and the unknown man stood facing each other. I cursed my luck and strained my eyes and ears to no avail.

I did not know how long I stood there, silent and immobile as a tree itself. It was a long, long time. It was like watching a motion picture of the pre-talkie era, where the actors performed in pantomime with the aid of sub-titles. I had no sub-titles, and the pantomime was meaningless alone. I felt as though I had entered a theater in the middle of the film: I could not get heads or tails of the plot.

Presently Daphne began to pace up and down the path talking and gesticulating as she did so. I decided to make a break for it. I moved quickly and agilely as a cat from tree to tree until I was within a few feet of the couple.

Cautiously I poked my head around the trunk. Daphne, her face an oval blur in the gloom, was so close to me I could have touched her.

"You contemptible cur!" she was saying. "I ought to have you horse whipped!"

"I theenk not," said the other, and I very nearly toppled over backward. The unknown man was Count Orsini! "I theenk not," and his voice was as sweet as syrup, "I do not understand why you make the fuss. Are we not engaged to marry? Was eet not arranged een the contract?"

"Suppose," said the girl, "suppose I were to make it worth your while to break the contract?"

"So?" The count was amused. "So now money means to you nothing! You are reech!" His voice hardened, "But no! You do not make the laughing stock of Orsini! You marry me, or I tell everything!"

She demanded mockingly: "You love me so much? You aren't afraid for your precious skin?"

I fancied the count drew back; at least hesitated, then he laughed softly: "You make the joke, no? Come—ees eet agreed? We make the marriage?"

"And if I agreed, you will give me the tissue?"

The tissue! I pricked up my ears! So Phil was right. It had been the count who had attacked him and stolen the tissue!

"When you are my wife, I give you the paper."

"Oh!" Daphne sounded annoyed. Presently she suggested slyly: "How do I know you are telling the truth? Perhaps you are lying—"

"You do not believe me?"

"No," she said bluntly. "No."

"Very well!" he cried. "I prove eet! See! what I have said ees true. Here ees the teesue — you see!"

"Beast!" She lunged toward him. He reeled backward; he lost his balance, and fell heavily to the ground. Instantly Daphne was upon him. For a confused second they rolled among the moss and the leaves. Then, freeing herself, the girl got to her feet.

"So you would threaten me!" she exclaimed in triumph, and I saw that she waved above the prone figure of the count a bit of white paper. "There! And there!" Again and again she tore the tissue until there was nothing left of it but a shower of tiny flakes that fluttered through the air like fine snow.

Count Orsini swore in a decidedly ungentlemanly fashion. "You pay for theese!" he shouted, but his epithets fell on my ears alone. Daphne was running up the path that led to the house. It was some minutes later that the count, his back plastered with dirt and leaves, limped after her.

I stepped from my shelter, surprised to find my knees knocking together. I clutched at a sapling, clinging weakly to it. My fingers touched something cold, metallic. I recoiled as though a rattlesnake had suddenly reared its head to strike me. Then all at once I began to laugh! I could not stop laughing. My rattlesnake was a square metal tag tackled neatly to the tree. The tag was inscribed: "This tree planted by" and there followed the name of my movie star!

I stuffed my handkerchief into my mouth and made my way slowly through the avenue of trees. The house from the rear loomed large and darkly. The kitchen was long since deserted.

Somewhere behind me an owl hooted. The wind whistled eerily, playing a mournful, ghostly symphony among the leaves. Fear caught at my throat. The stillness enveloped me like a shroud. Unseen fingers clutched at my coat as I walked alone.

Then simultaneously the blackness and the silence were shattered. The huge house, like a butterfly from its cocoon, emerged from darkness to light. Lights popped on here, there, everywhere, until the blackened hulk of the place was ablaze from top to bottom. I stopped still. Fear ran the length of my body, turning it to stone.

In the driveway the familiar chug-chug of a motor, tired and worn, sounded loudly. With an agonizing groan the motor coughed, sputtered, died—and with its last echo I was galvanized to life and action. I ran and ran and never stopped running until I was safe and sound in Phil's welcoming arms!

"Whos, there!" McIntyre, followed by Chief Ellis and the coroner, hopped from the back seat of Phil's Ford. "What's going on here?"

And as if in answer to his question the kitchen door was flung open with such violence that the glass cracked across and fell in pieces to the ground. Minnie, the giggling chambermaid, stumbled down the steps. Only she was not giggling now; her face was livid with terror.

"He's dead!" she babbled incoherently, and worked her arms up and down windmill fashion. "They have murdered him, too!"

"Murdered who?" demanded Mac ungramatically. "Murdered who?"

"Mr. Horace, that's who! He's lying up in Mr. Richard's room all covered with blood!" And Minnie, having delivered herself, fainted dead away in the unwilling embrace of Dr. Didmore.

MARMORA

G. M. Scarrow of Hamilton spent Thursday in the village.

Mrs. John Bapty and young son of Grimsby are visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bapty at Deloro.

Miss P. Robinson is spending the weekend at her home in Ottawa.

Mrs. W. R. Reynolds and daughter, Eleanor, are spending a few days with relatives in Ottawa.

Drifting snow blocked the township roads on Friday, occasioning a variety of inconveniences to those using them.

Ring-necked pheasants, after an absence of several months, were again seen in the Deloro district this week. The birds were evidently in quest of food due to the heavy fall of snow cutting off their usual supplies.

Millbrook Juniors Hold Work Evening

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 25. — The Junior Girls' Auxiliary met for a work evening at the home of Miss Helen Ellsworth on Wednesday at 8 p.m., with the newly-elected executive in charge.

Miss Muriel Ball, president, took the chair, and the secretary, Colleen Blair, read the minutes and called the roll, after which work proceeded on the articles for the layette which is part of the bale annually sent by the girls. The handsome top for a crib quilt, kindly donated by Mrs. R. J. McMahon, was also worked on, and the treasurer, Ada Peers, gave a brief report.

The hostess served home-made candy during the pleasant social hour at the close of the work session. The junior auxiliary is organized in connection with the senior society of Grace Presbyterian Church.

DOROTHY DIX

Don't Rush Into Marriage, Especially If The Boy Friend Does Not Have a Job That Will Make You Respect Him—Wait For Him

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—My fiance and myself have been engaged for more than two years now. He has no job, but I have. I want to get married even though he has no way to make a living. I can't bear to wait and wait. He will not agree to this. He says he couldn't live on his wife, yet we intend to get married some time. Why can't we be married now and let him go on looking for work? I feel so discouraged that I can't stop crying. What do you think about this? R. B.

ANSWER:

I think that your young man is entirely right in the position he takes. You are making things very hard for him when you try to weep him into doing something that he knows he should not do and that is contrary to his every principle of manhood.

Hydraulic pressure is one of the great forces of nature, and it is never more devastating than when it takes the form of tears from a woman's eyes. Many a man has seen it sweep away his resistance, his common sense, his judgment, his honor and leave his life lying waste and barren behind it when its flood receded.

It takes a man with iron strength of character to resist the woman he loves when she cries, and especially when she cries for him. That touches not only his heart but his vanity. It is so moving to think that any one loves him so much that she is breaking her little heart for him. It rouses all the chivalry in his nature because it makes her seem so weak and pitiful. Besides, there is some chemical in a woman's tears that just melts down a man's backbone, anyway, and makes him a mush of complacence.

Millions of men have let women float them to the altar on their tears before they were ready to make the journey. Millions of men have married women they were not in love with, whom they didn't want to marry, whom they knew were unsuitable for them to marry, simply because they didn't have the courage to resist their tears.

It is this coward's trick that you are trying on your fiance. If you have one spark of real, unselfish love for him, or the slightest conception of what a fine man he is, you will wipe your eyes and brace him up to fight the battle he is waging against himself as well as you when he refuses to marry you until he is able to establish a home and marry with self-respect. It would be a lot easier to take you when you throw yourself at his head than it is to make you wait. But, believe me, that kind of man is worth waiting for.

There is no more contemptible thing that a man can do than to marry when he has no means of providing for a wife and when he must either let her support him or else become a parasite upon her or his parents. You cannot think of a man with a shred of decency or dignity or self-respect or manhood doing such a thing. So any girl who tries to push a boy into marrying her before he is in a position to marry does him as deadly a wrong as malice itself could invent.

There are certain fundamentals in marriage that cannot be changed without wrecking it. One of these is that the man must be the bread-winner. When this is reversed and the wife has to support the husband it upsets the domestic equilibrtum. No matter how generously the wife gives, it hurts his pride to be dependent on her. It slays him to know that the gray mare is the better horse, and it breaks down his morale to know what others think of him. You never see a man whose love long survives his having to ask his wife for cigarette money.

Nor can any woman respect the husband who sits at home and twiddles his thumbs or loafs around barrooms while she goes out to earn the money to support him. When a woman commences looking down on her husband instead of up to him Cupid packs up his arrows and scrams.

These things being true, I beg you, little cry-baby, and all other girls suffering from the delusion that love is enough to marry on, to quit weeping for wedding rings and trying to jockey boys into premature marriages. Wait until the boy friend has a good, settled job and something in the savings bank and can marry you with self-respect as well as love.

* * * * * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married four years and have a little boy of 2. When I married I loved my husband devotedly, but lately I can hardly stand him. I have grown tired of him or something, and when he kisses me or touches me I want to scream. There is no reason for this, because he is everything a woman could ask for. He is handsome. He gives me everything he can afford. He helps me with the housework and worships the baby and me. When I get angry he never argues with me. I feel like telling him that a good spanking is what I need and would do me good. I am certainly not in love with any one else and I wish that I could love him as I did once, for we are both miserable. Is there any remedy for me? CAROLINE.

ANSWER:

Perhaps you have diagnosed your case yourself and the good spanking that you suggest would cure what ails you. I have seen many a woman who was acting like a cantankerous child who only needed to be turned across her husband's knee and have the hair brush applied where it would do the most good to turn her into a good wife and mother and a beaming pacifico.

Evidently you are one of the women who have reverted to the cave-woman type. What you need is a two-fisted brute who will yank you around by the hair of your head and give you a good thrashing now and then to keep you pepped up and excited by wondering what he is going to do next. A kindly, gentle, loving, amiable man who lets you walk all over him and make him wipe the dishes bores you to tears and gets on your nerves.

The best thing you can do under the circumstances is to take a long trip off somewhere. Maybe if you get away from your husband and see how a lot of other men treat their wives you will realize what a treasure you have.

Transform Your Rooms With Cascade Hangings

Jabots, Valances Easy to Make

Handsome cascade draperies to give a double-window effect. How gracefully they taper to the floor. And so striking in this smart two-color combination.

You can easily make them. Choose a rayon damask or sateen in brown and gold. For the end draperies use brown. Make the inside hangings, valances and jabots of gold and tie the two windows together with a little festoon of brown.

The smart little jabots you cut on a slant and pleat as the diagram shows. So the side draperies will taper gracefully, cut them on a slant, too.

To make sure your valance will hang in rich, deep folds, cut it twice as deep as you want it to be when folded.

A handsome trimming for your draperies is gold fringe and you can quickly sew it on with a running stitch.

Easy to hang draperies on rods, tack valances and jabots to valance board.

Make stunning draperies and curtains for the whole house. Our 32-page booklet gives step-by-step directions and diagrams for charming new styles. Decorators' color schemes and fabric suggestions.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of NEW IDEAS IN MAKING CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES to Examiner Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"Chirp-chirp-chirp!—ah! it's nice and warm here in the sunshine! Chirp-chirp!"

Knarf and Hanid recognized the voice. It was their friend, Sparrow. They hurried to the window sill.

"Good-morning!" he greeted them. "I was just saying how fine and warm it is in the sunshine. I was certainly cold last night. And all because I did a very foolish thing."

"What did you do?" asked Hanid. "I bet the covers slipped off your bed," said Knarf.

Has No Bed.

Sparrow gave a laughing chirp. "I don't sleep in a bed, and I haven't any covers. All I have to cover me are my feathers and—thank goodness!—they don't slip off. But I'll tell you what I did. Yesterday I decided that spring wasn't very far off. I made up my mind to find myself a nice nest in some sturdy old tree in a good neighborhood. I said to myself: 'I'm going to move into a nest before the other birds fly back from the south'."

"And did you find one you liked?" the two shadow-children asked.

Sparrow nodded. "I found just the nest for me. It was in a big maple tree in the middle of a lovely wide garden. It was in a branch near the top of the tree. From the edge of the nest I had a beautiful view of the pond, and on the other side I could see across a field of daisies and buttercups to the top of a grassy hill. Only—" said Sparrow as he paused.

"Only what?"

Daisies Not Out.

"Only the daisies and buttercups weren't out of the ground yet on account of the snow, and the hilltop had no grass on it because of the cold, and there were no flowers in the garden, and the pond was frozen, and the beautiful old maple tree was bare of leaves."

"So you didn't move into the nest after all?"

"Oh, yes!" Sparrow answered. "I moved in all right. I wanted to be sure no one else would take it before me. You see, it had been built by a robin and if he came back it wouldn't belong to me. So I moved right in. But it was a mistake, a great mistake."

"What happened?"

No Radiators.

Sparrow shivered. "As soon as the sun went down, it got cold. Birds' nests don't have stoves or radiators like houses do. I got down at the bottom of the nest and put my head under my wing. But it did no good. The wind blew. The branch tossed and shook. The wind went through me. 'But it's such a b-beautiful nest!' I kept telling myself. 'It will be so lovely living here when spring comes!' Then all of a sudden the wind blew so hard and the branch tossed so much that—bang! out went the whole nest. I flew off just in time."

Sparrow was silent for a moment. "Well," he said cheerfully again, "it just shows that you can't move into somebody else's nest while they're away. I'll just wait until the spring and build my own nest. But isn't the sunshine wonderful this morning?"

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 26

SUNDAY'S horoscope has auguries of some rather decisive and important activities, possibly in connection with clerical, legal or ducational associations, rather than business of a commerical nature. In this direction there may be problems best solved by patience and steady work. The mind may be well stimulated in the direction of proper procedure. Social or sentimental affiliation seem to hint of intrigue or secrecy, although not sinister.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which there might be litigation or some mental problems, which may require much study, keen insight and sound judgment to arrive at satisfactory decisions. Private affairs are subtle, curious or intriguing, with happy or surprising denouements.

A child born on this day may have a steady and dependable character, realizing brilliant intellectual attainments which may place it in public life.

For Monday, February 27

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is a decidedly perplexing and contradictory one, with certain confusing issues requiring sound judgment and wise counsel of responsible friends or advisors. There may be legal or financial aspects, or lures to changes, which are hazardous. Let cool and sagacious means be used, rather than tempestuous, impulsive and rash conduct. Be alert to fraud and deception.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year in which success depends on the wisdom of trustworthy friends, rather than their own uncertain and over-stimulated judgment. Calmness, steadiness and system win over rash, quarrelsome and passionate action. Be alert to deceit and fraud, and be prudent with all writings and papers.

A child born on this day may have a many-sided and complex nature, difficult to understand and handle. While impulsive, reckless and violent in some ways, it may use its fine mind and strudy character in others. Its yearning for good education should be satisfied, as much good fortune may depend on that.

McGill Sale In Cavan Brings Fair Prices

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAVAN, Feb. 25.— Despite snow and cold, a fair sized crowd attended the sale of Mr. Earl McGill on Lot 4, Concession 7, Cavan township, on Thursday afternoon.

Prices were good, with horses ranging from $65 to $150; cows from $35 to $50; year old calves, $20; lambs, $11. Implements sold at fair prices. A good cream separator went for $50.

Two colony houses were among the items.

Ted Jackson, of Port Perry, was the auctioneer.

The first through road in a tract extending 400 miles north of Bombay, India, is to be built this year.

STYLE "STAR"

By ALICE ALDEN

It isn't just a fashion dictum; it is an absolute fact that no wardrobe is really complete without a fur jacket. The right fur jacket graces afternoon things and can be worn over a simple wool walking dress. It is a "star" at the theatre or opera, and entirely in its element at any smart night club or restaurant. On shipboard, under a southern moon, it is absolutely devastating, especially if it is of sable, as is this superb Stein and Blaine model. It's worn over a chiffon dress with self scarf, shirred bodice and skirt flaring from the hips.

Trinity Women Hear Address By Mrs. Moncrief

The February meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Trinity United Church was held in the ladies' parlor Tuesday with Mrs. M. A. Morrison, first vice-president in the chair. In the opening service of worship Mrs. Herbert Martin gave the opening reading from the Bible followed by a hymn and prayer led by Mrs. Morrison.

At the executive meeting it was decided to make the Easter thankoffering in March when Dr. Cochrane, Superintendent of Missions of Northern Ontario, will be the guest speaker. Encouraging reports were given by the department secretaries. Mrs. A. B. Cunningham, Temperance secretary, referred to the temperance program in India where Ghandi is crusading to make India teetotal in three years. Mrs. Walter Stocker, Christian Stewardship secretary, reported an increase in voluntary offerings over those of last month. She also read a paper urging the use of envelopes for making up the fund allocated to the Society.

The attendance at the meeting showed an increase of five over the corresponding month of last year, and four new members joined the Society. Mrs. A. B. Gates took charge of the rest of the program. The reports of the Peterborough Presbyterial were presented by the delegates, Mrs. S. D. Carver, Mrs. Gates and Mrs. G. N. Moncrief. The subject of Mrs. Moncrief's address was "The Planting of the Church In Canada".

Mrs. Moncrief said that the Huguenots should be given credit for bringing Protestantism to the New World in 1895, but it was the Church of England which first established Protestantism in British Canada, having conducted its first service in Acadia in 1710. The Congregational Church came next, their Cotton Mather's church in Halifax having been established in 1750. After the Acadians were expelled in 1765 many new settlers came from the New England colonies to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. Some of their churches still exist, and have celebrated their 150th anniversaries.

In 1938 the Congregational College for the training of ministers began under Dr. Little at Dundas, later at Toronto and then to Montreal. This was the first theological college in Ontario and Quebec. The Presbyterians who had come from Scotland and from New England had their first minister in 1764. One of their outstanding pioneer ministers was the Rev. James McGregor, who is called the Father of Presbyterianism in Nova Scotia.

The beginning of Methodism in Canada dated from 1772, Mrs. Moncrief continued, when a number of Methodists from Yorkshire settled in Nova Scotia. The first conference was organized in 1766. Her narrative expanded the accounts of some of the leading pioneer missionaries of the Church, such names as MacCallum, McDougall, Rev. Dr. James Robertson, and so on down to the present, with special mention of Rev. Dr. Cochrane, known as the beloved missionary superintendent of the North.

We Noticed

....At a recent fashion show in Toronto, featured materials included lovely imported woollens, English suitings, French pure silk printed crepes, blocked linens (including the famous Liberty line), plenty of cottons, and the revival of old materials like surrah and bengaline.

✧ ✧ ✧

... That femininity reigns this season was very apparent — not only have formal styles gone romantic, but all sorts of feminine touches have been introduced into daytime clothes—tiny nipped-in waists, flared skirts, lingerie touches all over dresses, veils and flowers on hats, and the ultra-feminine embroidery-frilled petticoats have arrived.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Striking among the formal ensembles shown during this review was a long, gracefully moulded gown of hyacinthe crepe with Parma velveteen jacket and parka, jacket and hood lined with the dress material. An unusual wrap was of white corded bengaline gathered at back of waistline with high, wide hood-like collar. The wrap was lined with chartreuse and worn over a flame color taffeta gown.

Y's Men's Club Stage Merry Annual Party

The annual dance of the Y's Men's Club Friday night in the Legion Hall was a merry event. Patrons and Patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Cummer, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Roper, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Golde.

Streamers of red and blue decked the walls, and formed a canopy over the orchestra stand, where Jerry Wooll's provocative music supplied inspiration for the dancing feet of over one hundred couples. Mr. David Grant was convener of the affair, and decorations were arranged by Mr. John Marvin.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stuart, Mr. and Mrs. George Coleman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Earle White, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goldie, Mr. and Mrs. E. Kingdon, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Thornton, Mr. and Mrs. W. Davidson, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Randle, Mr. and Mrs. King, Mr. and Mrs. H. Coleman, Mr. and Mrs. J. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. E. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. A. Heckman, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bearne, Mr. and Mrs. T. Doughty; Mr. and Mrs. G. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Gallon; the Misses Edith Lavery, Pearl Lavery, Margaret Brethers, Jessica White, Fran Bestard, Leone Magee, Phyllis Coleman, G Cox, Margaret McMillan, Ethel Gamble, Ira Williamson, Jean Nichols, Elsie Clarke, Dorothy Burnham, Norma Rennie, Nora Smith, Evelyn Goold, D. Timely Address Is Given On Garden Planning

Members of the Lyceum Club Women's Art Association heard a delightful and timely address Friday afternoon when Miss Helen M. Kippax, Toronto landscape architect, spoke on the subject of landscape gardening, illustrating her remarks by her own camera pictures.

The wisdom of planning a garden that would be attractive, not merely during the flowering season, but all the year around, was particularly stressed. Miss Kippax cautioned amateurs to remember that a garden must be regarded as a room with both height and depth, not as a flat mat spread out on the ground. Always, she said, a background of wall or greenery should be provided to set off the beauty of garden flowers or ornaments, just as a carefully chosen background with no distracting elements will emphasize the beauty of a valuable picture.

When a garden is to be looked at all the year around it should present a restful picture, and not be cluttered up with a lot of fancy flower beds. For the most restful effect, Miss Kippax advised the simplicity of old-fashioned straight lines rather than the undulating walks and curving flower beds so often used in modern landscapes.

"When an Englishman speaks of his 'garden', said Miss Kippax, "he means all the grounds surrounding his home, and through these grounds his individual tastes are revealed as clearly as in the interior of his house." She went on to tell of a lesson which modern landscape artists have learned from earlier garden builders—that a house and garden should not be regarded as two separate items, but be built in direct relation to each other.

Color photographs of lovely old English gardens, with their rich hedges, foliages, and wealth of hollyhocks, delphinium, Canterbury bells, and other well-loved blooms, were shown at the last as an apology, the speaker laughingly remarked, "for not talking more about flowers."

ART IN MOB-CAPS

LONDON — (CP) — Because red costumes of Burlington House waitresses clashed with old masters in the Royal Academy, Dame Laura Knight designed a new serving costume of fresh green cotton with white muslin cuffs, goffered frills and mob cap, that is regarded as filling the bill from an artistic point of view.

Women of City Meet for Day of Prayer

For one day each year women hold the world together by prayer. More than that, they create a day that stretches its length to forty hours, from the rising of the sun in New Zealand, where the women have a sunrise prayer meeting, and all through the morning and afternoon hours in the cities, towns and hamlets around the world, ther is a good chain of praying women. Prayer transcends the boundaries of nations and race, of time and temperature and we are all one as we join this great fellowship of intercession and pray unitedly to our Father God.

As we, the women of Peterborough, came together yesterday in St. James United Church, with women from every Protestant church, we thought of the bitterness and strife of war in so many countries and felt as never before the need and power of prayer.

Leading the afternoon service with "Let us put our love into deeds and make it real" as the fitting theme, Mrs. W. Rose, president of St. James' Auxiliary read the opening call to worship built up on portions of the scripture, based upon "love."

The hymns throughout also followed the same thought. Mrs. Douglas Loomis representing Murray Street Baptist Church, led a period of praise and thanksgiving, in which all joined responsively.

"Recollections of Jesus" and of our oneness in Him, was the subject of the next inspiring message, led by Mrs. T. J. Carley of St. Paul's Presterian church, which brought all into a real spirit of love and prayer.

Following this came a period of penitence, in which the assembled women were directed by Mrs. Clayton of George Street United Church, after which all bowed in penitence and contrition.

Several women offered invocation during the time of intercession. Remembered in these prayers were those in special need, by Mrs. Wm. Stevens of Knox United, while Mrs. R. C. Braund of the Salvation Army prayed for those whose spiritual vision has grown dim because Christians have failed in leadership.

For the children and youth of the world Mrs. A. J. Throop of Mark Street United offered prayer while Miss Lily Bacon of St. John's Anglican led in prayers for their Majesties, King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, upon whose decisions rest the progress or destruction of civilization. Timely intercession that all nations be kept from the covetousness that seeks the possessions and rights of others, was made by Mrs. Allan Pilling of St. Andrew's United.

For the Christian church and her leaders, Mrs. M. Dunkley of Park Street Baptist made the plea while Mrs. H. E. Connolly of All Saints interceded in behalf of all teachers and lay workers in our churches.

Church members in countries where freedom of worship is forbidden or restricted were remembered by Mrs. Hawe of Pentecostal and the concluding prayer where missionary endeavour throughout the world is needed was made by Mrs. T. H. Floyd, representing St. George's Anglican church.

This series of prayers was followed with a special prayer for world peace, in unison.

Presenting the need of Christian literature, Mrs. N. Moncrief of Trinity United gave a brief resume of the allocations for last year, referring to them as a Christian literature may of the world which by our offerings we help to make a reality.

During the offertory Mrs. E. Kitney sang the beautiful and appropriate solo, "Have You Been In the Garden With Jesus," after which all stood and gave the dedicatory prayer in unison. A hymn and the benediction concluded the inspiring session.

At seven o'clock the teen-age group met with Miss Doreen Smith, president of the girls' council, presiding. In charge of arrangements was Mrs. L. J. Pettit with Mrs. J. A. McKone leading the responsive service. As guest speaker Mrs. Warrander of the Salvation Army brought an inspiring message to the girls, whose theme of worship was the same as that of the senior group.

Completing the cycle of prayer, the young women of the city, met at eight o'clock with Mrs. Sherman Rowe of St. James' Church leading the devotions and seasons of prayer. Assisting her on the platform were Miss Elizabeth Walker of St. Paul's who brought the evening message and Miss Dorothy French of the Salvation Army, who offered prayer. In her brief address Miss Walker defined "Love in Action" as duty glorified, as the doctrine of "the second mile."

"Beside Still Waters" was the lovely soprano solo contributed by Mrs. R. C. Searles, accompanied by Cecil Lapp, the church organist, who presided at the organ throughout the day.

Branch Notes

ST. LUKE'S BRANCH

The regular meeting of the branch was held on Thursday evening and was devotional in character. It was opened with a hymn, prayers and scripture reading, each member of Ralph Davis' group taking some part. The branch started to study the book, "The World, the Church and You" with B. Pammett giving the talk and the members discusing it and asking questions.

The branch is sorry to hear of the illness of Jack Davies who is in hospital and of Warren Gamble who met with an accident and which necessitated twenty-five stitches in his face. The branch was glad to welcome back Ernie Bell who has been away since last fall. Members are reminded of the Corporate Communion on Sunday at 8.30 a.m.

Next week's meeting will be in charge of Art Sayers with a short business meeting.

Rehearsals are starting next week for the full presentation of "Snow and the Seven Dwarfs" which will be put on for two nights early in April.

ST. GEORGE'S BRANCH

On Thursday evening the meeting opened with a hymn and prayers. The vice president, Mrs. E. Gibson was in the chair.

As the worship committee was not prepared with a program for the evening a short business session was held.

Tom Maudsley gave a report on the executive meeting which he attended. The most interesting and enthusiastic part of the evening were discussions and suggestions from all the members on the Minstrel Revue which will be held at a later date.

During lent the members are asked to attend the lenten services on Wednesday evenings as worship is the program during lent. The branch could then hold practices for the show on Thursday. Business meetings being held on the regular night. Rev. Floyd closed with a prayer.

WELL-HEELED THIS YEAR

DETROIT — (CP) — According to the Michigan State Shoe Fair heels will be much in fashion this spring, types including the airplane heel, with stripes, the poker-chip heel (like a stack of poker chips), the natural wood heel, the saddle heel of contrasting colors, a spool heel of suede and calf and the Dutch boy wooden sole and heel.

Slenderize Now For Spring Suit

There are just about two months between now and Easter. Wouldn't it be a good idea to devote a little time each day from now until you are ready to do your Easter shopping to getting your figure down to its slim proportions of last fall after a summer of outdoor activity?

To slenderize hips and thighs, the rolling exercise cannot be beaten. Roll from side to side twenty times a day for two weeks, thirty times a day the third and fourth weeks, fifty times a day from then until Easter. Simply lie flat on the floor with shoulders flat against it, ankles together and hands clasped above your head. Now, without separating ankles or moving shoulders, roll hips to the right as far as possible, then to the left. Do this slowly and deliberately, pressing hips and thighs firmly against the floor as you roll back and forth.

For Bad Winter Coughs, Mix This Remedy at Home

Quick Relief. Big Saving. So Easy. No Cooking.

This well known recipe is used by many thousands of housewives, because they have found that it gives them a much more dependable remedy for distressing winter coughs. It's so easy to mix—a child could do it.

Then make a syrup by stirring two cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. It's no trouble at all, and takes but a moment. No cooking needed.

Put the Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle and add your syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of cough remedy, unusually quick-acting and dependable, and you get four times as much cough medicine for your money. It never spoils, and is very pleasant—children love it.

You'll be surprised by the way it takes hold of severe coughs, giving quick, satisfying relief. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. Money refunded if it doesn't please in every way.

The happiest families in town are those we serve with complete laundry service. Turn your laundry cares over to us, and see how much more smoothly your household can run, and how effortlessly. Of course our prices are most economical.

Possibility Of New Reform Party Major Ottawa Topic These Days

By Ross Munro
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 (CP) — The capital's behind-the-scenes talk focusses these days on the possibility of a new reform party being launched and speculation regarding a general election and a national government movement.

It is generally conceded on Parliament Hill that an election is probable this fall but new party and national government gossip seems to have little finality. These straws in the wind appear, however, to create an atmosphere of political uncertainty which causes some concern to every party in the house, for any new political group would upset their election calculations.

The lobbies and loung buzz with rumors of new ventures in the political field. Hon. W. D. Herridge, Ottawa barrister and former Canadian minister to Washington, remains the mystery man of the capital. There have been indications in recent speeches that he might sponsor a new movement but no definite declaration has been made.

C.C.F. To Swing In

While Liberals and Conservatives would be the natural opponents of a new party, the C.C.F. members feel they are in a particularly strategic position in view of possible overtures for co-operation. M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) says his party will never co-operate to the extent of losing its identity but co-operation to bring about "a re-alignment of forces on a progressive basis in the house might be acceptable."

This and a dozen other eventualities puzzle politicians and parliamentary writers. Some scoff at suggestions an effort is being made to promote a national government movement but a large body of opinion takes it seriously. Justice Minister Lapointe says such an attempt is discernible at present and he holds such governments "in horror." Conservative Leader Manion shows little indication he has an active desire to join hands with the Liberals.

Centre Block Gossip

There is general commendation for Transport Minister Howe's accomplishment in getting the Trans-Canada Air Lines airmail service under way and making ready for the passenger service shortly. He has made a name for himself as one of the ablest administrators in the cabinet....One curious feature of the current session is that the St. Lawrence waterways project has not been mentioned so far. It's about the only major issue which has not been touched upon one time or another....

Hon. H. H. Stevens, back in the Conservative fold only a few months, appears to be his party's chief financial critic, although in interchanges with Finance Minister Dunning he said he was only speaking for himself and not for the Tory party....

The senators' complaint they have not sufficient work to do this session is eloquently supported by Hansard, the official record of parliamentary proceedings. The senate Hansard to date takes 44 pages while the Commons totals nearly 1,500....If the type of books taken from the parliamentary library is an indication of the activity of members, they are working harder this session....There has been an increase in reference books borrowed and fiction and light reading has fallen off. One librarian, who has watched the trend of parliamentary reading for years, claims this is a sure sign it is the last session of the 18th parliament.

Men of the Week

Any nominations for the parliamentary men of the week should include A. W. Neill, 71-year-old Independent member for Comox-Alberni who has sat in the house since 1921, and Labor Minister Rogers, four years ago professor of political science at Queen's University, for their contribution to the debate on unemployment insurance.

Mr. Neill's resolution urging consideration of a national scheme of contributory unemployment insurance opened up one of the most constructive and harmonious discussions in the house this session. Since 1928 he has been advocating such a plan in the house and there are indications his campaign for the insurance plan may be topped with success.

Mr. Rogers provided the House with a studied survey of the field of unemployment insurance and candidly outlined the Government's position. He is hopeful the opposition of Alberta, Quebec and New Brunswick to giving the Dominion Government the necessary jurisdiction will be overcome. Permissive legislation such as adopted in the United States through the Social Security Act has been ruled out. It must be a national scheme, the minister says.

The Labor Department likely will establish another departmental branch if the insurance scheme is inaugurated.

Sessional Highlights.

Revenue Minister Isley has found that the responsibilities of his Cabinet portfolio even involve floundering through waist-deep snow for more than half a mile, dragging along two suitcases as well. He tells this story about his trip to Quebec City for the Lapointe banquet.

Missing the special train which carried the parliamentarians from Ottawa, Mr. Tisley hopped a plane, but the pilot was forced to land in a remote field outside the city because there is no winter airport in Quebec. Stepping from the plane, the Revenue Minister plunged into snow to his waist. Determined to get to the banquet he wallowed through the drifts, across field and over fences for more than half a mile to a farmhouse where he telephoned for a car. His two heavy travelling bags proved the most cumbersome part of the adventure.

Men apparently have little desire to work for the Government as stenographers. Only 100 applications from men were included in the 5,000 received for stenographers' jobs at the last Civil Service examination ....Number of miscellaneous articles issued by the Agriculture Department in 1937-38 totalled 7,964,764, and total envelopes addressed were 2,131,872....Tom Reid, the New Westminster Scot, delights his compatriots almost nightly with a bagpipe serenade in his own room in the Centre Block. It can be heard down on Wellington Street, 300 yards away.

National Defence Department officials who are arranging for the unveiling of the National War Memorial by the King here next May are running into grief. The memorial is a huge affair and the officials are having trouble obtaining flags large enough and suitable enough to guarantee that when His Majesty pulls the cord the emblems will flutter to the ground without a hitch.

Havelock Women Hold Day Of Prayer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 25. — Fifty women assembled on Friday afternoon in the basement of Knox Presbyterian Church to participate in the World Day of Prayer annually held by women throughout the world on the first Friday in Lent. The meeting was conducted jointly by the presidents of the three missionary societies, Miss E. E. Chase of the Presbyterian, Msr. A. McLauchlin of the United, and Mrs. Joseph Holdcroft of the Anglican.

Prayers were offered by Mrs. J. Kinnaird, Mrs. James Freeman, Mrs. M. Poste, Mrs. A. S. Thampson and Mrs. C. Spencer. A vocal duet entitled "Alone" was contributed by Mrs. C. Jamieson and Mrs. Robert McCutcheon. The offertory was taken up by Mrs. Robert Scott and Mrs. F. Squire.

During the program the ladies were given an interesting talk on the "World Day of Prayer" by Mrs. A. McLauchlin. "For one day each year," she said, "women hold the world together by prayer. More than that they create a day that stretches its length to forty hours, from the rising of the sun in New Zealand, where the women have a sunrise prayer meeting long before our dawn appears, through the morning and afternoon hours in cities, towns and hamlets around the world, as new groups continue to join in praise and prayer, until the day ends in ice and snow at Gambell on St. Lawrence Island, off the coast of Alaska, thirty miles form the Arctic Circle, where Ann Bannon, the American missionary, gathers her Eskimo women together and holds the closing prayer service, in spite of the fact that, as far as the outside world is concerned, she is "frozen in" from October to May.

"Prayer transcends the boundaries of nation and race, of time and temperature, and we are all one as we join the great fellowship of Intercession and pray unitedly to our Father God."

Testing Portable Bomb Shelter

This new type of steel air raid shelter, one of the devices tested in Britain's A.R.P. (Air Raid Precautions) drive, was having a factory wall dropped on it when the picture was made. There is room for only one person in the bell-shaped steel box. The shelters would be used for factory executives and key officials in the event of an enemy air raid. When the dust had settled after the fall of the factory wall, the portable shelter was discovered to be undamaged.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CROWDING MAY BE WISE

CROWDING THE BIDDING is usually unsound, as it may result in getting your side beyond its depth before the best declaration is discovered. But sometimes it is a wise thing to do, when you want to indicate that you have a lot of strength, and are definitely prepared to commit the side to some kind of a game, no matter what the later developments of the bidding may disclose. It is especially sound when you are thinking in terms of a possible slam.

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

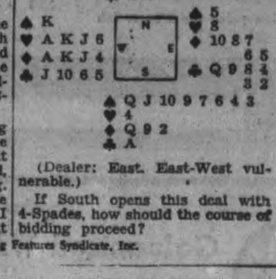
The four players from one table of a team-of-four duplicate match had finished all of the deals and came over to watch this deal at the other table. North began the bidding with 1-Heart and South bid 3-Diamonds.

"Somewhat crowding the bidding," whispered one of the expert kibitzers. When North next bid 3-Hearts, the kibitzer mumbled, "Now South feels the crowding. Where I bid only 2-Diamonds in the South and you rebid at 2-Hearts, I could afford to show my clubs at three, without forcing us past the no trump game level. But this poor chap is afraid to show his clubs now, because it will have to be at four. Let's see what he does."

South, apparently unworried, bid 4-Diamonds and North jumped to 6-Diamonds. And the contract was made, for a big winning score, whereas the pair that had criticized the bidding had managed to make only 5-No trump. At diamonds, the third heart round can be ruffed, setting up two hearts for club discards, whereas at no trump a trick is lost in clubs and another in hearts unless the declarer builds up a squeeze play on South's last diamond between a club in that hand and two spades in the North, but that can't be done if East leads spades both at the start and after he wins with the club A, as this East did.

* * *

Monday's Problem



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

If South opens this deal with 4-Spades, how should the course of bidding proceed?

Ennismore Club Concludes Season's Play

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ENNISMORE, Feb. 25. — Two most enjoyable social evenings during the past week spent at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brick and Mr. and Mrs. John Harrington brought to a close a series of euchre parties sponsored by a club of some seventeen families. On Tuesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Brick entertaining the members, the card prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. James Harrington, Jr., and on Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Harrington as hosts at the farewell gathering, prizes went to Mrs. Maurice O'Connor and John Harrington. These euchre parties have been occasions of happy gatherings and the members of the club are looking forward to reorganization at a future date.

55 Years Wed.

Congratulations are extended to Mr. and Mrs. John Gannon, who on anniversary of their wedding. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gannon (who prior to her marriage was Maria Perdue) are lifelong residents of Ennismore, where they are held in high esteem by a host of friends and neighbors. Of a family of eleven children, nine are still living, five sons and four daughters. The sons, who all reside in Ennismore, are Thomas, clerk of the township, Stephen, Michael, Ed, and Norman. The daughters are Sister Mary of the Rosary, a member of the community of St. Joseph, Mrs. Thompson of New York City, Mrs. Noonan of Ottawa, and Mrs. A. Franks, Lmily. Two daughters, Katie and Irene, died some years ago.

Old Advertisement.

An advertisement that might be of interest to some of the older residents is taken from a copy of the Peterborough Review dated October 13, 1876, over sixty-two years ago. It reads as follows: "Teacher wanted for School Section No. 4, Ennismore, holding a second or third class certificate. Male preferred. Duties to begin first week in January, 1877. Applications to be addressed to the undersigned trustees. Ennismore Post Office.—Daniel Costello, William Crough, Francis Moloney. October 7th, 1876."

Just who the lucky applicant was might be recalled by some of the older folks whose school days would date back to those years.

Small Aleindance.

Cold weather and snow blocked roads were responsible for the small attendance at the farmers' meeting held here last Wednesday evening. However, close to thirty showed particular interest by braving the weather to be present at what was considered a most profitable evening. What a thoroughly aroused community of farmers can do for themselves through self-help on a co-operative basis was the main topic discussed by the speakers.

Personals.

Miss Patricia Duffus and Messrs. Joe and Charlie Duffus of Peterborough were guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Brick during the week.

Wilfrid Carrol is at present in Detroit, where he will spend some time, visiting his sister and his daughter.

Fairmount Hears Cooperative Plans

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FAIRMOUNT, Feb. 25.—Mr. Vincent Black of Rodney, Kent and Grant Longwell of Foxboro, Hastings county, spoke on the New Canada Movement plan for co-operative education here in the Howden Memorial Hall on Tuesday.

On account of adverse weather and heavy roads the attendance was not very large, but much interest was aroused in the discussion period to improve conditions for the producer, by getting a better value for our products and a lower rate for the consumer.

A social time was spent in community singing led by Mr. Grant Longwell, accompanied by Mrs. C. W. Seymour on the piano.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Seymour entertained Mr. N. Black and G. Longwell Tuesday evening, who were speakers for the co-operative educational campaign for the district of Peterborough.

Foresees Canada

Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, said the trade agreement would, "in due time," be submitted "to the judgment of the pople." He expressed confidence in their verdict. Markets had been widened for the products of every province in the Dominion, Mr. Crerar said. "I am confident the Canadian people will approve and do approve of this agreement."

Preference In Aid?

The minister replied to charges that sacrifice of Canada's wheat six-cent-a-bushel preference in the United Kingdom injured the farmer. The preference might havt provided, to some extent, a sheltered market for Canada's wheat "but it cannot be shown that a single farmer in Canada received an additional cent a bushel because of the preference."

The preference had "never been of any real value" and the 1932 Ottawa agreements, when the preference was obtained, had created in the minds of "have not" nations an idea that the British Empire was embarking on a program of "economic nationalism" which had been "very injurious to the world in the last seven or eight years."

Aroused by murmured interjections from Hon. C. H. Cahan, Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George, Mr. Crerar declared "I don't think there is any kind of an agreement that could be arranged between the United States and my honorable friend from St. Lawrence-St. George." And agreement would have been unsatisfactory to the Conservatives.

This brought an interruption from Dave Spence (Con. Toronto-Parkdale.) "I hardly think it is fair to say that because he knows if we could have made a treaty satisfactory to us we would have made it any time."

Mr. Crerar said it was possible the member for Parkdale might have seen the light.

"I see only darkness when I look at you," Mr. Spence retorted.

"Because he accepted what we wouldn't take," Mr. Spence interjected.

Benefits Already.

G. W. McDonald (Lib., Souris) said "If there is one thing this government should get credit for it is for it is for the trade agreement it has brought us." The Canada-United States agreement had already brought benefits and would be a boon to Western farmers.

Opposition to the treaty was coming from "he protected interests" but he would remind them that they could not prosper unless the primary producers were prosperous.

Frank Leonard (Con., Wentworth) predicted growers of hot-house tomatoes would be forced out of business as a result of the treaty. Moreover, owing to the general injurious effect of the treaty on the fruit and vegetable industry, they would have no other line in which they could engage.

Reduction in the protection on tomatoes would expose the hot-house growers to the competition of field-grown tomatoes from the United States, crops harvested with cheap labor and some government assistance in transportation.

The treaty debate continued throughout yesterday's session except for an hour devoted to private bills. That period was enough for the the passage of two measures on second reading. One would provide jail sentences for employers who make employees work on Sunday unnecessarily and was sponsored by H. E. Brunelle (Lib., Champlain). The other would legalize the pledging of candidate in an election and was sponsored by Robert Fair (S.C., Battle River).

Revamped Too Much.

Mr. Brunelle won congratulations for his persistence as it was the second time he introduced his bill. Last year it passed the House but amendments in the Senate so changit that he proceeded no further. Justice Minister Lapointe supported the measure on the ground that fines were not sufficient to compel big corporations to obey the Lord's Day Act.

The Fair bill was an amendment to the Dominion Election Act passed last session, a section of which made it unlawful for any candidate to give any pledge regarding his actions as a member of parliament or make any promise to resign in the event of certain circumstances. Last night it was opposed by Pensions Minister Power, who sponsored the election legislation last session. He argued members should not "be hogtied" to small groups of ward-heelers in their constituencies but should be free to exercise their judgment. While the bill received second reading it failed to pass the committee stage before debate was cut off.

Cold Wave Curtails Epidemic Of Flu

TORONTO, Feb. 24 (CP)—Influenza, grippe, the common cold and other respiratory ailments are prevalent throughout Ontario in varying degrees but nowhere have they reached dangerous stages. An incipient wave last week is believed to have been curtailed by the continued cold weather.

Toronto speared to be the most seriously stricken centre and the bigger hospitals there have imposed strict precautionary restrictions on visitors, Toronto General and St. Michael's allowing only one visitor daily, the closest relative, to see any patient in the public wards. Less stringent restrictions are in force at the Women's College Hospital.

At Windsor, Dr. L. Hyttenrauch, chief medical officer of the Board of Education, said it had not been decided to close the schools there yet, although hundreds of school children are suffering with attacks of influenza. At Windsor vocational school 400 of 2,000 pupils are ill and teacher shortage has necessitated the use in some schools of senior pupils as replacements.

At Kingston, where an epidemic was feared last week during the incipient wave, the influenza was abating. A week ago 1,000 children, about a third of the elementary school population, were ill. One hundred and fifty were absent today from Kingston Collegiate and Vocational Institute, where 600 were absent last week.

Man Who Booked Harry Lauder, Act Unseen Chuckles As He Celebrates His Jubilee

LONDON, Feb. 25—(CP)—George Foster celebrated his jubilee as chief of what is believed to be the oldest theatrical agency in the world by recalling how he once booked Sir Harry Lauder's act without seeing it. It happened this way:

"On a Monday morning Harry Lauder sent in his card. I'd never heard of him and refused to see him. He insisted on waiting in the outer office and I couldn't get out to lunch without seeing him. So I saw him.

"I told him I'd try to get him work for the following week, but he said that was no good as he would be back at work in the pit. He was a miner up in London for a weeks holiday.

"Well, on Tuesday morning I happened to look out of the window and see the manager of Gatti's restaurant going into a rival agent's place. I ran out to catch him. A turn had got the bird on Monday and he wanted to replace it.

"I told him I could book him the greatest Scottish comedian in the world. I didn't know a thing about Lauder and took a chance. I asked £8 a week and accepted £7.

"That night in fear and trembling I went to Gatti's. Lauder was a colossal success and in that one week I booked 300 weeks of work for him."

TALL SLIM BRUNETTES beware of Nervous Troubles

If you are tall, thin and dark you are of the nervous, irritable, worrying type. That is according to the records of a famous American clinic.

You are likely to live at high tension, burn up your nervous energy at a tremendous rate and develop digestive troubles and colitis, with abdominal pains and irregularity of the bowels.

It is rather silly to advise you, whether you are fair or dark, not to worry or be irritable, sleepless and forever fidgety and restless. These are symptoms of your trouble and the thing for you to do is to be warned and set about to restore your nervous energy by the regular and persistent use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This restorative has a double chance to benefit you because it contains both the mineral substances and vitamins which are necessary for the revitalizing of the blood and the nerves.

Such remarkable results have been reported from the use of the new vitamin B1 that this vitamin is now contained in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in an effort to make this product even more effective than ever.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is definitely effective in the relief of anaemia, from which so many girls suffer as well as for the young mother whose system demands an abundance of rich, red blood.

School Closed In Millbrook; Flu Scores Hit

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 25. — By order of the Medical Health Officer, Dr. H. A. Turner, local schools were closed on Wednesday, to remain so until next Monday at least, on account of the outbreak of colds and flu. Seventeen pupils were ill out of one room of the Public School, and ten or more from another room.

Apsley Play Makes Hit At Mt. Julian

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MOUNT JULIAN, Feb. 25.—The play, "Country Minister," was presented by St. George's Church, Apsley, at Eden Church here, on Tuesday evening. On account of the bad condition of the side roads and the stormy cold weather many were unable to attend.

Those who braved the wintery storm to walk miles or ride on an open sleigh, were well repaid for their effort by the splendid performance put on by the cast.

The play was a five-act comedy which kept the audience in an almost continued uproar of laughter. The setting of the stage was a work of art, done entirely by the sponsors of the play. The proceeds were divided between the two churches.

At the finish of the program, lunch was served, which was a real fortification against the long cold homeward journey, the cast having a twelve-mile drive back to Apsley.

OBITUARY

STEWART INGLIS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARKWORTH, Feb. 25. — On Thursday morning the community was saddened and shocked by the death of Stewart Inglis, a popular young man of this vicinity.

Stewart was in his twentieth year and had been ill for the past two months. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Inglis of Trenton, but nearly all his life he has lived with Mr. and Mrs. Archie Clapperton.

The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon from the residenec of his uncle, Archie Clapperton.

Besides his parents, he leaves to mourn his loss one brother Clarence and two sisters, Reta and Helen.

HOWARD JOHN McMASTER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 25. — The funeral of Howard John McMaster was held with military honors on Thursday at 2 p.m. in the Anglican Church. Rev. R. E. Lemon conducted the service.

Mr. McMaster was a veteran of the Great War. He enlisted in Norwood in December, 1915 with the 93rd Battalion. He went overseas in July, 1916, and was transferred to the 52nd Battalion to serve as a machine gunner. He saw service at Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele, Sanctuary Wood, and Hill 60. At the latter place he stayed at his post with his machine gun continuously for thirty-six hours and was awarded a medal for Distinguished Service. He also was in the trenches for eighteen months without leave. He was discharged from the Army on March 29, 1919.

Mr. McMaster, who was the son of the late John McMaster and Maria Hill, was born in Norwood on February 2, 1890. Except for a short time in Trenton and while he was overseas he spent his entire life in Norwood.

Interment was made in the Norwood Cemetery with the "Last Post" by C. A. Gallagher, Peterborough.

Those surviving him are his two sisters, Mrs. Thomas McMaster of Norwood and Mrs. Norman Varty of Peterborough, and one brother, William H. of Norwood.

There were a number of beautiful flower tributes from relatives and friends, including one from soldier comrades.

Visitors from a distance were his niece, Mrs. Geraldine Kells and her daughter Eileen of Detroit, Mich., and friends from other points.

"It's The Cat's"

Frightened and wistful, "Hypo," an office cat in New York, looks out from beneath the brim of one of the new spring "Gone With the Wind" hats, and wishes he were "G.W.T.W." At that, those new chapeaux do make a hard-boiled tomcat look too soft and feminine.

Warsaw Area Is Blockaded By Heavy Snow

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, Feb. 25—Warsaw district is experiencing the worst snow blockade of many years this week. Sunday's storm virtually paralyzed traffic in all directions and many of the sideroads are not yet cleared.

So bad was the storm that descended on the district that Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, travelling from Bethel in the morning, was stuck in the snow and no service was held in Warsaw United Church. In the evening a service was held in the Sunday school room, but only a few attended, so bad was the weather.

All mail in the district has been at least a day late this week, so great difficulty are carriers experiencing. The boundary line is not not yet broken south of Allan Payne's gate. Great transportation difficulty is being experienced in Warsaw, where the horse is the only practical means of getting about. So great has been the swing to motors in past years that the village has only one horse at the present time.

Despite inclement weather the United Church annual oyster supper on Tuesday evening was fairly well attended and was a most enjoyable affair. Rev. Mr. Wilkinson was chairman of the program that followed the delightful supper. There were contests, community singing, and variety entertainment. Master John Wilkinson recited, Howard Darling played a violin solo, Percy and Kenneth Drain, a mouth organ duet; Arnold Matthews, trick violin playing that was a feature of the evening.

Personals

Mrs. Ruby Payne is staying with Mr. Robert Payne.

Mrs. S. Watley returned on Saturday evening after a two weeks' visit with friends in Peterborough.

Mr. Gordon Kidd, Renfrew, who has been visiting relatives for some time is now at the home of his sister, Mrs. Bert Rae.

Day-Long Storm Paralyzes All Rural Ontario; Isolates Many Towns

Motorists Marooned As Ploughs Wage Fight To Keep Main Highways Open; Funerals Delayed, Sick Go Unattended

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — Snow ploughs bucked deep drifts in Ontario and Quebec today to relieve isolated communities and bring traffic conditions to something like winter normalcy. The fact that illness was rampant in many parts of both provinces made the task more urgent.

Another in a series of paralyzing weekend snowstorms swept most of Eastern Canada yesterday, marooning motorists and preventing many physicians from getting to their patients in the midst of a wave of influenza, grippe and common colds. Funerals were delayed and church services cancelled in rural areas.

The Maritimes escaped the worst of the heavy weather and rain and slush constituted the greatest problems to traffic communications. Flying conditions there were bad.

But no part of Ontario and Quebec escaped the storm. Ten thousand Montreal skiers were delayed for periods as long as 4½ hours in the Laurentians. A dozen small centres in the Guelph district of Ontario were cut off from the outside world by snow. Traffic was stopped on all but two main thoroughfares in Quebec City.

Lanark Marooned.

Most roads were blocked in the Ottawa valley or almost impassable. The village of Lanark, 40 miles southwest of Ottawa, stormbound for 10 days, was shut off from the outside world by drifts seven feet deep in some places. Up to last night sleighs had been able to get through. Several other communities were isolated for hours.

Dozens of cars were marooned in deep drifts on roads near the capital and at Manotick at least 35 persons were forced to abandon their cars and spend the night in hotels or private homes. Another 35 persons were forced to stay in North Gower overnight.

Hard Going For Doctors.

"Many people are in need of medical attention, but I simply cannot get to them," said Dr. J. M. Munro, of Odessa, a village 12 miles west of Kingston. "Three days ago I sent a bottle of medicine to a patient in Ernestown, three miles from Odessa, and it hasn't reached its destination yet. It took me three hours to drive two miles with a team of horses.

A snow plough was ordered out to clear a way along the 20 miles of road from Harrietsville to London so that Richard Smith, 25, might undergo an emergency appendectomy in a London hospital. Mrs. Ruby Collins gave birth to a son in a Kingston hospital Saturday after a difficult seven-hour trip through deep snow.

Attempts to keep highways open became losing battles last night until the worst of the storm was over. Then most crews were told to be out first thing in the morning to begin the long day's work. Ontario Motor League officials warned against trying to use country roads.

Street car service was at a standstill in Quebec and automobiles were snowed in all over the city. Even the towing truck that went out to aid cars were blocked.

Legless Peddler Held For Stabbing Common-Law Wife

New Orleans, Feb. 27 (CP) A LEGLESS pencil-peddler who was towed to a cell on his "scooter" faced a charge of murder today in connection with the fatal stabbing of Miss Clara Berwas ordered booked on a charge of murder.

Detectives Joseph Mock and Edward Spisa said the peddler, listed as Charles Wilson, 38, made a statement that he stabbed the woman with a pock knife last night because she "left me." The coroner said death resulted from eight stab wounds in the thighs and abdomen.

Powerful Bomb, Nazi Secret Has U.S. Worried

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 — (AP). —The Military Affairs Committee of the United States Senate made public to-day testimony that Germany has developed a new bomb of terrific power and that the United States Army has been able to procure only scant information regarding it.

The testimony was given on January 25 by Major-General H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Air Corps, during committee consideration of the Roosevelt administration's Army Expansion Bill, which was approved by the committee last week and now is scheduled to come up for Senate consideration.

Arnold was questioned about the bombs by Senator Clark (Dem-Missouri), who said he had been informed of it by Letser P. Barlow, an inventor connected with the Martin Aircraft Company.

Clark said Barlow had advised him that the new explosive was made of "liquid oxygen" and "would render every plane in the world obsolete because its destructive radius is so much greater than any explosive heretofore used."

Terrific Death Dealer

"We have received reports from abroad that the Germans had this new explosive," Arnold replied. "One report was that it was so powerful that when they tried it in Barcelona it killed every human being within the range of a quarter of a mile and knocked people unconscious for a distance of half a mile.

"We get so many reports from abroad that it is rather difficult to determine which one you will accept 100 per cent. and which one you accept with a grain of salt.

"Further investigation indicated that the Germans have some kind of a bomb loaded with compressed air, carbon, and some form of oil, which combination was supposed to have provided a terrific detonating effect when the bomb hit the ground, and in proof of that we received pictures showing halves of buildings torn away in Barcelona.

"Maybe you saw the same pictures in the moving picture reels. Apparently, they just wiped away half a building everywhere this thing exploded. But we have not been able to get any more information on it."

Britain And France Accord Franco Recognition

Labor Benches Shout 'Shame' At Chamberlain As He Announces "Unconditional" Decision

PARIS, Feb. 27 (CP-Havas).—The French Cabinet decided unanimously today to extend de jure recognition to the government of General Franco at Burgos.

The French action followed swiftly on the heels of Prime Minister Chamberlain's announcement to the House of Commons in London that Great Britain had accorded the Franco regime unconditional recognition as Spain's sovereign government.

LONDON, Feb. 27 (CP Cable).—The British government will give immediate recognition to General Franco as head of the paramount government of Spain, Prime Minister Chamberlain announced in the House of Commons today.

It will be unconditional recognition, taken after consultation with the French government.

The government, Mr. Chamberlain said, "have noted with satisfaction the public statements of General Franco concerning the determination of himself and his government to secure the traditional independence of Spain and to take proceedings only in the case of those against whom criminal charges are laid."

The declaration of government policy was greeted by boos and angry shouts from the Labor benches.

William Gallacher, Communist, shouted "You should be impeached, you traitor to Britain!"

No Belligerent Rights.

Belligerent rights are not involved in the diplomatic move, which simply means a reversal in status for the two Spanish administrations.

The Franco government is recognised as the paramount authority while the government headed by Dr. Jan Negrin is recognised as controlling a comparatively small area of the country. Hitherto the Negrin government has been recognized as the paramount power and General Franco in a subservient position.

Sir Robert Hodgson, British agent at Burgos, will inform General Franco to-day that Great Britain intends to send an ambassador to Spain and later will propose the name of the man chosen. Meanwhile Sir Robert will act as charge d'affaires. It is not likely that Great Britain will appoint a diplomatic agent to Republican Spain but that is uncertain.

New Housing Project Shows Uncle Sam A Fine Landlord

Detroit, Feb. 27 (CP) THE United States government is a first class landlord according to residents of the Parkside Housing Project, federal housing project here.

The resident families occupy apartments ranging from two roomed to five roomed apartments. Tenants say service is excellent and extensive recreational activities are planned for them.

Many of the families moved from old tenements and scores of the children are revelling for the first time in the luxury of a bed. Previously they slept on mattresses or chairs. One child had a former coal bin as her bedroom. The average income of the residents is $100 a month.

Use Snowmobile To Make Bread Deliveries

Bread delivery men started out from the city on their routes this morning fully expecting another day of traffic difficulties that would severely try their resourcefulness and determination to "get the message to Garcia."

One of Weston's men reported towards noon that the road into Douro was extremely hard going, and James Dutton, Jr., of Stocks Bread telephoned from Hastings that he had got through, but without indicating what were the prospects for the Harwood stretch of his route.

Stocks deliveries were made Saturday across Rice Lake by using Duffus' snowmobile. Telephone news Saturday said the Northumberland County plow had reached the upper sections of the county, but from all natural evidences those roads were likely to be filled in again by Sunday's snowfall and wind.

The Stocks man on the Buckhorn route returned Saturday night, reporting that he had been unable to get to Selwyn by the usual road. Instead of calling it a long day, he set out by way of Bridgenorth to make urgent deliveries, and got back shortly before midnight.

It was also said that bread had reached sections of Smith Township last week on days that had seen no mail deliveries. Trucks were getting through to Bancroft, and in the whole area farmers with sleighs and teams were giving aid that was simply indispensable.

"The assistance we have been getting has been most encouraging," Alderman Dutton said. "We appreciate it very much and also the spirit of our men facing this continuing emergency."

J. Niblock, manager of Weston's, expressed the same tribute in acknowledgment of aid that was invaluable in getting bread to country homes.

Italy Out To Weaken France Works On Poland As New Ally To Rome Axis

Foreign Minister Ciano Is Hailed In Warsaw While Press Hushes Outbreaks Of Student Chants "Down With Berlin"

ROME, Feb. 27 (AP).—The Fascist press made it clear today that Italy, apparently striving to weaken France's position as much as possible before formally presenting colonial demands upon her, is concentrating current efforts on Poland.

Newspapers devoted most of their front pages to the visit of Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano to Warsaw. They minimized the French-Polish military alliance and stressed the "common interests" of Italy and Poland, including the latter's desire for colonial expansion.

(A large crowd in Warsaw cheered Count Ciano when he appeared at the doorway of the Institute of Italian Culture, where he met members of the Italian colony in the Polish capital, but later shouted, "Down with Berlin! Down with the Rome-Berlin axis!")

In conformity with the Italian repatriation policy, 3,000 Italians returned to their homeland from France yesterday.

They swelled the manpower on which Premier Mussolini could draw in the event of war. More Italians are expected to return this week.

Same Bargaining.

Italian support for Poland's territorial ambitions in return for a promise not to assist France in case Italy's "natural aspirations" lead to a conflict was seen by some diplomats as a possible outcome of Count Ciano's visit to Poland.

The newspaper Regime Fascista said: "Poland formally retains her military alliance of 1921 with France, but that document, drafted when Germany was following an anti-Polish policy and supplemented by accords with Russia, today has no tangible value for Warsaw."

Newspapers prominently printed dispatches from Malta reporting a student demonstration against the new constitution of the British-held Mediterranean island. The press often has mentioned Italian claims on Malta.

A Deal In The Danube?

WARSAW, Feb. 27.—(AP)—The foreign office mouthpiece Gazetta Polska gave a clue today to the nature of conversations between Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano and Polish official by asserting Italian-Polish cooperation could be counted on to help rectify conditions in the Dunbian Basin.

In an article headed "harmony of interests," the newspaper said that the four-power agreement on Czechoslovakia September 29 and the subsequent Vienna award of Czecho-Slovak territory to Hungary and Poland failed to stabilize Danubian conditions and that they "sooner or later will demand definite settlement."

Warsaw political circles appeared pleased with the results of Count Ciano's visit. But anti-German outbursts by Polish students caused government officials worry. The press was forbidden to publish reports of incidents, such as one in which a crowd shouted "down with Berlin! Down with the Rome-Berlin axis!"

A student organization scattered leaflets in Warsaw demanding that Polish army enter the free city of Danzig and annex it. Alleged mistreatment of Poles by Germans in that former German city, now nominally under League of Nations supervision, resulted in there days of student demonstration.

Vancouver Mystery Trolley Death Solved By Victim's Husband

VANCOUVER, Feb. 27.—(CP). — A young woman who died under the wheels of a street car here Sunday was identified last night as Mrs. Alice Arnold. Identification was made through the woman's husband, James Arnold, and Ronald Sutherland, a friend.

Later Coroner John Whitbread said an autopsy showed death had been due to injuries suffered when the slim, red-haired woman was struck by the street car.

Officers said identification of the woman, made after police broadcast her description in an effort to reach relatives or friends, had partially solved what they earlier termed a double mystery of identity and death.

Detectives continued the investigation of events prior to the early morning hour when the woman was struck as she lay across the tracks in the lonely district bordering Shaughnessy Heights Golf Club. They were unable to explain her presence in that part of the city, miles from her downtown home.

There also were puzzled at finding the body only partially clad.

Wearing Only a Coat

The shoes and one stocking were found 100 feet from the scene, but of the other stocking or underthings, there was no trace.

Neither was there a handbag, but the pockets of the neat wine-colored fur-collared coat yielded a silver crucifix, handkerchief, small package of cigarettes and 20 cents in change. She wore a diamond solitaire on her engagement finger.

She apparently died from internal injuries suffered when the wheels struck her.

The woman died within a few minutes after motorman William Munro stopped his car and climbed out to investigate what he thought was a coat laying on the tracks.

Over 500,000 Expected In Windsor To See King And Queen

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP) MAYOR DAVID CROLL said today he expected between 500,000 and 1,000,000 persons would visit Windsor June 8 when King George and Queen Elizabeth visit here briefly on their tour of Canada and the United States.

6 Miles Plowed For Sick Man

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 27.—(CP)—Rushed to hospital after a highway department snowplow had bucked through six miles of drifted roads to open a way for him, Richard Smith, 25-year-old bachelor farmer of Harrietsville, was reported in fairly good condition at hospital today.

Smith was stricken with appendicitis at his home half a mile west of Harrietsville yesterday. He will not be operated on for a few days yet, but doctors said it was urgent that he should reach hospital.

When Smith suffered the attack he telephoned Dr. W. Doan of Harrietsville. Dr. Doan decided hospitalization was needed, but the road between Harrietsville and Belmoth on the way to London was plugged.

An appeal was telephoned to the highways department. Though it is a county road, one of the plows was sent to clear the six-mile road, within two or three hours after a doctor was called, Smith was in a private automobile, bound for St. Joseph's Hospital in London.

Last Mac-Paps

TORONTO, Feb. 27.—(CP).—Final remnant of the Mackenzie-Papineau Battalion, 72 men, nursing wounds and harrowing memories of the concentration camp in France whither they had fled with Spanish civilian refugees after the fall of Barcelona, arrived here last night. They were met by a cheering crowd of about 700.

The group represents the last of the Canadians who served the Spanish government with the International brigade during the civil war, with the exception of some stil held as prisoners in France.

Rains Follow Drought Flood Australia

ADELAIDE, Australia, Feb. 27. — (CP Reuters)—Record rains on the heels of Australia's worst drought today isolated towns, marooned trains and brought a threat of serious floods.

Railway lines in Central Australia were inundated for miles, cutting off settlements and stranding trains, including one with 60 passengers which was unable to move because of washouts.

Welcome rains also fell in New South Wales and Queensland.

Mine Town Slide Takes 3 Lives

OPHIR, Utah, Feb. 27—(AP)—Weary miners and townspeople probed the depths of a 30-foot-deep avalanche today for two miners, companions of a 57-year-old blacksmith who died in a slide that levelled buildings at the Hidden Treasure mine near here.

Searching crews, summoned to the mine in dry canyon yesterday, found the body of Burt Harris of Salt Lake City buried under four feet of snow and ice. Still missing were Clarence M. Yates, 26, and Edward Roberts, 35, both employed by the United States Smelting, Refining and Mining Company, which operates the lead and silver mine.

The slide, born of a blizzard that blocked roads into the area, demolished the superintendent's house and bunkhouses.

Dancer's Slaying Baffles Police

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Clues from the love life of Anya Sosoyeva, Russian dancer failed police today in a baffling hunt for the person who beat her to death three night ago on the campus of Los Angeles City College.

A 34-year-old accountant, Kermit Anderson, who told of "keeping company" with the dancer for several months, furnished proof to police that he had joined friends in a poker game at the time she was bludgeoned.

At San Francisco, Stewart Johnson, 30, went to police headquarters last night, saying he wanted to make a statement for the record to clear himself of suspicion. Johnson told of his onetime friendship with Anya. He said he knew of no reason why anyone should want to take her life.

Police here still held for further questioning Bernard Sutton, 33, janitor, found in Barnsdall Park a few blocks from the college campus Friday night. Sutton is on probation on a morals charge.

Two murder theories were advanced by Captain D. R. Patton, directing the investigation. He said the evidence indicated "It was a grudge slaying, or the work of a sex fiend who lay in wait for a victim."

Coliseum Annex Home To 630

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—(CP).—Sheltered in an annex of the vast coliseum on the Canadian National Exhibition grounds are 630 men without homes they can call their own. There are old, stooped men who will never be able to work, younger but eager men upon whom life has frowned and others who "just don't care a hoot" if they ever work.

The annex of the coliseum, swept by biting winds from Lake Ontario, is their home for the winter, provided by authorities who could not stand by and see the transients gathered here from many Canadian centres, face winter alone.

Things were moving smoothly until last week when one of the men, Edward Gauthrier, developed cerebro-spinal meningitis. He was moved to hospital and 127 of his companions were quarantined for one week in a neighboring annex to the one housing the main body.

There was an incipient rebellion. The men objected to their imprisonment without obtaining more food. Doing od jobs about the city, they said, they had been able before the quarantine was imposed, to earn a few cents to buy extra food.

Wants Are Granted.

Adjutant Fred Howlett of the Salvation Army, in charge of the men, smiled when he spoke of the "rebellion." It was nothing at all and the men's wishes were granted immediately.

"The boys are all right, and on the whole a fine lot of fellows," he said. "They are making the best of it here and are quite satisfied and happy," the Adjutant added, pointing to long rows of cots, many of them occupied by men reading newspapers or magaines.

In the quarantine annex everything was quiet and orderly. The men were chatting in groups, some of them were playing cards. They have chess boards, too for their entertainment.

Their only communication with the men in the main annex was through an entrance blocked by a table over which hangs a sign "No Admittance."

The dormitory in the main annex is on the second floor. Each morning the men make their own beds, folding carefully their army blankets, after which several of the men are detailed to sweep the floor. They do their own washing.

Liquor Problem In 30 States

CHICAGO, Feb. 27—(AP)—Legislatures of at least 30 states are considering liquor law problems, an Associated Press survey howed today. Oklahoma, Kansas and Tennessee are the only remaining "bone dry" states.

California heard a proposal for a $2 annual "drinker's license" and for a state farm for inebriates. Arizonas legislature passed a bill transferring tightened liquor law enforcement from the tax commission to a new control division.

South Dakota approved a measure to padlock places where liquor law violations occurred. Liquor tax or license increases were recommended in South Dakota, Pennsylvania, New York, Texas, North Carolina, Connecticut, Maryland, North Dakota and Oregon.

A Maine measure would prohibit beer licenses to gasoline stations or places within 500 feet of them. In Pennsylvania a bill would establish a 300-foot dry zone around schools and churches. A Massachusetts legislator would ban candy and fruit stores from selling liquor. Iowa sought to stop beer sales in drug and grocery stores.

The New Hampshire senate killed a bill which would have allowed dancing in places where beer is sold. A Minnesota measure would forbid sale to women standing at a bar.

Local option proposals were studied in Iowa, South Carolina, Indiana, New Mexico, Oregon, Colorado and Massachusetts.

Not Ready Yet

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today he believed "the time has not arrived" to call a world conference for "removal of economic and political grievances."

He had been asked if he, "in association with the American president," would summon such a conference.

Shells Still Fall

MADRID, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Only an occasional shelling of Madrid and light air raids along the Mediterranean coast by the nationalist forces gave indication today that the Spanish civil war has not yet ended. There were no reports of troop engagements on any front.

Toronto Storm Costs $50,000

TORONTO, Feb. 27. — (CP).—More than six inches of snow fell on Toronto during the week-end, bringing to 54.8 inches the total fall so far this winted. The normal winter's snowfall is 28.9 inches and the fall this season is the heaviest since 1922.

Controller Fred Hamilton said an extra oppropriation of $50,000 will be needed to clear the city's main streets of the week-end fall.

Conviction Of Hines Boosts Dewey Star

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 — (CP). — The political star of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey soared to new heights to-day as a result of his successful conviction of Tammany Leader James J. Hines on charges of selling political protection to gangsters.

Judging by the comment of political leaders there was little doubt the 36-year-old racket buster had established himself in the front rank of possible Republican candidates for the United States Presidency in 1940.

Senator William Borah, veteran Republican of Idaho, said Dewey "has done a tremendous, fine job, and it undoubtedly will advance the interest of the people throughout the country in his future work, political or legal." The comment of many other political bigwigs followed a similar line.

Dewey, native of Michigan who has enjoyed a meteoric legal career in New York, ran as the Republican candidate for the Governorship of New York State last year and was barely nosed out by the three-times incumbent of that office, Herbert E. Lehman.

HUNTING IN NEPAL

NEW DELHI — (CP). — Viceroy Lord Linlithgow headed a shooting expedition in Nepal which ended with a bag including 14 tigers, three rhinoceroses and one bear.

Tire Firm Ends Strike Talks

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP)—Manager J. A. Martin of the Dominion Tire Company, speaking today on behalf of that company and the Merchants Rubber Company, said there would be no resumpton of negotiation with spokesmen for the local union of the United Rubber Workers of America which called a strike of 1,300 workers at the two plants.

The union voted itself out of further negotiations when it rejected a memorandum drawn up by the management of the two companies, spokesmen for the strikers and O. C. Jeanette, chief conciliation officer of the Ontario labor department, Martin said.

"There will be no resumption of negotiations," he said. "There will be nothing further as far as we are concerned for we have gone as far as we can. Our position on wages was clearly defined and presented to a meeting of the city council, labor department officials and the strikers.

Alberta Winners

EDMONTON, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Alberta's hopes for victory in the Dominion Drama Festival rest on the ability of two farmers, a housewife and a student who chose a difficult Russian play and produced it so well they won at the provincial regional festival here Saturday night.

Clive Dramatic Club from that town of 240 population in Central Alberta staged "The Bear" by Anton Chekhov and adjudicator George Skillan of London, Eng., named it the best of six one-act plays presented Friday and Saturday.

Cabinet Resigns

BRUSSELS, Feb. 27.—(CP-Havas).—The cabinet of Premier Hubert Pierlot, which took office six days ago, resigned to-day.

Opposition of the three Socialist ministers to the financial measures proposed by Finance Minister Camile Gutt led to the resignation. They particularly opposed Gutt's plan for a five per cent. cut in the salaries of government employees.

Danzig Students Fight Poles

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, Feb. 27. —(AP).—Polish and Danzig students clashed to-day as the Danzig Senate sent a sharp demand to Warsaw that the Polish government openly disavow agitation for the incorporation of Danzig into Poland. Six Poles were injured and police made several arrests.

The protest was given to Wladislav Perkowski, Polish government representative here. It was the second since Polish students adopted a resolution Feb. 23 for the incorporation of Danzig into Poland.

The resolution was a sequel to the finding by Polish students of a sign in a cafe reading: "Entrance to dogs and Poles forbidden." The Senate's protest to-day was said to have been based largely on a police report of the cafe incident and an allegation that Polish students themselves had "planted the sign as an excuse to make trouble."

(Danzig, formerly German territory, was established as a free city under League of Nations direction after the Great War. It adjoins the Polish corridor, a narrow strip separting Germany's East and West Prussia.)

Herridge To Reveal Plans Wednesday

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—(CP)—Hon. W. D. Herridge, former Canadian minister to Washington, is expected to give details of a "new democracy" movement in Canada in a speech he will deliver here Wednesday evening. In an address January 25 Mr. Herridge declared this new movement was already developing in many parts of the Dominion and spoke of its objects.

Replying to a letter in the press that he be more specific in his proposals to better conditions in Canada, Mr. Herridge said he would go into details in his next speech which will be Wednesday night.

HANCOCK, Mich., Feb. 27 (CP) —Houghton county claims it has the toughest snow removal job of any section of the United States, excepting the Rocky Mountain regions. Snowfall in this area, along Lake Superior 100 miles west of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., averages 170 inches annually.

C. F. Winkler, chief snow fighter in the county, said it cost $100,000 annually to keep the 700 miles of road open. The county snow fighting machinery is the most extensive and the finest in the nation, Winkler said. It consists of 14 five or 10 ton trucks, five auger-type rotaries, and three tractor-type rotaries.

Winkler said operation of the big snow ploughs is so exhaustive that it shortens the lives of the operators.

Woman Who Fought Beside Father Of Soviet, Lenin's Widow, Revolutionist, Dies At 70

The woman who fought beside the father of the Soviet Union until his death in 1924 had just celebrated her 70th birthday. Messages congratulating her on the anniversary Saturday had arrived from all parts of the country and an exhibition honoring her as "outstanding in the sphere of education" had opened in Moscow.

She had been a member of the people's commissariat for education, founded the bureau of political training, and took part in the movement that started women's pioneer organizations.

On Jan. 18, 1938, she was named a member of the presidium, the government organization which acts as an executive and directive body between sessions of the supreme council of the union the Soviet parliament.

London Meet Nears Breakdown

Rumor Britain To End Her Mandate Sends Arabs Wild

HAIFA, Palestine, Feb. 27 — (AP) —Soldiers and police were ordered to a state of alert throughout Palestine to-day as a new wave of Arab-Jew terrorism, coinciding with a deadlock in the London conference, brought death to 26 and injuries to 49 persons over the week-end.

Three bomb explosions at Haifa Jewish Market and railroad station left 20 known killed and 37 wounded. In Jerusalem three Arabs were killed by bombs and one Arab and one Jew were slain by snipers. At Jaffa bursting landmines killed one Arab and wounde four.

These disorders brought the casualty toll since the London peace conference opened on February 7 to about 130.

24-Hour Curfew.

Both here and in Jerusalem police searched damaged buildings and shattered vegetable trucks for bomb fragments lively to give a clue to those responsible for the explosions. Day and night curfew was invoked in Haifa. A landmine exploded on the Tel Aviv-Jaffa railroads just after a train passed, but caused no damage.

Crowds beseiged Haifa hospital seeking relatives among the wounded, most of whom were badly hurt.

The Haifa market place was bombed as crowds gathered for the morning buying and selling. Arabs fled in confusion. Ambulances took the injured to the Government Hospital. Authorities immediately cordoned off the scene and imposed an indefinite curfew.

The renewal of violence followed Arab celebrations over reports indicating the British Government planned to establish a state in Palestine in which Jews would have only minority status, with Great Britain giving up her League of Nations mandate over the Holy Land.

Mandate To Be Dropped?

LONDON, Feb. 27 (AP). — The conference to discuss means of ending the long-standing Arab-Jewish controversy over Palestine appeared headed toward a breakdown today.

The executive board of the Jewish agency rejected a British plan eventually to create in Palestine an independent Arab state allied with Great Britain and with Jews holding minority status.

The deadlocked negotiations took such a bitter turn over the weekend, when the British scheme was submitted in outline for discussion, that American Jews attending the con-

Only 2 Of 35 Cardinals Ineligible For Pope

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 27—(AP).—In speculation preliminary to the opening Wednesday of the conclave of Cardinals, only two of the 36 Italian Cardinals are regarded as ruled out for non-ecclesiastical, non-political causes in the choice of a successor to Pope Pius XI.

They are the 87-year-old dean of the college of Cardinals, Gennaro Cardinal Pignatelli di Belmonte, because of his age, and Tommaso Cardinal Boggiani, because of ill health.

Either probably would decline election if chosen, prelates said. Only in the event of the other 60 Cardinals could not agree on another Pope would either be likely to accept, it was said.

Italian commentators said that in the remote chance a foreigner is elected the choice probably would fall either to Rodrique Cardinal Villeneuve, Archbishop of Quebec, or Emanuele Cardinal Goncalves Cerejeira, Patriarch of Lisbon.

Revised Taxes

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 — (AP). —United States Treasury experts are formulating drastic revisions of corporation taxes, it was learned to-day, to give tangible evidence to business men of the co-operation that administration officials have been proclaiming.

A TWO HOUR JOB.

As an example of the snow difficulties confronting farmers all through the district was the experience of J. J. Howden, whose home is immediately east of the Locks Bridge on No. 7 highway. As a suburban resident Mr. Howden shovelled for two hours this morning digging a road for his car to the highway, less than two hundred yards. Sunday's storm filled in the lane that had been cleared earlier during the week.

Children Kept Busy While At Home Shovelling Snow

Campbellford, Feb. 27.

THE snow storms of the past week have served at least one purpose in keeping children who are home from school busy. In fact with so many of the children running around with nothing to do there has been some real competition in this field with the prospective shovellers getting an earlier start each morning in an endeavor to beat their rivals.

Citizens in some sections have had to resort to leaving a notice on their doorway the night before in order to avc' being dragged from their beds before day break by the over enthusiastic school kids. A Queen street resident reported no less than six applicants for the job one day last week and all arrived before eight o'clock in the morning. Some ambition these kids have!

Crash Sinks Ship 32 Crew Saved

The crash occurred at 7.12 p.m. EST last night 13 miles east of Barnegat Lightship off the New Jersey coast, about 70 miles from New York.

The 3,482-ton American freighter, bringing a cargo of sugar from Puerto Rico, began sinking rapidly after flashing an SOS and advising it had rammed the German vessel. Within an hour its crew was forced to abandon ship in two lifeboats.

They bobbed about on cold, choppy seas for more than an hour until picked up. William Hembold, wireless operator of the stricken ship, stuck to his post to the last minute, calling for aid. At 8.06 p.m. he sent a final message, then "tied down" the key of his instrument. For hours afterward listeners could hear the eerie distress signal humming through the night, growing fainter as the batteries weakened. At 4.01 a.m. the signal stopped.

The 5,869-ton Weigand, its forepeak damaged and one hold taking water, will be put in drydock here for repairs. It sailed yesterday for Japan with a cargo of scrap-iron.

Beaver Islanders Honor Mystery Man

ST. JAMES, Mich., Feb. 27—(CP). —Residents of Beaver Island at the head of Lake Michigan, prepared today to mark the 14th anniversary of the death of their beloved man of mystery.

The mystery man was a huge bearded Russian, Feodora Protar, whose stylish clothes startled residents when he arrived in 1892.

Soon he discarded his stylish clothes and became the island's self-appointed physician. He refused money for his services and bought his own drugs and supplies.

When he died he was still a mystery man. Many islanders believe he was a nobleman exiled from Russia. Grateful residents erected a monument in his honor, terming him, "Our heaven-sent friend in need, who never filled us. In imperishable gratitude and adoration. His people of Beaver Island."

Residents stage an annual pilgrimage to the monument and conduct service there in his honor.

Halls Bridge Area Completely Blocked

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HALL'S BRIDGE, Feb. 27.—The roads in and out of Buckhorn are so badly blocked with snow drifts that the Stage carrying the mail is staying the night at Lakefield. Cars and trucks can get out as far as the 16th, but no further, up to the week-end.

On Tuesday night the doctor of the Curve Lake reserve started out in answer to a call, but had to be towed back up the lake to Selwyn by Gordon Ball and his team. On Thursday he did get across towed by Russell Taylor all the way from Selwyn across the lake and then had to wait for the snow plow to go ahead on the return journey. Now a plane would be required.

Mr. Howard Whetung is in St. Joseph's Hospital in a serious condition.

Mr. Alfred Copperway slipped Thursday and fell on the icy snow and sustained severe injury to the ankle joint.

Britain And France

Mr. Chamberlain told the House that formal action for recognition of General Franco was taken to-day.

Too Much Scattered.

"It seemed to the British government impossible to regard the Spanish republican government, scattered as it was and no longer exercising settled authority, as the sovereign government of Spain," he said.

Cries of "shame!" rose from the opposition as government supporters cheered the announcement that the French government was expected to announce similar recognition following the cabinet meeting in Paris this afternoon.

Mr. Chamberlain in his statement added: "The British government have noted with satisfaction the public statements of General Franco concerning his determination to secure the traditional independence of Spain."

"Even if the Republican forces in the southern sector should continue to maintain some show of resistance," the prime minister said, "there can be no doubt now of the ultimate issue of the struggle, the prolongation of which can only result in further suffering and loss of life.

"As the result of the fall of Barcelona and the overrunning of Catalonia, General Franco is now in control of the greater part of Spanish territory, both on and beyond the mainland.

"Included in this territory are the most important industrial centres in Spain and the sources of most of her productions.

"In these circumstances, his majesty's government have decided to inform General Franco of their decision to recognize his government as the government of Spain and formal action has been taken in this sense today.

"I understand the French government also will be announcing their decision on this question today."

Tiff With Attlee.

When Mr. Attlee persisted in questions about the prospective debate on the issue, Mr. Chamberlain said "I am not going to be cross-examined about particular hours and moments without having notice."

Mr. Attlee: "In future when I have a question on foreign affairs I shall have to arrange for the question to be put in another place where I am sure I shall get a proper answer."

The opposition cheered and government supporters cried "order! order!"

This was interpreted to mean the opposition leader will put his questions to Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, who sits in the House of Lords and is noted for his imperturbable courtesy. Labor cheered Mr. Attlee when he told Mr. Chamberlain the latter had violated a pledge to inform the Commons as soon as the government decided to recognize Franco by previously secretly informing France.

Decision Just Made

Mr. Chamberlain replied "I may tell the right honorable gentleman that the British government decided to leave in the hands of the foreign secretary and myself the General Franco and the final definal decision as to recognition of General Fronco and the final decision was taken over the weekend."

Mr. Attlee asked "was it a mistake that it was stated in the press in a statement alleged to have been made by the French prime minister that he had been in consultation with the British prime minister and a decision had been taken in time for the French prime minister to make a statement on Friday in the French chamber?"

(During debate Friday in the French chamber of deputies Premier Daladier announced France would recognize Franco and hinted Great Britain also would do so.)

Mr. Chamberlain replied: "I cannot be cross-examined about particular hours and moments as to when these decision were taken without having notice of the question and an opportunity to be quite certain I am giving accurate answers."

Mr. Attlee replied: "The issue is bigger than that. The prime minister is not entitled to mislead this House."

British House First?

Mr. Attlee: "Is the Prime Minister prepared to say when this decision was come to? Has not this House the right to be told of this decision before it is told to the parliament of another country?"

Mr. Chamberlain: "I do not think I have misled the House in any way. The statement I made at the time was perfectly accurate." (He referred to his statement to the House Feb. 23 that recognition of Franco was still under consideration.)

The opposition Liberals also attacked Mr. Chamberlain. Sir Archibald Sinclair, their leader, asked: "Does the prime minister mean that the decision had been taken to recognize General Franco but that the time was left to the prime minister and foreign secretary to decide whether General Franco should be recognised or not?"

Asked if the government had received assurances that foreign troops would be withdrawn, Mr. Chamberlain replied: "I have said that assurance have been received but recognition is unconditional."

New Air Base

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 27. —(CP).—The United States army air corps has decided tentatively to establish an air base in Kent County, Mich., with hangers for 18 fast pursuit planes.

Army officials said the site was selected because of the strategic location and because the University of Michigan has been selected as one of the centres for training United States pilots.

Pet Canary Lives To Be 25 Years Old; Sang Up Until Two Years Ago

The thrilling song of the pet canary that had reached the sear and yellow leaf of avian life is only a memory to-day in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Rothwell, 179 Dublin Street. When it died of old age on Sunday morning it had reached a quarter of a century of living and singing, except during the last year or two when the lilt had been gradually fading out of its notes.

"Bobby," as it was called in the household, was three years old when it was bought by Mrs. Jennie Rothwell of Norwood. That fact is made definite by a recollection that Mrs. Rothwell mentioned the purchase in a letter written to her husband in 1917, the year he was killed in the war in France. It had come from Winnipeg.

Mrs. Rothwell gave the songbird to her son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. R. Rothwell, when they were moving from Norwood to Peterborough eight or nine years ago, and from those family incidents the long life of "Bobby" was definitely fixed. He was a German Roller, with an intelligence manifested by his recognition of Mr. Rothwell's steps as soon as he entered the house. In the summer of 1937 his sustained singing began to decline, age affected one eye and also made him lame, and on Sunday morning he was past hearing the call of Mrs. Rothwell to him to get up off the bottom of his cage for the fresh seed that had been brought for him.

Snow Blocked Roads Keep People At Home

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27.—A fall of snow, which has topped everything in the past fifty years, has completely blanketed Seymour township, isolating farmers, closing churches and schools, and causing a severe setback to business in general. A survey of Campbellford merchants revealed Saturday to have been the poorest in years. Though seventy per cent of the roads throughout Seymour township are completely blocked to motor traffic, farmers on most of the side roads are able to get into town with horse and sleigh.

Doctors who are being called to the country, are being met by the farmers with horses and sleigh, while one who was summoned from town Saturday took no chances and hired a team of horses before leaving town. Another, who on Saturday was called to a patient beyond the town line, told the Examiner it took him two hours to cover the seven odd miles which are being kept open with snow ploughs.

Roads in fields

All roads to Healey Falls were reported completely blocked on Sunday, with operators at the hydro plant going out from Campbellford, having to walk anywhere from four to five miles. Drifts in this section are from four to six feet high with most of the fences covered and farmers on the side roads, which are completely blocked, cutting across fields and over fences with their sleighs.

"There's more snow than I've ever seen before on these roads," claimed Walter Brunton of Seymour township, who has a contract with the hydro to keep part of this road from the Woodland Cheese factory on No. 30 highway to Connelly's school, open. "The snow is piled so high now it is doubtful if we can throw much of it out with the plough, and if we can't they'll have to make a road through the fields."

Hines Found Guilty Fights Long Term

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP). — Legal maoeuvres were in the making to-day to stave off a possible long-term prison sentence for James J. Hines, Tammany Hall district leader, whose conviction Saturday of selling political protection to a numbers racket also threatened to unseat a Tammany magistrate.

Apparently ignoring Mayor F. H. Laguardia's demand that he resign or face impeachment, Magistrate Hulon Capshaw declared he would welcome an investigation by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, to which his case would go.

An appointee of two Tammany mayors, Capshaw was accused by District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey of having dismissed policy cases against henchmen of the slain Dutch Schultz at the behest of Hines, convicted of partnership with the gangster.

Two confessed Schultz gangsters who testified against Hines — J. Richard (Dixie) Davis, the gang's lawyer, and Harry Scoenhaus, its bookkeeper — were scheduled for sentencing to-day, but Justice Ferdinand Pecora, who will commit them, is ill and a postponement is likely.

Lloyd Paul Stryker, defence counsellor, planned to confer with Hines, stunned and weary after the sweeping verdict of the blue-ribbon jury which convicted him on all 13 counts of a lottery indictment, carrying a maximum penalty of 27 years in prison.

Men of All Stamps

Adjutant Howlett said his charges included all kinds of men, from all over the country. There are men who have been unable to find work, some who have worked at odd jobs, others who lost their jobs through drink or laziness. The most pitiful of his charges, "and I don't know what will become of them," are the old men who will never be able to work.

One man who said his name was "Tom," said this was his first winter on relief "and my last, too, you can take my word for that." He had been a farmhand. He milked cows so often and so long his hands and arms pained him at nights. He hopes to find work in the spring, "but I hope it isn't milking cows."

"Shorty" is a little fellow from Great Britain. Life treated him badly and he made a little money selling paintings.

"But I haven't any money now to buy paint. I've sold the paintings I had," he said.

There are a lot of fellows like Tom and Shorty among Adjutant Howlett's charges. But there are the other kind too.

End Of a Shed

MIDLAND, Ont., Feb. 27 — (CP) — A Canadian National Railways freight car plunged through the middle of a shed owned by Captain Anson B. Smith when it hurtled from a siding here on Saturday. The car was being shunted when it left the track, made slippery by snow. It missed a couple of gasoline tanks and practically demolished the building, a structure 54 feet by 26 feet used to store fishing equipment.

American tourists visiting Copenhagen, Denmark, last year totaled 2,051.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Easiness in outside markets and advices of moisture in sections of the United States winter wheat belt pushed wheat future prices lower at Winnipeg to-day. Final quotations were ⅝ to ¼ cent down, May at 62, July 62⅝ and October 63¼.

Trading was quiet throughout as scattered liquidation proved sufficient to outweight support and drop prices ½ cent at low levels.

Cash wheat trade uncovered a little mill interest while pit trading in coarse grains brought out minor liquidation in oats and barley purchases by maltsters.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Mining and Western oil shares were inclined to heaviness late in to-day's Toronto Exchange session and they closed with a margin of losses over gains. The golds showed a narrow preponderance of gains at noon. Industrials held to the upside till the close. Trading was a little more active in the last hour and aggregate turnover expanded to nearly a half million shares.

Industrial and gold groups displayed moderate strength in the early session and had minor index gains at noon, but they turned a bit heavy in the early afternoon. Base metal and Western oil stocks were lower at the end of the third hour.

Trading slowed down as the session advanced and volume for the first three hours totalled only 276,000 shares.

Foods were the strongest of the industrial groups, while papers and utilities were mainly firmed and the steels and liquors sold off.

Senior base metal issues, including Smelters, Noranda, Nickel and Hudson Bay, posted recessions. The gold division was featured by a strong market for Wright-Hargreaves and Kirkland Lake. In slow action Home, Anglo-Canadian, Okalta and Calmont boarded minor losses and other Western oils were steady.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27—(AP). — Buyers got behind the rails in to-day's stock market as profits were cashed in most other groups.

Lightness of selling was seen as an encouraging omen.

Transfers were about 800,000 shares. Fractional gains and losses ruled near the final hour.

You Always Have Room for a Rock Garden

Don't Waste Any Ground

Don't let any part of your plot go to waste this year. Make a lovely little rock garden.

Build your slope, and set rocks firmly. Prepare for your plans by adding sand and lef-mold t. your good garden loam. To keep the effect natural and woodlike, pick rocks that are weather-beaten, varied in size.

Leav room, when you plant, for mosses to spread, for flowering plants to trail. For sunny spots choose stonecrop and garden mosses Alpine poppies, saxifrage. For shady corners, ferns and white mosses are best; so are primroses, violets.

If you can add a tiny lily pool, charming! A tub of water set in the earth will do.

Our 32-page booklet gives simple directions for rock gardens, tips on inexpensive plants. How to make lily pools—container, natural and cement lined.

Send 15c in coins or stamps for your copy of HOW TO MAKE ROCK GARDENS AND LILY POOLS to Examiner ,Home Service, Peterborough. Be sure to write plainly your NAME AND ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Woman "Dolls" Herself All Up Because She Wants To Attract Or Hold Her Man—The Male Is More Vain Because He Thinks He Is Loved For Himself Alone.

Which is the vainer sex? I think that men, taken by and large are vainer than women. Of course, men will arise and shout in unison that this is not true; that the vanity of the feminine sex far surpasses that of the male. In proof whereof they will cite:

First. That most of the business of the world is devoted to ministering to the vanities of women and providing them with fine raiment and jewels, cosmetics and perfumes and beautiful backgrounds against which to strut like gorgeous peacocks.

Second. That about three-fourths of a woman's time and thought, and nearly all of her money, goes into dolling herself up.

Third. That women cheerfully undergo martyrdom for the sake of their looks; that they suffer themselves to be parboiled and skinned alive trying to attain that schoolgirl complexion, and undergo all the agonies of slow starvation to keep a boyish figure.

Fourth. That they risk death by wearing knee-length skirts, gossamer stockings and thin-soled satin slippers in zero weather, in order to be fashionably dressed.

Fifth. That they are so enamored of their own looks that they carry about with them pocket mirrors in order that they may refresh themselves by gazing at their own reflections every half hour or so.

Sixth. That there is nothing else in the world equal to the expression of complacency on a woman's face after she has drawn out her vanity case, powdered her nose and touched up her mouth with her lipstick. It simply megaphones to the beholder that she regards the result as absolute perfection.

None of these things is to be denied, and it sounds as if man made a strong case against woman when he indicted her for vanity. But not so! Men interpret wrongly the signs and portents. What they take as an indication of vanity is, in reality, only an expression of humility.

The reason why women spend so much time and money on clothes, and undergo such sufferings in order to enhance their looks, is not because they think they are so beautiful, but because they are distrustful of their appearance and are willing to do anything to improve it.

This shows that they are far less vain than men of their personal appearance, for the average man is, apparently, perfectly satisfied with his own looks. He may be fat and bay-windowed, yet you rarely hear of his counting his calories and denying himself the rich dishes he loves in order to reduce and attain a lissom figure. No woman would affront her neighbor's gaze with the spectacle of a shiny bald head, but it is only the occasional man who considers that he would be easier on the eyes if he wore a toupee.

And it is not modesty, but superhuman vanity, that makes a man careless about his dress. In his soul he is filled with the conviction that he cannot fail to be attractive to his fellow creatures, no matter how unshaven and unshorn he is, no matter what misfit clothes he has on, no matter how much he looks as if he needed to be sent bodily to the laundry and the presser.

It is not vanity that sends middle-aged women to the beauty parlors and that causes them to bob their hair, kalsomine their faces and make an abortive attempt to look 18 instead of 48. It is because they live in dread of losing their husbands' love when they lose their figures and complexions.

But no such terrors assail the middle-aged man. His vanity is such that he never dreams that his wife could possibly cease worshiping him, no matter how tubby or angular he gets, or how he changes from the young godling she married. You never hear of a middle-aged man trying to reduce his waistline in order to hold his wife's affections.

The vainest woman knows that no man wants to hear her talk about herself, or is really interested in her hopes and plans. But the great majority of men believe themselves to be such topics of absorbing interest to every woman they meet that they are giving her the treat of her life when they discourse to her about their achievements or tell her the story of their lives.

It is women's lack of vanity that makes them distrustful in love. No matter how pretty and attractive they are ,or how superior to the young men about them, they are always afraid that no man will fall in love with them and that they will be old maids. A man's vanity saves him from all of this. It never occurs to him that any woman could resist him. And after he is married he never bothers to inquire into the state of his wife's affections. He is absolutely certain that they stay at the boiling point and that nothing hat he does could ever cool them off by the fraction of a degree.

It never even dawns on the millionaire of 70-odd that a girl of 20 is not marrying him for himself alone. The ratio of rich old men who marry young girls, and rich old women who marry boys, is the ratio of vanity between the sexes.

The one and only way in which women display superior vanity to men is in their belief that they can reform men. That they can marry a drunkard and cure his thirst for liquor, or a philanderer and blind him to every other petticoat. Or that they can inspire a ne'er-do-well to become a hustler. Very few men are conceited enough to believe themselves miracle workers who can alter the nature of women.

But any discussion of vanity between the sexes is the pot reproaching the kettle for its blackness. "Vanity of vanities," saith the preacher, "all is vanity."

Fashions

A smart ric rac trimmed cotton print dress for morning tasks. You'll also find it very useful as a "coverall" apron over your "best" frock while preparing dinner to wear while putting the children to bed. You'll love its slenderizing surplice wrap around closing. Slip into it and tie the sash and you're dressed! It has a front and back panel effect that gives the illusion of height. It is just as flattering in size 50 as it is in size 16. See small diagram how utterly easy it is to sew it. The sleeves clut in one with the bodice. You can make several in different type cottons at a big saving in cost.

Style No. 2104 is designed for sizes 16, 18, 20 years. 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with 3¼ yards of ric rac braid.

That got us thinking about Longfellow's lines, "Tying her bonnet under her chin, She tied the heart of a young man in"—looks as if it will be quite as true this year as in the poet's time, doesn't it, for bonnets are of a quaintness and coquetry delightful to behold.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by Mrs. MARY MOORE

QUESTION: You have been very kind in helping me with my cooking. I hope you will help me in this about deep fat frying. I have been watching the page on deep fat frying but I suppose I missed it. Would you kindly tell me just how long to keep a piece of fish in the fat, to have it cooked just right, as too much cooking spoils the fish, and I am afraid of taking it out too soon, or leaving it in too long. Now the fish was some of it an inch thick and some parts half-inch thick. I know it does not take very long, but the exact time I do not know. I would be greatly obliged if you would help me with this. I also have trouble with my fat turning dark. I use shortening and lard—that is not together, of course. Hoping to hear from you soon, also thanking you for past favors.—Mrs. J. I.

P.S.—I test the fat first with a small piece of stale bread before I put the fish in Even at that the batter on my fish is very dark when finished. I like a golden brown.—Mrs. J. I.

Raspberry Oatmeal Turnover

ANSWER: Since you want to know exact time for frying fillet of fish, I am afraid you must purchase a deep fat thermometer. This can also be used for testing temperatures when making candy or jelly. The cube of bread fried for one minute is not accurate enough. When fillet of fish is cut in pieces for serving, then dipped in batter (or crumbed with crumbs and egg) it requires 4 minutes for a medium thick slice at exactly 375 deg. Fahr. The fat must be this temperature, the fish lowered into it slowly, not more than two pieces at a time. The heat kept up to 375 and fish turned over after first 2 minutes. If the fillets are one inch thick they should have 5 minutes at 375 deg. Fahr.

Oatmeal Cookie Dough for Turnovers

One egg, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup thin cream, ½ cup fine oatmeal, 2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt. You may need to add a teaspoon or so of milk to make the dough roll out thin enough. Beat egg until light, add sugar, cream and milk, if needed; then add oatmeal, flour, baking powder and salt, mixed sifted together. Roll out on floured board (see method of making turnovers below).

Put two teaspoons of raspberry jam in centre and fold over to form a triangle. Moisten edges to make them stick. Make slit in top to allow steam to escape. If pastry is used, bake at 425 deg. Fahr. If cookie dough is used bake at 375 deg. Fahr.

Grape Sponge

One and one-half tablespoons gelatine, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1½ cups grapefruit, whites 2 eggs, one-third cup sguare. Soak the gelatine in the cold water and let stand 5 minutes. Heat one-half the grapejuice and add the sugar and softened gelatin to it and stir until both are dissolved. Add the remaining grape juice and cool until the mixture begins to thicken. Pour off half the mixture and to this add the grapesponge above), I and one-third beaten whites. It may be moulded in individual dishes or in glass bowl: Pour the dark mixture into the bottom of the serving dishes and pour the sponge mixture on top and let set. Serve with:

Soft Custard

Two yolks (those left after making cups milk, 2½ tablespoons sugar, 1-sixteenth teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Beat yolks, add sugar and salt, stir constantly over boiling water while adding milk, which should be preheated. Continue stirring until mixture thickens and a coating will form on spoon. Remove from heat immediately. Chill and flavor. If cooked too long this custard will curdle. If this happens beat with rotary beater.

The yellow of the custard and the mauve of the sponge are particularly pleasing for Easter time.

We hope these recipes please you and that we can help you again.

MEN LOVE GIRLS WITH PEP

If you are peppy and full of fun, men will invite you to dances and parties.

BUT if you are cross, listless and tired, men won't be interested. Men don't like "quiet" girls. When they go to parties they want girls along who are full of pep.

So in case you need a good general system tonic, remember for 3 generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps build up more physical resistance and thus aids in giving you more pep and lessens distress from female functional disorders.

Raising a Large Family

Mrs. George Akey of Sulphide, which is but a few miles distant from Tweed, has been in the Kingston hospital—her first illness. Mrs. Akey is the mother of 19 children, the oldest being 35 years and the youngest nine. All the children are living. The only married son accompanied his mother to the hospital and gave a few particulars of life in this interesting home.

There were four sisters in the family, but they are all married now, and as they dropped out the boys had to take their places in assisting with the work in the home. Essentially it has been and is a boys' home with 15 of them along with four sisters. Plenty of boys to make a baseball team, according to the eldest one when speaking about it at Kingston.

The father is 63 years old and worked for years at the Sulphide plant sharpening steel, and when he had to quit work the eldest of the sons took his place. Providing for a family of that size must have been a problem because it is related there were times when they used as much as 30 pounds of butter in a week. Blueberries were put away plentifully in season and Mrs. Akey and the boys have often enough picked as much as 32 pails in a day.

Families of lesser size may wonder how it was managed. Before the time of marriage arrived there may have been a season when mother and father and nearly all of the 19 children were home. One can vision the size of the dinner table, the amount of preparation and the extent of the dish washing ceremonies. Family people can also think in terms of pairs of shoes, clothing of all sorts, bedding and everything else connected with a home on such a scale. But the answer is that it was done. The four girls from that home are married and some of the boys are also. Even with that thinning out process most folk would be inclined to believe there is still a large family.

Scattering The Jews

Before Hitler became supreme in Germany the Jews were well settled there. Many of them were prosperous; they were large factors in the money markets and were well on toward the dominant position in professional life. One has to turn back far in history to find a greater reversal in the outlook of any people because the Jewish folk have in recent times been again scattering and the speed of the movement is again being stepped up by the insistence of Nazi Germany. They have been forcibly parted from their wealth and position; their homes are no longer theirs nor are their places of business.

Uncounted thousands have fled to Shanghai because entry there is easy. A few took passage to Tokyo and from there went on to United States after finding there was a quota entry to the States from Japan although Japanese themselves are barred; hundreds went to Cuba hoping to secure visas there which would permit entrance to United States. It is recorded that 50 Viennese Jews went to Liberia, but none arrived, and it is said they all dropped off at a port which gave them a chance to head toward Palestine.

Since 1932 it is believed 215,000 Jews have left Germany, and an estimated 500,000 are today preparing to go. Britain took in 20,000 of them; 60,000 went to Palestine, and that movement precipitated the present trouble with the Arabs; 54,000 found refuge in United States. Others have gone to South America, Kenya and New Zealand. One party of 2,000 on the way to Palestine is now stranded in Rumania because their passport papers have been found to be in error.

It is estimated to cost $1,000 per person to bring the Jews from Germany and United States Jews are looked to for 100 million for this purpose. Their age-long dream of a national home has again been shattered and today they are scattering to the corners of the world. They have not in many cases the option of deciding where they will go. An open door is the deciding factor regardless of its location.

We Say It Again

The Examiner was recently reminded by a correspondent that it had devoted too much space to calling attention to the manner in which parliament was wasting time. Such a policy, it was contended, caused the people to feel discontented, and it might also be regarded as an attempt to create an atmosphere where the government would meet with defeat when next appealing to the electors.

The Examiner believes members of the Press Gallery have a good opportunity to judge the working of parliament. They sit in one long row just back of and above the Speaker's chair; they can see everything and hear well enough.

But they get tired of it. C. L. Bishop is an old member there and is fair-minded in his writings of what takes place. In one of his latest reports he recounts briefly the amount of time which was taken up with the first long debate on the address, then on the Bren gun contract and now on the trade treaty. He finds the same weakness in all these debates. It is this: That after the keynote has been sounded by the leaders or their chief lieutenants on either side then the rest of the speakers begin to say pretty much the same thing in another way, and they keep on doing it.

There have been only two or three rare occasions, Mr. Bishop says, when a member has stood in his place and struck out with an adddress where he had small regard for party lines. Even in Ottawa there is little interest in what is being said. The galleries are far from being filled and the number of members who are at their desks in the House is small enough. While these endless debates are going on members who are present read newspapers and write letters. We have said it before and we repeat—parliament talks far too much for its own good or the welfare of the country.

Better Think It Over

There are 2,200 single unemployed men now living in Toronto hostels and 630 transient unemployed are housed at the Coliseum at the Exhibition grounds. Present indications are that the provincial government is going to have nothing more to do with any plan to assist Toronto city council in caring for these people after the 31st of March.

Mayor Day of Toronto is protesting. He says there is no guarantee that by that date the snow will be off the ground and it would be unthinkable to tell these 2,830 people to be off and shift for themselves on that date. There would be no place for them to sleep and it would be too early for them to live outdoors.

It is difficult enough to set a definite date in such a case. If an additional 2,830 unemployed were turned loose even in so great a city as Toronto on a certain day what would they do? Would there be any better prospect of them making a living after the 31st of March than there is today? Or would they merely begin to panhandle on Toronto streets or ask people for the price of a meal or bed?

Becoming responsible for the care of such a number of people during winter months carries with it the need for some good and careful work in disbanding them and we do not believe it can or should be done in a day.

Hard To Walk Alone

We followed with some degree of interest a report of a court case recently heard in a city in the western section of the province, and it centred in the ability of the defendant to establish the fact that he was in his own home at 11.30 on a certain night. It was at that hour his place of business was found to be on fire. He was alone in his home on that night as members of the family were away visiting so he could get no help there.

According to evidence the defendant had left his home late at night and had gone in the general direction of his store but by a route which he seldom followed. It was a dark night and rather stormy, and no doubt as the man walked along the streets which he seldom used he would take it for granted he was not being seen.

But he was. One man who works at night was putting his garbage can out and was coming along the driveway at the side of his house when accused passed. The second man was just locking up for the night, and saw the man pass under an electric light which is outside his home. The third was driving and had stopped at a street intersection, and the fourth was a policeman who saw him as he neared his store.

It often happens the same way. Possibly it never occurs to the average citizen when going to and from work or when moving about at other times of the day and night how many people actually do see him, and that is particularly so in the smaller communities. No person is prowling about looking for you but in the ordinary course of events some person is bound to have been looking as you passed.

A Farmer States His Case

A farmer sat in this office and discussed his own business. He had not been in the city for two weeks as the roads have been bad, but he finally made the trip by using horses part of the way and then coming in a car with friends who lived on a cleared road. He was speaking of the equipment he had on his farm and admitted much of it was old. "I dare say," he remarked, "if you were getting out your paper with machinery which is as old as mine you'd be in trouble enough."

He admitted the logical reply to such a statement would be, "Well, why don't you get something newer and better?" Actually he wanted that question to be asked because he said he could supply the answer.

"Just how much business is waiting in the country I do not know, but the total amount must be enormous," he stated. "If the farmers were to start in buying all the equipment which they need the factories would be busy for quite a while and the warehouses would soon be empty."

Our visitor explained his own case. "I farm just about the same as do a good many others who have been at it quite a long time. I made it a practice to keep out of debt, because I have seen too many farmers going under from that cause. There is something else which helps us keep out of debt, and that is people do not believe any more that a farmer's credit is much good. I know there are exceptions to that rule but farm credit is far from high today. So there are two reasons: (1) I do not want to go into debt, and (2) I would find it hard enough to do so. Then there is the third reason and it is formidable—I have not the cash to buy new equipment."

Developing that point the farmer put it this way: "I contend that when I sell my produce I should be able to go and buy what I need to produce more. I can remember years ago we used to sell our wheat in the village and there were times when we used to take it to the flour mill. We could get flour back and the bran by leaving a portion of the flour with the miller for his pay. There were grain buyers then who wanted wheat, but today the mill is closed and the grain buyers are dead and no one buys grain there now. We do not seem to have the market we used to have although we are more advanced in the ways of production. If you looked over my farm last year you would have seen fields of wheat, mixed grain and barley beside the hoed crops and you would have said it looked fine and it did. But if I had told you that all you saw was a low-priced crop and not good enough to pay for the cost of production you might have thought of it in a different way, but I would have been telling you the truth. A farmer has to live and pay his way the same as a man in a city, and it is what we have left over after doing that which will buy our new equipment.

"The equipment prices stay up while our prices stay down and that is why the farmer is not buying today. I do not know of a farmer in our district today who would not be in the market for machinery of some sort if he could see his way clear to pay for it. I do not know of a time when there was so much business waiting to be placed, but it will not be placed until there is a new level between farm income and machinery prices. When that time comes it will not be necessary for a man to go around the country looking for business because the farmers will be coming in bringing their orders with them."

We believe every word our farmer informant said, and we also believe the upswing in business will come when the farmer finds he is receiving sufficient income to warrant expenditure.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Everything is stated in military terms today, so if February won't March, well then April May.

China is using mules to haul supplies instead of cars in order to save gasoline. And both of them can act much the same at times.

Three men were executed in Berlin for spying, and reports note it was not stated whether the guillotine or the axe was used. The ultimate effect on the trio would be much the same.

Premier Hepburn says he has plans in mind to reduce the size of the Legislature from 90 members to 72, and he plans also to eliminate all the Tories from the meeting house.

Britain has what is called a "chaser" plane which will go 300 miles per hour. And the people over there are the ones who do not seem to mind in the least if the rest of the world regards them as being a trifle slow.

LOAVES AND FISHES

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Sweet Mary Jane was wed last fall, their little home is rather small, but it is very neat; her husband's friends came trooping in, to have a merry time with him, they craved for things to eat.

¶ Sweet Mary Jane knew what they'd need, she set them up a goodly feed, according to report; the boys all said that she was swell, she used them all uncommon well, and was a pleasant sort.

¶ Sweet Mary Jane financed the house, and laid the thing before her spouse, she liked his friends all right; her cash was running low she said, and never could she get ahead, and feed that mob at night.

¶ She said the reason that they came, was just to fill a sunken frame, the thing had turned her sour; when they came piling in at night, they seemed to think it quite all right, for meals at any hour.

¶ Her husband argued she was wrong, he'd known these chaps and known them long, no cheap skates in that bunch; they'd come and see them any how, if Mary Jane cut off the chow, and canned the midnight lunch.

¶ So Mary Jane went off to bed, was feeling rather tired she said, 'twas flatter than before; when nights of free lunch gone and through, there seemed no other thing to do — for they came back no more.

Whither Bound Asks Deachman

THE EXAMINER has received from R. J. Deachman, M.P., a survey of the debt conditions of the Dominion. Mr. Deachman is known as a low tariff man and rather consistent student of economics. His material comes in three chapters, and the Examiner will present one each day. The first follows:

MR. GEORGE McCULLAGH of the Toronto Globe and Mail has closed his radio addresses—finished his argument and sent out his printed coupons asking members of parliament to forget party advantage and co-operate for the common good.

Personally I am glad that he made these addresses. It is no easy task to make five speeches—one a week, for five weeks! Grinding out a connected story, thirty minutes long, is a tough job—I know, I have done it myself. Even if his speeches had been worthless he would have deserved a knighthood for the effort—and, in my humble judgment, they were worth the price.

Debt and Facts

Let us now put down a few facts if for no other reason than merely to find an anchor to reality. It would be scant honor to Mr. McCullagh if we attempted to discuss these issues without knowing the background. Our national debt in 1914 amounted to $335,996,000. It was mainly the result of railway expenditures.

In that year we went to war. Here is the story of war costs to date.

Direct War Expenditure	$1,666,619,000
Pensions	770,563,000
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment	256,750,000
War Graves	4,811,000
Soldiers' Settlement (administration)	26,055,000
Interest	2,153,465,000
Estimated Loss Soldiers' Settlement	100,000,000
Total Cost of War to end of 1938	$5,014,263,000

We now have these two items—Let us state them in round figures and put them together.

Pre-war Debts	$ 336,000,000
Cost of War	5,000,000,000
Total	$5,336,000,000

Taxes and War

We did, however, collect a considerable amount under the War Tax Revenue Act. These taxes were applied to banks and trust companies. They covered also excess profits, income and sales and stamp taxes. From 1915 to 1938 the total amount collected by this means was $3,266,000,000. Deduct this amount from the $5,000,000,000 of war costs and we have in our debt of today $1,732,000,000 due to the war.

There is another item in our debt pile—it amounts to $924,000,000.

Where does it come from? It represents the cost of the depression. Revenues fell off — costs went up. Money was spent on relief, railway deficits and other things. It had to be borrowed — it was added to the debt.

Let us now sum up in one brief table the whole story of our debt including one item till to explain which amounts to $109,000,000.

Old pre-war debt	$ 336,000,000
Debt due to war	1,732,000,000
Debt due to depression	924,000,000
✧Debt due to "other causes"	109,000,000
Total debt March. 31, 1938	$3,101,000,000

✧—This item is marked as "other causes." It represents expanded services—things the nation wanted but couldn't afford. They were added to the debt.

What are we to do with these debts? The total charge on debts today including interest, cost of management, discount and exchange amounts to approximately $137,000,000. Total expenses of government in pre-war days (1914) was $186,000,000. Are you surprised that costs of government have gone up when interest charges take so much money.

Mr. McCullagh has not told us what we should do to cut down these debts—neither has any other public man. I intend to discuss it at the close of this article. But I would like your opinion—the opinion of the man or woman now reading this article. What should be done to reduce the debts of the Dominion of Canada?

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And in the sixth month the angel Gabriel was sent from God unto a city of Galilee, named Nazareth, to a virgin espoused to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

And the angel came in unto her, and said, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee; blessed art thou among women. And when she saw him, she was troubled at his saying, and cast in her mind what manner of salutation this should be.

And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favour with God. And, behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. (Luke i, 26-31).

RETARDED BY POLITICS.

Mr. Murdoch's withdrawal (from the C. N. R. directorate) cannot be passed over without inquiry into the points he raises. He has not claimed that reviving the Canadian National is a hopeless undertaking, but he is emphatic in his view that adequate energy and enterprise are lacking. Mr. Hungerford's ability as a practical railway man stands high. He may be carrying a greater load than age and health permit. But have he and the board of directors the freedom required for so arduous an enterprise? An explanation as to why the Montreal terminal is proceeding may explain much.— (Toronto Globe and Mail)

Letters To The Editor

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

RESPECT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Quite some time ago I read an article written by Beverly Baxter the English M. P. after a visit to Canada in which he remarked on the apparent lack of respect the Canadian people held for their parliamentary representatives and their government.

Would it be possible that the situation we find ourselves in today (A Leadership League and balloting our Members of Parliament to stop being party politicians and be statesmen for the good of Canada,) could be the outcome of years of disrespect which has reached a near boiling point.

The Canadian people are a respectable law-abiding lot and not above respecting accomplishments which we see in private business and in our city and county councils from year to year, good management leaves little or no debt. Most of us younger generation who are working know that efficiency must go with business if the business is to be a success. How then can we respect a business, our Government, the largest and most important business if it continues to be run in a shipshod manner piling up debt and more debt? All we want is a government that we can respect and be proud of. Is that to much to ask of our members?

HE APPROVES

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I would like to record my appreciation of that excellent correspondence by C. E. Moore (R. R. N. 2, Peterborough) in which he points to the need of the widening spirit of co-operating among the 700,000 farmers across Canada. It is certainly encouraging to see increasing signs that rural Canadians are taking a leaf out of the organization plans of urban Canadians, and balancing the Canadian Manufactures' Association with the Dominion-wide Canadian Council of Agriculture—an objective, by the way, with which the C. M. A. is now in complete agreement. It has been driven home, at last, that getting adequate buying power into the hands of those "700,000 farmers across Canada" is an aim of the first importance for the secondary industries.

It certainly is hightime, Mr. Editor, that there was a wider acceptance of the fact that rural "organization" has a direct relationship with the farmer's bargaining-power, and that (in fact) production is only about half of that rural picture—the other half being marketing?

Even so-called "streamlined American urban executives" are now said to be convinced that denying an adequate "living wage" for the 30,000,000 rural, or near-rural, Americans is not good business technique, and has a most disturbing effect upon the earnings and prosperity of 100,000,000 urban Americans.

The same principles, of course, apply also to Canada—only more so, by the fact that 4.5 millions of our people live "down on the farm" or near it.

GETTING TO MARKET

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have been reading your paper for a long time, and have been as much interested in the state of the roads as in anything else in recent days. You had some pictures of drifts a few days ago and although they were not on my road they looked much the same and possibly you had them much the same on your Tenth Concession.

I am writing this letter in a friend's house before I go home after being at the Saturday market. We did not have a great deal to bring in, just some apples and eggs and a few chickens. We knew what the roads were like and so it was necessary to call up some friends who would likely to be going. They live a good two miles away but their road is not bad and they were going to drive and would be glad enough to have us come along. We used a team and box sleigh from our place and the going was bad. It was badly drifted in and on long stretches there was not a mark to show just where the road was. When we finally got to the other farm the horses were sweating pretty freely and my husband put them in the barn with blankets after rubbing them down.

Then we managed to get our produce transferred to the car and the men had to do some digging at the end of the lane before getting out on the road, and it was quite a piece before the going was even fair. About ten miles an hour was as much as we could do for some distance and of course there was no heater in the car. Perhaps holding a basket of eggs on my knee and trying to keep my feet off the chickens helped me to stay warm.

Perhaps you wonder what I am coming at anyway. Well when we got to the market and put the stuff out for sale a woman came along and wanted eggs and when I mentioned the price, which was a cent or two per dozen more than she had been paying she got excited. As our children say at home she blew up. It was a hold-up because there were so few farmers on the market, and so on. I didn't think it was worth while to try and tell that lady about the kind of trip we had bringing in those eggs because she was not in the frame of mind to listen or understand. Now and then we read something about people in the country and city not understanding the problems of the other and I guess there must be something in it. I am writing this in the hope the lady may read it. I know we had a little shopping to do in some of the stores before starting home and every place we went we paid just what was marked on the goods or what the store keeper told us to pay. If our time and effort were worth anything at all then I think we should have been getting around a dollar a dozen for those eggs on Saturday.

SUGGESTION

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—There is considerable interest generally in the proposed addition to Nicholls Hospital, the estimated cost of which is about $400,000. Everyone admits that there is a moral obligation on any community to maintain proper Hospital Accommodation so that the only question to be decided is if it can be afforded.

Dr. Herbert Young's suggestion that the City start saving for a while before making large capital expenditures in financially sound and this has been the way that most churches and other similar organizations have operated. Any legal obstacle in the way of this plan could be easily overcome.

I am informed that there is usually fifteen or twenty per cent of the St. Joseph's Hospital accommodation not used except at times of epidemics, etc. I have not been in touch with hospital authorities and this may not be correct. However, if it is the case, why couldn't the St. Joseph's Hospital rent one whole floor or wing to Nicholls Hospital at cost until such time as the Protestant taxpayers are in a position to build?

In such a case the Nicholls Hospital would have full control of the floor or wing rented and it would be operated by the Nicholls Hospital staff. Thus the maximum accommodation in both hospitals could be used resulting in a substantial saving. In the meantime the tax would be for only half the amount. In addition to the financial saving it would promote a neighbourly feeling and bring the nursing and medical staffs more closely together.

In conclusion therefore, I would suggest that some of the officials of the both hospitals have an unofficial meeting to see if something along this line could be arranged well in advance of the voting date. During the war, medical officers rendered first aid without bothering about the religious denomination of the patient so that angle need not be considered. As a St. Joseph Hospital taxpayer, I personally, and many others, would be only too willing to allow Nicholls Hospital to use any extra hospital accommodation upon terms to be agreed upon by the two Hospital Boards.

Chinese Sure Of Victory Hoin Hum Says

When Hoin Hum of the Louis Cafe parted from his wife and four children, three sons and one daughter, in Hong Kong, late in January to come back to his restaurant partnership in Peterborough, he had little of the normal assurance of other such farewells that he would ever see them again.

He returned a few days ago after an absence of twenty months, leaving behind him that vast and inscrutable uncertainty that pervades the China of today except an unshakable belief that she will win the war with Japan, and that war has now penetrated into the heart of the central section of the country, and is threatening the peaceful homeland of the Hums in the territory inland from Canton.

The broad and general features of Hum Hoin's story has been told in the cabled press stories that preceded him.

Japs Disillusioned

"The Japanese know they make mistake," he told the Examiner today. "They think it be a quick war, but the people I talk to in China say it may last three years, and no matter, China will win. I talk to a Jap on the boat coming to Vancouver. He told me the people in Japan don't want the war, but they can't do anything about it. They are tired of it now. He said he was glad to get away from Japan. He was one of about thirty Japanese, who got off at Honolulu. They have their homes there; some of them had their children with them."

The last three months of Hoin's stay in China was in the British possession of Hong Kong. "I bring my wife and children down to the sea to be together for a while before I sail. The other fifteen months I spent at my home in a little village about one hundred miles up the Pearl River from Canton. It is about two or three miles in from the river. We take a bus down to the river, and then we go on a sampan, a river boat, that carries about forty or fifty people. It has a sail, and if there is no wind they push it along with poles.

China had blocked the river, so when we got down past Canton, the boat took a side way and we reached Marcao (Marcow), a Portuguese city. We spent a day and a night on the sampan, and then we go on a big boat and in four hours we are at Hong Kong."

Apparently, the sampan avoided the main stream, following the south shore through one or other of smaller outlets to the coast. Hoin said that some times Japanese airplanes swooped down close to the water and turned their machine guns on sampans, killing many Chinese.

Proximity of War

"My family were to stay in Hong Kong until the Chinese New Year, just a few days ago, and then they and their relatives who came with us, were going back. While we were in Hong Kong we got news that Japanese had bombed a town about three miles from our village, smashing and burning a lot of buildings and killing people. That is the closest the war has come to my village, but the people there had seen some planes fly over it.

Japanese—Bad"

When I was leaving my family they know what to do if the Japanese came after they get back. Lock the house and hurry away into the country. Some people I talked to told me what they had seen of the Japanese, and everybody knows about them. When they come into a town they do what they like for about three days. Take any money, take women,—Bad," Hoin's tone conveyed the sinister meaning of words he left unsaid.

"Only old men and women are left where the Japs go. Chinese people go away into the country. Canton is a dead city now, not like it used to be. Japanese even try to make the young Chinese boys and men fight for them. They have maybe one Jap to every four of those boys and they've got to fight or they'll be killed from behind.

China has lots of men, but it has been a big job to train them as soldiers. Where I lived the young men grew up just like here. They didn't know anything about fighting. Now they got to learn. The government only takes the younger men from 18 to 35 years. I am forty-two and they told me they didn't want me of my age, not for long time yet, may be not at all. There were about 250 Chinese on the boat, the C.P.R. "Empress of China." Most of them were going back to United States. The government wouldn't try to stop them because they say Chinese can do more good in the United States and Canada. They make up funds to send bac kto help fight the war, and they can tell people in this country what the Chinese have to suffer."

After all, what could Hum Hoin add to the graphic reports of the pagan and barbarous brutalities of the soldiery of Japan? All he knew from anything like a direct source was that the enemy had gone up country from Canton to about forty miles from his own village, which had not yet been invaded by Japs.

Faith in aKi Shek

Hoin said the people he had met had not lost faith in the leadership of Chiang Kai Shek, and that the new hit and run poli cy, guerilla warfare, avoiding pitched battles, was greatly worrying the Japanese. Opinion even among the ordinary Chinese was that Japan had not enough money to continue the war as long as the Chinese would be able to "wait them out," especially until the armies of new recruits were trained and ready, and also armed, an essential condition that seemed to be the only doubtful factor.

Brutality of the Japanese and their ravaging of girls and women had sown a deep hatred for the invaders that was not characteristic of the people of China. That feeling was expressed everywhere, and was the basic conviction of the Chinese that they would never yield to Japan.

Hoin said that Hong Kong's population of 100,000 was now 2,000,000. Many of the rich Chinese of the south had gone there, and other people who had a little money had sought the shelter of the British flag. It was nothing, he said, for twenty people to be living in one house. They were willing to put up with discomforts and overcrowding, wondering how long Japan would continue to pour its wealth into the frightfulness of their undeclared war.

So Hoin, brought back news from the families and other relatives of some of his fellow countrymen in Peterborough, briefly a story that they do not know the day when the Japs will approach the village they had left years ago, then, bundling up a few possessions they could carry, locking the doors of their homes, mothers and children, some of them of high school age, fleeing before the bestial Japs towards the interior of South China.

Pimples Kill Many a Romance

The lives of many young people are made miserable by the breaking out of pimples on the face.

The trouble is not so much physical pain, but it is the mental suffering caused by the embarrassing disfigurement of the face which very often makes the sufferer ashamed to go out in company.

The quickest way to get rid of pimples is to improve the general health by a thorough cleansing of the blood of its impurities.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. Goodnight Story

By MAX THELL

It was all the fault of the Celluloid Duck. The children had brought it into the playroom and set it next to Mary-Ann, the little rag doll. Then they went out of the room, and, of course, the Celluloid Duck and Mary-Ann began to talk.

"I've just been for a swim," the Celluloid Duck said.

"Oh!" said the rag-doll. "Wasn't it cold? The pond is all frozen over, I'm told."

"Pond? I didn't go swimming in the pond. I went swimming in the bathtub. It was filled with nice warm water."

She's Surprised.

Many-Ann was very surprised. 'I didn't know you could go swimming in the bathtub. I've never been swimming in my whole life," she sighed. "I only wish the children would take me some day."

"Humph!" said the Celluloid Duck. "Why do you have to wait until they take you?"

"I can't go myself. I can't walk. No rag dolls can walk." Mary-Ann was silent for a moment or two. Then she added: "I guess it's just as well that I don't go swimming in the bathtub. I've never learned how to swim. I'd get soaking wet. I'd sink to the bottom. That wouldn't be pleasant at all, would it?"

Can't Sink.

The Celluloid Duck laughed. "You can't sink. You'd float right on the top as I do. Swimming is the easiest thing in the world. You just sit on top of the water and go bouncing around. You won't have any trouble at all. Look! Here comes the cat. She'll be glad to take you for a swim in the bathtub if you ask her to."

"I've just been for a swim."

"But—but—" hesitated Mary-Ann.

At that moment the Celluloid Duck said: "Nonsense, don't be afraid." Then he called to the cat. "Would you mind taking Mary-Ann to the bathtub for a little swim? She'd like it very much."

Gave Her a Bath.

And what do you think? The cat picked up Mary-Ann and carried her to the bathtub and dropped her in.

Splensh!—went Mary-Ann. For just an instant she floated on top of the water as the Celluloid Duck had said. Then suddenly she sank, down, down, down.

Luckily, the children found her. They said: "Poor Mary-Ann!—she's soaking wet!" So they squeezed her and wrung her until the water ran out. Then they hung her on a line to dry. And if she hasn't been taken down, you can be sure she's hanging there yet.

Looking Back
On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS.

Fifty years ago to-day (Feb. 27, 1889), the village of St. George, between Paris and Brantford, in Ontario, was the scene of an unusual railway accident. A trestle bridge caught fire resulting in a passenger train being thrown into the creek. Seventeen lives were lost and many were injured.

The accident is notable because, according to newspaper tradition, it gave rise to great rivalry between the Brantford papers and those at Woodstock in their efforts to reach their public. Both got out extras and each claimed to have beaten the other. Whichever won it was a case of quick work by young reporters, brainy editors and quick compositors on both sides. More than one of the reporters on that day gained national prominence, but most of them have passed on. About the only survivor that I know of is J. F. Mackay, who rode on the wreckink train that day, "scooped" his rivals, and thus began a newspaper career during which he was, for many years, manager of the Toronto Globe. But perhaps he has a rival in that regard, for T. Duff Pattullo, present premier of British Columbia, was, about the time of the St. George disaster, a "devil" in his father's print shop, learning to stick type before brancing out into politics, both of which came naturally to the Pattullo family.

3 Hurt In Collision

GANANOQUE, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP) —Three men were injured yesterday in a collision of two automobiles on No. 2 highway midway between Kingston and Gananoque.

Major Francis Loverock of Gananoque, driver of one car, suffered multiple cuts. Jardine McKerlie of Toronto, driver of the other machine, was badly bruised and his companion, G. Dunton of Toronto, was knocked unconscious and suffered cuts.

The roadway was narrowed by drifting snow and the vehicles met almost head-on. The Toronto men were taken to Kingston.

Franco's Choice

Reports reaching France from Spain indicate that General Francisco Franco, Spanish Insurgent leader, is considering the appointment of his pro-Fascist brother-in-law, Serano Suner, ABOVE, as premier of Spain. Suner, now Franco's minister of the interior, is said to be one of the leaders of the Spanish Fascist falange, and reputedly favors close ties with Italy and Germany.

Miss German Hostess To Hastings W.M.S.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 27.—The monthly meeting of Trinity W.M.S. was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Florence German. Although the day was cold and stormy, sixteen ladies attended. Mrs. Herbert Oliver presided in the absence of the president, Miss K. German. Mrs. Albert Brooks read the Scripture lesson and also contributed an interesting reading. Miss F. German gave a reading entitled, "If It's Yours, It's Interesting."

Plans weer made to hold the hostess tea on Friday, March 3.

Institute Meets.

Mrs. J. A. Brown entertained the members of the Women's Institute at her home for a special meeting when Mrs. G. Sine, local leader, completed her lessons on Buymanship. Dainty refreshments were served after the meeting and a social half-hour was enjoyed over the tea cups.

C.G.I.T. Organized.

The newly organized C.G.I.T. class of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Dodd, held their initial meeting on Thursday evening.

The meetings will be held the second and last Thursday of each month, with the following officers in charge:

Mrs. Dodd opened the meeting with a sing-song. Laura West read the Scripture, and Winnifred Beamish contributed an interesting reading entitled, "Home They Brought Their Warrior Dead."

Following the business transactions and the planning of an afternoon tea to be held in the near future, games were played and a contest was won by Laura West.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER THIRTY-NINE

NEVER HAD airs seemed so endless as to the four of us—we had left Didmore below administering to Minnie—climbed the back flight to the third floor. On and on, up and up, we climbed.

At the second-story landing I paused for breath. Della Craig ran out of her bedroom, her hair a black cloud about her scantily draped shoulders.

"What is it?" she whispered fearfully. Her eyes, black as ink, were filled with dread. "I heard a shot—"

"A shot!" Mac's eyebrows went upward. "Benson, go down and get Didmore up here quick!" And he raced up the remaining stairs two at a time, while Della and I, united by a common fear, clung together and panted behind him.

I do not know what it was that we expected to find, but none of us, myself included, were prepared for the sight that met our eyes as we flew down the corridor that led to Mr. Richard's room.

Grouped about the doorway were the members of the house party, all talking and shouting at once. And as we stared spellbound, the group of its own accord divided itself in the centre, and down this lane came—Mr. Horace!

I think that I went momentarily hysterical at the sight of him. I know that my mouth fell open and that it remained open as the dead, yet living, man approached us.

And then the man spoke: "Don't be alarmed," he said softly. "It was only—only a flesh wound!" The light from the ceiling chandelier struck his body, I saw the blood—the blood that had reduced Minnie to gibbering idiocy!

The blood was on his hands. It glistened in scarlet mounds upon his clenched knuckles. It was on his clothes. The left length of his coat was splashed with blood. I swallowed convulsively. My mouth tasted of blood! I had bitten through my lip!

"Father! Oh, my God!" Daphne Witherspoon sped down the corridor. She was in negligee and her shining hair fell in tousled disarray over her forehead. "What have they done to you?" she cried, and rushed to his side.

"Where's that damned doctor?" shouted Mac. He hoisted Mr. Horace like a sack of meal across his shoulders. "Gangway!" he ordered, and he carried Mr. Horace into Mr. Richard's room and to the bed.

"I'm here," said a bored, emotionless voice, and Dr. Didmore appeared with Phil at his heels.

"Get busy!" Mac commanded tersely. "Fix him up!"

The coroner opened his black satchel and got busy. I looked away and kept on swallowing. I must not be sick on Mr. Richard's beautiful rug! I must not be sick!

Daphne grasped the detective's lapels. "Will—will he die?"

"No—no, he won't die," Mac replied slowly. His eyes were narrow and wise. They looked deep into Daphne's eyes. The girl jerked her hands behind her back; her lips curled ever so tightly. She moved away.

"Where were you when the shot was fired?" Chief Ellis demanded of her.

"Why—why, I was in bed," she said quickly, too quickly.

"I—I was asleep. The noise you made running down the corridor awakened me."

"What time did you go to bed?"

"Oh, quite early! Miss Ritter was in my room until ten; I retired soon after she left." She looked around at me for confirmation.

"That right?" he barked at me.

"That's right," I said and stared hard and long at Daphne. She met my gaze blandly and I let my eyes fall to the floor.

"Oh!" I cried, and rubbed my finger against my lip. "Cut myself," I added hastily as Chief Ellis gave me a peculiar look. I smiled in apology. He went over to the bed.

"Bad cut?" Daphne came closer to me. The concern in her voice did something strange to me. Maybe she was sincere; maybe she was sorry I had cut my lip. But I knew how she could lie, and—and the tips of her brown walking shoes showed beneath the lace of her negligee.

"You forgot to remove your oxfords when you came in," I said tonelessly.

"My oxfords!" she repeated blankly. She glanced downward. A wave of dull red flushed her forehead. "I feel a little faint," she said weakly, and dropped into a small rocker nearby, drawing her negligee closely about her.

"Is Mr. Horace badly hurt?" Della Craig poked her head inside the room. She looked anxious, yet relieved, which, when I came to think of it, was funny, considering that she did not know then that he was not dangerously wounded.

"I'm all right, quite all right," said the victim himself as he sat up in the bed. Dr. Didmore had cut away his coat and had plastered his shoulder with gauze and bandages. He looked pale and sort of drawn about the mouth, but he smiled at us and the tension was somewhat relieved.

"Back to bed all of you!" ordered Mac, but I sat where I was while he sent the others away. Daphne, too, remained seated. She appeared lost in thought. When Mac banged the door she gave a nervous, startled scream.

"The mirror!" she half-whispered. "The mirror! It's—it's shattered!"

I followed the direction of her eyes. The glass of the bureau in the corner was shattered.

"Bullet hit it, eh?" commented Mac. "See anything of it, Ellis?"

"Probably glanced off somewhere," said the chief, and he began to examine the woodwork near the bureau. "Go it!" he exclaimed presently, and placed his finger upon a spot halfway between the floor and ceiling to the right of the dresser.

"Good!" Mac commended him. "Better leave it there for the time being." He returned to the bed. "Mr. Witherspoon, if you feel up to it, we'd like to hear your story."

"Of course." Mr. Horace closed his eyes and opened them again. He said wearily: "I'm afraid that I can't tell you very much. It happened so suddenly."

"You mean you didn't see who fired the shot?"

"No." Mr. Horace shook his head. "I didn't see or hear anyone."

Mr. Horace coughed. "I was bending over the drawer," he began, pointing to the bureau. "I was getting together a few of Richard's things to—to take to the jail tomorrow. I had my hands filled with shirts. I was turning around to place them on the chair when, suddenly, something hit me in the shoulder." He paused and drew a deep breath. Presently he continued: I whirled about to face the doorway. The door was slowly closing. I thought I saw a hand—and a gun."

"Oh!" breathed Daphne, leaning forward. "Oh!"

"Go on, please!" directed Mac.

"My shoulder began to sting. I rubbed it with my hand. Blood came off on my fingers. I went to the bed and lay down. Then—then the door reopened and one of the maids looked in. When she saw me she began to scream, and she went running and screaming down the hall."

"Yes?"

My dizziness passed and I arose and started to the door. The next thing I knew people came running from all directions and—and that is all."

"I see." Mac rubbed his chin thoughtfully. "Was it a man's hand you saw holding the gun?"

"I—I don't know. As I say, it happened so quickly. I caught only a glimpse of the hand. I seem to remember something dark and rough showing above the hand—something like the cuff of a man's suit coat or—or a woman's topcoat."

"I see," said Mac again. Something impelled me to turn and glance at Daphne. She was staring as if mesmerized at her father; her fingers clutched the sides of her rocker so tightly that the veins showed blue and swollen. The sleeves of her negligee had fallen back from her wrists—her wrists that less than an hour ago had been encased in the sleeves of a woman's topcoat—a dark and rough woman's topcoat.

I sucked in my breath. Had Daphne shot her father? Had she come directly from the woods to shoot her father? She had had the opportunity. She had lied when she had said she had been in bed and asleep. And she wore upon her feet the earth-stained oxfords. I shook my head. If Daphne had fired the shot, what had been her motive? Her next words answered my question so surely I scarcely could keep from screaming aloud.

She said eagerly: "Mr. Ellis, this proves Richard's innocence! The murderer is still in the house!"

"So!" The chief frowned. Was he, too, wondering whether Daphne, in her zeal and fury to free her brother, had shot her father to prove the son guiltless?

"Why, yes! It does prove the boy innocent!" Mr. Horace flashed his daughter a look of awe and wonderment. "Surely you will release my son?"

"Have you forgotten the emeralds?" Mac reminded him dryly.

"Richard will explain that," Daphne assured him. "When he knows that he is no longer suspected of murder, he will explain everything. Can't you, won't you release him at once?"

Mac evaded the issue. "I have no authority to release him at any time."

"Won't you?" She pleaded with Ellis. The chief refused quite positively: "He stays in jail until morning."

"Another night in that horrible place! When you know he is innocent!"

"Daphne!" said her father, and she sighed and said no more.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, February 28.

A lively and interesting day is the augury based on the predominant planetary forces in operation. There may be sudden, surprising and intriguing situations, in which good judgment and drastic action seem imperative if mistakes are to be sidestepped and dangers avoided. Be cautious and circumspect in all doubtful circumstances. Keep alert to subtle and vague matters, but use diplomacy and tact to get over treacherous places. The intimate or emotional relations may be troublesome if not discreetly managed.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an eventful, interesting and happy year if they will use discretion, diplomacy and caution in handling some anxious moments that may be caused by hidden, vague or tricky situations. Weigh every proposition with shrewdness and awareness as to ulterior motives, plots, schemes, and intrigues. Intimate affairs should bring happiness.

A child born on this day, although gracious, friendly and likeable, may have depths of character elusive and difficult to analyze. With proper direction and an effort at emotional balance, it may have many worthwhile talents of a creative nature.

Washington Drafts Royal Visit Plans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26—(AP).—A schedule for the four-day visit of King George and Queen Elizabeth to the United States next June began to take definite shape to-day.

After the King's second secretary, Alan F. Lascelles, conferred yesterday with George Summerlin, chief of protocol at the United States department of state, the following plans were drawn up:—

The first reigning British monarchs to visit the new world, 10 members of the royal party, will first touch United States soil at 9:30 p.m., June 7, at Niagara Falls, N.Y., following their Canadian tour.

The King and Queen will travel directly to Washington,, arriving in the capital next morning, Thursday, to be welcomed by President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

At the White House the King probably will sleep in the pink room, and the Queen will have the suite president Hoover made from the old Lincoln study.

Their Majesties will be here June 8 and 9, before going with the president and Mrs. Roosevelt to the Rooseveits' gray stucco home on the Hudson river near Hyde Park, N.Y., for one or two nights. Their visit to the New York World's Fair is set tentatively for June 10, followed by a motor trip to Hyde Park.

Gas Blast Burns 2 Boys' Faces

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 27 — (CP) —Hospital authorities reported today Jimmy Brownell, eight, and Jack Brownell, 17, showed considerable improvement to-day after a restful night. The two were burned badly last night when a pan of gasoline exploded as they were pouring it back into an automobile gas tank. The fire was caused by a nearby coal stove.

Jimmy Brownell was spattered with the burning fuel and his father, M. A. Brownell, 43, went to his rescue along with Jack Brownell. Jack was covered with liquid and almost immediately this caught fire in the rescue attempt, and he was forced to flee and roll in the snow.

The father's hands were burned by flames from his son's clothes, and Bob Brownell, 16, another son, completed the rescue.

Jimmy's injuries were the most serious. His face was scared and his hair burned off. Dr. H. B. Smith said the boy had not lost his eyesight, and should recover from the burns. His hands were burned too.

Jack suffered serious burns over his forearms, his ankles and part of his face. The father's hands were in bad condition and he required medical attention, but not hospitalisation.

The father praised his youngest son's fortitude. "Everybody was running around after the fire asking 'How's Jimmy?' and Jimmy didn't complain at all. He just said "I'm all right.'"

55 Foreigners Stick To Post At Lashan

SHANGHAI, Feb. 27—(AP).—To-day was the deadline for a Japanese assault on Lushan, mountain fastness of stubborn Chinese forces defending Kiangsi province and refuge of 55 foreigners who could not or would not leave.

In view of tense preparations at Kiukiang, 15 miles north of the mountaintop resort of Kuling, military observers believed any attack on the Chinese-defended peak would be merely the prelude to resumption of the Japanese offensive toward Hanchang, Kiangsi provincial capital.

The 55 foreign persons still at Kuling, because of infirmities or for other reasons, including a determination to continue relief work at Kuling, remained behind Wednesday when 48 other foreigners were escorted to safety through Chinese and Japanese lines.

Have you tried Rinso lately?

If you haven't . . . you're in for a big surprise

• Yes! The amazing New Rinso is now yours—a year earlier than we thought we could give it to you. It contains a wonderful new "suds booster"—an ingredient that a few years ago was so expensive we couldn't add it to Rinso without increasing Rinso's price. At that time we predicted we'd be able to give you the New Rinso in 1940. But ladies! You're in luck! Today, the price of this amazing ingredient has been so reduced that we've been able to add it to the New Rinso—at no extra cost to you!

Get Rinso today. See how fast it soaks out dirt—and how safely—without hard scrubbing or boiling. Clothes last longer when washed the gentle "no-scrub" Rinso way. The New 1940 Rinso is recommended by the makers of 26 famous Canadian washers. Grand for dishes and all cleaning. The New Rinso is more economical. And it's easy as ever on hands. It comes in the same familiar box.

Prices Firmer On Market; Produce Scarce

With an attendance of about one-third the normal volume and business in the same proportion, the farmers' market Saturday took quick advantage of the drop in supplies caused by blocked roads. Butter was firm at 28c, with some offerings at 34, and only a slight offering; eggs ranged from 23 cents to 28 and even 30 cents, but the active selling was around 25 to 27 cents. The supply of eggs seemed to be sufficient.

Chickens were scarce at 25 cents, but late comers who had been held up by the roads arrived around the noon hour and were willing to take 23 cents. Potatoes were $1.50 a bag, and the outside market as a whole was about the same prices as last week. Farmers told of having spent hours plowing their way to county and provincial highways. Others had left their cars with highway residents and simply drove to their places and made the change. R. R. Dixon put in most of Friday afternoon breaking a way from his place near Drummond's Station out to Zion, then Saturday morning it took him an hour and a half to make that distance. Apple and vegetable prices were unchanged.

Legion To Sponsor Skating Carnival

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27.—The Legion will sponsor a skating carnival here during the second week in March it was decided at their regular meeting held in the Armouries on Thursday evening. C. B. Williams was appointed to head the committee making arrangements for the event. In view of the fact that it is the government's intention to issue radio licenses through Legion members this year the name of E. H. Armstrong will be forwarded with the recommendation that he be named as local supervisor. President Charles Holmes presided for the meeting.

Geographical Head

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP). — Dr. Charles Camsell, Deputy Minister of the Department of Mines and Resources, was elected president of the Canadian Geographical Society for the 11th term at the annual meeting here last night.

C. G. Cowan and Major General A. G. L. McNaughton, of Ottawa, Senator W. A. Buchanan of Lethbridge, Alta., and Dr. R. C. Wallace of Kingston, Ont., were elected vice-presidents.

Italy Allows Free Speech – Sometimes

Who said freedom of speech was dead in Italy? There is no police in sight to stop this "soap box orator" from holding forth and expounding his theories to a crowd of eager Fascist in Rome. The catch, however, is that the orator is not advocating a new form of government, but is merely exhorting throngs in Rome to buy more state lottery tickets. He explains with some force that 5,000,000 lire will be given out in prizes.

Marmora Hunter Sings Pop Goes The Weasel After Animal Hops Face, Just Once

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, Feb. 27.—A weasel can only run over the face of Sanford Lawrence, Marmora's famous hunter, once and get away with it. So said Sanford to the Examiner representative as the former came to town from the northern woods for the weekend.

Sanford and another villager have been cutting bolts on the old Lawrence property in the northern part of the township. The first night the weasel dared to step on the local Nimrod and rouse him from his dreams of happy hunting grounds, it was politely shown a place of exit. "It was after general provisions that night," quoth Sanford. The next night Sanford had a consignment of fresh pork within his temporary domain and somehow or other his bed was on the trail to the larder. The intruder returned again, and now Sanford can hum as a true story lyric, "Pop goes the weasel."

Strikers Hold Out

KITCHENER, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP). —Workers' demands for wage increases and union recognition are keeping the strike of Kitchener rubber factory employees from settlement. A union meeting last night, although it approved some mediation committee proposals, voted to continue the strike until its original demands were met.

Service Of Prayer Held In Hastings

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 27.—Despite the stormy weather, a most inspiring World Day of Prayer service was held on Friday afternoon in St. George's Anglican church.

The attendance was smaller than usual, but included members from the missionary societies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian, Trinity United and St. George's Anglican church, who met together for the service with the theme, "Let us put our love into deeds and make it real.

Miss D. Plant presided at the organ for the organ prelude and the singing of the five hymns.

"The call to worship, the period of praise and thanksgiving, and the period of recollection of Jesus" was conducted by Mrs. C. Dodd, president of St. Andrew's W.M.S.

Mrs. F W. Newell continued with the period of penetence, and the remainder of the program

A period of intercession was in charge of five members. The prayer for those in special need, for all lonely ones and the victims of war was given by Mrs. R. King; the prayer for children and the youth of the world by Mrs. Wm. McEachnie; the prayer for Their Majesties by Mrs. J. Dainard; for the Christian church by Miss C. Doxsee and for the teeming millions who hunger in body and soul, by Mrs. F. W. Newell.

Mrs. C. M. Baker gave an interesting paper on "The Presentation of the Need of Christian Literature,' explaining the work accomplished by the many women throughout the world in the way of christianization by spreading the Gospel through the Bible socities and the distribution of literature, made possible through the offerings given on the World Day of Prayer.

Following the offering, taken by Mrs. W. Buck, and the dedicatory prayer, the benediction was pronounced by Mrs. F. N. Wewell.

Old Inspector Dies

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Feb. 27 — (CP).—A former Public School inspector for Northumberland County, Albert Odell, 81, died here on Sunday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. R. A. MacDougall. He was a native of England and prior to coming here made his home in Cobourg.

Was my face RED... when a friend told me:

"NO ORDINARY SOAP STOPS 'B.O.' AS LIFEBUOY DOES"

... says attractive Miss Gloria Paige (Letter on our files)

WHY INVITE unhappiness?...When you can set your mind at ease concerning your personal daintiness. Just try this recipe for lasting freshness!

Use Lifebuoy in your daily tub or shower! You're bound to feel the difference between Lifebuoy and ordinary soap! Lifebuoy cleanses so thoroughly, so deeply. And it freshens your skin so delightfully...Because Lifebuoy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not in other popular bath or toilet soaps.

Men and women in all walks of life agree that no ordinary soap they use in their daily baths stops "B.O." as Lifebuoy does . . . And women everywhere swear by Lifebuoy's gentle lather for complexion care!

Successful Conference Is Held By Presbyterian Young People

Ninety delegates attended the first conference of Young People's Societies of the Peterborough Presbytery which started at noon on Saturday and was concluded at St. Paul's Church last night with special evening services. Delegates were on hand from Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville, Brighton, Campbellford and Centreville with almost half a hundred from Peterborough city.

A formal welcome was extended the delegates as they began deliberations on Saturday afternoon by the Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr, minister at St. Paul's. Miss Audrey Ellis was registrar. During the afternoon session the worship service under the heading of "Crusading for Christ" was conducted by the delegates from Port Hope under the worship convener, Miss Minnie Menzies. Very successful discussion periods were held and the groups were in charge of four leaders including Miss Menzies, Miss Helen Pellow, service convener in the Peterborough Y.P.S. headed the group discussing Service; Joseph Randall, of Peterborough led the discussion on Fellowship and the Rev. J. Foote, B.A., B.D. of Port Hope, Leadership Training. Miss Vivienne Jennings of Port Hope, editor of the PYPS, official organ of the societies gave a detailed and interesting report on the success achieved so far by the paper. She urged every member of the Y.P.S. in the Peterborough Presbytery to give their whole hearted support to the paper, and to subscribe for it.

Banquet Is Held

Rev. J. B. Rhodes, M.A. of Cobourg, guest speaker at the banquet in the evening delighted the audience with a description of the church as it was yesterday and is today. Joseph Randall was toastmaster and greetings were brought to the delegates from Roy McCabe, president of the Baptist Young People's Society of the district, and by Miss Clemena Long, District President of the A.Y.P.A. Bob Spence, of Lakefield, President of the United Church Young People's Union also extended best wishes from that organization. Elwyn McGinnis, of Brighton led in community singing. Rev. B. Simpson Black, B.A., B.D., Campbellford, convener of the Y.P.S. addressed the gathering for a few minutes, extending best wishes for the success of the conference. He also responded to the toast to the church which was ably proposed by Jack Craig of this city.

Miss Betty Barr, vice president of the Peterborough Y.P.S. and John Stevens, Ontario president were extended the privilege of reading the scripture lessons at the morning service and on Sunday evening the service was in charge of the Young People. Prayers were said by Miss Audrey Ellis and the scripture was read by Miss Marion Armstrong, president of the Presbytery Y.P.S.

On Sunday afternoon a very educational talk on living conditions in India was given by Miss Bessie MacMurchy, Reg.N. and missionary at Jobat Phil Mission Field. During the course of her talk she urged the members to be liberal in their support of the mission work and said $4,000 had to be raised in Ontario. Several times during the conference Miss Christina Booth of Toronto sang solos and at the evening service on Sunday, her lovely soprano voice was at its best in several sacred numbers.

A stirring challenge to young people of today to put their trust in God and face the many and difficult problems with courage was voiced by Richard Stewart of Toronto, past president of the Provincial Y.P.S. and a fourth year student in the ministry at Knox College.

In his first remarks he paid tribute to the fine qualities of Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr whom he had known in Brantford at the time he made the decision to begin studying for the ministry. He said the theme "Crusading for Christ" which had been chosen as the convention slogan was particularly suitable, and he urged the young people to give God his rightful place in their daily lives, if they wished the strength to fight and conquer life's battles.

A Living Reality

"You must know Christ as a living reality in your heart and like Paul you will be able to press on to the mark. You will hear God's voice if you will but listen and He will be your strength and sustenance in every human experience."

"We have been told that these are difficult days for the church. This is true and it is also true that this is a particularly difficult time for youth. The old cry that the youth of this generation are much worse than the young people of half a century ago can be generously discounted. Young people today are facing problems that would stagger their forbears. They are faced with unemployment, they have no chance to show their ability and the highways have many young men travelling up and down the country seeking employment. We hear too that there is a definite increase in crime among the younger generation. There is the constant threat of war and many young men are saying they might as well go to war because there are no jobs at home."

"You as Christian young people enjoying prosperity are faced with the problem of directing the thoughts of these bewildered youths into the proper channels. The task may seem insurmountable but with God's help a new era of peace and prosperity will be w... by youth.

"High in the mountains between Chile and the Argentine is a large statue of Christ. The statue was placed there as a perpetual sign that the two countries would never war against each other. If only Europe might swing their thoughts to Christ, peace would be much nearer.

One prominent Canadian statesman said recently that the Church has failed. Those striving in the work of the church may have failed but the Church of Christ will endure for all time. Always the church must challenge the sins of humanity. It is a difficult task but a fight that will be won eventually by the church. I have confidence too that the youth of this generation marching down through the years with Christian ideals and courage will solve the great problems of the day, that so far has baffled their elders.

John Stevens of Toronto, president of the Presbyterian Young People's Society of Ontario spoke to the conference on Sunday afternoon.

The British plan would end the Palestine mandate and restrict Jewish immigration and Jewish land purchases in Palestine. Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax and Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald planned to outline further proposals to the Arab delegates this morning and to Jews this afternoon.

It was expected that Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization, would announce formally the Jewish rejection. It was understood that the Arabs would attempt to get prompt acceptance of the plan from their leader, Hat Amin Effendi Al Husseini, Grand Mufti of Jerusalem.

The final proposals on Jewish immigration under the plan were not known, but were believed to call for a steady curtailment annually until a fixed ratio to the Arab majority is reached. Jews said that in the first stage of the plan Great Britain would appoint Arab and Jewish Ministers of the new state on a representative basis. There are 1,000,000 Arabs and 450,000 Jews in the country.

MORE ABOUT—

has been completely blocked to cars for the past ten days, and "it is pretty tough going for the horses," according to Jack Lain, who, with other residents in that district, has not seen the mail man for the past three days.

To Use Snowshoes

George Seguire carries the mail on rural route 1, west of town, and used his light delivery truck to cover part of the route until two days ago when he broke both front axles.

"You can go as far as Godolphin by car and the rest of the way I go on foot." On Monday he expects to snow shoe over at least fifteen miles of his twenty-three mile route. Giving out the mail at the schools is the plan adopted by Victor Hay who cover R.R. No. 4, which takes in Healey Falls and the district on the west side of the river north of the town, which is conceded to be the worst. "I travelled for nearly two miles on Saturday with nothing but the pole line to guide me. The roads can't be found."

The United Churches at Hoards, Zion and on the English Line, have been closed for the past two Sundays. "It's the first time in history that they haev ever been closed," Dr. C. S. Reddick, the pastor for all three, stated. "I can get to Hoards alright myself because the county keeps the road ploughed out, but the congregation doesn't seem able to get there since all the side roads are blocked."

Jack Clark, local grain dealer, is of the opinion there are few good road horses left in the country. Nearly every farmer has his own car nowadays and when roads become blocked all they can do is hitch up a team of work horses, which fall a long way short of the speed of the horses of the pre motor age.

Schools To Likely Re-open This Week

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27—There have been no new cases reported in the past three days according to a statement made by Dr. F. de F. Free, local M.O.H., when questioned regarding the scarlet fever epidemic.

Expressing the opinion that the spread of the disease may have been checked, the M.O.H. intimated that unless there was a change in the present condition, schools would likely be re-opened next week. It was suggested that the ten day incubation period would place the likely opening date at either March 1st or 2nd. There are twelve houses quarantined and fourteen cases reported, according to the Medical Health Officer.

BETHANY

Mrs. Earl Fallis of the South Line spent a few days last week visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brock, George street.

Miss Annie Ingram, Reg. N. of Peterborough returned to Bethany and vicinity to stay with relatives here.

Mr. Vernon Young of Toronto was the guest for a few days last week of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Sisson, Eighth Line and called on former friends in the village.

The many friends in this vicinity will be very sorry to learn of the passing of Mrs. Windell Lowery at her home in Toronto. She had been in fragile health for some time' Interment was made at St. Mary's Anglican Cemetery, Saturday.

Owing to the impassable condition of the roads several social church activities have been cancelled till a later date.

Fraserville Y.P.U. Plans Two Plays

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FRASERVILLE, Feb. 27. — The Fraserville Young People's Union held a very interesting meeting at the home of the missionary convener, Miss Muriel Clarke, on Thursday. A business discussion followed and it was decided that the young people get up two half-hour plays in March, practice to commence very soon. An invitation was extended to hold the next week's meeting at the home of Miss Roberta Wood.

The meeting was turned over to the missionary convener, Bernice Moore read the scripture, followed by prayer by Rev. F. Horton. Dorothy Moffatt read a poem; Jean Holden dealt very capably with the topic on home missions. The meeting was closed with the benediction and the singing of an evening prayer. The hostess served candy and a sociable half-hour was spent.

Janetville Carnival Fills Rink With Moccasin Dance Feature

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, Feb. 27.—The ice carnival held at the local rink on Friday night under the auspices of the Athletic Association was a decided success in every way.

Three school teachers were judges namely, Miss Audrey McKay of North Janetville and Messrs. Grant Real of Fleetwood and P. Hamilton of South Janetville.

The prizes were awarded as follows: Ladies' fancy dress, squaw with papoose, Mrs. R. J. Burn; men's fancy dress, Mr. C. Armstrong; youngest skater, Donald Crawford, age 5; oldest skater, R. J. Burns, age 7; best couple, Miss Bessie Howe and Cecil Armstrong as "Grandma and grandpa"; ladies' race, Wanda Heaslip; girls' race, Helen Deyell; boys' race, Billie Armstrong; men's race, Jack Crawford.

The evening concluded with a moccasin dance to music furnished by an electric radio. Hot dogs were sold in copious quantities throughout the evening.

Weather permitting the association plan to have another carnival in the near future.

Crokinole Party

A progressive crokinole party was held in the United Church on Thursday evening when owing to snow-filled roads only eight tables were necessary to accommodate those assembled.

Miss Audrey McKay won the ladies' prize and Messrs. R. J. Burn and Ross Davidson tied for the men's prize. In the play-off the former was the winner. Mrs. Sam Stinson occupied the lucky chair and won as a prize a pair of pillow covers donated by Mrs. W. Walker.

Lunch and a social time concluded the happy evening.

Relieve Their Misery This Proved Way

WHEN your child comes down with a cold, you can't afford to take needless risks. Use the treatment that has been doubly proved for you—Vicks VapoRub.

It has been proved by everyday use in more homes than any other medication of its kind—proved by the largest clinical tests ever made on colds. (Full details in every VapoRub package.) Only Vicks give you proof like this.

Vicks VapoRub is direct external treatment. There's no dosing—no risk of spoiling appetite, or disturbing a delicate digestion. VapoRub can be used freely, as often as needed, even on the youngest child.

You simply massage VapoRub on throat, chest, and back (as illustrated). Then—to make its long-continued double action last even longer—spread a thick layer on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth.

No Long Waiting for Relief to begin...

Almost before you finish rubbing, the youngster begins to feel warm and comfortable as VapoRub goes to work direct through the skin like a poultice. At the same time its medicated vapors, released by the warmth of the body, are carried direct to the irritated air-passages with every breath.

This double-action loosens phlegm—relieves irritation and coughing—helps break up local congestion. And long after the little one relaxes into restful sleep, VapoRub keeps right on working—hour after hour. Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

LICENSES ISSUED.

Licenses have now been issued under the new taxi bylaw to all the owners and drivers whose applications were accepted by the Police Commission at last week's meeting. The taxi men who are licensed wear identification purposes silver shields, much on the lines of police badges.

TOWING IN CARS.

During the last few days police have had a number of cars that had been left parked on the street for days towed in and the owners have been compelled to pay the towing charges. Complaints were received from the Board of Works that it was impossible to plow the streets satisfactorily because of the cars left out for long periods.

TO PRESENT FLAG .

Ex-service men, with their wives and friends and all civilians, are invited to be present in the Legion Hall tonight when F. J. Merrett will present an 18-foot Union Jack to the Legion in memory of relatives and friends who died in the Great War. An interesting program has been arranged for the occasion and there is no admission charge.

BUSINESS BOOMS

Taxi men had more calls than they could handle on Sunday night, as church goers and others found their cars snowed in by the storm which continued almost without a stop from Sunday morning until nightfall. The taximen found the going easy where the plow had been but had to send for aid several times on the back streets of the city.

HIGHWAY IMPASSABLE.

The highway from Downeyville to Omemee is impassible on account of the heavy snow fall over the week-end, according to Rev. V. G. McFadden. Father McFadden had business in Peterborough this morning but was unable to reach the city. In Downeyville area the only means of transportation is by foot. Even sleighs and cutters are having difficulty.

SNOW BLOCKED STREETS

Week-end visitors in Toronto were pleased with their own city when they returned last night and found streets and roads cleared of snow. At 2 o'clock in the morning Board of Works' employees were still shovelling the roads clear. In Toronto pedestrians were stumbling along in five or six inches of snow, automobiles were ploughing through as much in the road, even in downtown areas.

A DANGEROUS CROSSING.

The public is warned that crossing the ice in the Otonabee river at the foot of Lock street, particularly with vehicles, is a dangerous proposition at the present time. On Saturday afternoon a horse broke through with one foot, sustaining a bad cut and a barricade was placed around the spot to mark it as dangerous. A few minutes later a horse and cutter drove around the end of the barricade and came close to getting into difficulties.

NO C.P.R. DRIFTS

After all Sunday's snowing and blowing, the C.P.R. midnight train arrived from Toronto only ten minutes late. There wasn't a blue note this morning in local C.P.R. circles. Even Bruce Scott, station agent, was back on the job after a three days' bout at home with the 'flue. This morning's freight train got in almost on time, and M. J. G. Jamieson, uptown agent, was reporting increased business for February on all fronts, local, California, Florida and even winter cruise.

TWO NEW FEATURES

Two new hits have been added to the Masonic picnic program for Thursday night of this week at the Y.M.C.A. The first is a ping pong demonstration and tournament to be held in the gymnasium after the basketball and the other feature will be the showing of scenic motion pictures, including some of the prettiest spots in the Dominion. Leo W. Copp is taking care of this second number. Chairmen responsible for the various activities report good progress and the picnic should be an outstanding success.

Gas Sales Down As Cars Are Being Tied Up

Service stations bore the brunt of a business slump on Saturday that has followed on the heels of a series of snow storms and in many instances, entire communities are almost isolated, only a few essential services being operated.

Duffus gas station reported today that gasoline sales on Saturday fell off at least fifty per cent and the story is the same from many others. Snow has fallen so steadily that many city dwellers who have been in the habit of driving cars to and from work have been unable to even get the cars out of garages. Added to this is the fact that transportation of wood, logs and other commodities have been discontinued with with a resultant loss to the service station owners.

Graftons and Zellers both report a noticeable falling in sales and the Canadian Department Store manager said the store might just as well have closed at seven o'clock on Saturday. Business was brisk in the afternoon and during the supper hour, which is unusual, the people evidently came downtown, made any necessary purchases and then denned up for the entire week-end. City grocers state business from the rural buyers on Saturday was negligible but the loss was offset to some extent by city people patronizing the grocers rather than the market as not much produce was offered on the farmer's market.

Orange Lodge Initiates 15 New Members

FENELON FALLS, Feb 27.—Marking an unprecedented revival in the Fenelon Falls Orange Lodge, fifteen young men were initiated into the Lodge, L.O.L. No. 996, recently, by the degree team of Cameron L.O.L. More than one hundred Orangemen were present, representing Lindsay, Reaboro, Port Hope, Cambray, Cameron and Haliburton lodges. R.W. Bro. E. N. Mitchell, Grand Master of Ontario East, Harry Brown, County Master, E. W. Moore, County Treasurer, and Wesley Mason, Deputy Master of No, 32, were present from Lindsay, W. Bro. Ronald Smith of Reaboro, County Secretary, represented Victoria County Lodge, while Sam Archer, P.C.M., Louis Osland, County Master, and Jean Sanders, all of Port Hope, brought greetings from the County Lodge of East Durham. W. Bro. Charles Brown, W.M. of 99°, presided.

After the general meeting an adjournment was made to the basement of the hall, where a fine supper had been prepared by the local committee. Stirring addresses were delivered by the Grand Master and W. Bro. Harry Graham of Kingston, Grand Organizer. As it was also the official visit of the County Master, greetings were extended from that body by W. Bro. Harry Brown and W. Bro. Jean Sanders of Port Hope for Durham County. The latter also extended an invitation to Fenelon Falls lodge to celebrate the coming Twelfth of July in Port Hope.

Using Oregon Trail To Get To Buckhorn

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 27.—The longest way round proved the shortest way home for the Buckhorn stage Saturday. Finding the county road from Lakefield to Buckhorn still impassable, Ed Westlake took the Young's Point-Buckhorn highway and turned west over the recently improved Oregon Trail to Buckhorn. He made the trip in one hour and thirty-five minutes, getting through with the mail for the first time since Thursday.

SKI MEET PICTURES

Suspend Production At Nepheline Mine

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 27.—The road east from Lakefield to the Nepheline mine has been filled in for three days, causing temporary suspension of production. However, the plow is expected to get through from Lakefield on Tuesday, enabling trucks to resume deliveries from the mine to Lakefield.

Dogs Break Into Rabbit Hutch Killing Prize Angoras

PORT HOPE, Feb. 27.—Two dogs broke the glass in a window to enter a rabbit hutch and killed $1,000 worth of prize Angora rabbits here Saturday.

"One thousand dollars will not cover my loss," stated Alexander Foley, Elgin street, the owner. "I had more than sixty orders for young rabbits in the spring. A pair of young rabbits," he added, "are worth $27."

The two dogs, one a collie and the other part police, were captured in the small building in which he housed his rabbits, by Mr. Foley, who immediately called Chief Thomas Murphy. Police state the dogs have been identified.

Ten Angoras, all of which had won prizes at the Canadian National Exhibition and Royal Winter Fair, and one pair which had won first prize among three hundred pair, were killed by the dogs. One of the dead rabbits, Foley said, had been valued at $100 at the Royal Winter Fair in 1937 and was said to be one of the best on the North American continent.

Manual Training In 5 Otonabee Schools Is Meeting With Unqualified Success

Most advanced step in rural school education and on that is meeting with unqualified success in Otonabee township is the recent establishment of manual training classes in five schools, according to Leo Copp, public school inspector.

The course was added to the curriculum of five schools in Otonabee after they had combined under one board, and George Munro of Peterborough is the teacher. Mr. Copp paid high tribute to Mr. Munro's work, said that much of the success of the course is due him. As far as is known, these five schools in Otonabee are the only rural schools in the province in which manual training is being taught.

Mr. Copp told of one youngster who had stopped school previous to the establishment of the course and who is now enrolled again for manual training. In addition to that one course he must take other associated courses, and will acquire a fairly rounded education. Much of the work is done by the students themselves, with the teacher visiting them only to give advice and help them when they reach a point beyond which they have not the knowledge to proceed. In such fashion the course is in exact line with the department of education's new teaching principle.

Pupils are learning how to repair virtually every bit of woodwork to be found on an average farm and are even being taught the principle of soldering, so that they may repair many other articles. They are being taught to fashion articles from tin, such as pails used around the barn, and how to paint them into attractive articles. Every man who works on a farm should be able to do a great deal of his own repair work, is Mr. Copp's contention. He said that results from the course so far have made him happier in his profession than he has been in regard to any other venture undertaken in that time.

Spaniel Rescued From Raceway

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 27.—In a state of exhaustion a valuable thoroughbred springer spaniel was pulled from the mill race here Saturday after it had fallen in from the ice. William Clapper, owner of the animal, was in a nearby building when his attention was drawn to two dogs playing on the ice. He attempted to call the dogs, but they apparently did not hear him and a few seconds later, his dog fell in and disappeared momentarily from view.

He ran to his canoe, which he had placed under a nearby building for the winter, and started across the ice to open water, and started across the ice to open water. He had to force the canoe through soft ice the last few feet before the could reach the animal which was paralyzed from cold and barely able to keep its head above water. He succeeded in getting the animal in the boat but the second dog failed to realize a rescue had been effected and refused to leave the spot where it stood on the ice. Mr. Clapper started up the race twice with the dog following along the shore but each time it would run back to see if it could find its mate. In due time both dogs were brought to the nearby residence of Mr. Clapper. The victim suffered ill effect for a few hours but was all right last night.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, Feb. 27. — The death of Vernon Alexandria Stewart, aged 9 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart of Belmont Township, occurred on Thursday, February 23.

The funeral, which was private, was held on Saturday at 2 p.m. from the Tedford Funeral Home, Queen Street. Rev. D. K. Perrie conducted the service. Interment was made in the Norwood Cemetery.

Havelock League Talks Camping

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 27.—Tentative plans for going to camp this summer, were discussed by the members of St. John's Church Boy's League, at their weekly meeting, Friday evening.

Following the routine opening, the boys received a Bible talk by their leader, Mr. H. W. Roche. Recognition of an invitation to the Father and Son banquet at the United Church, last week was made, it being reported that the leader accompanied by most of the members were in attendance.

Arrangements are being made to put on a motion picture soon after Easter, for the purpose of raising some funds for the organization.

Duffus Is Making Steady Progress

MONTREAL, Feb. 27 (CP)—J. J. Duffus, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Peterborough West, is "improving steadily" from the effects of a brain operation he underwent last week at the Montreal Neurological Institute, a bulletin issued at the institute said today.

CLEAR OUT HYDRANTS

Fire Chief George Gimblett has requested that the citizens cooperate by shovelling the snow around fire hydrants, instead of heaping the snow on top of the hydrants. A little assistance in this work might be of great value if a fire were to break out in a home, and the firemen found it necessary to connect a hose to the hydrant.

Adams To Keep Bush On His Line Up

DETROIT, Feb. 27 (CP)—Manager Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings said today he planned to keep Eddie Bush and Buck Jones for the remainder of the National Hockey League season and that they figured largely in his reorganization program for next year.

Bush, native of Collingwood, played with Guelph juniors last year. He was brought up from the Kansas City team of the American Hockey Association for Sunday's game between the Wings and Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit won 5-1.

Jones, a lumbering, tough player, played with Owen Sound last year.

Berlin Jews Start Forced Flight

BERLIN, Feb. 27 (AP). — With fears for the future, leaders of the estimated 160,000 Jews in Berlin began complying today with a new police order which requires the emigration of 100 Berlin Jews daily.

Beginning today, the leaders must submit each day the names of 100 Jews who can leave Germany within a fortnight. Sufficient names were said to be available to meet the order for the next three or four days at least.

So far as could be determined, the new order affected only the Berlin area, where thousands of Jews from smaller cities have sought refuge.

Hay Placed By Fish And Game Association In Places Where Deer Known To Frequent

A suggestion from Roy Whetung that feed should be placed at several places on Stoney Lake near the Crown Game Preserve for the benfit of deer has found favor with the officers of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association.

On Saturday arrangements were completed with Mr. Coyle, Lakefield trucker, to place a number of bales of hay in places where the deer are known to frequent. Fodder will be placed at a few points inside the game preserve and on the lake, and it will be learned definitely whether Mr. Whetung's suggestion has any merit or not.

Game and fish enthusiasts from all parts of the county are extended an invitation to attend a meeting and entertainment to be held on Tuesday night in the Paragon Hall. Good practical ideas will be welcomed, and members or others are asked to put their suggestions in writing and handed to any member of the executive so that they may be discussed and passed along to the proper authorities for completion.

No admission charge is being made for the meeting on Tuesday night.

City Working Three Shifts Snow Removing

After steadily advancing the snowball into the enemy's territory by hard slugging all week, the city's Street Department was halted on the three-yard line and driven back into their own quarter zone by the week-end's heavy snow fall, losing all the ground they had gained and the cost of the effort in money to be paid out of the taxpayers' treasury.

At that, citizens coming down town this morning from snow-filled back streets were inclined to rub their eyes in wonder and suestion as to whether Sunday's heavy snowfall had skipped the business area. The answer to their surprise lay in the fact that the city's Street Department began at midnight to work twice around the clock in three shifts with all the armament and troops in action, graders, fourteen trucks and the details of shovellers.

By nine o'clock this morning that old-fashioned snow storm of Sunday had disappeared without a trace in the business area, but while the trim aspect of George Street looked more than satisfactory, it was causing City Engineer Parsons considerable financial worry. Cost of snow removal during the last month has taken a big bite of the appropriation for that work during 1939, and when the money is gone there is nothing permanent to show for it. It has simply been spent, and the most tangible return on the asset side of the account is the additional employment that has been provided.

Mr. Parsons said he would have to call on the relief men for forty helpers on Tuesday morning to take the surplus snow off some of the side streets. "In spite of what we have been doing and spending, I am afraid we're going to have ruts on side streets when the weather turns mild. That sleet of a week ago formed a crust that would cost too much to break through. We just have to hope that conditions won't turn against us."

Child Is Found Dead In Bed

Death struck a tragic blow on Saturday in the home of Dr. R. S. MacDonald of Toronto, who is residing in Peterborough at the Theobald Apartments on Water street.

His 4-months-old adopted son, Harry MacDonald, died suddenly after being in apparently good health. A post mortem was made by Dr. W. J. Gordon and death revealed to have been caused by thymus lymphaticus, a glandular condition. Dr. H. N. Young, coroner, said no inquest will be held. The baby's foster mother had seen the infant asleep and apparently quite well only ten minutes before returning to the room to find him dead.

Welder Is Overcome By Monoxide Gas

Jack Hooper, 51 McDonnel street, had a narrow escape from death by monoxide poisoning on Saturday when he fell unconscious at his work at the Peterborough Welding Works on George street. Rushed to Nicholls Hospital, he was given oxygen treatment and responded. He was reported out of danger this morning.

S. R. Meiklejohn, who operates the company with Mr. Hooper, said the latter had been operating a welding machine and had not connected up an exhaust. He was apparently feeling well when suddenly he collapsed on the floor, unconscious. Mr. Meiklejohn telephoned for medical assistance immediately. He, himself, suffered no effects from the poison gas other than a headache, Mr. Meiklejohn said.

Seven Armed Bandits Escape With $800

DETROIT, Feb. 27 (CP)—Seven armed bandits raided what police termed a disorderly house here early today, holding seven women and three men prisoners for three hours.

The gunmen, armed with sawed-off shotguns and revolvers, forced the victims to disrobe and locked them in closets, escaping with $800 loot.

Thousands Of Acres In Peterborough County Soon To Be Devoted To Reforestation

That thousands of acres in Peterborough county would soon be devoted to reforestation was the prediction made by Alex. Elliott M.P.P. in addressing the Men's Forum in George Street United Church on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Elliott was pinch-hitting for Col. Chas. Ackerman who was to have spoken on his impressions of South Africa, as gained in his recent visit, but was a victim of the current epidemic of influenza and was unable to be present.

Mr. Elliott, called on at the last moment, gave an interesting address on the subject of reforestation.

Introduced by E. L. Sackville who was the chairman for the afternoon, the speaker stressed the importance of Canada's forests, quoting figures to show that one branch of the lumbering business alone, the pulp and paper industry, was the greatest employer of labor in Canada, giving employment to 16.2 per cent of all Canadian workers. There was $550,000,000 capital invested in the business and it had a total production second only to that of electric power stations.

Lone Michigan Prisoner Obeys Law Pays For His Keep

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 27 (CP)

ONLY ONE State Prison prisoner is paying for his own keep, although a Michigan law passed in 1933 requires that all prisoners who can afford to do so must pay room and board.

Balfe MacDonald, Flint, Mich., youth is serving a 10-to-15 year term for murdering his mother, regularly pays the 98 cents a day charge.

State officials said they believed now the law was impractical as it had proven almost impossible to check up on the financial status of the prisoners.

Cartwright Man An Orangemen For 69 Years

BOWMANVILLE, Feb. 27.—R. W. Bro. J. H. Devitt, of Burketon, Cartwright Township, Durham County, is one of the oldest Orangemen in Canada. He celebrated his 88th birthday on February 1, and he has been an active Orangeman for 69 years. He still resides on the farm where he was born, on Feb. 1, 1851, just 17 years after the first white settlers arrived in that part of the province. He still belongs to Blackstock L.O.L. 133, in which lodge he was initiated in the year, 1870, and of which he was worshipful master for 14 years. He is also a past district master of Cartwright District Lodge and a past county master of Durham County Lodge, and held the office of county master for seven years. He has been a member of the Royal Scarlet Chapter since 1872 and has held the offices of scribe and treasurer for 40 years.

In the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, R. W. Bro. J. H. Devitt also has a remarkable record. He originally joined R.B.P. 261 in Peterboro in 1874, and he is therefore celebrating his 65th year as a Royal Black Knight. When Devitt 398, named after himself, was organized at Blackstock, in 1888, he was chosen as first preceptor. He was Grand Master of the Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East, in 1892 and 1893, an office which his son, R.W. Sir Knight Creighton P. Devitt held just 40 years later.

Away back in 1896 and 1897, R. W. Bro. J. H. Devitt was Junior Deputy Grand Master of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East. Last year he was made an honorary life member of the Grand Lodge, and he is also an honorary life member of both Blackstock L.O.L. 133, and Devitt R.B.P. 398. He is still hale and hearty and was present at the county celebration at Orono last 12th of July, accompanied in the parade with his son and grandson, all members of Blackstock L.O.L. 133. He was awarded the first prize for being the oldest Orangeman in the parade.

Reeve Of Galway.

R. W. Bro. Creighton P. Devitt, son of R.W. Bro. J. H. Devitt, was also born on the farm where he still resides, on June 30, 1887 He has been an Orangeman for 35 years, is a past master of Blackstock L.O.L. 133, past district master, past county master of Durham West and is serving his fourth year as marshal of the Grand Orange Lodge of Ontario East. He is past commander and has been treasurer of the Royal Scarlet Chapter for the past 15 years. In the Royal Black Knights of Ireland, he has been equally active, and is a past preceptor of Devitt R.B.P. 398, and a past grand mataer of the Grand Black Chapter of Ontario East.

Daniel Thompson Is Injured In Crash

His many friends here will be sorry to learn that Daniel Thompson, former Chief of Police in Peterborough, was injured in an automobile accident in Toronto last week, sustaining an injured knee and several broken ribs, while Mrs. Thompson also received minor hurts.

Mr. Thompson was driving through the York Street subway in Toronto when another car atttempted to pass from behind. Mr. Thompson tried to pull over to allow the other machine more room and his car skidded on the icy pavement and crashed into a subway pillar, badly wrecking the automobile and injurying Mr. and Mrs. Thompson, the former having to go to hospital.

Transient Beats Liquor Rap; Third Offender

Donald McAllister, transient, with a home at Owen Sound, beat a liquor rap in police court this morning and thereby saved himself a three-month jail term, as he was being charged as third offender under the Liquor Control Act.

Although Provincial Constable Don Carruthers swore that he saw McAllister with a bottle to his lips on Highway 28 on Saturday in company with two other men and that he afterwards found a bottle of wine on one of the others, Magistrate Langley, K.C., gave the accused, who was charged with illegal consumption, the benefit of the doubt, as the officer had been unable to say that the bottle he saw at McAllister's lips was the one found afterward.

Pleads Guilty.

Thomas Fosboro, another transient, who was arrested with McAllister, pleaded guilty to an illegal consumption charge and was fined $15 and $4.50 costs or fifteen days in jail. Magistrate Langley declared that carrying and drinking liquor on the highway was not a case for the minimum.

In the charge against McAllister, Constable Carruthers said that he was driving toward Peterborough when he saw three men on the highway in front of him. One of them was McAllister and he had a bottle to his lips. Witness stopped his car and by that time McAllister was still standing where he had first seen him and the other two were walking south. He had found Fosboro, one of the two, in possession of a bottle of wine which was produced as an exhibit.

Constable Gordon Puffer testified that when McAllister was brought into the station there was a strong smell of wine on his breath.

Denies Drinking.

McAllister took the witness stand and swore that he did not have a drink out of a bottle on the highway Saturday. He said that Fosboro had offered him a drink but he did not like the kind of wine he was offered because it made him sick.

Fosboro, called as a defence witness also said that McAllister did not have a drink on the occasion mentioned, although he denied McAllister's story that it was he, Fosboro, who had offered the accused a drink. He said that he himself had had the bottle to his mouth when the officer came along.

Magistrate Langley said that the defence evidence was not very satisfactory but on the other hand there was an element of doubt in the Crown's case, and accordingly he dismissed the charge.

Youth Gets 15 Days For Stealing Eggs

Pleading guilty to stealing a basket and 18 dozen eggs from Gordon Mann, a youth who is noted for his tendency to take care was sentenced by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. in police court this morning to fifteen days in jail.

According to police he volunteered to help Mr. Mann on Saturday to carry eggs from a car upstairs into the market building. He disappeared with a large basket containing 18 dozen eggs and sold them to a nearby grocery.

In court the accused told the magistrate that the money had been returned and asked to be allowed to go as he had a job to go to cutting ice today.

"You should have thought of that on Saturday before you stole the eggs," the Magistrate stated.

"Suspended sentence is not possible in your case," he added. "You have been here a number of times and have given the police much trouble. You had better arrange to get that job later," he concluded as he imposed sentence.

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP).—The Canadian Ruby Union should steer a peaceful course at least for another year—there was hardly a ripple of discord as delegates from East and West met in annual confab here Saturday.

There was a minimum of controversy and western representatives checked a move to bring about a showdown on sectional rule differences and player eligibility. Had the argument progressed, the meeting might have developed into a stormy session.

Western delegates simply reminded the meeting that at the 1938 gathering they had passed a resolution, hoisted as far as the west was concerned until 1940, that all teams wishing to participate in the C.R.U. playdowns must play C.R.U. rules throughout the season.

The meeting passed two progressive resolutions. To continue its work on behalf of 6-man football, the Ontario Rugby Union was voted $200. It was also recorded in the minutes "that the Western Interprovincial Union will undertake to provide whatever financial assistance may be necessary to operate the Western Canada Rugby Union in its promotion of minor and major football."

The western resolution followed discussiomon which was the governing body in the west—the W.I.F.U. or the W.C.R.U., from which the major league interprovincial union has broken as an affiliated body. George Ballard, retiring president, said the matter was a subject for the two western bodies to settle.

Toronto To Boston For Joe Sullivan

Southpaw Joe Sullivan, who won 18 for Toronto, will join the Boston Bees, as will Syracuse's outfielder, Jimmy Outlaw. The Philadelphia A's may have a spot for Infielder Joe Gatenbein of Toronto. Merril May, Newark infielder and a hard hitter, may break into the Phillies' front line. Ken Raffensberger won 15 for Rochester. The St. Louis Cardinals like his looks.

Other rookie graduates include: Pitcher Ted Olson, Toronto, to the Boston Red Sox; Pitcher Earl Cook, Syracuse, to Cincinnati; Pitcher Ken Heintzelman, Montreal, and Infielder John Juelich, Rochester, to Pittsburgh; Pitcher Tom Baker, Jersey City, to Washington.

Outfielder Tony Bongiovanni and Infielders Alban Glossop and Joe Mack of Syracuse and Les Scarsella of Newark to Cincinnati; Outfielder John Winsett, Jersey City, to the Giants; and Pitcher Jim Reninger, Baltimore, to the Philadelphia A's.

Western Trounces Blues By 42-41

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 27 — (CP). —With only one game each to play before the schedule's end, University of Western Ontario and University of Toronto seemed headed to-day for a playoff for the Intercollegiate senior basketball title.

Western pulled even with Toronto in first place on Saturday night with a 42-41 victory over the Blues, crowded by some of the most spectacular moments in the union's annals. The Mustangs won in the dying seconds to register the first decision by any Canadian team over Toronto all winter.

Clem Faust's basket with eight seconds to play was the deciding stroke. After that Scrubby Aitchison of Toronto, another Windsorite, sank a free throw that left the visitors a single point short of Western's total.

Squash Veteran Martin To Quit

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—(CP).—Canada will have a new squash racquets champion next year. Hubert Martin, 27-year-old "veteran" from Hamilton, won his third Dominion title here yesterday, then announced his retirement from competition.

"I'm only 27, but I've had enough," he said a few minutes after a successful defence of his title against the challenge of Harold Martin, his young cousin from Montreal. Hubert defeated Harold 15-10, 15-6, 18-16 in the final, a match of cunning and skill rather than speed.

The little black ball caromed off all four walls of the white-washed court in a dazzling display of angle shots, the "forte" of the Martin family. Hubert proved too steady for his cousin, forcing the challenger into numerous errors.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Just two cage jousts at the "Y" on Saturday p.m., unless you count a so-so exhibition fray betwixt C.G.E. and Quakers. St. John's jumped into third place in the senior men's standing with a 39-28 win over Dominions, their third straight nod; whilst St. Paul's pulled out a neat 36-17 score over Heclas. They don't fool in these tilts, ringing the ball so often the scorer frequently wears out two pencils in an evening. The Quaker-Electrics' melee was postponed, the 'flu having some of the latter lads taking thin soup in bed these days. Jim Thorburn managed to grab off 17 scoring points to run his season's total to 120 for seven games and the rest of the snipers have quit trying to catch Yumpin' Yimminy now.

O.C.B.A. draw is out and two local church teams swing into action this week. St. Paul's intermediates have the Toronto church hoop winnahs here next Saturday, return tussle later in Toronto. If the Saints again win they get a bye while four Western Ontario centres settle a victor for the intermediate "A" finals—St. Paul's taking "B" honors last year. Players now are: Manager George Broadley, Gord McIntyre, Harry Marsh, Doug McPherson, Jim Thorburn, Ross Pulkinghorn, Walt Ward, Pete McArthur, Don Sedgewick and Jack Gemmell — kinda a rugby flavor to that team, eh?

Some Cagey Cagers

As for the juvenile St. John's crew, boys under 17, they've done well in the Senior City Loop here this semester. The Saints play in Port Perry this week and should win both games, second here March 11th. Their next aerial would be 'gainst the Toronto-Lakeshore winner in Ontario semi-finals. St. John's lineup is like this: Vic Coleman and Charlie Jefferies as co-pilots, Jack Craig, Les Ascott, Eric Taylor, Al Marshall, Bob Dyer, Ken Gillespie, Hewitt Amys, Doug Moore and Ted Clark. They should do all right, having height, experience and pepperino in large gobs. And so much for basketball for the present.

Our junior Monarchs have an important puck contest in Lindsay tonight, and they gotta get in there and win, or else. While the local lads are on the w.k. spot, and know it, they have lots of confidence and claim they'll lick the large Midgets of Lindsay-on-the-Scugog in this number. The scrappy local lads did well here Friday in holding this strong "B"—er, we mean "C" club to a 4-2 score, and we trust the larger Lindsay ice surface doesn't fool the Monarchs and let the homesters swish around 'em on defence with nothing more than an elbow tossed their way carelessly. Go it, kids! It's a group final fixture.

Petes In Kingston

And the senior "B" Petes open their playdown series tonight in Kingston 'gainst the Kingston City Club — the R.M.C. gang sorta defaulting, so far as we can understand, by saying they wouldn't go into playdowns even if they won—which they'd little chance of doing. Return O.H.A. game will be here Friday. The Petes feel they can take the Limestone City outfit, seeing as how Trenton Fliers beat 'em out earlier this winter in VanHorne Cup contests. But this mightn't mean so much, as the Kingstons could have improved plenty on artificial ice since then — and they always seem to ice speedy, battling puck bands down in that district. Petes are in good shape and will likely use their regular lineup for this crucial contest. Dunno who the winners will meet, mayhap the Falls again—and wouldn't that be a real series? This is the Kingston lineup, some of 'em having played here before: Goal, Hewitt; defence, Roberts and Nicholson; centre, Burtch; wings, Gow and Gordon; subs, Hagen, Crawford, Boyd, Scrutton and Koshick.

Evidently those intermediate Oshawa hockeyists—and 'tis said every Oshawa team this year has the same style, ala Tracy Shaw—have plenty of ability. They did a 13-10 chore on Trenton Fliers in Belleville the other night, and five of the senior "B" Airmen were aboard. Gees like Lecompte, Legris, McNeeley, Johnston and Brackenbury. With Eric McNeeley getting a tooth busted—and was he as sore as a brand new boil! Looks like a cinch for Oshawa to take intermediate "B" honors, under those circs. Incidentally, the R.C.A.F. gang in the senior loop down around Ottawa lost out in playoffs to the Hull Voiants, 5-3, in the deciding joust of their semi-finals—so the rest of the ex-Trenton players can go back to studying aircraft now, too.

Getting Near The End

In a church bantam ice fray Saturday at All Saints' rink, the George St. Bantams rubbed out All Saints, 3-2, in a sudden-death semi-final. They'll meet St. John's for the title. These church loop playoffs are listed for tonight on the south-west rink: George St. vs. St. John's at 6.00 in first bantam final; George St. vs. Mark St. at 7.15 in first juvenile final; and All Saints vs. Murray St. at 8.30 in the second senior final. All should be ge-finished in this outdoor circuit shortly. And ditto with the South-end Hockey League.

* * * * * *

This from Lindsay: "Peterborough Monarchs are a surprising group of young chaps. They have been underdogs all season and then, when the chips are down, they come through to the group finals and they give the Midgets a good hard fight in the first of the playoffs. If you fans are figuring it a lead-pipe cinch for the Midgets here Monday, get the idea out of your heads. Unless the big ice bothers the Petes, they are liable to give the Midgets some worries. Two goals don't form an insurmountable margin and we expect to see fireworks and excitement supplied in large doses on Monday. The Monarchs showed their power by turning on the heat when Lindsay was short two men and they rattled home two goals within 30 seconds. At that stage of the game things didn't look too rosy for the locals." We trust this proves an inspiration to the lads tonight.

With The Boy Scouts

Coming Along Fine.

On Saturday he had some 17 stitches taken from the wounds on his nose and lip and still has plenty to be taken from inside his mouth and round the eye.

Warren met with the accident while bog-sleighing about a week ago and has been confined to his bed since that date.

The scout movement in the city join in wishing him the best for a speedy recovery to good health and good scouting.

Ice Carnival.

On Wednesday evening, March 1, it has been arranged through the courtesy of the Quaker sports, to hold a hockey tournament between the various troops of the city and other items of interest. Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe is in charge of the evening.

All scout officers, cub officers and members of the local association are asked to attend and bring an old broom with them as a game of brush hockey will be drawn up among the gang. Only scouts will be allowed on the ice, and every boy is advised to wear his button. Come dressed for the occasion and prepared to have a good time.

St. Paul's Annual Banquet

Last week was the occasion of a happy gathering of scouts from the St. Paul's 7th troop and St. Paul's Mission Troop, the 12th.

The tables was pleasingly laid out, the scouts themselves acting as waiters. Mr. Steer, member of the group committee, ably carried out the work of chairman, while Mr. Anderson, another committeeman, acted as song leader, assisted by Skipper Groombridge at the piano. W. Lyburn, also a member of the troop committee, and 1st vice-president of the local association, gave the toast to "B.P.," the Chief Scout, to which Assistant Commissioner E. Wolfe gave a clear record of what the chief had done for the boyhood across the world.

Commissioner J. T. Hornsby then presented three of five boys with their 4-year service stars, these boys being members of the original troop when first organized with Mr. Hornsby acting as scout master. They were A.S.M. Bob Ferguson, Troop Leader Don Flett, Jim Ferguson, Tom Craig and Roger Barrie. Three boys received their two-year star, while one received his first. They are in order named Roy Genge, M. Graham, Don Goheen and Robert Honour.

Mr. Hornsby then introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Rev. Mr. Kelly of Lakefield, who gave a talk on Humor; launching on an extensive and illuminating store of anecdotes—told with a perky and interesting style, which pleased the scouts and guests, judging by the roars of laughter. Rev. Dr. Barr gave a few words of encouragement.

Father and Son at St. Andrew's.

Songs of Home On The Range and Jingle Bells started off a program that followed a well-served banquet of the St. Andrew's cub and scout fathers and sons with the mothers' auxiliary waiting on table. Rev. Dr. G. W. Young acted as chairman; Skipper Groombridge being song leader.

During the evening Cubs Douglas Head, Doublas Morrison and Jim Airth gave piano solos. Jack Dinsdale proposed the toast to the scout movement, Commissioner J. T. Hornsby replying, giving a brief outline of scouting since its inception. He also complimented St. Andrew's on the number of fathers in attendance. Scout Campbell Beaton proposed the toast to the Church; Rev. Dr. Young replying.

The toast to Our Dads was made by Don MacTavish; President William C. English of the local association answering. D. T. Crawford gave an inspiring talk on work, ambition and opportunity, and read several poems on the duty of father to son.

The surprise of the evening was that the Rev. Dr. Young was invested as a scout and presented with his badge of office as chaplain to the group. Rev. R. T. F. Brain of St. John's assisted in the ceremony carried out by Scouter Ingham. Jack Dinsdale was presented with his second class badge.

A Hope brought the program to a close in a vote of thanks to the ladies for the splendid meal. Mr Hope was the first cub master at St. Andrew's when the pack first started, acting at that time as assistant commission for cubbing in Peterborough.

All Saints.

A new cub was added to the world brotherhood on Friday, when Jack Ramsey was invested into the All Saints' pack. Vic Doughty and Bob Kennedy were also presented with their first year service star.

The night was carried out as a cub hobby show, many models of airplanes, scrap books and soap statuettes being on display.

The rover crew have received word from Lord Strathcona in England that they have his permisison to use the Strathcona crest as their crew emblem, but will have to wait one month to secure the permission of the rest of the Strathcona family; the crest depicts a beaver on a green mound eating into an apple tree.

St. John's.

The rover crew paid a visit to the provincial laboratories, where Mr Kelsey explained to them how microbes are discovered and analyzed. The evening was enjoyed by all present.

One of the most successful parents' night was held recently at St. John's when some forty parents attended the cub meeting; only six families not being represented. Akela Frank Pammett gave an interesting talk on the way in which the cub parents might co-operate with the leaders to make St. John's the best pack in the district.

Cub mothers were urged to join the group mothers' auxiliary. Mrs. Cridland gave an excellent account of the work done in the past by the auxiliary and urged the support of all mothers in its future efforts.

During intermission, piano selections were given by Mrs. F. Green and Mrs. Dobson. A skit entitled, "Dad Finds Time," concluded a very enjoyable program; refreshments being served by the mothers' auxiliary. Points for the Sixer competition to date are: White Six, 85 points; Brown Six, 85; Green Six, 77; Red Six, 68; Black Six, 65, and Grey Six, 62.

Sacred Heart.

Mr. Windsor of Mark Street was guest at the pack meeting recently. The mothers' auxiliary provided the pack with a lunch. Gerald O'Dette was invested as sixer of the Black Six, while George Clarke was placed on probation of sixer of the Grey Six.

Mothers' Auxiliary.

A meeting of the joint mothers' auxiliaries will be held in the association headquarters on the evening of Tuesday, March 28, for the purpose of making final arrangements for the special meeting in April when a speaker will come from Toronto to speak on auxiliary work.

All executive officers and members of the group auxiliaries are invited to attend. This is an open meeting.

Combined Church Parade.

Sunday morning was the scene of a joint church parade of the Brownies and Guides of the 1st Peterborough Company, and the cubs, scouts and rovers of the 1st Peterborough group at St. John's Church. The occasions was in commemoration of the birthdays of Lord and Lady Baden Powell of Gilwell—the Chief Scout and Chief Guide of the world. Rev. Canon Robertson gave a splendid address, speaking to both units on the guides and scouts in the Bible; stating that much can be found in the chapter of Exodus that we can fit to our own daily lives.

It is hoped that this parade will be the first of many that the guides and scouts will unite to hold.

Champion Edmonton Grads See Action in the East

Currently touring eastern Canada with their usual overwhelming success are the perennial world champions of the basketball floor, Canada's greatest year-in-and-year-out athletic aggregation, the Edmonton Grads. They are seen in action here as they scored a 62-25 victory over the combined forces of two Toronto clubs. The Toronto forces were augmented by the presence of Stella Walsh, Polish all-round athlete, and a cage star in United States, Mabel Munton, Grad guard, is seen getting away a shot at the Toronto basket, while over to her LEFT are Helen Northrup (hands at sides) and Jean Williamson, taking the place of Capt. Noel MacDonald at centre, in front of a Toronto players. At the LEFT, Etta Dann (6) is coming into the play.

George St. Wins Over All Saints

George St. Bantams eliminated All Saints, 3-2, Saturday at All Saints' in a Church Hockey League semi-final fray, sending the winners into the finals against St. John's. It was a tight tussle before last year's champions bowed out. Smith scored in the first, but All Saints took the lead in the second when Lee and Wheeler scored, one being deflected in by McCurrach. Shortly after, Smith counted the tying and winning goals on nice plays. The two goalies, Mason, Smith and Wellwood stood out in this game. Tilts tonight: George St. vs. St. John's in first bantam final at six, George St. vs. Mark St. in first juvenile final at 7.15, and All Saints vs. Murray St. in second senior final at 8.30. The teams Saturday:

Referee—Don Charlton.

Hart Massey Chosen Cox For Oxford Crew

OXFORD, England, Feb. 27—(CP Cable).—Hart Massey, son of Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner in the United Kingdom, today was chosen cox of the Oxford crew for the intervarsity boat race with Cambridge April 1.

Massey, a student at Balliol College, who is about four feet tall, also was contender for the same post in 1937 and 1938.

J. L. Garton, boat club president, announced the dark blue line-up for the race.

As far as could be recalled, Massey is the first Canadian to obtain his rowing blue at Oxford, though an old Oxonian recalled that Jeff Taylor of Toronto, pre-war rugby and rowing star, almost got his blue.

The Oxford crew was announced as follows: Bow, G. Huse; 2, J. L. Barton; 3, A. Slemick; 4, R. R. Stewart; 5, R. Burnell; 6, F. A. Waldron; 7, H. A. Forbes; stroke, R. Bourne; cox, H. Massey.

Dominions Lose And Heclas Drop Decision

St. John's led all the way to beat Dominions 39-28 and move into third place, and St. Paul's drubbed Heclas 36-17 in Saturday night's Senior City League basketball double-header before a good crowd, in the Y.M.C.A. gym. A third game, Quakers against C.G.E., was postponed, an exhibition game being played between these teams.

Jim Thorburn, St. Paul's high scoring forward, added 17, to bring his overwhelming total up to 120 for seven games, while Gillespie and Craig, St. John's forwards, changed places, Gillespie moving ahead of Craig into second place, both players far in arears of the leader.

Standing, including this week's games:

	P	W	L	F	A
St. Paul's	7	5	2	262	184
*Quakers	6	4	2	139	116
St. John's	7	4	3	173	153
Heclas	7	3	4	145	145
Dominions	7	3	4	157	209
*C.G.E.	6	1	5	76	139

On Even Terms

Dominions and St. John's fought on even terms through the fast opening minutes of their game, until St. John's opened the scoring, building up a lead from then on and having a 21-12 margin at the half.

It was the Anglicans third straight victory, placing them alone in third place.

Good shooting from outside the loser's defence and a better passing attack gave St. John's the edge, Dominions having a good part of the play, but spoiling their offensive with bad shooting from in close.

St. John's made five points from the free throw line and Dominions dropped in 2 out of 3. All the winners shared in the scoring, Gillespie, Dyer and Ascott starring, with Weese, Hamill and Grose best for the losers. The teams:

Dominions (28)—Centre, Hamill (8); forwards, Weese (10), Dundas (4); guards, Grose (2), Wolstenholme (2); subs, Csumrick, Rennie, Hunter (2).

St. John's (39)—Centre, Craig (6), forwards, Gillespie (15), Clark (4); guards, Dyer (4), Ascott (4); sub, Marshall (6).

An Exhibition

Quakers and C.G.E. had to postpone their scheduled game, the Electrics being short of players, but played an exhibition game, Quakers winning 35-25.

C.G.E., using players from other teams, with some of their own, had a 15-14 lead at the half, but Quakers lead by Jackafby, had a 21-10 edge in the last period to win 35-25.

St. Paul's took a commanding 25-6 lead in the opening half and, though held on even terms, 11-all, in the closing period, won easily 36-17. The winners went ahead early and were never behind, Heclas fighting hard and having a good part of the play, but shooting poorly from in close.

St. Paul's had a good, fast breaking, clever passing attack, making most of their points from in close. St. Paul's were guilty of fouling 8 times to the losers 11, the winners making 2 points through foul shots and Heclas three that way. Thorburn, McPherson and McIntyre starred for St. Paul's and Turner, West and Dougherty for Heclas. The teams:

St. Paul's (36)—Centre, McArthur; forwards, Thorburn (17), Pulkinghorn (6); guards, Marsh (5), McIntyre; subs, Gemmel (2), McPherson (6).

Referee, W. Ferris; umpire, K. Gillespie.

Lindsay Given Game

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 27. — After dropping their first game in the Juvenille O.H.A. playdowns to Lindsay by a 4-3 count on Thursday last, the local squad found it impossible to visit Lindsay for the return bout on Friday. The game was cancelled and Lindsay was conceded the two points which may carry them on to the Hepburn Trophy which is the prize offered to the winners of this group.

In the Bantam and Midget section two games are still being held in abeyance until the schools here re-open. The Midgets are slated to meet Whitby in home-and-home games, and Toronto Imperials have yet to play their series with the locals.

LEAFS DRUB BRUINS IN A SMART DEFENSIVE HOCKEY GAME

Leafs Trounce Bruins 1-0 At Home, Let Detroit Beat Them 5-1; Canadiens Tie And Trim Blues

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Soon curly-haired Claude Bourque may be at Kansas City kicking out American Association pucks, but for the moment the young Nova Scotian goaltender is a National Hockey League success —a prime mover in Montreal Canadiens' drive toward a play-off position.

Bourque came to the Canadiens from amateur ranks last fall while Willie Cude suffered a nervous breakdown and no adequate professional replacement was in sight. With Cude back on his feet after a 14-game absence, Claude was shipped to Kansas City and just about forgotten until the regular Canadien goalie was injured a week ago.

again, grabbed an airplane ride and again, grabed an airplane ride and joined the Habitants to do one of the season's great goal-tending jobs. In a double-header this past week-end he held the second-place New York Rangers to one goal and Montreal slipped into the sixth and last play-off position in the standings.

Walter Buswell

At Montreal on Saturday night, the Canadiens came from behind to gain a 1-1 tie with the Rangers. At New York last night Bourque registered a spectacular shutout as Habitants mowed down the Blueshirts 3-0.

All this was accomplished in spite of a long list of injuries through the Montreal line-up. Herbie Cain and Stew Evans are out with minor hurts, George Mantha and Jimmy Ward are through for the season and Babe Siebert was able to play only briefly. And Siebert and Cude have been regarded as the club's main inspirational forces.

But there was no lack of inspiration among the Flying Frenchmen against the Rangers. Lynn Patrick sent the visitors ahead after 15 minutes of the second period at Montreal and in less than four minutes Polly Drouin had tied the score. The Habitants battled grimly the rest of the way before one of the biggest Montreal crowds of the season—10,500 fans.

Toe Blake picked up three assists and strengthened his position as point-making leader of the league at New York. He helped Walter Buswell to a goal in the first period and Johnny Gagnon and Paul Haynes to the others in the second. It was the Canadiens' first victory of the winter over the Rangers.

Chicago Black Hawks supplanted Canadiens in last place. Before 11,000 Chicago customers, the league-leading Boston Bruins kicked the Hawks down the cellar stairs with a 5-1 decision. As the Boston team trangup its seventh straight victory over Chicago, Milt Schmidt, Roy Conacher, Dit Clapper, Ray Getliffe and Porky Dumart shared the winners 7 goals in typical Bruin fashion. Earl Robinson scored for Chicago in the first period after Boston had gained a 2-0 advantage.

Boston was smarting with reason.

CURLING

By HERB. MARTIN

It has been our lot to be at the rink every day for the last three months, and during that period we have heard the curlers, before and after games, make all kinds of excuses and alibis; we have heard them jolly each other about different shots; we have heard many a wisecrack, all in good humor, until now we have become pretty well acquainted with just what to expect from the individual player, so today we will pass up the usual line and give the readers something different. We will quote the famous sayings of some of our curlers. If it doesn't prove interesting it will be at least be a diversion:

Cyril G.—"Hard, hard, hard."

Walter O.—"You never catch me being late?"

Ross F. D.—"Hard boys, every inch, whoa, stop."

Charlie W.—"Did you hear the one about?"

Tommy D.—"If he had of only played the shot I pointed out."

Ike B.—"We was robbed."

"Rochester" D.—"Oh yes, oh yes."

Dave G.—Very quietly "Nice going."

Bruce S.—"We should have won that one."

Norman H.—"As I was going to say."

Jim G. H.—"Oh. yes; oh, yes, just so."

Jimmy W. R.—"I'm sorry I was late boys, but I could not help it."

Harry J. W.—"Aint I some curler"

Harry F. F.—"Did you get your annual yea?"

Norman L. P.—"From now on, I'm going to butt in on everything."

Rev. G. E.—"He played the wrong shot, didn't he?"

Geo. C.—"Silence, please."

At Toronto Saturday night the Maple Leafs whipped the league-leaders 1-0 before the season's record crowd in Maple Leaf Gardens, 13,947 paying patrons.

Bucko McDonald

Bucko McDonald scored the only goal in the first period, whirling in with Gordon Drillon. After that the goaltenders waged a brilliant duel and Toronto's Turk Broda scored his eighth shutout of the winter. Boston's Frank Brimsek leads the league in that respect with nine.

Sylvanus Apps and Harvey were out of the Toronto lineup through injuries and the Leafs found two week-end games too much under the circumstances. Detroit Red Wings strengthened their hold on fifth place by defeating them 5-1 last night at Detroit, Herbie Lewis leading the Wings in one of their better showings with two goals.

India's first woman judge, just appointed in Travancore, is a Christian, Mrs. M. Chandry.

Starring With New York Rangers

High scoring right wing on one of the N.H.L.'s most productive lines is Bryan Hextall, ABOVE, of the Rangers. Teamed up with speed-artist Dutch Hiller and centre Phil Watson, Hextall has been banging them home regularly this season and has looked about as good at his position as anyone in the league.

U. of T. Makes Clean Assault Sweep In Whole Four Divisions

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Under the direction of Athletic Director Warren Stevens, University of Toronto has built its dominance in the annual Intercollegiate assaults-at-arms to a new peak.

Toronto's athletic mentor and his assistants scored one of their greatest triumph on Saturday night as finals of the two-day competitions in wrestling, boxing, fencing and gymnastics were staged.

Toronto made a clean sweep in all four divisions, scoring 10.68 points to 2.34 for Queen's University, Kingston, 2.00 for Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and 1.00 for McGill University, Montreal. Fencing results did not count in the totals.

Toronto boxers made the ring program outstanding. Jack Piggott, slender 165-pound champion, retained his crown with ease by knocking out Pete Percheson of Queen's in the first round. Ted DeWolfe, a newcomer to title fights, climaxed the evening's best bout with a decision over Pete Stanley, McGill, in the 155-pound final.

Toronto's only losses in the glove division were the 175-pound and heavyweight titles. Leo McDonald of Queen's won the 175 after Ted Currie, Toronto, withdrew. Tom Hughes of McGill took the heavyweight crown on default of Bob Radmore, O.A.C.

Drops Three Wrestling Bouts

Toronto's greatest number of losses in any section was three suffered in the wrestling. Joffre Carrere of O.A.C. took the 118-pound match from Irving Lapin of McGill. The 145-pound title went to Orval Wells, Queen's, who won a decision over T. Buchan, Toronto, and Pete Malachowskie, another Queensman, won the 155-pound grapple from Jack Amos, Toronto.

Art Scott, Toronto, deserved the 175-pound title he won in his match with Faye Begor of McGill. The bout went into four minutes overtime before a decision was reached.

The fencing was staged as a separate event. Al Garcia, Toronto, defeated team-mate Bob Wilson to retain his individual honors, while Garcia, Wilson and J. N. Emerson wrested the Charles Walters Team Trophy from McGill, holders of last year's foils crown.

Team and individual honors in gymnastics were successfully defended by the Toronto squad. Headed by J. Macdonald, who took the solo title, Toronto scored 4,912 points. McGill rolled up 3,932, and Queen's 3,284. O.A.C. did not enter gymnastics or fencing divisions.

More Graduate To Big Time

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 . — (CP). — If the major leagues lasso as many star rookies from the International loop this spring as they did a year ago, they'll be more than satisfied.

That fast AA circuit contributed Johnny Vander Meer, baseball's first double no-hit pitcher; Frank McCormick, the Cincinnati first-sacker who got more hits than any other National leaguer, and Joe Gordon, the New York Yankees' second-base flash. That's just to mention a few.

A year ago Gordon was the most-publicized recruit as the clubs moved to training camps. This spring Newark again offers perhaps the best-known rookie in Charles Keller. This 22-year-old outfielder has led the loop in hitting for the last two years and thinks it is about time he was getting into the New York Yankee pasture.

Warren Rosar of Newark, who'll give New York's Bill Dickey some catching assistance, hit .387 to Keller's .365, but didn't play in so many games as Charley.

Expect Another.

The Cincinnati Reds, who already have potentially the best pitching corps in the senior circuit, expect another winner in Charles (Red) Barrett, the crooning right-hander who yodeled in a 16-and3 mark with Syracuse in 1938.

The New York Giants will employ a trio of Jersey City graduates. George Myatt came up after midseason last year and played a sweet third base. He led the Giants in stolen bases and hit .305. Bill Terry looks for him to top the National League in pilfered sacks. Pitcher Hal Vandenberg, up for a while in '38, may be ready to stay for sure, and Catcher Tom Padden may round out the mitt staff. The Giants also roped Pitcher John Wittig of Baltimore, who looked good in his few games last season.

The Chicago Cubs think they have a real comer in Outfielder Jim Gleeson from Newark. Leslie Powers of Jersey City likely will be the Philadelphia Phillies' first baseman.

The Yankees' pitching staff is hard to crash. But Joe Beggs, Donald Atley, and Jack Haley of Newark, will have a chance to join Gomez, Ruffing et al.

Georgas Takes Canadian Slalom Title

By Charlie Edwards
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

FORT WILLIAM, Feb. 27—(CP).—Reidar Andersen of Norway held a majority of Canadian ski titles today but a youngster who learned to ski from a textbook and a veteran coming back after a five-year lapse due to serious injury were the national meet's heroes.

Slim Louis Georgas of Owen Sound, Ont., thought skiing "a good idea" four years ago tried it. Louis liked it and wanted to learn, so he bought all the books on skiing he could find in Owen Sound and last year he entered his first Dominion meet at Ottawa. He was fifth in the slalom and 11th in the combined downhill-slalom.

In the three-day championships concluded here yesterday the 19-year-old Owen Sound boy was fifth in the downhill, won the slalom, beating even the great Andersen, and was third in the combined behind Andersen and Lew Devis of Vancouver. Davis won the closed combined.

Georgas, swarthy, five feet, four inches, 140 pounds, of Greek extraction, is an apprentice theatre projectionist in Owen Sound. He became Ontario slalom and combined champion last week in Peterborough.

Louis is a champion but he won't stop studying. "If I could relax in the slalom like Lew Davis I'd have something," he said. "The books tell you how but it's not as easy as it looks. But I'll learn." The study angle cropped up again. "That slalom was one for a thinker. You had to think all the way down, study it."

Record of 177

Andersen won the open jumping yesterday, setting a hill record of 177 feet, after jumping 168 and 173 in the competition. He was open downhill champion, too, with Punch Bott of Montreal the closed downhill king.

Andersen was conceded the jump but the closed championship was a triumph for Ole Bakkelund of Temiskaming, Ont., competing for the first time since he dislocated a shoulder in an accident at his home five years ago.

Last spring the 31-year-old Bakkelund underwent an operation in which an 18-inch muscle was taken from his leg and transplanted to the shoulder. In his first competition yesterday he won the closed jumping with leaps of 143 and 146 feet and a point-total of 210.1. Andersen had 234.1 points.

Punch Bott, who made his first jump at the age of 10 on the hill near his Montreal home and who became Canadian champion at 16 in 1934 and again in 1936, was third in the open jump with 205.7 points and leaps of 136 and 143.

Jack Landry of North Bay, Ont., jumped 143 and 153 but his style was defective and he placed fourth with 205 points. But Landry, in an extra trial for distance after the main event, led the closed competitors with a leap of 161 feet.

Kurt Lovgren of Temiskaming won the combined jumping and cross-country with a point total of 428.5 with Eric Judeen of Duluth second with 409.6. Gault Gillespie of Ste. Agathe, Que., who won the cross-country on Friday, did not compete in the jumping. Lovgren jumped in sixth place and was third in the cross-country.

No Place Like Home

The world's bantamweight boxing championship will be on the line when Sixto Escobar, ABOVE, the champ, tangles with K.O. Morgan in Puerto Rico on April 2. It was in Puerto Rico, his home town that Escobar took the championship from Harry Jeffra a year ago, after losing it previously to him in New York. The champ has engaged in many non-title affairs in between and is quite adept at losing this type of bout. But for the title in Puerto Rico.

East Peterboro' League Standing

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 27. — Although the regular East Peterborough Rural Hockey League schedule officially wound up last week, several games which were unavoidably postponed due to road conditions must be played as they effect a change in the group standing. An effort will be made to have the schedule completed by next Saturday, so that the playoffs can start the first of next week.

The present standing of the teams is:

	P.	W.	L.	T.	Pt
Hastings	11	9	2	0	18
Indian River	9	7	2	0	14
Elgin	11	6	4	1	13
Havelock	10	4	5	1	9
Westwood	9	4	5	0	8
Trent River	8	2	6	0	4
Donegal	11	1	10	0	2

Indian River Squad Treks 2 Miles Then Trounces Westwood 6-5

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 27. — Indian River pushed into second place in the East Peterborough Rural Hockey League, when they won a close 6-5 decision from Westwood, in one of the cleanest matches witnessed at the Norwood arena this season. There was in fact only one penalty handed out throughout the tussle, this in the final period to a Westwood player for boarding.

The fact that they were snowbound didn't prevent the ambitious Indian Riverites from getting out for the game. Their sideroad made impassable by the heavy snowfall, the team and several of their staunchest supporters set out afoot across the field to the highway, a distance of some two miles, where they had arranged to be picked up by the Westwood bus. Their victory made the return journey seem a lot more pleasant.

During the first period the play was fast and fairly even, each team missing several fine chances. At the 14-minute mark, Brown opened the scoring for Indian River, tallying unassisted. Gill retaliated with one minute remaining in the session, to tie the score at one-all. Gill failed on a penalty shot in this period.

In the second frame, Indian River applied the pressure, netting four goals, Westwood failing to reach the score sheet in this stanza. Brown scored unassisted two minutes after the period had started. Taking a pass from J. Clark, Brown scored again and then picked up his fourth of the game on a solo rush a few minutes later. Max Tedford combined with brother Russel to notch Indian River's fifth goal, which concluded the scoring for the period.

Going into the final session, four goals behind, Gill started a one-man power play for Westwood, scoring thrice in the space of four minutes, unassisted. Half-way through the period Indian River recovered and Brown notched his fifth of the night, for their final goal. Westwood continued to press and Buck rammed one home in a scramble of players in front of the net, taking Gill's pass.

Brown, who scored five of the winner's goals, and Gill, who notched four for the losers, were individual stars of the game. Both goalies, Doherty and Richardson, pulled off some nice saves, being effective in the nets despite the count. Max Tedford, J. Clark and W. Green were best among the Indian river lineup. The line of Gill, Sargent and Buck were most effective for Westwood, with Mortlock also doing good work.

The teams:

Indian River: Goal, Doherty; defence, Holmes, J. Clarke; centre, Brown; wings, M. Tedford, R. Tedford; alternates, W. Green, N. Clark, G. Hogan.

Westwood: Goal, Richardson; defence, Morris, Mortlock; centre, Gill; wings, Buck, Sargent; alternates, Chaplin, Graham, Rylott, Thompson Warr.

Referee, B. Puffer, Norwood.

Summary:

First Period

Indian River—Brown 11.07
Westwood—Gill 11.15

Second Period

Indian River—Brown 11.32
Indian River—Brown (J. Clark) 11.33
Indian River—Brown 11.39
Indian River—M. Tedford (R. Tedford) 11.52

Third Period

Westwood—Gill 12.04
Westwood—Gill 12.06
Westwood—Gill 12.08
Indian River—Brown 12.21
Westwood—Buck (Gill) 12.22

Penalty—Graham.

Remember When—

Glen Cunningham mad a new world's indoor record for the 1,500-metre run at New York a year ago to-night. The barrel-chested miles from Kansas covered the "metric mile" in three minutes, 48.4 seconds, clipping 1¼ seconds from the former mark set by Gene Venske, who finished second 35 yards behind Cunningham.

Madoc Takes Series From Albert College

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Feb. 27. — In the second game of the home-and-home series with Albert College on Friday night Madoc High School defeated the Belleville lads by a 5-1 score on their own ice. By taking the round 11-4 the locals are winners of the Eastern section of the Bay of Quinte Division, C.O.S.S.A.

Madoc and Norwood meet this week to battle it out for division honors.

Two penalties were handed out in a clean game refereed by Townsend of Belleville and Watson, Madoc.

MARRIED

NEWALL—PAYNE.—The marriage took place on Thursday, February 23, at George Street United Church Parsonage, of Marjorie Alice Payne, daughter of Allen L. Payne, Warsaw, and Gordon Frederick Newall, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Newall of Warsaw. Rev. M. C. Parr officiating. The attendants were Miss Edith Spence and Mr. Kenneth Jakins.

IN MEMORIAM

ATCHISON.—In loving memory of a dear brother and nephew, Raymond Atchison, who passed away three years ago to-day, February 28, 1936.

Just a memory fond and true
To show, dear Raymond, we think of you.
Memories drift to scenes long past,
Time rolls on, but memories last.
—Ever remembered by his sisters Mary Violet, Hazel, and Aunt and Uncle, Mr. and Mrs. S. Todd.

DUNNETT.—In loving memory of Mrs. James Dunnett, who passed away February 27, 1938.

Our hearts still ache with sadness,
Our eyes shed many a tear.
God alone knows how we miss you
As ends our first sad year.
Happy hours we once enjoyed
How sweet their memory still,
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
—Sadly missed by her daughter, Mrs. Lois Fleetwood, Miss May Payne.

DUNNETT.—In loving memory of my mother, Mrs. James Dunnett, who passed away February 27, 1938.

The face I loved is now laid low,
Her loving voice is still,
The hand so often clasped in mine
Lies now in death's cold chill.
I often sit and think of her
When I am all alone
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
—Ever remembered by her daughter, Mrs. M. Vincent.

Rotary Club Marks 18th Birthday

Rotarians celebrated the 18th anniversary of the founding of the club in Peterborough today, when former members and several guests joined with the regular members at dinner in the Empress Hotel. It was also the 34th anniversary of the birthday of Rotary.

T. J. Carley, K.C., one of the four member who gave five minute talks when the special speaker, Bill Cairns of Montreal was unable to attend, struck a responsive note when he urged that greater stress be put on the Advisory Vocational work which is a part of Rotary service.

"We have a great problem before us today, in that many young people graduatting from universities and big schools find themselves at a dead end and start to drift. Rotarians can step into the picture and give the necessary advice to these young people at a time when they are sorely disturbed by their problem. It is not always the successful man in a business or a profession who can give the best advice, very often the failure or the man who has been only moderately successful has profited the most from his experiences."

"We could do a greater service to this community if we let it be known that young men and women are privileged to come to individual members or to the Advisory Vocational committee for advice and guidance," said Mr. Carley.

History of Club

Fred L. Roy, the first speaker and first president of the club when it was formed in 1921 said that a man has no right to live in a community and make his living there without contributing something either in effort, money or service to the general well being of the community as a whole. He said he could look back over the eighteen years with pride because through the achievements of the Rotary Club, Peterborough had become a better place in which to live.

Dr. H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School in his five minute contribution read a treatise which outlined clearly the aims ideals and purposes of the Rotary Club.

Ross F. Downey, another former president spoke on the Rotary motto, "He profits most who serves best," and during the course of his remarks he said the idea of Rotary was to efface selfishness and introduce a plan calling for service to others.

Formed 34 Years Ago.

President Jim Dutton said that Rotary has continued to flourish since its birth 34 years ago. At the present time there are 4,816 clubs throughout the world, with a total membership of 202,000. There are 3,066 clubs in the United States, 148 in Canada, 466 in Great Britain and Ireland, and the balance in other parts of the world.

"Rotary has felt a few setbacks in some of the European countries, but through no fault of Rotary. Opposition came because of a misconception of oRtary aims and ideals," said Alderman Dutton.

Mayor James Hamilton spoke in reply to a warm welcome to the guests and former members.

Condolences were extended to J. W. McDermid and V. J. McElderry, K.C., two members who have both lost their mothers in recent weeks. Mr. McElderry was not at the dinner.

The former members who attended are: Mayor James Hamilton, A. A. Fowler, G. D. Carlisle, Walter Belleghem, Alpine MacNab, R. J. Kidd, V. R. Henry, W. J. Thompson, Harry Thompson, R. J. Bolton, Gordon Matthews, and A. R. Kennedy. Guests included Simon R. Armstrong, City Clerk and honorary member, E. A. Outram, J. J. Dorris, Martin B. Chenhall, Charles Cummer, Charles Elliott, and Henry Rowland. They were introduced to the gathering by Rev. Dr. A. T. Barr.

11 Champion Horses Bought To Stock Experimental Farms

Halifax, Feb. 25 (CP). — Bound for Canadian government experimental farms and private farmers throughout the Dominion, 12 champion horses, six of them stallions, were aboard the freighter Delilian when that vessel arrived here last night. The animals will be taken off the Delilian at Saint John, N.B.

The six stallions are all full-blooded and of the finest breeding stock in the world. All except one, a six-year-old Clydesdale, will be delivered to experimental farms. The Clydesdale has been purchased by a Markham, Ont., farmer.

Classes Closed

CORNWALL, Ont., Feb. 25—(CP)—Classes in all Cornwall schools have been closed for a week because of the prevalence of common colds and a mild type of influenza.

While doctors said there were few cases of a serious nature, attendance in some schools has been reduced about 50 per cent. The average is 40 per cent. Normal school attendance is about 5,000. Many teachers are ill.

Two Societies Meet For Day Of Prayer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Feb. 27.—The W.A. of St. James Anglican Church and the W.M.S. of the United Church united in observance of the World Day of Prayer service held on Friday afternoon in the United Church. Mrs. Ernest Crowe represented Alderville United Church.

The service was led by Mrs. Earl Braithwaite, W.A. president; Mrs. L. W. Scott, W.M.S. president; Mrs. D. Brisbin, vice-president, and Mrs. Ernest Crowe, Alderville.

Mrs. R. Crego spoke on the topic, "The Day Thou Gavest," and gave a summary of the service of the previous year, spiritually and financially. Services held in outlying mission fields, in village and hamlet, in luxuriant city churches were described, as from the rising until the going down of the sun, the prayers of countless thousands ascended to heaven.

The offering was received by Mrs. C. W. Varcoe and Mrs. James S. Brown. A duet, "Rock of Ages," with musical arrangement by Herbert Johnson, was sung by Mrs. L. W. Scott and Mrs. A. Nill. Mrs. L. Turner, W.M.S. organist, presided at the organ. Despite weather and road conditions, the attendance was good.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Dummett, Mrs. Herman Parsons and Mrs. Frank Dummet of Hamilton were guests this week of Mr. and Mrs. Fred George. Mrs. Earnest Gall and Miss Amy Down of Cobourg were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George also during the week.

Guatemala shipped nearly 9,000,000 bunches of bananas to the United States last year.

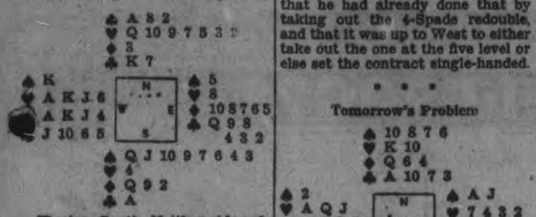
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER
By SHEPARD BARCLAY
"The Authority on Authorities"

DENIALS OF STRENGTH

ORDINARILY A BID shows a certain amount of high card strength, but some in certain situations advertise the contrary, weakness. That is the case with original pre-emptive bids, with high jumps on a fairly early round of bidding, and with almost any kind of bid when the call which reaches you is doubled by either your side or the opposition. The taking out of the double carries the natural meaning that you think your side will be better off in some other declaration. Let us hope that when you make such calls your partner will know you are not proclaiming great defensive strength, or even any at all.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

When South started the bidding on this duplicate deal with 4-Spades, West doubled and North redoubled. East cut in with 5-Clubs, which was passed to North, who bid 5-Hearts. South shifted that to 5-Spades, which West doubled and North redoubled. East passed this to see if his partner wanted to let it stand, or go out to 6-Clubs, but West decided to pass.

West got bottom score on the deal, because of his combination of leaving in the redouble and making a lead which gave South an overtrick. He led the club J to the A. South then dropped the trump K on his lead to the spade A, discarded his only heart on the Club K, then gave up a diamond and later ruffed his other two diamonds.

In the East-West argument that ensued, based on the fact that 6-Clubs would have been set only one or two tricks, West tried to tell East he should have taken out the redouble, when he knew his hand was so weak defensively. East retorted that he had already done that by taking out the 4-Spade redouble, and that it was up to West to either take out the one at the five level or else set the contract single-handed.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

What is the best match-point duplicate bidding of this deal?

00 Expected At Formal Dinner And 5,000 At Garden Party During Royal Visit To Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP).—The seating diagram's the thing. Much is being done in planning menus, decorative schemes and so on for official and semi-official entertainments when the King and ueen visit the Dominion capital in May. But the personally absorbing question to many people is "where does one sit"—if and when—at the several gala functions planned for the royal stay in the Dominion capital.

Placecards for nearly 800 persons of high rank in Canada's table of precedence will be made out for the formal dinner given by the government at the Chateau Laurier, May 19.

Long tables will be placed in rows in the chandelier-lighted dining room of the hotel. In a smaller dining room off the main room tables will be set to accommodate those of lesser precedence.

Lieutenant-governors of the provinces would take first place next to the governor-general and his consort and the prime minister, but it is believed unlikely they will all be present at the Ottawa function as each will be host to the royal visitors in the respective provincial capitals.

Diplomats and Clergy

Diplomatic representatives of foreign powers follow. Although Baron Robert Silvercruys is dean of the diplomatic corps, a position earned by length of service in this country, he is a bachelor, and the first feminine claim falls to dark-eyed Countess Robert de Dampierre, wife of the French Minister to Canada. Following the Count and Countess, places are designated for Baron Tomii, Japanese Minister and Baroness Tomii.

It is possible that a ministerial appointment will be made from Washington before the royal party arrives. If not John Farr Simmons, as acting U.S. Minister, and Mrs. Simmons, will be placed next in order of precedence. Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Farnam as sister-hostess of the Belgian Minister is included with the diplomatic corps.

Church dignitaries, archbishops, bishops and moderators of the various denominations and their wives will take the next places at either end of the table.

Cabinet ministers and their wives follow. Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, heads the list followed by Justice Minister Lapointe, Public Works Minister Cardin, Finance Minister Dunning, Trade Minister Euler, Secretary-of-State Rinfret, Defence Minister Mackenzie, Pensions Minister Power, Revenue Minister Ilsley, Fisheries Minister Michaud, Labor Minister Rogers, Transport Minister Howe, Agriculture Minister Gardiner, Postmaster-General McLarty and J. A. MacKinnon, minister without portfolio.

The High Commissioner for the United Kingdom and Lady Campbell and the accredited representative in Canada for the Union of South Africa and Mrs. David de Wsal Meyer, are next in order.

Sir Lyman P. Duff, chief justice of Canada, comes next and is followed by the retired chief justice of Canada, former Prime Ministers of Canada, privy councillors, speakers of the senate and house of commons, provincial prime ministers and consuls-general.

Rideau Hall Affairs

Accommodation in the banquet room at Rideau Hall will limit the invitation list for the dinner to be held when Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir will play host to their Mejesties. Usually state dinners at Government House are attended by only 125 men. With the addition of women guests, the list of guests will be nearly doubled.

More than 5,000 persons will be invited to a large garden party in the elm-shaded grounds of Government House. Caterers will be kept busy supplying tea for such an enormous crowd and it is expected the simple refreshment of strawberries and cream and small cakes, served each year at the governor-general's garden party, will be the order of the day.

Jew Highland Reserve In Kenya Meets Indian Opposition

Nairobi, Feb. 27 (CP-Havas)

A NEW order-in-council of the British Governm.nt continuing the existing practice of reserving the Kenya highlands for settlement of Jewish refugees Friday drew an announcement from the executive of the East African Indian Congress that it planned to resist application of the measure.

A Hartal (day of mourning) has been fixed for March 1, when the order formally goes into force, and street processions are being organized by the congress.

German Airliner Lost, 10 Aboard

BERLIN, Feb. 27 — (AP). — Luftbansa, German aviation company, announced to-day that a plane carrying 10 passengers and crewmen, was lost yesterday somewhere in the Mediterranean.

The plane was on a special flight from Germany. The company said it had not determined exactly where the plane went down.

An official statement said: "On a flight over the Mediterranean a German airplane carrying the markings D-ALUS came to grief, according to news reaching here. Both she and her 10 occupants must be considered lost."

Ships Start Search.

LAND'S END, England, Feb. 25—(AP). — The Land's End radio station messaged ships in the Mediterranean to-day in an effort to trace a German air liner reported missing with six passengers and a crew of four.

"German airplane, radio call D-ALUS, from Balearic Islands, for Gulf of Genoa, has not reached her destination. Please notify radio stations and ships in vicinity."

The plane was said to have left the Balearics—a group of five islands and some islets off the Spanish coast and the scene of much aviation activity during the Spanish Civil War—late on Friday for Italy.

Mystery surrounded the disappearance of the plane, which apparently belonged to the military air force. Neither its destination nor its passengers' names were divulged by the air ministry. Lufthansa, Germany's only commercial airline, said the plane was not its property.

Kidnappers Again Active In U. S.

Eight-year-old Anne Louise Sweitzer, of Winter Haven, Calif., has been safely returned to her parents after police arrested Townsend Davis, 40-year-old gardener and church organist in connection with her kidnapping. In another section of the U.S., G-men have entered the search for Abner Nelson, wealthy bachelor, farmer of Morris, Ill., who is mysteriously missing from his home and is believed to be the victim of kidnappers. Bloodstains and evidence of a fierce struggle in the driveway of Nelson's home have lent impetus to the suspicion that he has met with foul play.

Increase Farms Of Small Acreage Aim Of New Zealand Government

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Feb. 27. — (CP).—An entitrely new land policy is likely to be seen in operation in New Zealand shortly, says the New Zealand News Letter.

Aimed at increasing the country's production the Labor Government of M. J. Savage plans to add greatly to the number of small farmers in New Zealand and also to the total acreage of land under production.

The plan is first of all designed to further the Government's announced objective of increasing production so that the country may bear the increased standard of living it is hoped to provide by the Social Security Act, and it also has several highly-important secondary objectives.

Among these are the diversion of men from public works to land clearance—thus, it is contended, from non-revenue producing work to work actually increasing production—and ultimately the diversion of these men, for whom industry may find some difficulty in giving a permanent place, to land settlement.

By the use of the most modern machinery to bring into use for farm production thousands of acres at present almost valueless because it is not cleared.

To divide this newly-cleared land into small farms, all of them near existing forms of transport, and mostly all near to towns, and provide an opportunity for people not at present farmers to go on the land under favorable conditions.

To divert to this scheme of land clearing numbers of the men at present employed on public works, to use public works machinery and officers for the job, and eventually to place on the farms so cleared men now working on public works.

By drainage in some cases, irrigation in others, and scientific treatment of the land, to bring into cultivation as well acres of land at present cleared but not fertile enough to support successful farms.

Observe First Friday Of Lent At United Service In Lakefield

(Examiner Correspondent.)

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 27. — Friday, first Friday in Lent, brought observance of the "World Day of Prayer," when the different churches of Lakefield were well represented at an afternoon meeting held in the Lakefield United church.

"Let us put our love into deeds, and make it real," was the theme used internationally in this program of world prayer.

A piano prelude by Mrs. H. E. Moore preceded the call to worship, with which Mrs. (Rev.) G. F. Kelly introduced the service. "Teach us that love is stronger than hate; that perfect love casts out fear," was a part of the petition in the opening prayer.

Mrs. Orville Redpath, representing St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, took charge of a period of praise and thanksgiving, and of recollection of Jesus. A responsive reading was led by Mrs. S. E. White, of St. John's Anglican church, who was in charge of a period of penitence.

A period of intercession, led by Mrs. M. A. Harvey of the Lakefield Baptist church, followed.

Special Prayers Offered

In response to a request by Mrs. Harvey, Mrs. James Ridpath, of the Presbtyerian church, prayed for all those in special need; Mrs. (Rev.) W. B. Walker, of the Baptist church, for the children and youth of the world; Mrs. J. Twist of the Anglican church, for King George VI and Queen Elizabeth, their councillors and advisors, and all heads of nations; Mrs. Johnston, of the Gospel Hall, prayer for the Christian church, and Mrs. W. J. Charlton, of the United church, led a petition for those sections of the world where teeming millions hunger in body and spirit, needing Christ and Christian leadership. A prayer for world peace was made in unison.

Mrs. Dora MacMillan sang as a solo the selection "Sprit, Strength of All the Weak."

Need For Literature

A paper on "the Need for Christian Literature," was presented by Mrs. J. M. Simpson of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church. Mrs. Simpson stressed the need of Christian literature throughout the various missions in China, India, Egypt and Africa. She stated that, of all times, Christian society in China, now needs most the Christian message. In India, 900 out of every 1000 cannot read at all. Those who have learned to read drop back into illiteracy because there is no literature available. Egypt is almost devoid of books and tracts.

"The great need," Mrs. Simpson said in conclusion, "is for a large supply of Christian literature in simple language for the masses of the people."

Following the offertory, the ladies joined in the dedicatory prayer.

Hepburn Sticking Present Session

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP).—Premier Hepburn, commenting upon reports of his imminent resignation as head of the Ontario government owing to ill-health, said today there is "no doubt" he would be forced to resign if his health fails to improve but that he intended to lead the government in the forthcoming legislative session.

The premier returned yesterday from a two-month trip to Australia. The voyage was made to benefit his health and he said there now is no immediate concern regarding his condition and he has "enough knowledge of my own physical reserves to believe I can go through the session."

He added:

"I have been told by my doctors that if my blood pressure does not come down I will not for long be able to stand the pressure and strain of public life. High blood pressure leads ultimately to hardening of the arteries—which brings you to the end with a great deal of pain and suffering."

Child Refugees Stir Heart In French City

By Gladys M. Arnold
Canadian Press Correspondent

PARIS, Feb. 27.—(CP)—If you want to see Spanish refugee children go down to one of the nurseries in a south station, advised Miss Margaret Dreyfus—who made it her job several years ago to have nurseries for transient travellers with children, built and equipped in several of the Paris stations. I did and I went.

A thick gray fog gave the Orleans station a damp and even drearier aspect than usual. The public nursery was cheerless and practically deserted. I waited around a while until a commotion outside announced the arrival of the train. In a few moments out of the fog appeared about 100 to 120 children—babies—invading the station.

After days of trudging along bomb - threatened roads, after months of fear and privation—separation from parents and sisters or brothers—cold and hunger—walking in mud and water with only worn-through sandals or no shoes at all; after such dolorous days that it seemed beyond human capacity, the 12-hour ride up from the frontier on hard third-class seats—but safe—seemed to have been a taste of heaven for them.

Ragged and Dirty.

Imagine this ragged, motley crowd—black eyes, but not childish eyes; blue circles beneath the eyes which reach half way down their pale cheeks; hands red, chapped and dirty; hair matted, bodies which have not known soap and water since . . . !

Imagine clothing of all kinds, much of it many sizes too large; odd scraps of wool, men's caps pulled down over dirty heads, scarfs dragging and others with blankets, the ends caked with mud, for even when looped over their little shoulder and around their necks, they trailed on the ground.

In a moment the room was filled with a hot, feverish, suffocating odor exuding from the huddled group, many of whom flopped down on the floor. Some sniffled with colds—others looked ready to faint with fatigue.

Shock An Observer.

A man entering the station stared at them a moment and said suddenly in English, "For God sake—what is it?" He stood apparently rooted to the floor, gazing helplessly.

"It's evident isn't it—Spanish refugee children," I said. It was a relief to feel indignant that he did not already know.

He seemed paralyzed. Then turning to me he said, "Oh, my God, get them something to eat," and grabbing my arm he rushed to the "buffet" counter and asked me to order hot milk and sandwiches for the whole lot. He paid on the spot.

"My God, my God!" he kept repeating over and over again as though he had seen a ghost. "Oh, my God—I've a boy of five myself." Then he turned and rushed out, still muttering, his face white and his eyes filled.

There is one bright sustaining thought—in another few hours they were taken in charge by a relief committee in one of those generous towns where the citizens were preparing shelter, food and clothing; they would be bathed and put into real beds—for the first time in I dare not think how long. No planes roaring overhead will awaken them and send them out in trembling terror in the middle of the night.

Many Are Orphans

Talking later with a relief worker she expressed the thought which haunts the minds of many people. "What about the parents of these children? If they are living how will they ever find them again—scattered far and wide—many adopted? The tragedy is only begun." Many again are orphans. What is the future for them?

Looking at those babies in the station, waiting, absolutely helpless and dependent upon the charity of the human heart, I remembered the streets of London and having seen so many veterans of the Great War selling pencils or shoe strings — holding themselves erect against the walls, on their coats pinned their war medals in the hope that little emotion, a too-short memory might be stirred and people would buy.

Money (not enough of course) is pouring in from all Christian countries to buy food, medical supplies and clothing to relieve this suffering.

Looking at these things, and thinking of the security, the comparative comfort, peace and freedom from care back in Canada, I, as a Canadian wanted to shout from the housetops of every city, town and village in Canada—that it is not enough to attempt to repair the damage done—it must be prevented —it should never hapepn again.

People in Europe are tired; countries are cut across with century old hates, prejudices, injustices, privations. If you meet a person (individually) of any nation in Europe, the result is always the same, eyes are turned to America where they seem to have discovered the secret of living together in peace. The initiative must come from America.

No planes are roaring over the heads of those Spanish babies tonight, carrying death—sending them out of their wits in terror again.

But for how long are they secure?

Chamber Backs Daladier In His Proposal To Recognize Franco

Paris, Feb. 27 (CP-Havas)

PRIOR to official tabulation of the vote the French Chamber of Deputies today was believed to have given the government a majority of about 328 to 261 on Premier Daladier's request for a vote of confidence on the question of recognizing General Franco's government in Spain.

Prior to the vote Daladier informed the chamber he would propose recognition at a council of ministers Monday.

Ice Floes Jinx Toledo Tanker

KINGSVILLE, Ont., Feb. 27—The tanker Paratex bucked through half a mile of thick ice surrounding this Lake Erie port to-day as it sought to escape to its home port of Toledo. Port authorities said they would not know until about noon whether the Paratex would get through, or would require aid of Amherstburg tugs.

Capt. J. B. Erbse shifted ballast on the boat last night and escaped from the sand or gravel bar on which the boat had been marooned.

He started efforts to break through the four-mile ice field at dawn to-day, and after three hours had managed to clear a half-mile passage. Meanwhile Capt. J. Earl McQueen of Amherstburg kept his two tugs ready to go to the Paratex's aid on request.

Sulphide Mother Of 19 Children Has First Real Sickness At 57

KINGSTON, Feb. 27. — Mrs. George Akey of Sulphide, the mother of nineteen children, fifteen boys and four girls, all of whom are living, is a patient at the General Hospital here undergoing surgical treatment for the first time in her life.

Oscar Akey, the only married son, who accompanied his mother to the city, said to-day that it was the first sickness that his mother had experienced in her lifetime.

"My mother," he said, "is 57 years of age and my father 63 years. They were married twenty-five years my father worked at the Sulphide plant, and when he had to retire on account of ill health my older brother took over the duties, which consists of sharpening steel.

"My mother is anxious to get home, as this is the first time in her life that she has been away from her own bed for so long a period. Although we are a large and healthy family, we always seem to get along well. As boys, we have certain things to do about the house, and the work does not fall so heavy on my mother. When my four sisters were married, two of my brothers took over the household duties which they performed, and we have gotten along O.K. The oldest of the family is aged 35 years and the youngest 9 years.

"We have enough boys to have a baseball team, but we have never received a challenge or we certainly would have accepted," said the son.

When suggested that it must have taken a lot of food, Mr. Akey said that it tooks sometimes thirty pounds of butter a week.

For years we used to pick a lot of blueberries, and it was nothing for my mother and some of the boys to pick thirty-two pails of berries a day, he said. "My mother could pick ten pails herself."

Mrs. Akey plans to leave for her home, which is five miles from Tweed, about the first of next week.

Municipal Budgets Strained As Fast-Piling Drifts Boost Snow Removal Costs

Major Cities In Ontario Have Already Spent Appropriations For Present Year With Another 4 Weeks Of Winter To Go

(By the Cana dian Press.)

The piling drifts left in the wake of this winter's heavy snowstorms have sent snow removal municipal budgets of Canada's larger centres soaring to peaks that in many cases may reach record proportions. With about one month of winter remaining, the cost of snow removal and treatment of pavements for ice hazards already is twice as heavy as last year in some cities.

With Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto far out in front, an estimated $2,000,000 has been spent so far this winter in 20 Canadian cities and towns to clean streets and to sand or cinder icy pavements. No accurate comparison is possible with last year but authorities report the cost is greatly in excess of that for the winter of 1937-38.

An estimated $825,000 has been spent on snow removal in Montreal. A $750,000 appropriation for disposal of snow has been exhausted and the civil administration had to switch $75,000 from another fund.

Use 6,403 Men in a Day.

As many as 6,403 men have been employed in Montreal, exclusive of the suburban cities of Westmount, Outremont, and Verdun, to clear snow in a single day. Their equipment included 1,560 sleighs, 584 trucks, 36 ploughs, five snow blowers, and three tractors. Most of the snow there is dumped down sewers.

Toronto appropriations for snow cleaning and cindering—no sand is used unless cinders are unavailable—totalled $85,150 this winter, about the same as last year. But Controller Fred Hamilton said yesterday an extra appropriation of at least $50,000 is necessary to clean the main thoroughfares of snow, "otherwise it will cost at least three times as much to remove it after it has been packed down."

The fall of snow in Toronto this season has reached 54.8 inches, almost twice as much as the normal fall for the season to the end of this month of 28.9 inches. Last year the total fall for the winter was 30.9 inches and this year's fall is the heaviest since 1922-23.

Ottawa, a much smaller city than Toronto, though in an area where the snow fall is heavier, has spent $100,000 this year compared with $160,000 for all of last winter. The February snow fall there of 38 inches has been the heaviest since February, 1916, when 42½ inches fell.

Costs Up in West, Too.

Western Canada, like the East, has had heavier and more severe snow storms this winter. Calgary has spent $21,800 to date this year compared with $21,745 during all of last winter. Expenditures at Winnipeg have increased from $36,400 last winter to $49,850 to date this year.

Cost will be heavier also at Edmonton where 1937-38 expenditures totalled $22,370. January was an exceptionally heavy month and cost

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP).—In the first month of operation of the new Canada-United States trade treaty, the Dominion's exports to the American republic totalled $36,277,000, an increase of 75 per cent. compared with $20,733,000 in January, 1938, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. Canada's total exports to all countries during the month at $81,046,000 was an increase of 14.1 per cent. compared with $71,022,000.

During debate on the trade treaty in the House of Commons last week Opposition members attributed the increase in U.S. exports to the fact many exporters held their normal December exports until January to take advantage of tariff changes.

Exports to the United Kingdom, Canada's other best country in trade, dropped to $25,554,000 from $33,570,000 in January, 1938, a decrease of 23 per cent. Australia was Canada's third best customer in January, export to that country totalling $3,053,881, against $3,156,183.

With Other Lands.

Exports to other countries with figures for January, 1938, in brackets: Japan, $2,274,426 ($2,167,265); New Zealand, $2,074,860 ($1,155,701); British South Africa, $1,841,054 ($875,514); Germany, $904,598 ($648,396); France, $825,299 ($988,719); Belgium, $820,456 ($407,022); the Netherland, $738,587 ($800,041).

Of Canada's total imports in January, foreign countries supplied $32,738,000 worth compared with $36,765,000, while the amount from Empire countries was $11,004,000, against $12,955,000, showing decreases of 15.1 and 12 per cent, respectively.

Imports from the United States at $28,790,000 recorded a decrease of 11 per cent. compared with $32,330,000 in January, 1938. Imports from the United Kingdom fell 19.8 per cent. to $7,110,000 from $8,864,000.

HeavySnowBoon For Dust Bowl

LAMAR, Colo., Feb. 28.—(AP). — A snowfall ranging in depth from six to 17 inches anchored down today the travel-bent topsoil of the south-western United States "dust bowl," home of the black blizzard of the drought years.

Lamar, subjected to two dust storms since an early January rain, received 17 inches of snow. Grateful farmers who had watched fall wheat grow spotty during recent dry weeks confidently planned to begin spring planting as soon as the ground soaks up the inch or more of new moisture.

"This is the most snow I've seen in this country since the winter of 1918-1919," said Hackett Smartt of Lamar, vice-president of the Colorado Farm Bureau. "It ought to settle the dust for the next month or six weeks."

Sleet fell through dust clouds last night at Texola, Okla., on the Oklahoma-Texas border, reducing visibility to zero. Rains settled southern Oklahoma dust storms. Drifting snow reduced visibility to 25 feet in the rich wheat lands of western Kansas. Many small communities were isolated.

The snow blanketed all north-western Oklahoma to depths ranging from six inches at Guymon and Beaver to 14 inches at Forgan, in the Panhandle.

Victoria, Albert 40 Years In King's Service To Be Replaced By New Royal Yacht

LONDON, Feb. 28 (CP-Havas) —Naval estimates published today include a provision for construction of a royal yacht to replace the 40-year-old Victoria and Albert.

Where the new ship is to be built and what its name will be are undecided. Her keel will be laid down as soon as possible after the design is approved by the admiralty.

The Victoria and Albert is being scrapped because after nearly 40 years of service, she is old-fashioned and antiquated, although still serviceable. In the new yacht the whole ship's company will have better and more comfortable accommodations.

The Victoria and Albert, with coal-burning engines of old-fashioned design, requires a large crew and the annual upkeep, with cost of overhauls, is more expensive than will be on the new vessel. It is expected she will be ready for service in about 18 months or two years.

"We're Not Cold—Much"

Nearly 1,000 skiers swarmed down on Huntsville, as the northern Ontario winter and summer resort officially opened its 1,600 acres of trails and jumps. In case you should adopt the idea for your own ski-ing expeditions don't blame us if you don't feel as comfortable as these two lassies look.

Cool Acknowledgment By Franco Little Comfort For London, Paris

By John Martin
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 28.—(AP).—British and French government leaders received little comfort to-day from the speech in which General Franco acknowledged recognition by the democracies of his Nationalist Spanish government.

The recognition cleared away the red tape of formality so that Great Britain and France could carry on efforts to weaken German and Italian influence in Spain and, as a result, maintain an equitable balance of power in the Mediterranean.

Franco, speaking yesterday to cheering crowds at his Burgos capital, said: "It would be unfair in these moments of triumph, when even those who fought against us recognize us, that we should not remember those who believed in us from the first day.

"To the sister nations, to our sister Portugal, to our beloved Italy, to friendly Germany, to the nations in America who also encouraged us then, we wive our friendship and remembrance at this moment."

Nationalist Spain, the General said, would not forget "those countries which came to our aid in time of need" when the civil war started July 18, 1936, "against Communism and the forces seeking to destroy her."

Disturbing Situation

This first reaction from Franco was disturbing to British and French leaders, who hope to win the general from his close ties with Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini, and it provided ammunition for critics of Prime Minister Chamberlain as they launched in parliament an effort to censure the government for its recognition.

In France, Premier Daladier and his aides mainly were concerned with selecting an ambassador considered skillful enough to counter German and Italian influence in Spain.

Burnt Hill, Ont., Feb. 28 (CP)

DISTRICT farmers are waging war on packs of red foxes which since last fall have destroyed $1,500 worth of poultry in the district. About 600 chickens and turkeys have been killed by the animals, estimated to number about 100.

Ten Men, Girl 19 Held By Police

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP).—Ten men and a 19-year-old girl were arrested last night and today in a police round-up of shopbreaking and housebreaking suspects. Police recovered $1,000 worth of jewelry and other articles stolen from two homes and the Timothy Eaton Memorial Church. Another $2,000 worth of goods is still missing.

Pasquale's 19-year-old wife, Rose, was arrested on a housebreaking charge. She is also charged with receiving stolen goods.

Harold Buckler, 24, and Keith Doll, 17, charged with an apartment break-in in which jewelry, furs and other articles were stolen. Norman Lane, 34, is charged with receiving.

The seven men charged with the church raid were arrested in an apartment. Two of them were found in it at midnight and police waited until the other five arrived.

Lane is the operator of an auction room here.

Oshawa Council Quits Mayors' Association

OSHAWA, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP)—Oshawa city council decided last night the city no longer will be associated with the Ontario Mayors' Association.

Action was taken after Alderman F. M. Dafoe termed the association a "backslapping organization without any intention of getting anything done."

The alderman added:

"At the last meeting I saw they just went there for a swank time and a bit of grog with no intention to do anything for the taxpayers. As it is at present constituted, it is useless."

Starting Serving Terms

Joe Champagne and Harold Peterson, sentenced to four and three and a half years in Kingston for armed ribbery of Wilbert H. Peel, started serving their terms in the penitentiary last evening. The two were taken to Kingston by governor of the jail Col. T. D. Johnston, Constable Bruce Menzies and J. Hall.

Fear Of Flood Sweeps Belleville

Store Stocks Moved From Cellars, Channels Are Cut

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Feb. 28.—(CP)—Merchants along Front street whose stores abutt the River Moira are preparing for the worst and hoping for the best as rain descended today to bring the prospect of a flood nearer. Owing to the large quantity of snow which has fallen and the fact that the river is frozen to the bottom due to the exceptionally cold weather in the early part of the month, indications point to a flood of serious proportions.

Stocks in the cellars of many stores have been removed to higher ground above the flood level while public works officials are now cutting long channels in the river south of the railway bridge in the hope of relieving the great pressure exerted at that point. The river has shown no signs of breaking up but if the rain should continue with warmer weather, anything is liable to happen.

Rain Adds Traffic Hazards.

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (C.P.). — Rain was general to-day in southern and western Ontario and in some sections temperatures were low enough to cause the rain to freeze as it fell, and add to traffic hazards. Kitchener, Galt, and Brantford reported motorists were taking chances by venturing on ice-sheathed streets and highways.

The weatherman said cooler weather with snowflurries would come by Wednesday in most parts of the province. Such a forecast added nothing to the peace of mind of those whose business forces them to travel the highways. Practically all provincial highways were open to-day, but the rain followed by colder weather will make them difficult to navigate.

Snow and ice were rapidly being carried away in the Niagara Peninsula by heavy rain and higher temperatures. Streets and highways were slush-covered. Streets in Thoroid were flooded, run-off facilities not being adequate to the sudden task imposed on them.

Around Kingston, the temperature was near the freezing point as rain fell. Pavements were slippery.

Frontier Clash Kills 16 Arabs

JERUSALEM, Feb. 28. —(AP)— British troops, acting to put down a new wave of Arab-Jewish terrorism in which 34 persons have been slain this week, killed 16 men today in a clash with a large armed band on the northern frontier of Palestine. Royal Air Force planes aided the soldiers.

Another disastrous bomb explosion in Jerusalem probably was averted when police seized a time bomb in the David street market where three persons were killed and six wounded in explosions yesterday. The bomb was suspended from an air hole in the roof of the market.

Two Jews were killed and three others injured by an Arab band today. British authorities conducted widespread searches for those responsible for destructive explosions yesterday, here and in Haifa.

An Arab strike was declared in Haifa in protest against yesterday's bombings. Most stores and offices were closed. Laborers failed to report for work.

Dancer Slain

Victim of a mysterious attack, Anya Sosayera, attractive 24-year-old Russian dramatic student of Los Angeles City college, died of a basal skull fracture after being found in a dying condition on the campus grounds. Crying, "Someone hit me on the head," the young dancer staggered into the arms of Wally Meyers, also a student of the college.

Renfrew Mayor And Reeve Are Unseated

PEMBROKE, Ont., Feb. 28 — (CP). — Election of Mayor F. A. Wade and Reeve F. K. Plaunt of Renfrew was upset to-day by a decision of County Judge J. T. Mulcahy, who allowed the motion to unseat them made by James Fennessy, defeated candidate for the Reeveship in the January 2 municipal election.

"I do not think I am justified in saying that the election was conducted in accordance with the principles laid down in the Municipal Act, and the election of the respondents must be set aside," Judge Mulcahy said in his judgment.

The Judge dealt with only one claim of Fennessy, that with respect to the granting of certificates to vote to four persons whose property qualifications on the assessment roll had been changed by the Renfrew Clerk Treasurer on authority of the chairman of the Court of Revision.

"I have no doubt that all these parties were illegally entered on the roll, entirely apart from any question of good faith on the part of the Clerk in taking this action because I am satisfied of his good faith," Judge Mulcahy said. The Court of Revision, he found, alone had power to make changes in the roll and there was no authority for it to delegate its powers to another.

Without Costs.

He said further that "in view of the last minute abandonment by Fennessy of his claims to the seat, and of the failure of most of the grounds of attack, I think the order should be allowing the motion to set aside the election without costs and dismissing the respondent's motion without costs."

The judgment followed a three-day hearing last week during which a large number of witnesses were heard. At the municipal election in Renfrew on January 2 Mayor Wade was re-elected with a majority of 243 over I. E. Pedlow, while Plaunt was elected with a majority of 13 over Fennessy. A recount, however, reduced Plaunt's majority to two.

Franco Assures Chamberlain He Will Permit No Foreign Intervention

Recognition Stirs Labor Storm In House With Opposition Leader Attlee Accusing Premier Of "Smart Trick"

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Feb. 28 (CP Cable).—General Franco has promised Great Britain he will permit no foreign intervention "which will impair the dignity or infringe the sovereignty" of Spain.

Franco's assurance was communicated to the House of Commons today by Prime Minister Chamberlain during a stormy debate on the diplomatic recognition of the Nationalist government by Great Britain as the paramount authority in Spain.

Mr. Chamberlain also said General Franco had given the British Government "assurances against general reprisals for strictly political offences."

He told the House that Britain "has received repeated assurances from General Franco on all points raised" by Labor Leader Clement Attlee—the presence of Italian and German troops in Spain and whether Spain would come under control of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The Prime Minister defended recognition of the Franco regime against a Labor motion of censure and a bitter attack on him by Mr. Attlee, who accused him of a "smart trick."

Denies Pledge Violated.

Mr. Chamberlain denied Mr. Attlee's charge that he had violated a pledge to give Commons first news of a decision of recognition and complained of the Opposition leader's "bitter and repeated personal attacks."

Mr. Attlee styled Mr. Chamberlain's speech yesterday justifying recognition a "tissue of half truths which are worse than lies," and compared him with a dictator "addressing a Fascist grand council."

In reply, the Prime Minister asserted that Mr. Attlee had misquoted a speech by French Premier Daladier in attempting to show that the Cabinet had told the French Government of its recognition decision before it informed Commons.

Mr. Attlee said the recognition "marks a further stage in a policy which is steadily destroying in all democratic countries confidence in the good faith of Great Britain."

"It is obvious there had been a decision prior to last Thursday, when the House was informed by the Prime Minister that he could make no further statement (on the question of recognition of Franco)," Mr. Attlee declared.

"Therefore, the Prime Minister was not carrying out his pledge to the House to acquaint it with his decision at the earliest possible moment."

Dictator's Actions.

The Labor leader referred to questions addressed to Prime Minister Chamberlain yesterday when he announced Great Britain had recognized Franco, and said:

"The Prime Minister then stated that he was not to be cross-examined. He might have been a dictator addressing a Fascist Grand Council. I would remind him that he is a British Prime Minister.

"The prime minister was under a

Pegged Cheese Price Idea Held Unsound

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP):—A sound aggressive cheese marketing scheme is more necessary than ever if cheese production is to be the balance wheel of the whole dairy industry—as appears the case if surplus milk is to be diverted from butter to cheese production—C. E. Lackner, Ontario director of dairying, today told the sixth annual meeting of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association.

More cheese, he said, could be sold in the United Kingdom if the industry produced a steady supply of good quality cheese. Advertising in the domestic market could also be effective, if quality were raised first.

Pegged prices or premiums on quality—a controversial issue before the two-day meeting—were not desirable, Mr. Lackner suggested, because they could not be a permanent policy.

If prices were pegged, the immediate result would be substantially increased production. Then when the price peg was lifted, prices would allow slump and the industry would still be geared to increased production.

Mr. Lackner indicated he was hesitant about expressing his opinion on the pegged price question, knowing many there would differ from him, but he emphasized his sole interest was the industry's permanent welfare.

Mr. Lackner spoke after President A. W. MacIntyre of Finch, Ont., briefly outlining the development of the organization from its organization in 1934 to the present, when it has a membership of 24,000. The meeting is being attended by 250 delegates.

Limiting Factories.

One method of decreasing cost of cheese production in Ontario would be limiting the number of factories, Mr. Lackner said. If there were fewer, production costs could be materially decreased. The Government, however, was not doing anything to put any factories out of business, but would not permit more to open. When competition was overdone, the supplier of the raw product suffered the loss.

Through the licensing of cheese plants this year, quality would be raised by use of better equipment and more sanitary methods, he continued. There were few plants in Ontario which would not have to improve equipment before getting their new licences, he said.

Quality would also be affected by a different system of instruction being introduced this year, in which Government inspectors would take over the testing of milk at the factories. Being at the factories more, the inspectors would be better able to oversee porduction methods and so criticize and improve them.

Mr. Lackner suggestion Ontario producers were overdoing the "high

Child Is Scalded In Tub Of Water

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 28. — Shirley Blackbourne, four years old, was severely scalded when she fell into a tub of boiling water at her home here at noon to-day. Mrs. Arthur Blackbourne; mother of the child, had placed the tub on the floor, preparatory to washing some clothes and the little girl backed against the tub, lost her balance and fell into the water. Dr. W. N. Campbell who attended the little girl, said that she was very badly scalded on the back from her neck and shoulders almost down to her knees. "It is difficult as yet to determine the extent of the burns, but they certainly are serious," the doctor stated.

Dr. R. L. Armstrong Dies In Oshawa

OSHAWA, Feb. 28.—One of Oshawa's best-known professional men, Dr. Robert L. Armstrong, died suddenly late Sunday following several years of poor health. Born at Keene in 1870, he taught school for several years prior to graduating from the Ontario School of Dentistry, coming to Oshawa in 1897, where he had resided since.

Bailieboro Man Is Observing His Eightieth Birthday Wants To Live As Long As He Is Of Service To Society

(By Staff Reporter)

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 28.—"I want to live just as long as I am of any service to society. When that ends, I am willing to go."

Those are the words of hale and hearty Allen Johnston, who celebrated his 80th birthday yesterday at his home in Bailieboro. A retired farmer, he has lived all his life in or near that village, is one of its best beloved citizens and member of a family long and fairly well known in the district.

Short and rather slender, Mr. Johnston has always been known as a man of great strength. He is still strong, can and often does pitch hay or hoe a field. Whenever a neighbor is in need of help that is not to be had, Allen Johnston is ready to go to work, and able to hold up his end of a difficult task. That is one way he has of being a useful member of society—he is always willing to lend a helping hand. An active farmer until twenty years ago, he is now retired, but still keeps cows and chickens, cares for them himself.

Yesterday was a real event in his life, for it marked the only family re-union ever held in his family. His four brothers were home for a birthday feast and they reminisced with their older brother all through the day. The brothers are no less widely known in their communities than Allen Johnston is in his. Dr. Thomas Johnston, who stands second oldest at 73, is a Peterborough veterinarian and Humane Society inspector. Robert Johnston is a member of the firm of McCarthy and Johnston, coal and wood dealers in this city. Dr. John Johnston is a veterinarian in Port Hope, and Samuel Johnston is a farmer on the boundary line between Hope and Cavan townships. All bear a strong family resemblance, all are strong, active men.

Allen Johnston is held in high esteem by those brothers, and has been all his life. "He was more like a father to us," Dr. Thomas Johnston said. "He never did anything that wasn't right, and we all paid him a great deal of respect when we were young." In the family were seven boys and two girls, but only the five who were in Bailieboro yesterday are still alive.

Allen Johnston has lived all his life in the vicinity of Bailieboro. He was born on the first concession of Cavan and farmed near there until twenty years ago, when he moved into the village. He lives with his daughter Edna.

There was more than a touch of sadness about yesterday's celebration. For besides being his birthday, the day was also his wedding anniversary. It was fifty years ago yesterday that he was married. And three years ago, on the morning of his 47th anniversary, his wife died.

Allen Johnston has known only one serious illness in his life, and it lasted for close to two years. He had rheumatism so badly about the time

New Measures On Livestock, Wheat Coming

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 — (CP). — Legislation designed to improve the live stock industry, as well as new measures for wheat marketing and other farm aid, will be introduced in the House of Commons shortly.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the House of Commons yesterday details of the new wheat policy which he announced on February 16 had been delayed pending his conference to-day with Western grain interests.

Speaking on a resolution moved by Harry Leader (Lib., Portage la Prairie) calling for a committee on live stock, Mr. Gardiner said he had no objection to setting up a committee, but suggested waiting until the Government's policy was announced. Mr. Leader withdrew his resolution.

Experimental shipments of chilled beef to the United Kingdom during the past summer were a success and demonstrated Canadian beef could be landed in the British market in good condition and sold for a good price, Mr. Gardiner said. Such shipments would only be profitable, however, if carried on a large scale, using posibly 1,000 cattle a week.

The British demand, Mr. Gardiner said, was for small animals and the baby beef shipped all brought good prices. Each week, during the experiment, 25 cattle were slaughtered and shipped to the Scottish market. In some weeks it was impossible to obtain 25 baby beef and heavy cattle were shipped. These brought a lower price.

Smaller Roasts Popular.

With small families and modern cooking facilities there was little demand for the big roasts of beef used in former days. So the smaller roasts from smaller animals brought better prices.

Much could be done on Canadian farms to improve the quality of Canadian bacon and the price obtained for it, said the minister. He doubted, however, if the degree of control of the hog industry achieved in Denmark could be established in Canada for many years to come. Hog prices, he said, fluctuated widely because deliveries of hogs to the markets fluctuated widely in volume.

Canadian agriculture is "disorganized and lacks drection," Mr. Leader declared as he called for a house committee on live stock. Farmers were themselves partly to blame, he said, because they refused to cooperate adequately with each other.

Mr. Leader said there was a strong demand for an investigation into the live stock industry.

Both Federal and Provincial live stock policies had been "slipshod and haphazard," he said. The present bull loaning policy was not adequate to achieve the live stock improvement desired and needed.

ANNUAL REPORT

The Annual Meeting of the Farmers' Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company took place in Lindsay on the afternoon of February 18th in the Town Hall. Mr. Bruce McNevin, M.P., acted as Chairman of the meeting, while Mr. H. H. McFadden acted as Secretary.

The President and Vice-President, Messrs. McNevin and Robertson, respectively, were re-elected for the coming year. Mr. Thos. Brown was re-elected as Director for the Peterborough district; Mr. F. H. Clayton, Oshawa County district, and Mr. Arnold McElwain for North Victoria and Haliburton, thereby taking over the Directorship made vacant by the death of his father in 1938.

Mr. McNevin's address was both interesting and instructive. Reference was made to and a fitting tribute paid to the late R. S. McElwain, who for some time has been a Director of the Company.

Before beginning to discuss the financial statement, Mr. McNevin extended a word of appreciation to the policyholders present, on behalf of the Directors.

The financial situation of the Company at the close of 1938 has proved to be a source of satisfaction to the Directors and no doubt to the policyholders also. Fire losses for 1938 were slightly greater than the previous year, but considering this figure against the number of destructive lightning storms experienced we have every reason for gratification.

Mr. McNevin also pointed out that loss over premium income from frame buildings, unrodded and with wood shingles has been greatly increased during the past eight years, and that it may become obligatory for owners of such buildings to use spark arrestors. In the interest of all policyholders a rigid inspection of such risks may be necessary in the near future.

Mr. McNevin also stated that the average farm fire loss was $1,000.00, whereas the town fire loss was only $438.00. This, he says, is due to the lack of fire fighting equipment and believes that in this age of motor transportation it is not an impossibility to bring effective fire protection to the farmers of Ontario. Mr. McNevin states an instance in Howard Township where a fire truck fully equipped was purchased for $2,443.00, maintenance cost for which was $220.00 yearly. During the three years following the purchase of this equipment, the truck was called out for seventeen fires, one only of which was a total loss. The buildings involved in these fires were valued at $46,000.00 and carried insurance amounting to $39,000.00. The net result of this experience has been that for every dollar spent by the municipality for fire fighting equipment ten dollars has been saved for its citizens. It is hoped that this matter will receive the earnest consideration of all rural municipal officials.

Mr. McNevin also expressed a word of appreciation to the Board of Directors, the agent and the office staff for their efforts to protect and promote the Company's welfare and to all policyholders for their patronage.

Azana Resigns As President

COLLOGNES - SOUS - SALEVEL, France, Feb. 28 (AP)—Manuel Azana, in a letter made public today, resigned as president of the Spanish Republican government.

The letter was addressed to Diego Martinez Barrio, president of the Republican Cortes (parliament) and Azan's constitutional successor.

Azana, who came here yesterday from Paris where he had lived since General Franco's troops conquered Catalonia, had withheld publication of his resignation until after French-British recognition of Franco's regime as the legitimate government of Spain.

The letter was sent to Paris by special messenger yesterday — the day on which France and Great Britain ceased to regard the Republican regime as Spain's real government.

The letter of resignation was disclosed here by Azana's brother-in-law, Cipriano Rivas Cherif. Azana is in exile at a nearby estate with his family.

Martinez Barrio, under the Spanish constitution, is required to receive a presidential resignation and the constitution designates him as successor to the presidency. He is in Paris.

The retiring chief of state made plain in his letter that he considered all possibilities of carrying on the presidency ended. Martinez Barrio was understood to have declined the constitutional succession, thus leaving the Republican government without president.

BENNETT TREE

CALGARY—(CP).—The Calgary Horticultural Society plans to transplant an Alberta sapling in gardens of Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett's estate in Surrey, England. Mr. Bennett was for many years honorary president of the society.

Dr. J. Rutherford Kent M.P. Dies

CHATHAM, Ont.,—Feb. 28.—(CP)—Dr. James W. Rutherford, who started his political career in defeat but represented Kent riding in the House of Commons since 1926, is dead. The 63-year-old Liberal, seriously injured in an automobile accident almost on the eve of his last re-election, died here last night after a long illness.

His campaign in September, 1935, was directed from a sick bed and only once he was able to take his seat at Ottawa. Dr. Rutherford's death created the second vacancy in the House, the other being in Calgary West, formerly held by Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, now retired in England.

Entering the political field as federal Liberal candidate for Kent in 1925, Dr. Rutherford was beaten by the late Alex Chaplin, his Conservative opponent. When the Meighen Conservative government went to the country on a constitutional question the following year, however, he again carried the Liberal banner and emerged victorious over Mr. Chaplin.

On receipt of word of Dr. Rutherford's death, Prime Minister Mackenzie King sent a message of condolence from Ottawa to his widow. Before the close of the last session, Dr. Rutherford was given an enthusiastic welcome when he returned to the House.

Hurt In Car Smash

Incapacitated in the automobile accident near Ridgetown as he was touring the southern part of his riding on the opening ady of his campaign in 1935, the doctor's friends rallied behind him. They aided in his appeal for re-election and he was returned to office with a substantial majority.

Born in McKay's Corners, Ont., in 1875, he attended Chatham Collegiate Institute and the University of Toronto. He began practice as a physician and surgeon in 1901 and was a past president of the Kent Medical Association.

Shooting, fishing and golf were among his favorite pastimes. He was a member of several fraternal organizations. He served as a director of the Stirling Trust Corporation and the Commonwealth Life Insurance Company.

Besides his widow, he is survived by one son, James, and a daughter, Mrs. John Rhodes, both of Chatham.

One day he came to Peterborough with his daughter and drove to the old Montgomery Hotel after letting her out. Unable to get down from the buggy unassisted, he called for the hostler. The fellow came running and helped him down, then asked him what was ailing him. When he learned of the rheumatism he told Mr. Johnston of a "sure cure" that he said had worked in countless cases. It was to mix four ounces of cream of sulphur in a quart bottle of gin, then to drink the gin in small quantities before meals. "Before I had drank the fourth bottle, my rheumatism was completely gone, and I've never been troubled with it since," Mr. Johnston declared.

pledge to communicate to this house at the earliest possible moment any decision with regard to recognition of Franco. On Thursday he had an opportunity of acquainting this house (of a decision) but he evaded the question which I put to him on the subject."

The Labor leader said Mr. Chamberlain's statement yesterday in justification of recognition was—"tissue of half truths which are worse than lies."

He said French Premier Daladier had announced to the French Chamber of Deputes Feb. 24 that "we received advice that the British government considered the hour has come to recognize General Franco and we shall wait no longer."

Referring to his charges that Mr. Chamberlain had neglected to inform the Commons of the government's decision to recognize Franco, Mr. Attlee said:—

"One looks for a reason for this kind of a smart trick. I think it is just a part of the Spenlow and Jorkins business which has been going on between reactionaries of this government and the French government over the whole of this Spanish affair. They have always wanted to say, 'Oh, it is not our fault, the other people did it first,' when anything has to be done of a base nature."

(Spenlow and Jorkins were characters in Dickens' "David Copperfield." Spenlow's hard dealings were attributed to a supposed hard partner, Jorkins kept in the background.)

Unusual For Premier

Mr. Attlee continued: "I have heard junior ministers trying to escape by saying that 'I am not to be cross-examined without notice.' But I have never known a prime minister who has just taken a most important action on foreign affairs acting on authority given by the cabinet who has had to ask for notice before he can say when the decision was made."

Mr. Chamberlain interjected: "I said without notice."

"It seemed there was a device to make M. Daladier speak first," Mr. Attlee continued. "It was a trick, a trick which was trumped by the French prime minister because he revealed he was doing it on advice and under pressure from this government."

Mr. Attlee continued: "There should be an assurance of clemency and amnesty to those opposing General Franco.

"What have we got? We have a mere alleged statement by General Franco that he will see that no one except lawbreakers will be dealt with."

Mr. Chamberlain, opening his reply to Mr. Attlee's attack, said:

"It must be a long time since the house has listened to such a series of bitter and repeated personal attacks upon a single individual.

No Misleading.

"I have my faults, no doubt, but those who know me best will know that I am incapable of trying to mislead this House or of shirking debate even when the subject of debate has been an indictment of the government.

"We are debating this afternoon a subject of very great importance—a decision by this government to recognize another government which has been engaged for long period of time in bitter strife—and it does not seem to me it is in accordance with our dignity, or within the scope of the subject which we are discussing, that it should be degenerated into a personal squabble."

Mr. Chamberlain continued:

"The question of recognition received an exhausive examination by that government. The final decision could not have been taken until Friday had passed, and the decision was taken over the week-end.

"We wished to keep in the closest harmony with the French government, and we were not prepared to grant recognition until we were satisfied we were in agreement with French government."

2 Trainmen Killed

The scene is about 12 miles southeast of here.

TIP FOR MOTORISTS.

An automobile owner whose intelligence quotient, at least in practical matters pertaining to cars should rate high, showed main street a useful idea this morning. He parked his automobile in opposite the Centre Theatre, and spread a newspaper over the windshield under the stationary wiper, keeping that space clear of ice that was freezing on the glass as the rain fell. When he took off again, he removed the paper, and his windshield wiper started to work again. He had no ice on the pane to be scraped off.

Alberta Advised To Refund Public Debt

EDMONTON, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Necessity of refunding the public debt was emphasized by Hon. Solon Low, provincial treasurer, yesterday in presenting his third budget in the Alberta legislature.

Every provice in the west was faced with necessity of refunding its public debt at reduced interest rates, declared Mr. Low. He announced only one change in taxation, a change in the income tax estimated to produce $50,000 additional revenue and he predicted an overall deficit of $1,151,107.84 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1940.

Total budget was shown as $26,518,894.94 and the deficit recorded a reduction from the estimated deficit of $1,567,571.24 for the current fiscal year ending March 31 next.

The change in the income tax act would, it was understood, force branches of businesses to make separate reports on income instead of having units grouped and reported as one total with losses in one branch offsetting profits in another.

In a review of economic and financial conditions in Alberta, the treasurer said the "increased revenue to date this year furnishes real and satisfactory proof of growing business and improved conditions generally throughout the province."

In a summary of his budget he said income account revenue would total $18,818,745 and expenditures $17,621,175.52 while revenue on capital account was $6,549,042.10 and expenditures $2,435,734.42. After deducting net statutory payments of $6,461,985, the estimated overall deficit was set at $1,151,107.84.

Many Roads Wind Through Fields

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, March 1.—It is a good many years since traffic has been so held up by snow as it now is for the second time this winter. The main roads were opened by snow plough, but on other roads he had to know how to reach a place as roads went across fields and down lanes.

Archie Crowe broke the road from Fred Crowe's place across the fields through Mr. Drain's to the boundary and then to the village down Allan Payne's lane and across the fields.

The United church and Presbyterian Sunday schools were fairly well attended on Sunday morning.

Mr. Judge and two sons of Toronto, attended Mr. Tucker's funeral. Mrs. Judge is remaining a few days with her mother.

Man Is Remanded When Witness Ill

"The principal witness against this man has the flu and is unable to be present," Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., told the court this morning when A. Vallee was charged with having stolen $26 from Herbert Asselstine in August, 1937.

Vallee was araigned as Jack LaPerle and told the coutr that was not his name.

In explanation Chief Constable Newhall stated that when the accused has appeared in court here before he had been known as LaPerle.

The information was amended to read "A. Vallee, alias Jack LaPerle" at the request of the Crown the accused was remanded for a week. He told the court that he was not applying for bail.

cooking" of curd. He advised production of a cheese type more acceptable in the United Kingdom, less hard, dry and gritty. He also advised more uniform cutting of curd.

More Second Cheese

Despite last year's instruction efforts, a larger percentage of second rate cheese was produced than before, he said. It was hoped, however, last year's efforts would have more obvious results this year.

While government inspectors could not spend time on the farms as formerly, being at the plants, he suggested the association itself might take on part of the farm inspection work.

Appointment of a chief dairy instructor would be announced by March, he said.

Cheese prices at present were affected by the fact much production was sold on speculative markets in the United Kingdom.

This could be overcome to a considerable extent if a steady supply of desirable quality cheese was kept available.

Advertising and attractive packaging in the home market would undoubtedly help consumption but such measures might as well be forgotten if they were merely aimed at getting rid of a lot of second rate "junk," he said.

At present the consumer had difficulty in finding out what kind of cheese he was buying. He heard of new, medium and old but little first, second and third quality cheese. A sound marketing plan would require the full co-operation of everyone concerned, producers, government and buyers.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28 — (C.P.). — Light offerings and general lack of interest held wheat futures prices close to previous closing levels at Winnipeg to-day. Final quotations were unchanged, with May at 62, July 62⅝, and October 63¼ cents.

Most of the activity was confined to the opening and closing stages when some resting orders were uncovered in the May position below 62 cents. Traders interpreted this as being a covering of old export business. Canadian wheat export sales were confined to a few loads worked from Vancouver.

Liverpool finished ⅝d-½d lower following favorable weather advices from the United States winter wheat belt and increased estimates for Indian wheat crop.

Market Review

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (C.P.). — The Toronto stock market rounded out February with a fairly strong tone and all indications showed gains at the close. Trade expanded in the mining groups and prices of the more active stocks tightened in the final stage. Aggregate turnover was a little better than 400,000 shares.

Dul ltrading but higher prices marked the early session. All indices except the gold indicator were up at noon and prices were holding as the session advanced. Features of the early trade were Walkers Common and Consolidated Smelters with gains of 1 to 1¼ points. Trading fell off to 257,000 shares for the first three hours.

Steel, food and miscellaneous issues were the strongest of the industrial groups and in the base metals the higher-price leaders were joined in the advance by Sherritt, Pend Oreille and Sudbury Basin.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP).—The stock market put on a selective rally today and a number of favorites moved into new high territory for the past year or longer.

Gains ranged from 1 to more than 2 points at the best, but profit taking shaded top marks in many cases near the final hour.

Dealings were lively at times, although there were frequent slow intervals. Transfers were about 1,000,000 shares.

Sunshine Menace

MEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Add hazards of the home: Sun shining through a fish bowl in the Raymond Walkley home set fire to draperies and caused $1,000 damage before firemen checked the blaze.

Australia In Step

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 28 —(C. P.). — The Government of Australia decided to-day to recognize the Nationalist regime as the legal government of Spain. (Twenty-six other nations already had extended such recognition.)

Boys' Piano Recital

Very attractive standards of pianoforte playing were reached by a group of boys, pupils of Isobel McKee Brain, who appeared in recital Monday evening at the Y.M.C.A. before a large and keenly appreciative audience. They were assisted by Robert Roy, violinist, a pupil of Stanley Northrop, A.T.C.M. Mr. John Edgar acted as chairman in the absence of Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe.

The recialists played entirely from memory, with fine rhythm and good finger technique reflecting a careful training and able study. "Argonese" by T. H. Hermann, was played with splendid tone and confidence by Robert Roy in a violin solo.

The boys taking part were Tommy Griffin, Gordon Parks, David Johnstone, Jack Matthews, Cyril Monkman, Douglas Head, Jimmy Airth, Ernest Darling, Raymond Sutcliffe, Jack Brown, Sheldon Richardson, Malcolm Campbell, Wilbert Edgar, Bill Allen, Jimmy Shields, Chris Huffman. Three of the students, Arthur and Douglas Dobson and Richard Crowe, were kept away by illness.

"Guess-What" Party Is Given By Business Girls

A social evening in the form of a Guess-What party was held by members of the junior Business and Professional Women's Club and their friends in their club rooms Monday night. Tables of Chinese Checkers and bridge were enjoyed the intial part of the evening, and later Betty Lytle, as Master of Ceremonies, passed among the tables with the microphone of station J-O-Y in her hand, asking questions in true radio manner, and presenting prizes to the following for correct answers: the Misses Margaret Lundy, Julia Dewart, Gerry Perdue, Marion Worboy, Margaret McGregor and Dorothy Kelly.

The door prize, drawn for by Miss Margaret Lytle, president of the club, was won by Miss Vera White. Miss A. Davidson won the contents of a half gallon jar of candy fruit mixtures by guessing the correct weight. Miss Queenie Miller was presented with a jar of jelly beans for estimating the nearest number and Mrs. H. Kelso was successful in guessing the closest number of tooth-picks in a stack.

At the close of the evening refreshments were served by Miss Bertha Inch, assisted by Miss Betty O'Brien, Miss Margaret Pitchford, Miss Margaret Skitch.

Present were Mrs. J. Comstock, Mrs. H. Kelso, the Misses Isobel Irwin, Lillian Elliott, Margaret Preston, Della Smedmor, Isabel Skitch, Betty Detcher, Isabelle Jackson, Helen McGee, Marg. Lytle, Doris Royea, Amy Bull, Helen Lytle, Rose Kearney, Gerry Perdue, Jean Dorris, Dorothy Kelly, Ariel Wildman, M. Goheen, Olga Sanderson, Julia Dewart, Margaret McGregor, Vivian Horne, Aleitha Davidson, Marg. Skitch, Adele Vincent, Norma Whittaker, Ethel Robson, June Best, Estelia Riley, Mary Walker, Margaret Pitchford, Berenice Hall, Adelle Milburn, Tuna, Hart, Amy Soulby, Phyl Webster, Marion Harvey, Queenie Miller, Margaret Taylor, Vera White, Louise Spriggs, Jean Thompson, Betty O'Brien, Faye Dunford. Nearly 2,500 American students are now studying in France.

We Noticed

....Those who enjoy wearing suits can rejoice this year, because all indications point towards a suit season—personally, we think it is about time for that favorite among costumes to be in the ascendancy again, anyway.

✧ ✧ ✧

....The suit belongs to the picture that reverts to the late Nineties and the early Nineteen Hundreds. That was the beginning of the suit era, symbolic of women's economic emancipation. Jacket and skirt followed on the heels of the rainy-daisy skirt and shirtwaist.

✧ ✧ ✧

....One of the delights of the new suit is that, like its progenitor, it calls for a blouse—something a little fancier than the plain shirtwaist or the sporty slipover sweater. At the last Paris opening nearly every big house showed suits with blouses, these being an integral part of the ensemble. They were under jackets of differing lengths — this season there is no rule of thumb to govern them. The younger they are the shorter the jacket.

✧ ✧ ✧

....As for the blouse—it is one of the voices in the close harmony of the suit. One finds the theme worked out, in many instances, in a skirt of one pattern, a jacket of another, and a blouse of yet a third—all three tuning in one the same color theme.

Toronto Artists Present Opera Scenes

Before a full house in the Collegiate Auditorium, a fine program of scenes from the Grand Operas and picture songs, was presented Monday night by artists of the International Grand Opera Company.

The artists, Grace Pettet, contralto; Mabel Curtis, soprano; James Fluker, baritone; Frank Moran, basso; Jessie Allen, pianist, are talented members of the Quarrington Music Club of Ottawa and Toronto.

The prologue "Pagliacci" (clown) by Ruggiero Leoncavallo, sung with vital expression by James Fluker, (baritone), before the curtain rises, is a melody at first broad and expressive, becoming delicate and sentimental as he sings of the passion which stirred the author to write "Pagliacci," and is succeeded by an expansive melody, sung in the most resonant portion of the baritone range, which tells of the human hearts which beat beneath the tinsel of the actor's garb.

Act two of Hansel and Gretel is played delightfully with Mabel Curtis, soprano, in quaint German costume, as Gretel, and Grace Pettet, contralto, in the role of Hansel, who wears a ragged costume of green breeches, pink jacket, and green beret. Gretel is portrayed as the teasing little sister, and throughout the scene she is bubbling over with songs, sung in English, which are of a captivating lightness and delicacy. Hansel's part is played in a natural and spontaneous manner.

The Toreador song from the opera "Carmen," sung by James Fluker, baritone, was well received, although his rendering of it lacked a little of the high spirit usually associated with this world-famous song.

A group of picture songs, the first, "Prithee Pretty Maiden, the second a scene from "School of Scandal." with Mabel Curtis as the pretty and shallow Lady Teasel, and Grace Pettet as Peter Teasel; the third a solo "The Spanish Lady," by Grace Pettet, displays excellently the beauty of the voices, and charming acting ability. A recitation by James Whitbycomb Riley, "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," given by Grace Pettet, was well done, and well liked by the audience. The last group of songs, in which a gypsy (Mabel Curtis) who has wandered into an opera house, interrupts the artist, asking if she might be allowed to sing. Obtaining permission, she appears on the stage in a brilliant, if shabby, gypsy costume, and sings very prettily "Estrellita" (A Little Star), and "La Nina Linda." At the last the two voices blend in "A Cuban Love Song," and having received a silver dollar for her entertainment, the gypsy goes back to her wandering again.

The second scene from the beautiful and tragic opera "Madame Butterfly" was very well presented. Against the golden stage curtain, the lovely flowered gowns of Madame Butterfly (Mabel Curtis) and her maid, Sazuki (Grace Pettet), made a lovely picture, and furniture, cushions and lanterns further developed the oriental atmosphere. Sharpless, the American Consul, is played by James Fluker, and Frank Moran is "Ymadori," the Japanese gentleman.

The star of the scene, however, is little Shirley Ann Wishart of Peterborough, who plays "Trouble," the part of Butterfly's son, and who completely captivates the audience from the first glance of her big brown eyes. The singing is beautiful throughout the act, and the curtain falls as Madame Butterfly, Sazuki and Trouble are holding their all-night vigil. Distinguished piano music by Jessie Allen supplies accompaniment all the way through the program.

Mrs. F. E. A. Brackenridge, president of the Nicholls Hospital Nurses Alumnae Association, spoke a few words of welcome and thanked the public for co-operation given the Alumnae in sponsoring the program, which was given for the object of raising funds to provide a nursing service for those who are not in a position to secure free nursing, but which are in need of special care. This type of case is taken care of by nurses who work for half pay, provided by this fund. Each year a concert or entertainment of some kind is given in the interest of this work by the Alumnae.

Family Loyalty Should Be Closely Adhered To; One Of The Worst Sins a Sister Can Commit Is To Have An Affair With The Husband Of Another Sister

DEAR MISS DIX—I have been married twice and am middle-aged, but look younger than I am and have always gone with those younger than myself. One of these young people is my sister's husband. I am very much in love with him and he with me, and he wants to marry me. My sister knows nothing of this affair. Shall I consider her feelings or shall I seize my first real happiness while I am still young? D. E.

ANSWER:

I do not know how you could expect to be happy after you had done such a dastardly deed as to take your sister's husband away from her. It is a cruel and heartless enough thing to break up any woman's home, but the deed seems particularly unforgivable when it is your sister's home you wreck and whose life you shatter. Even savages have a sense of family loyalty and recognize that they owe something to the blood tie.

You have been married twice and twice divorced. Surely those experiences should have taught you something about marriage and men. You have ben dull, indeed, if you have not observed that a young man who is so weak that he lets a middle-aged woman take him away from his wife is poor husband material.

He is easily tempted and any woman who wants him can have him by using a few flatteries and cajoleries. He is a bad matrimonial bet and you would lose him as easily as you won him.

Again, you have observed that the middle-aged woman who thinks that she still looks like a flapper befools only herself. Nor is her lot a happy one if she marries a man much younger than herself, because she has to keep up a synthetic girlhood that is about the most wearing thing on earth. She dare not have a wrinkle or a gray hair or rest her weary bones. She has to live up to the boy-husband and be gay and frolicsome and a perpetual debutante.

So my advice to you is to forget your middle-aged infatuation for this boy and instead of philandering with him send him back to do his duty to his wife. When you consider your sister's feelings you will be doing far more to achieve your own happiness than you will if you rob her of her husband.

* * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—I am very much in love with a fine young fellow. My parents like him, but they do not approve of his family. His parents were divorced when he was 15 and he had to go out then and support himself. Do you really think it is fair to condemn him because of his parents. GLADYS.

ANSWER:

Certainly not. You are not going to marry his father and mother. You are going to marry him, so it is his record that counts, nor theirs.

Possibly your father and mother think that he will not make a good husband because his father may have been a bad husband or his mother a bad wife, but this does not follow. Children do not always imitate their parents' example. Very often their parents are an awful warning to them that drives them to the other extreme of conduct.

I have known men who were fanatical prohibitionists because their fathers were drunkards. Some of the thriftiest and best housekeepers I have ever seen were women who were disgusted by their mothers' extravagance and sloppiness. I know one woman who spoils her husband to death because she was always so sorry for her father because her mother was so cold and indifferent to him.

* * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Don't you think parents who have sacrificed everything for their children have a right to a say-so about whom their sons and daughters marry? The parents' happiness and well-being are involved as well as the children's. FATHER.

ANSWER:

Because parents have reared their children well and have given them good clothes, good food, a good education and a good start in life does not give them any right to pick out their children's husbands and wives for them. They have done nothing more than their duty to their children. They thrust life upon them and they were under every obligation to do everything in their power to make that life worth living.

On the other hand, having had tender and loving and generous parents, it is a debt of honor for the children to repay the kindness they have received and the sacrifices that have been made for them by meeting their mothers' and their fathers' wishes as far as they can and by not blighting the hopes and wounding the hearts of those who have loved and cherished them all their lives if they can possibly avoid doing so.

But, in the last analysis, marriage is the most personal thing on earth and the one thing in which no human being can judge for another. This makes it impossible for parents to pick out their children's husbands and wives for them, because tastes differ. The very qualities that the father and mother find distasteful in a man or woman fire the fancies of Mary and John.

It is John and Mary who have to live with the one they marry, not Father and Mother. Hence it is more important that they should be pleased with their mates than that their mother and father should.

Home and School Association News

PRINCE OF WALES

Members of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association passed a vote in favor of admitting carefully selected refugees into Canada, following an address based on "The resolutions of the Canadian Committee of Refugees and victims of Political Persecution" by Rev. V. E. R. Zufelt, who spoke to their meeting on Monday evening. Rev. Zufelt discussed the pros and cons of the matter, and stated emphatically that Canada had nothing to lose, and a very great deal to gain, by allowing a carefully selected group of refugees into her country during the year. The association will pass on its resolution to the Ontario Federation of Home and School Associations, and to the Home and School parliamentary representative.

Mrs. P. Black, president of the association, presided. Founder's Night was observed with the traditional candle lighting ceremony, with candles arranged in a novel ladder information which was very effective. An interesting Founder's Day address was read by Mrs. H. Darling in the absence of Mrs. Spicer.

The meeting was entertained delightfully with vocal solos by Mrs. L. Groombridge, Mrs. G. Todd, Miss Helen Friendship, and a reading by Mr. Jas. Sharpe. The program closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

Women Teachers' Guild Hears Talk on Russia

"Every person learns by travel, but first, we must learn to travel," a quotation from Shaw, was a fitting introduction to the most interesting and informative lecture given under the auspices of the Women Teachers' Guild last night, with Mrs. Evelyn Bateman, of Oshawa, the guest speaker.

The Green Room was well filled with members and friends of the Guild, who were welcomed by the president, Miss Ethelwyn Dix, who also introduced the speaker.

Russia, the country if mystery and baffling contradictions, was the enthralling subject of Mrs. Bateman's address. Enlivened by a wealth of anecdotes and personal experience, gleaned from her recent tour, she brought Russia to her hearers, as they had never known it before.

Answering one of the most frequent questions asked, regarding her trip, the speaker explained that all arrangements as to accommodations and money were made through a tourists' bureau in New York when the traveller was relieved of all financial detail and worry in connection.

An interesting feature of her trip into Russia was the crossing of a bridge connecting it with Finland. Half of this bridge was painted white and half red, with a barbed wire entanglement in the centre. Here the Finnish guards were exchanged for Russias who searched the baggage for propaganda of any kind. When an itemised list of all valuables was made and a carbon copy given to the tourist. It is quite possible to travel through Russia speaking only English, though the speaker had a smattering of the Russian language picked up from a Toronto violin teacher.

In describing traffic, Mrs. Bateman told that there were few problems because of the small number of privately owned cars. There are few well dressed people and no style or fashions, she said, in telling of the opera in Leningrad, where the audience wearing all kinds of clothes, were quiet and attentive, thoroughly enjoying the music.

In contrast to our many cars, literally thousands of people were walking in the heat of Russian streets. Cold drinks, made from pure fruit juices were plenty and could be cheaply bought.

A point of interest in their sightseeing was the Palace of Peter, the first (Peterhoff) which, contrary to their expectation, was kept in good repair and used as a show place. This palace was famous for its beautiful formations, which exceed even those at Versailles and were built by the same man. Incongruously, beside al lthis beauty we find a huge tent where labourers were being fed overlooking the palace.

Describing their guides, the speaker found them staunch and loyal to the cause of the Soviet Union, and working toward the highest standard of living, studying every spare minute.

In Russia they have entirely abandoned our calendar and rest every sixth day from their work. There seemed to be an apparent lack of paper, for parcels were never wrapped but carried in string bags, while to obtain a newspaper it was necessary to stand in line.

Mrs. Bateman spoke of the people's loyalty to Stalin as evidenced at the demonstration staged upon the return of the Arctic explorers. Co-operative farms are another unusual feature of Russian country life, with their baby creches and the mothers working in the fields. On such farms the state collects only according to the yield.

Amazing were the mechanized kitchens of the cities capable of serving thirty-five thousand dinners daily. In apartment houses all families eat together, with meals prepared by dietitians appointed by the state. There are regular physical classes where everyone is trained and the people of Russia are an undeniably healthy race.

Her trip through Siberia was full of thrills and unusual experiences with cosmopolitan contact among the fellow travellers. Excellent meals and service were given and no Russian accepts a "tip."

"Russia is not all bad or all good. The tour is not prohibitive in price. You may make your own picture, but a nation that is looking after its children as Russia does, must get somewhere, some day."

Words do not adequately describe Mrs. Bateman's lecture, which was amplified by her charming personality into a most vivid and intimate story.

The appreciation of the Guild and the audience was voiced in gracious words by Miss Verna Burgess, M.A., and a brief social time enjoyed, when refreshments were served under the direction of Miss Gertrude Cox, assisted by members of the executive, serving from a tea table lovely with lace cover, and centred by a silver basket of spring flowers.

Dinner Clothes Follow Sports Theme

"The sporting thing to do" in dinner fashions this season is to wear a dress that has ever ear mark of sports fashions except the skirt which follows convention in the floor length. High necks, just as often finished with a Peter Pan white pique collar as not, and simple regulation sleeves in bodices with the easy lines of a centre-buttoned skirt becomes dinner frock, by benefit of a long skirt. Even the fabric comes right from bolts of silks, linens and even woollens that are old friends in dresses you've known in all annals of sportswear.

This is a midseason fashion that comes to light, and to life, after a season of high doings in ultra-formal, feminine dress fashion. It is also a compromise style that comes to the rescue in the season, at resorts, for instance, when women "let down" in formal dressing. They do not wish to disturb their mood of informality, which resort life generates, by getting into a really formal dress. The sports-dinner dress is just the thing, for it makes no demands of primping or dolling up, and yet concedes something to social demands of dressing for dinner.

A plate dinner may be given a decorative touch by dried bread used in the following ingenious manner: Cut circles of bread the size of thick tomato slices. Toast one side. Fashions

A youthful crepe print silk dress to swing into spring....to town, to the office, to have cocktails. . . a dress that's equal to any smart occasions. Wear it now 'neath your winter coat....later 'neath your spring coat or without a coat. It's irresistible .... "nips-in" at your waist and swirls out below, the fullnes is held in with the belt. Even a novice can sew it in no time. Only two major parts to the pattern. And all this excitement for a very modest price. The formal length with its demure square neckline and long sleeves is reminiscent of the gay nineties in swishy taffeta or satin.

You Get Stage Fright When Asked to Speak?

Learn Art of Public Speaking

Called on to say a few words—do you stammer, finally get out a few syllables that can't be heard beyond your nearest neighbor?

Face an audience with the poise and conviction that win applause!

Stage fright? You can scold yourself right out of it. Remember the average audience wants to like you. And there's no danger of stumbling, making mistakes if you know parliamentary order, correct ways to address an audience.

Say "Mr. Chairman, hosts and friends" if you are a guest, or "Mr. Chairman, fellow members" before your own club. If there are distinguished visitors salute them too as "honored guests," nodding slightly in their direction.

You'll speak out clearly, charmingly, too, when you have cultivated your voice with clever exercises like this one. Repeat aloud the meaningless sounds "um," "ni," "po," angrily at first—then sadly, gaily, with surprise.

Duchess of Kent Has Adopted New Hair Style

The Duchess of Kent has decided against continuing the high brushed-up hair style which she tried out during the latter part of the Little Season. The Duke approved the Edwardian effect, which gave the Duchess a marked resemblance to Queen Alexandra.

The Duchess has decided that this style does not harmonize with many day modes. She found it necessary to alter her coiffure by day to suit her hats.

Her hair is now being dressed with a centre parting and two large, loose curls on either side of the forehead, known as "Regency" curls.

Background For Earrings.

The Duchess will poise hats over her Regency curls without difficulty and the small curls at the back will make a softer and more becoming finish than upswept hair.

Have We Gone Very Far?

With all our advancement have we really gone very far? One of the most recent reports from Washington told of information being placed before the Military Affairs Committee dealing with a new and powerful bomb which has been developed in Germany. It is said to be so powerful that it will render every military plane at present in use obsolete because of its having a destructive radius which is so much greater than anything before known.

And that in turn becomes a matter for the Military Affairs Committee to worry about. If possible we suppose the scientists and inventors of United States will proceed to try and make a bomb which in turn would be greater and more destructive than the one Germany is said to possess.

The world has pretty much forfeited the art of producing great music. Today our students and their masters do well if they can properly interpret the works written many years ago.

The world has lost the art of making stained glass windows and attempts to duplicate some of the finer ones on the continent have been classed as nothing better than "crude."

The world's greatest painters lived in the past, nor have we today another Antonio Stradivari who gave tone and beauty to the violins which came from his hands.

We have lost the art of embalming as the ancients in Egypt knew it.

But we can devise new and more horrible ways by which to kill more people in a shorter time. The genius of man seems to be driven in that direction at a more accelerated pace than ever before. So there is a plain enough question—have we actually gone very far?

Used The Term "Traitor"

It would be difficult to say definitely and with accuracy what limits are placed upon parliamentary debate. In our own House of Commons it is not uncommon to find a member making a demand that a certain statement shall be withdrawn. If it imputes a wrong motive it is at once subject to question.

Similar regulations must govern debates in the British House but how strict they are is hard to determine. When Premier Chamberlain made the statement to parliament that the government had decided to recognize Franco as head of the paramount government of Spain, William Gallacher, Communist member, shouted "You should be impeached, you traitor to Britain!" If there were objections taken they were not noted in the despatch.

Certain it is that it would not be possible to call a member of parliament a "traitor" in this country, but it was done in London. The meaning of the word "traitor" is given as "One who betrays his trust; specifically, one who betrays his country; one who is guilty of an act of treason." Even in the heat of debate a sensible person would hesitate to apply such a word to Premier Chamberlain.

Feeding The Pigs

The contest for producing a pound of pork on the least amount of feeding has not been completed. Possibly it never will reach the stage when the last word has been said. Some time ago if people kept books on the farms or weighed things at all it might have been found that it took six pounds of feed to produce one pound of pork. Perhaps seven.

Not more than two weeks ago a farmer in the district informed us (and it was after church on a Sunday morning) that pigs could now be fed so that a pound of pork could be made out of 3 1-4 pounds of feed. And yesterday we were told that the pound of pork had actually been produced on 2.7 pounds of feed. By the time spring has broken upon us we would not be the least surprised to hear that the pound of pork has been made out of two pounds of feed.

It seems to be getting into the realm of a highly scientific business. People who are interested speak in terms of proteins and all such things and keep an eye glued on the scales. They know what's better for the pig than the pig does itself. In former days the pig never squealed for proteins, for carbohydrates nor did it quibble about the caloric count nor the scientific adjustment of its diet. It just seemed to desire above all else to eat until it didn't want to eat any more.

Pigs always had a certain degree of common sense about eating. As we recall it a pig would never eat when it felt sick and therein revealed more sense than a good many humans, but when it was feeling well it always liked bulk. Just what the pig thinks of the idea of getting 2.7 pounds of food instead of the previous six or seven for each pound of finished weight at six months is something which has not been put down on the records. Possibly if the pig were able to say anything about it, he would at once declare he was being exploited.

Not a Good System

It is not uncommon to find on the first page of the official report of House of Commons Debates that some member has risen under the general heading of "Privilege" to deny the accuracy of something published in a newspaper. A few days ago it was J. G. Turgeon, M.P. of Cariboo.

He desired first to deny something which he read in the Ottawa Journal about what had been discussed at the Liberal caucus. Then he turned to the Toronto Star and finally reached the Mail and Globe. Mr. Turgeon claimed that each and every item printed was not accurate and that such questions as were reported in the press were never discussed at the caucus at all. Being the deputy chief government whip, Mr. Turgeon avowed he had been present at the meeting throughout.

When any party goes into caucus the rule is that the door shall be closed. Members of the Press Gallery know well enough the meetings are taking place, but they know they are not permitted to enter. Their business is to try and secure some sort of a statement afterward, but official statements are not forthcoming. Reporters have a fairly good knowledge of what is likely to be discussed, but often enough the amount of actual information they are able to obtain is scant. Members know they can get themselves into plenty of trouble by talking of what took place in party caucus. It may not be as private as a meeting of the cabinet but it has restrictions regarding publicity which are somewhat similar. Nor is there likely to be any change made, so there will continue to be the attempted penetration of the enthusiastic reporter followed shortly after by some member of the House rising under the heading of "Privilege" to utter denial. At best it is a wobbly sort of system.

It May Pay To Kick

When the itinerary of the tour of Their Majesties was first announced Windsor was not on the list at all. Windsor kicked, but nothing was done. Then Windsor kicked some more and kept on at it until it is now announced from Ottawa that "Their Majesties will visit Windsor, Ont., on June 6."

If those in charge of the royal trip had received as many and as vigorous protests from all other places not on the itinerary as they have from Windsor then their time would have been much taken up.

At the moment the Examiner can think of no particular reason why a visit should be paid to Windsor when the entire Kawartha Lakes district has been overlooked. There is nothing particularly beautiful in Windsor; it cannot compare with the glories of our own district in early June.

The trouble may be that in this district we did not protest with sufficient vigor and keep on doing so. We took the attitude that it was a difficult matter to arrange such a long tour for such a limited period during which the entire nine provinces were to be visited. Today it looks as though the community which kicks vigorously receives the most notice.

Election Promises

We cannot at the moment recall of having heard of Representative William J. Pennock, but this gentleman in the state of Washington desires to change the law. He would have elected state representatives add these words to their oath of office:

"I furthermore do promise and swear that to the best of my ability I will endeavor to perform and fulfill all promises made by me during the campaign as the result of which I was elected to said office."

Whether that would help very much is doubtful. A man is apt to promise to try and do a good many things during a political campaign and it is often enough true that an untried and new man is prolific in promising. He has not been in office previously, and for that reason does not realize the difficulties which face him in trying to turn his promises into legislative enactment.

We have also the style of candidate at times who will promise anything under the sun in order to get elected. He may glibly enough promise things which he knows well enough can never be done, and he will be able to say afterward that he tried to get his pledges honored but was unable to do so.

Then if a man goes to office feeling that his chief objective is the carrying into effect of some promise he has made to some group he is to that extent hog-tied. When he accepts office after election he becomes the representative of all the people; he is there to represent those who sought to defeat him just as thoroughly as he is to look after the interests of those who worked for him. If anything short of that is his objective then public life would be much better off without his services.

Who Taught The Pioneers?

A correspondent of the Examiner who said he was not writing for publication, argued by pen that there was not much chance of people in this country extending the range of settlement by making homes in new territory. He put it this way:

"Often enough I read about the pioneers and the pioneer spirit, but we have none of it today. We have not the knowledge which the pioneer possessed. We would know nothing of cutting trees and building houses out of logs. The pioneers had such knowledge and used it. They were trained for their experience by what they had been doing before."

And just where was the training done? Most of the people who settled in Ontario came from the Old Country, where they do not build log houses. Many of them came from the cities. We dare say few of them had ever cut down a tree and there would be only a small number who had any knowledge of building a log house.

Looking up some notes secured several years ago from a gentleman of 82 who was telling of the experience of his father in taking up new land we found reference to this question of what the early settled knew about cutting down trees. It was this:

"Father and his nearest neighbor decided they would work together in clearing their land so they started on a plot where their future farms would join. Neither of them had ever cut down a large tree and were working at it when a man from farther up the country was going through with a team of oxen on the way to the mill. He stopped when he heard the sound of axes and made his way to where the two men were working. He looked at what they were doing and asked if they were trying to kill themselves. They had begun by cutting all the way around the tree which showed they had no idea at all of the direction in which it would topple over. The stranger stopped for a while and lent a hand and gave them a few much-needed lessons in how to notch a tree and then cut so they would not get caught when it fell. The settler also offered to come back later on and show them how to use logs for the building of a house. Before coming to this country my father had been in a spinning mill near Glasgow and his neighbor was a clerk in a store. They knew little enough about the bush and its ways and I have heard father say he would have quit several times but he could not. There was no chance of going back so he had to go ahead."

We always fancied there was a fair weight of truth in those last words: "There was no chance of going back so he went ahead." It was right there that what we call the pioneer spirit was born. It came to the rescue of these people not through desire but from sheer stubborn necessity. They were here and they had to work their own way out. There was no one to give them assistance and most of them were desperately hard up. If we are lacking in the pioneer spirit today it is because as a people we have grown softer. We have come to know we can secure help and we will not be allowed to suffer too much. We are living under conditions which the pioneers did not know, and that is largely the reason why today we refer to them as pioneers, talk about the pioneer spirit and honor the memory of the men who possessed it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now that the "Bump" signs are being posted on the highways one does not need to look at the almanac to see spring is on the way.

Some of the country doctors are having a hard time. The roads are bad and before they get a chance to go out and call on some of their patients they've gone and recovered on their own hook.

Germany is assisting the Jews to leave that country, the method being to furnish 100 names each day of those who must leave at once. It's a fine system only it omits telling them where to go.

Conference of Jews and Arabs in London to try and reach agreement about Palestine is not meeting with success. If that conference ever does come to agreement then there ought to be a chance for the League of Nations starting business anew with some hope of making a go of it.

Word from Moscow says a new battleship was launched, but there was nothing about its length, tonnage or equipment. We read it was not even published where the launching took place. Our knowledge of such matters leads to the belief that it was near some body of water.

WEE ANGUS

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Wee Angus often has a plan, what he will do when he's a man, I fear at times he's rash; when he starts out to calculate, he always takes good care to state, that he must earn some cash.

¶ He planned once how he'd run a store, but doesn't say that any more, the one he thought of quit; he thought of pitching baseball too, he read of salaries they drew, he had a ball and mitt.

¶ The hockey business has him now, it's sprouting big beneath his brow, he saw his way quite clear; Wee Angus figures he'll be great, and figured some time he would make, ten thousand in a year.

¶ He started on the school team then, to scuffle with the little men, goal tending was his lot; some final game they had today, and when they started in to play, I guess 'twas rather hot.

¶ Wee Angus stood there like he ought, he says he stopped an awful lot, they put the blame on him; he stopped a hundred, perhaps more, but when they added up the score, some eighteen had gone in.

¶ Wee Angus never said a word, of hockey futures I've not heard, he mentions not that score; when he was getting off to bed, just one thing then he faintly said—he thought he'd run a store.

Whither Bound Asks Deachman

CHAPTER 7

By R. J. DEACHMAN

IN THE LIGHT of all the facts is there wild extravagance at Ottawa? The mere existence of the debt does not constitute proof. No one defends extravagance. But there are many who attack expenditures without considering the cause. We reason only from intelligent comprehension of what has happened.

We must examine facts—exclamation marks will not get us very far—hasty conclusions are dangerous. If we compare the figures of government expenditures for 1914, the last pre-war, with 1938 they appear astounding. Here they are:

Year	Total Federal Government Expenditure
1914	$188,000,000
1938	$534,000,000

Why so vast an increase in twenty-four years. The previous chapter gives some idea. Here are the details of increase and new items of expense added since 1914.

1. Interest and Management on Public Debt	$123,393,000
2. Pensions, Military	42,000,000
3. Treatment and After-care of Returned Soldiers	12,152,000
4. Unemployment Relief including drought relief	68,532,000
5. P.O. Expense (offset by revenue increases)	20,900,000
6. Old Age Pensions	28,653,000
7. Maritime Freight Rts.	3,182,000
8. Air Services	2,961,000
9. Militia and Defence	20,000,000
10. Government Annuities to maintain reserves	8,941,000
11. R.C.M.P.	5,400,000
12. Special Grants to Provinces	7,475,000
13. Subsidies to Provinces	2,455,000
Total of Increase and New Items since 1914	$345,944,000

Losses on Canadian National Railways not included in this list because the total expenditures on railways in 1914 were almost as great as in 1938.

Can these items be cut down? The interest on the debt must be met—our obligations to returned soldiers must be faced. Relief under present conditions is essential. People cannot be allowed to starve. We are now face to face with the practical problem. What items of this list would Mr. McCullagh eliminate? The question is not answered by exclaiming—"something must be done." Until there is more definite information we have no idea of his intentions. But the query is not addressed to Mr. McCullagh alone—let the business man speak—what has he to offer?

It has been suggested that provincial governments should be eliminated. It could not be done. It would save little if it were done. Historically they are a part of our system — it would take a revolution to move them. In practice it is impossible. It is so remote from the possible that it is hardly worthy of serious comment.

But suppose in some way we could cut expenditures by $100,000,000—something which could not be done by any government—would it solve the problem of today? It would not. Such suggestions are merely pills for Vesuvius—they skim around the surface of the problem. They do not approach even remotely the fundamental facts of the situation.

What Do We Need?

The two things primarily needed in the Dominion of Canada today are, an increase in the national income and a more equitable distribution of the total wealth produced.

In 1926 the total income of the people of Canada was $4,330,000,000. In 1933 it was less—approximately $3,000,000,000. Last year, 1938, it was roughly $3,900,000,000.

What we need in the Dominion of Canada is the restoration of the national income to, at least, the 1926 level. Under a sound economy, the application of which would be opposed by probably two thirds of our businessmen, this would be possible. We cannot do it by cutting the expenses of the Federal government $100,000,000. If that can be done—let's do it—tell us how! What we need is an increase in the national income to $1,500,000,000 above the level of 1933, or an amount, above the 1938 level, equal to the entire expenses of the Federal government.

I am not condemning economy of administration. The Gladstonian tradition has a firm hold upon me, but I do say that cheese paring is not enough. The great problem is to increase the national income. That carries with it increase of purchasing power, elimination of unemployment and relief — the restoration of our railways to solvency and buoyancy in the national revenue. It means too, the return of conditions which will change the static credit situation and start money moving into the channels of business. It settles the whole range of problems which darken the economic horizon—all save one—war—and only God can tell what will happen there.

Poverty and Progress

But coupled with this there is the problem of a more equitable distribution of the wealth of the nation. Only 217,000 people out of Canada's 11,000,000 paid income tax in 1937.

Only 921 farmers had income which brought them into the income tax class. One thousand two hundred and fifty-nine people paid more than half of the entire personal income tax.

This mal-distribution of wealth, far more than the expenses of the Federal government, constitutes a great task for the people of Canada, whether they be Grit, Tory, C.C.F. or members of Mr. McCullagh's Leadership League. I wish I could appeal to George McCullagh upon this question. Neither Mr. McCullagh nor the Globe and Mail has dealt with it in recent years. I am not suggesting s ak-the-rich-policies which are far too often veiled attacks on the pocket-books of the poor. The income tax story reveals the power of privilege. The figures are a challenge to democracy—a barrier to business progress. We cannot have a true democracy unless, at least, the opportunity to acquire a competence is open to all.

• Nazi's New Move Against Church

IT is probable that the plans against the Protestant Church in Germany are not so definitely laid. It is widely believed that Herr Kerri, the head of the State Church ministry, has received an ultimatum from Herr Hitler: he must settle the Church business before the end of this month or forfeit his office. That is the view of a writer in the British weekly. Certainly the Protestant Church believes that drastic measures of some kind will be taken before the month is out.

When Herr Kerri first received office he made an attempt to unify the Protestant Church with help of Dr. Zoelener. He tried to draw together the moderates from all parties and to institute a Church government that would be acceptable to the State and tolerable to those who would remain loyal to the standards of the Church. The right wing of the Confessional Church would have nothing to do with Dr. Zoellner's committees; yet Herr Kerri might have succeeded to some considerable extent had not the Nazi Party stepped in decisively on behalf of the "German Christians" whose "heresies" could not possibly be accepted by the vast majority of Protestants.

Dr. Zoellner died broken-hearted, and Herr Kerri has carried on more and more autocratically and in the interests of the "German Christians" only.

No one supposes that Herr Kerri will "solve" the Church question this month. But future Government action seems to depend in part upon the issue of a struggle of persons and influences within the Nazi Party itself. There is some reason to think that there is considerable tension between General Goering and Herr Ribbentrop with Herr Kerri on the one side, and on the other Dr. Goebbels, Herr Himmler, of the Secret Police, and Dr. Ley, of the Labour Front.

Strangely enough, there are many Christians who hope that in this struggle Dr. Goebbels and Herr Himmler, who hate the Church, will prevail over General Goering and Herr Kerri, who are not openly anti-Christian. Their reason for this preference is their view that General Goering and Herr Kerri would like to organise a National Church which would be nominally Christian, but in which there would be little room for any vital Christianty. Dr. Goebbels and Herr Himmler, on the other hand, would drive the Church into a corner with persecution, but at least it could remain a real Church of Christ.

In any event, the Government is certain to make anti-Semitism a rule for any Church that will escape the severest persecution. I have it on excellent authority, but I have at present no documentary evidence that already the Government has insisted that the Methodists and the Salvation Army dismiss all their members of Jewish or partly Jewish blood, and that these bodies have accepted the ruling.

I hear, further, that Bishop Marahrens has refused ordination to a candidate on no other ground than that he is not a full-blooded Aryan. Before Christmas the Vatican was anticipating a decree forbidding the Church to baptise Jews or to allow any non-Aryan in the priesthood.

What a cry of triumph goes up in the New Testament: the impossible has happened! He hath broken down the middle wall of partition between Jew and Gentile, and made both one! Can the Christian Church go back on that principle and remain the Church of Christ? Will our brethren—Roman Catholic and Protestant—stand firm upon this issue? There is depressing evidence that many of the Protestants will not. But I think it is certain that others will refuse the demands of the State and take the consequences.

• There Has Been Much Talking

OTTAWA, — Tomorrow is the day when Parliament rounds out a full six weeks of its session. The time is quite considerable. On occasions, in periods much shorter the House and Senate have been known to make great accomplishments writes C. L. Bishop in the London Free Press. In 1914, all the stupendous commitments of the Great War effort were concluded — in just a few days. At other times big issues have been disposed of in legislative form, with marked expedition — the great national railway merger in a week or two. This year finds nothing like that to report. No item of legislation has really been advanced, no bill has finally passed, no committee has got beyond the organization stage. A few items of supply — sighting shots as it were — have been sanctioned. It is not a case of obstruction in any sense. If any blame attaches to the process, it is of a contributory character. Just as many Liberals have spoken — more perhaps — than the other groups combined.

✧ ✧ ✧

A certain sensitiveness is indicated about anything which suggests criticism of the way things are going on. When the Conservative leader protested in the House the other day about some editorial comments on the slow rate of getting on with business, applause came from the Government side. The argument is that Parliament, by the very meaning of the word, means a body where there is speaking. No complaint is possible about its paucity. Big national problems, it is urged, call for deliberate consideration and wide scope for opinions from every angle. The specification is being lived up to fully. It is stimulated by the tolerant view of the rule against reading speeches but, since it has become so common on all sides, no one is in a position to object and would not be popular if he did. On certain items of legislation, before the House or to come before it, speeches have been prepared for days awaiting the turn of recital. There would be less objection to them if, with notable exceptions, there was not the ungodly repetition of the same thought, often clothed in a great similarity of expression.

✧ ✧ ✧

And so, though six weeks have gone by without any headway being recorded, and with the Senate bawling out for lack of work, the House is likely to go on precisely as it has been going, taking all the time it wants — perhaps a full month on the trade agreements, for instance. At the end it will go through unchanged in the slightest detail. The dilate, meanwhile, may have recorded some reactions at home or it may be quite forgotten. There is no summary, short circuit, discussion. If it is not on one thing it will be on another. Sometimes a debate arises on a motion to adjourn at the end of the day. What is happening, nevertheless, is wholly within the rules and the privileges of Parliament. If anyone on the outside or the inside is displeased there is really nothing they can do about it, if they want to. Seemingly it will be another three weeks before, in the two Houses and in the committees, they really get up steam.

THE EDITOR'S LIFE.

Yes, an editor has a lot with which to put up. Who has not? He also has a lot to encourage him, if he is an optimist. He sees a great deal of human nature and most of it is good. If one story evokes the cynic in him, the next lifts him to genial urbanity.

By the sheer necessity of being abreast of events and thought, his mind is kept from gathering moss. He works with words, the most fascinating of media. His range is unlimited and even if he has not much money, he does see life; if he has little leisure, he has no boredom. As he does his duty to his newspaper and its readers, to humanity in general, his profession and — not least — himself, as he seeks truth and prints the results according to his standard of good taste, he is bound to bring down on his head occasional protests.

And he considers them too, because he knows he is fallible. Let him therefore have his grumble like others, but in his heart he knows that once the ink has entered the blood, he must go on editing until the end. Nor would he have it otherwise.— Saint John Telegraph-Journal.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

It is evident that British diplomacy is being directed toward an effort to convince the Italian Government that this is not the time to attempt to provoke in the Mediterranean another such crisis as that which led to the Munich settlement. The British have certain strong arguments to support this case. They can point to the substantial progress made since Munich in their own rearmament, to the better state of affairs which exists in France, to the large question whether Hitler would really risk his own ambitions in the East in order to aid Italy in the South. These arguments may not prevail. But they seem at least to have stirred certain doubts in Mussolini's mind. That is one possible explanation of his long and unaccustomed silence.—(New York Times)

FARMERS MODEST.

The member of the Legislature for East Kent, D. M. Campbell says that farmers are asking too much of Governments, which are already sorely pressed for finances. Aside from the wheat growers of the West Mr. Campbell is very much mistaken—and even in the West conditions have been so serious that the requests have mostly been justified.

Here in Ontario the farmers have been no burden on the Government. They have asked and received less in proportion to the ratio of their population than almost any other group. Ontario farmers have an excellent record in this matter.

Agriculture is the backbone of this province mostly because farmers want to be independent and self-supporting. They seldom ask favors. Throughout the period of hard times no class of citizens has asked for less in the way of financial outlay than the farmers.—(Owen Sound Sun-Times)

Hard To Believe How Time Flies

FEBRUARY 28

1909: Council decides not to appoint an industrial commissioner for Peterborough.

Annual curling match between Grits and Tories with seven rinks on each side winds up in a tie with 75 points each.

Strathconas are beaten 13 to 6 by Lakefield Hockey team and lose the round to the northerners.

Peterborough [illegible] Board asks city council for $2000 grant.

Rinks skipped by J. W. McDermid and Ray Best are defeated in the District Cup finals.

Two men are fined $500 in police court for having liquor in a place other than a dwelling.

1929: The city tax rate has been set at 38 mills, an increase of a mill over last year.

Twenty-eight head of cattle are sold at an average price of $90 at the eleventh annual sale of the Peterborough County Short Horn Breeders' Association.

Peterborough rink skipped by Jack Amys and including Don Best, Roger Amys and W. Howden wins the Ontario Junior Tankard, defeating Churchill in the finals 14 to 7.

G. A. Macdonald, H. A. Morrow, W. C. Ackerman, B. D. Hall and Gerald Wood are elected directors of the Peterborough Golf and Country Club.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts.—Isa. lv, 7-9.

✧ ✧ ✧

Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise. For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness. And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore let no man glory in men.—I Cor. iii, 18-21.

To The Editor

NOT LIKE HOME

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I never wrote a letter to a newspaper before and I do not know how editors in general would regard this letter. I am writing it because I do not know how else to make known what I want to say. You may think the letter is silly but the subject does not seem that way to me. Perhaps there are others of whom I do not know who have had a similar experience.

We moved to Peterborough seven months ago from a smaller place where I had always resided. My home was there before I was married and I knew a great many people; had always gone to the same church, and in that way I felt at home.

I have found it different here and I rather expected that, but not to the degree it has turned out. We go to church here and I cannot say people do not speak to me because they do, but they just say "How do you do," and shake hands and pass on. I have gone to several of the meetings held during the week and to meetings other places, but I don't feel at home and I want to.

There were two ladies who called on me shortly after I came and within a short enough time I went and called on them, but that's all there was to it.

Where I lived before we used to do visiting through the day. It was all right to go to a neighbor's kitchen door in the morning and have a chat and the neighbors did the same at our place, but I do not know whether they do things like that in Peterborough. I am told visiting is something which has to be arranged before over the telephone.

There was a woman who called a few days ago and she was selling something or other. It was in the middle of the afternoon and I was so glad to have some person to talk to for a few minutes that I asked her to wait a bit and got her a cup of tea. Perhaps she thought I was a little off but I felt better for having had her in the place. If some person would tell me what to do I'd try it, but don't ever give my name to any one inquiring for it. Now I'll stamp this and get it off before I weaken.

FICKLE FEBRUARY

(New York Sun)

The fog, rain, heat, wind and snow offered in a single February day ought to make March look to its laurels for fickleness.

Lindsay Hears Sleigh Bells Long Silent

LINDSAY, Feb. 28.—Old Dobbin had his innings in this district during the week-end. It certainly looked like old times on Kent street on Saturday as autos gave way to cutters and bob sleighs, and the merry jingle of sleigh bells brought back memories of pre-auto days. The heavy fall of snow which blocked the highway in the country made motor traffic impossible.

As a result the cutter and bobsleigh which had been relegated to the driving shed or behind the barn, was brought into requisition, horses were combed and brushed and harness that had hung for years on the hooks dusted off for use. One merchant remarked on Saturday that there were more horse-drawn vehicles on the main thoroughfare than he had seen in the past 25 years. Sunday's storm, however, aggravated conditions, and traffic was completely tied up on all country roads. Snowploughs were brought into service by the railways as well as the iHghways Departments and were operated all Sunday night and well into the morning hours, keeping the lines and main roads open. As a result trains and busses arrived on schedule.

Baker injured.

Norman William, a baker employed at the local Purity Bakers' plant, was the victim of a serious accident on Sunday morning. As he was working alone in the plant, it is not certain how the accident occurred. It is believed, however, that a key in the mixing machine came loose and a portion of the machine was thrown in the air and struck him on the head. He was found in an unconscious condition by other members of the staff, and he was rushed to the Ross Hospital. His condition was first reported to be of a serious nature, but hospital authorities stated to-day that it was less critical.

Steamer Grounds Calls For Help

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP).—The Radiomarine Corporation reported early to-day the steamship Cumberland had sent a distress call saying it was ashore on Frying Pan shoals off Cape Hatteras, N.C., and in need of immediate assistance.

The signal was picked up at 5.05 a.m. E.S.T. by the steamship Uruguay, a United Sttaes Lines vessel in the South American trade, and relayed to the Radiomarine coastal station at Chatham, Mass.

Radiomarine said the call letters "VCDL" sent by the distressed ship indicated it was of British registry.

The 10,939-ton freighter Cumberland owned by the Federal Steam Navigation Company, of London, left Wellington, New Zealand, Jan. 27 and sailed through the Panama canal Feb. 17.

Operators at Chatham said the Cumberland apparently was having trouble with its radio equipment as the operator aboard seemed not to hear messages sent him but kept repeating the same information, that the vessel was ashore and in need of aid at once.

Japs Advancing

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28—(AP). — Japanese forces on a new westward drive in the middle Yangtse Valley to-day reported advances to a point threatening Shasi, important riverport in Hupeh province.

They said their advance units were within 35 miles north-east of Shasi, 304 miles upriver from Hankow. Other columns were reported to have covered more than half the 175-mile overland route between Hankow and Ichange.

Lantern Explodes While Men Clean Grain Burning Barn–Animals Removed To Safety

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 28.—Fire, caused from an exploding lantern, completely demolished a large barn four miles north of here last night on the farm of Charles Skinkle. Jeremiah Shea of Hastings is owner of the property. The tenants of the farm were said to have been cleaning grain in the granary when the lantern exploded, setting fire to hay in the mow. As far as can be learned, the fire started about 7 o'clock and set up a blaze visible for many miles. The stable was quickly cleared of animals but they were unable to save any hay or grain.

Poor roads held back any outside assistance that may have come to their aid. M. A. Shea, of Hastings, said he was stuck in snow banks several times by car before he could get near the scene of the fire. Telephone communication was impossible due to the line being out of order. It is believe that any effort to extinguish the fire must have been feeble due to the speed that the fire took hold and only few men on hand to rescue the cattle and horses.

Loss to the large 54 x 90-foot barn was covered by insurance.

Two B.C. Members Favors Sweeps

VANCOUVER, Feb. 28.—(CP)—At least two British Columbia members of the House of Commons are in favor of government-controlled hospital sweepstakes, according to letters read at a city council meeting here yesterday.

J. S. Taylor (Ind. Nanaimo) and Olaf Hanson (Lib. Skeena) expressed willingness to support a parliamentary motion to amend the criminal code permitting sweepstakes under government supervision for the benefit of hospitals.

A letter from Angus MacInnis, member for Vancouver-East, said he was "opposed to leaving financing of social services to the proceeds of gambling."

Prime Minister Mackenzie King and five cabinet ministers advised the council the matter would receive their attention.

The letters were in answer to a resolution passed by the city council recently favoring the "sweeps."

The Crow of Croup Worries the Mother

When the child wakes up in the night with a croupy cough, spasmodic croup, it strikes terror to the mother's heart.

The child can scarcely speak, can hardly breathe, and seems to be choking.

There is no time for delay; apply hot poultices to the throat and upper part of the chest, and give Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. We know of nothing better to give prompt relief. It is absolutely safe, does not contain any habit forming drugs, and will help to soothe the infected membranes, stop the irritation and subdue the inflammation.

German, Poles Open Parley

BERLIN, Feb. 28 (AP).—Germany and Poland sought today to solve their respective Polish and German minorities problems at a Berlin conference table.

At the same time a commissioner of the Polish Government was investigating circumstances of the arrest of several Polish students in the Nazi-dominated free city of Danzig after a clash yesterday with German students.

The Danzig clash was one of a series of anti-German manifestations in Danzig and in Poland which started last week before the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, arrived at Warsaw for talks with the Polish Foreign Minister, Col. Joseph Beck. Ciano and Beck were on a hunting trip today.

An official statement at Warsaw said that the government's attitude toward the Danzig disturbances would be determined by investigation of charges that "Danzig police were inactive" and failed to prevent an attack on Polish students.

(Danzig, under Nazi domination, was German before the Great War. The treaty of Versailles made it a free city).

There was no direct connection between the demonstrations by Polish students and the Berlin Polish-German conference.

Representatives of the two governments, under the chairmanship of Baron Ernst Von Weizaecker, German Secretary of State, were attempting to lay the basis for smoother functioning of the 1937 agreement defining the rights of minority groups in the two countries.

Jews Fight Plan That Would End Mandate

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP).—Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald called another informal meeting today between Jewish and British delegates to the Palestine conference in an attempt to keep the negotiations alive.

Authoritative sources said the Jews were steadfastly opposed to a British plan, submitted over the weekend, to end Great Britain's League of Nations mandate over the Holy Land and create instead an Arab state allied with Britain in which Jews would have permanent minority status.

Submission of the plan was followed by an outburst of terrorism in Palestine yesterday and Sunday in which 32 persons were killed and 54 injured.

As cables from organizations in foreign countries poured in urging the Jewish delegation to stand firm, Mr. MacDonald emphasized that the plan was not rigid and might be modified after further discussions. The Jews, however, saw little hope of finding a basis for further official talks. They refused to continue formal discussions but assented to informal talks.

A spokesman of the Jewish agency for Palestine said Dr. Chaim Weizmann, agency head, had told the British delegates that Jews found the plan unacceptable for these reasons:

1. "It ignores Jewish rights to a national home in Palestine."
2. "It gives Jews no safeguards concerning Jewish immigration to the Holy Land."
3. "It places Jews under permanent domination of Palestinian Arabs."

Road To Cemetery Is Badly Blocked

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 28—A gang of men were expected to work all morning to shovel out a road for 300 yards from the main road to Trent Valley cemetery for the funeral of the late Mrs. Jane Johnston, scheduled to take place this afternoon. William McGrayne, caretaker of the graveyard, said that the snow averaged from four to six feet deep.

William Tate, funeral director, said he was using a hearse mounted on runners and horse drawn to reach the cemetery as the road is blocked for cars. The route to the cemetery is known as the river road and is used mainly by farmers in that section.

Cornwall Store Damaged

CORNWALL, Ont., Feb. 28—(CP).—Firemen fought three hours to extinguish a stubborn fire in the Jackson Furniture Company store here this morning. Damage to building and stock, which included display goods in connection with the Robert Simpson Company order office, was estimated at $13,000. The fire was discovered by Tom Wong, proprietor of an adjoining restaurant.

OMEMEE PUCKISTS SEW UP PLAYOFFS WITH NEAT 7-2 VICTORY

Local Juniors Lose Out To The Midgets

LINDSAY, Feb. 28.—Lindsay Midgets are group champions, taking it from Peterborough Monarchs by default last night. A combined team of Monarchs and Colts played an exhibition game, which was won by the faster and heavier Midgets 9-3. The Peterborough team defaulted before the game time, and the fans were notified in a public announcement that the game as an exhibition affair and 263 of a crowd of 1,200 demanded their money back.

It was a free scoring affair which saw the Midgets take the lead after 30 seconds of play. Cook and Brennan combined, with the former stabbing one past Courneyea. Brennan came back alone in two minutes and split the defence for a nice goal. Betts scored on Cook's pass on a ganging play with Mortimer off. Elliott scored alone from the side to end the first period. Rochetta scored Peterborough the first goal in the second alone, when he broke up a Lindsay rush inside the blue line. Deyell was off at the time. Cook and Brennan again combined for a goal.

Foster Scores.

In the third period Foster scored on a lone effort for Peterborough. Cook and Brennan combined for another. Jackson and Dart clicked for one, Brennan and Dart added to the total, and Dart and Cook sailed in to score the last Lindsay goal. Vitarelli split the Lindsay defence to notch a nice one.

Brennan, Cook, Dart and Jackson were best for Lindsay, with Rochetta, Foster and Vitarelli taking the Peterborough orchids.

Peterborough.—Goal, Courneyea; defence, Berwick and DeCarlo; centre, Rochetta; wings, Vitarelli and Foster; alternates: R. Clarke, Mortimer, Mackness and C. Clarke.

Mark St. Wins 8-5 In Juvenile Final

Mark St. won the first juvenile Church League puck playoff with an 8-5 decision over George St. last night at All Saints' rink. They led all the way with three in the first and two in each of the other heats. George St. counted a pair in the middle go and three in the last as they fought hard to tie it up. Mark St. are defending champs, and these two teams were juvenile softball finalists, George St. winning. Carl Ferguson's gang played smooth combination, with Eason getting three goals, Curtis and Ralph two apiece and Scriver one. Curtis, Eason and Scriver were outstanding. Earl Routley and Hamilton did the losers' scoring, the former with three and Hamilton with a brace. Richardson in goal and Henry also stood out for Roy Parnell's squad. The teams:

Mark St.: Goal, Robinson; defence, Agnew, Scriver; centre, Curtis; wings, Eason, Harris; sub, Ralph.

Referee, B. Worsencroft.

He Used To Be a Ring Terror

Maybe you don't remember Joe Choynski when he was one of the better heavyweight fighters, but if you're a ring fan you've probably heard of him more than once. He never held a title, but he was one of the big threats back around the turn of the century. Today he lives quietly in Cincinnati and is something of an antique collector and is seen here with one of his pieces. Looks like some kind of a cribbage board to us.

Murray St. Wins Senior Honors

Murray St. won the senior championship of the Church Hockey League in two straight games, defeating All Saints 2-1 last night at All Saints' rink in a fine fixture. The stubborn All Saints', former champions, put up a stiff fight in a grueling joust with the issue always in doubt. Johnston scored for Murray St. early in the first, but Jones evened it up in the second on a pass from Carpenter. Later in the second, Ellis got the winner for the Baptists.

The victors' defence played a hard bumping game to protect McNabb well. Padgett, along with the goal scorers, went good up front. King had plenty to do in the Anglicans' net, while Seabrooke went best of the defence. Jones shone up front for this squad, which had trouble clicking on passing plays. Padgett probably saved a tying goal near the end when he pulled down Carpenter as he went in, earning a penalty. The teams:

Murray St.: Goal, McNabb; defence, Spencely, Watkins; centre, Johnston; wings, Ellis, Padgett; subs: Wilson, Hawkes.

Referee, J. Dunkerley.

CURLING

By HERB. MARTIN

Tonight we will commence the "Leads and Seconds" bonspiel. This is for a beautiful trophy presented by Ross L. Dobbin. Good prizes will be presented to the winners and runners up. The games will start at 7.30 p.m. and each game will be 10 ends.

The draw:
E. Fisher vs R. Martin
W. Ashby vs P. Patterson
D. Clarke vs F. Jobbitt
M. Wells vs C. Mowry
T. Doughly vs E. Brown

The finals in the consolation of the Neill trophy will be played on Thursday night. It will be between rinks skipped by E. Northey, Lakefield, and George Cairns, Peterborough.

The boys kept J. T. Braund busy yesterday shaking hands. It was his first appearance for some time. It looked like old times again.

Our lady curlers arrived back from the Seigniory Curling Club yesterday morning. We have not as yet been able to have an interview, but when he do we bet it will be good. We hear, indirectly, that our local ladies made quite a hit.

It is likely play for the Sturgeon trophy will begin sometime during the latter part of this week.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Western Clock, Post Office and Peterborough Lock Company leagues shot out 27 men who hit over the 600 mark at Duffus' last night. Mel Starr of the Clockmakers was high man for the evening, his 784 total was only 14 pins short of his own 798 season's record for the league. Gordon Fallon of the Postmen and Bud Goodson, another Westclox trundler, were also in fine form—Fallon whacked off 721 and Goodson inserted the night's best single, 331, in his 702. E. Long of the Lock Works group, missed the charmed circle by five pins—he hit 695 for three games. Miss Aldred and Miss Clancy of the Lock Company counted 457 and 427 (212) each.

The following were some of the other good scores:

Western Clock League: B. McFadden 699; P. Hayden 673 (302); J. Law 644; S. McBride 643; H. Baptie 635; W. Sharpe 637; H. Thompson 609; F. Barrie 609; J. Watson 608; O. Sharpe 611; A. Turcotte 604; G. Dundas 602; R. Curry 601; R. Armstrong 601 and T. Woods 601.

George St. Loses Bantam Playoff

George St. Bantams of the Church Hockey League last night lost a 10-5 decision to St. John's in their first playoff fray at All Saints rink. A late splurge won for the Saints' as they were down 4-3 going into the third but ran wild to tally seven then. Big John Frank notched six of the Anglicans' goals, with Scott getting two and Bond and Clarke one each. Smith tallied three and Carter two for the losers. George St. were minus three regulars, out sick, and promise to even it up Thursday. Two periods were tight but the husky and faster St. John's poured rubber at Quirt in the last part of a clean contest — a brief skirmish at the end calling for league action before the next tussle. The teams:

George St.: Goal, Quirt; defence, Morrow, Greatrix; centre, Smith; wings, Carter, Young; subs: Kingdon, Powell.

St. John's: Goal, Moore; defence, Frank Farrow; centre, Clarke; wings, Bond, Coones; sub, Scott.

Referee, D. Charlton.

Stirling Oilers Fall 6-1 To Combines

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, Feb. 28.— Winding up the regular schedule with a 6-1 victory over the Stirling "Oilers" last evening at the Norwood arena, the Norwood-Havelock "Combines" are now set to enter the Trent Valley Hockey League playoffs. The game was fairly fast and clean throughout, only one penalty being handed out during the tussle. The locals were clearly the superior squad on the evening's play and should be a hard team to beat when the chips are down in the approaching playoffs.

Foxx, brilliant visiting goalie, whose stellar role between the pipes has made Stirling a constant threat, again gave a good account of himself. Morton, Reid, Armstrong and Potter were most effective for the losers.

Led by Doug. Brennan, ex-N.H.L. star, the "Combines" were never seriously threatened by their opponents. Baker playing a smart game in the Norwood nets, practically deserved a shut-out on his night's play, the lone Stirling goal getting past on a fluke shot from behind the cage. Brennan, besides a standout performance on the defence, collected two goals and an assist. Gordie Puffer again notched three goals, which is getting to be almost a habit with this centre star. Despite the fact that he was evidently not hitting his stride, Puffer semed to click whenever in scoring position. McMullen got Norwood's other goal. There were not particular stars on the local squad, every member doing good work, with Bud Webb, new junior recruit, showing to advantage.

"Toey" Ibey, popular Hastings contribution to the "Combines," received quite an ovation from the crowd when he first appeared in the last of the second stanza. Ibey was late getting to the game due to the bad road conditions.

G. Puffer notched the firts Norwood counter with Rogers and C. Puffer assisting. Less than two minutes later Armstrong tallied a lucky one for the visitors, the puck finding its way into the cage on a trick shot from behind the net.

Norwood pressed the attack going into the second stanza. The Combines went into the lead again on Brennan's counter. From the face-off at centre Brennan grabbed the puck, gave it to Richardson, who in turn passed to McMullen, the latter driving one from the blue line to completely fool the Stirling netminder.

The Third Canto.

Two minutes in the final frame G. Puffer made it 4-1 for the locals on a combination play with N. Webb and Rogers. Richardson was outlucked on a clean breakaway, missing the net with no one between him and Foxx. G. Puffer collected his third of the evening, with Rogers and C. Puffer also taking part in the play. A penalty to Rogers for slashing forced the Combines to play short-handed for two minutes. Brennan finally connected for another counter on a solo try. His goal came with less than a minute left in the stanza.

The teams:

Norwood—Goal, Baker; defence, Brennan, Webb; centre, G. Puffer; wings, C. Puffer, Rogers; alternates, Richardson, W. Webb, McMullen, Ibey, Fathwell.

Stirling— Goal, Foxx; defence, Walker, Jones; centre, Morton; wings, Reid, Armstrong; alternates, Potter, Richardson, Dainard.

Referees— Earl Wallis, Stirling; Paul Voyer, Havelock.

Summary:

First Period—

Norwood—G. Puffer (Rogers, C. Puffer) ..9.03
Stirling—Armstrong (Reid) ...9.05

Second Period—

Norwood—Brennan 9.32
Norwood—McMullen (Brennan, Richardson) 9.33

Third Period—

Norwood—G. Puffer (Rogers, R. Webb) 10.04
Norwood—G. Puffer (Rogers, C. Puffer) 10.13
Norwood—Brennan 10.25
Penalty—Rogers.

Manager Paul Thompson, of the Hawks, termed the demotion "a disciplinary measure."

SPORTS—DAY BY DAY

Digging o/t the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

As the senior "B" playdowns begin doing a dwindle, with the end not many weeks away, we note the Waterloo Tigers are expected to tackle Niagara Falls in the next playdown round. Provided, of course, that the Tigers rub out Kitchener Greenshirts and the Falls do a ditto on Brantford. Waterloo has won 11 straight victories, including scheduled games, an exhibition fray in Ann Arbor, Michigan, and two playoffs over Kitchener. The team is managed by George Hainsworth, ex-goalie of Toronto Maple Leafs, and the Bengal Beauties, as some admirers call 'em down that way, are said to be pretty fair. But we imagine the senior "A" Niagara Falls gang—now masquerading in senior "B" ranks—should take them into camp. Who the Petes-Kingston winner meets remains to be seen.

* * * * * *

It's hard to hazard a guess as to which Canadian team in the Mich.-Ont. loop setup will hit into O.H.A. "B" playdowns. Chatham did it last semester and won the title, defeating the Falls easily after our gang lost in semi-finals to the Niagara bumpers. It might be of interest to know that the Chatham Maroons played a 30-game schedule this winter in a doggone strong circuit, trips ranging from 50 to 110 miles — and now they're in a sort of round-robin playoff series. But more again on this section.

* * * * * *

More About The Rink

In passing, here's an item from Bun Morganson's column in the Tely: "If Peterborough comes through with their new rink as expected for next season, the Liftlock City may advance into senior 'A' company. They have done right well for themselves in senior 'B' company. When Kingston, Trenton and Peterborough get a bit stronger in playing ability, they are looking forward to a fling in senior 'A' competition." We are glad to hear it, but 'tis all somewhat vague at the moment and depends upon a lot of factors—some of which will take considerable time yet to arrange.

* * * * * *

The Kingston playoff explanation is: "It is difficult to figure how it all happened but Kingston has been declared winner of the local O.H.A. senior 'B' group, with Royal Military College dropping out. Plans at first were for the team at the end of the schedule to be the winner and enter playdowns. R.M.C. and Kingston entered the last schedule game on even terms and they agreed to hold a playoff. The first game was a tie and the second won by Kingston. The third game was booked for Monday, but by some unusual calculation the last game of the schedule was brought back and the Cadets conceded group honors to Kingston." Guess R.M.C. weren't really interested in the playdowns, but why hold the Petes up to find that out?

* * * * * *

Two Of The Very Best

Well, the Petes parked two gilt-edged goals in the home bank against a rainy day, maybe this coming Friday here, down in Kingston last p.m. with a 6-4 nod. It was the first of a two-game O.H.A. senior "B" playdown series, and it sorta looks like the locals can knock off the Kingstons Friday and advance into provincial semi-finals. But they can't do any loafing here in the return on account of the Limestone City lads flash a flock of speed, puck ability and the old "umph." The Petes expected a soft touch but had to come from behind and battle their heads off to gain a slim margin in the third chukker. A fine fray to witness, with both outfits fairly flying—and the Kingstons matched speed with the lively locals all the way—as the fans kept bellowing approval. Friday's fray will be well worth taking a gander at here, too.

* * * * * *

Kingston copped a 2-1 edge in the first frame yesterday but the Buckland boys tied it at 3-all to end the second. And then finished a bit stronger to gain the duke. A rugged, exciting but fairly clean contest, even if a pair of fights threatened. Don Crowe turned in a swell performance and Ray Harding continued his excellent 1939 net work. Our first line finally got clicking halfway through and looked good, whilst the second line worked like Trojans. Our defence has shown up better, a coupla the Kingston counters catching our rearguardsmen flatter than a pressed pancake. Gow, Gordon, Nicholson and Hewitt were the cream of the crop for Kingston, with the rest of 'em not skimmed milk by any means, either! A nice tilt and a fine win.

* * * * * *

Midgets And Microbes

Our junior "C" Monarchs bowed out of the group finals in Lindsay yester gloaming, via the default route. Beggs, Giardino, Connelly, Cauley and Morrison—five local regulars—were all abed with the 'flu, so the Monarchs bolstered up with several of the junior "B" Colts. Played an exhibition fray in Lindsay, instead, as 263 of the 1,200 fans demanded their dough back—when 'twas announced at the start that Monarchs had defaulted the playoff. Midgets stepped out as smooth as satin and deadly as a machine gun nest to rattle the rope back of Courneyea for a 9-3 smirk. And thus endeth that chapter, Lindsay earning the group title handily—and our congrats to 'em—but a miserable 'flu microbe or germ getting an assist on the windup melee!

* * * * * *

Three Church Hockey League playoffs were staged on rather soft ice last p.m. at All Saints' rink. Murray St. Seniors won the title in their second straight nod, a 2-1 score o'er All Saints. Mark St. Juveniles took the first of their finals over George St. by an 8-5 count. And St. John's Bantams copped the first of their final serial with a 10-5 chuckle over George St., seven goals pouring off the Saints' sticks in the last period. Games there tonight are: George St. vs. St. John's in the second bantam final at 6.00, Mark St. vs. George St. in the second juvenile final at 7.15' and St. Paul's vs. All Saints at 8.30 in a junior final.

New Rulers Expected In Badminton Tilt

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP)—Badminton, the game of sustained volleying which was imported to Canada from England half a ventury ago, had its 1939 national premiere here tomorrow with the start of the Canadian amateur championships.

Although 1938 titleholders will defend their crowds with but one exception the glittering array of talent indicated that at least one or two of the divisions might hail new rulers after final play Saturday. The throne left vacant is in the women's singles section whose queen, Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., Toronto, is in England in an attempt to annex all-England honors.

BIG WOLF KILLED

KEDLESTON, Sask — (CP). — Largest and most vicious coyote of this district, 50 miles north of Regina, was shot by Arthur Thompson, a trapper. The 45-pound brute was shot after he had broken loose from a trap.

Stays On The Ice

Leading player in the N.H.L. who has yet to visit the penalty box this year is Doc Romnes, ABOVE, Toronto Maple Leaf centre. When with Chicago Black Hawks, from whom the Leafs secured him shortly after the start of the present campaign, Doc won the Lady Byng trophy for efficient and gentlemanly play in the 1935-36 season, and is again a possibility for the award.

Football Stars Demand Pound Raise

LONDON, Feb. 27.—(CP Cable.)—English Football League officials to-day considered demands of players who threatened to strike if fatter pay cheques and better all-round conditions were not forthcoming.

The players, said to represent 81 of the League's 88 clubs, after a "secret" meeting yesterday, demand a salary boost of one pound, bringing their weekly stipends to nine pounds (about $42) for the playing season.

International stars were among the players who informed the players' union they wanted a minimum of four pounds weekly throughout the year. They also sought more compensation for injured players.

Doubling of cup-tie bonuses and talent money payable to clubs finishing at the top of the four divisions, were other advantages demanded by the socceriles. They also sought representation on the English Football League Jubilee Fund Committee which controls a £100,000 fund to assist needy players.

The English Football Association calls for a minimum salary of £208 (980) annually but the League rule stipulates a "reasonable" wage, the players said. They charged many clubs are not paying the Association minimum.

Locals Beaten In 2nd Fray District Group

Omemee Black Hawks sewed up the District Hockey League playoffs with a 7-2 victory over the Peterborough Aces before a good crowd in the Omemee arena. Aces had won the first game by a slim margin, and the deciding tilt is billed for Thursday evening in Omemee, winner going into the O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns.

Last night, the O's were fairly flying and earned the decision handily. After a scoreless but rough first frame, the Hawks stepped out and took a 3-1 edge in the second period, and finished a fine evening off with a 4-1 margin in the third. They had more speed, combination and checking ability on the night's play than their rivals. It was a fast, exciting fixture throughout, rough in spots, with 11 penalties drawn.

Fine In Goal.

Fisher turned in a fine effort in the winners' net with Brooks also most effective, while the whole squad looked good in this encounter, the scoring being well spread around. Currie kicked out a bunch in the Aces' cage, and R. Courneyea and Mortimer were probably the pick of the losers, all of whom battled their heads off in a losing cause.

Both sides threatened in the first but failed to counter, and much of the action was with one or more players in the penalty slot. In the second, Jamieson and Weir combined for a pair early with Brooks adding one late on Brockley's aid, and Mortimer from White scoring just before the bell. A. Courneyea got the Aces' second goal to open the third but the O's countered with four in a row, Prete scoring a pair, T. Parsons one and Brooks the last tally, Jamieson and Brockley getting an assist each. Aces' penalties proved costly, the losers having eight of the 11 handed out.

The teams:

Aces—Goal, Currie; defence, Vitarelli and O'Leary; centre, R. Courneyea; wings, A. Courneyea and Wright; alternates, White, Mortimer, Connelly and Hill.

Omemee—Goal, Fisher; defence, T. Parsons and Prete; centre, Gilbert; wings, Weir and Jamieson; alternates, Williamson, Brooks, Ellis and Brockley.

Referee, Lou LeBarr.

Summary:

Player Cut Over Eye

HASTINGS, Feb. 28.— Bill Herrington, aged six, received a long gash over the eye here Monday during a hockey practice for the Hastings Bantams and was removed to Dr. W. N. Campbell's office, where six stitches were required to close the wound. Gilbert Herrington, father of the boy, said he was fortunate to escape worse injury in view of the fact that the wound was just about half an inch over the eye. Bill will join his class mates despite his injuries.

PETES YANK OUT A 2-GOAL EDGE OVER KINGSTON IN FIRST

Locals Grab Off A 6-4 Decision In Senior "B" Playoff To Carry Home A Slim Margin

A third-period rally gave the Petes a 6-4 nod over Kingston last night in the Jock Harty Arena in Kingston in the first game of their home-and-home O.H.A. senior "B" playdown series. With goals to count on the round, the locals carried home a two-goal edge for the return fray here on Friday night.

Nearly a thousand fans whooped it up in a redhot number, with the Petes having to hustle plenty every minute to gain the nod. It was a lightning-fast fixture on perfect ice, speedy, clean and exciting all the way—with both sides playing a rugged game. The score was 2-1 for the home crew in the first period and tied at 3-all to end the second.

The Petes lasted a bit better, and that was about their only edge. Feeling confident they could trim the Kingstons, the Petes nearly ran into a surprise when the found a squad that skated as fast as them and played a hard, classy game of hockey. It was a match that kept the spectators yelling throughout as play swept from end to end fast and thrills piled upon thrills. The 2-goal margin was a fair indication of play with the Buckland boys looking a trifle stronger in the third.

Both Shine

Crowe and Harding were outstanding for the Petes in a fine showing, while the Starr-Tompkins-Kingdon line clicked well the last half of the game. The rest of the crew toiled hard and looked real good in spots while going only fair at other times. The Petes played an up-and-down game, sparkling at times and other times looking a bit disorganized from their lengthy layoff. The fresher Kingstons turned in a flashy brand of hockey, with fast stepping and neat combination to press often, besides checking hard. Gordon and Gow were best for them on the attack, while Nicholson and Hewitt shone defensively.

They opened it up at a hot clip, and Harding early thefted Scrutton on one. Kingston looked better throughout the first period but a penalty to Scrutton for boarding gave the Petes a chance to press hotly. No damage was done and later Gow got around defence alone to blaze one into the Petes' cage. Crowe came back right afterward to tally, going around the net on a nice solo effort to fool Hewitt. The homesters continued to threaten and they made it 2-1 near the finish when Gow took Nicholson's pass at point-blank range to sink it deep in the twine back of Harding.

Take An Edge

Right after the second heat opened, Kingston made the count 3-1 as Roberts picked up his own rebound off the boards and batted it home with no one bothering to check him near the Petes' twine tepee. Nicholson came close on another and then the Petes began to press hard. Creighton nearly notched one and a minute later Crowe tore down the rink on a fine lone drive, split the defence and parked the puck in the home net. Weir went off for boarding and Kingston threatened till his return with five players up. Later, Stoness and Crowe were waved away for roughing it at defence and the fans were roaring at the hot action. Gardner nearly got through defence and then, with all back, play was fast and quite even. Stoness drew another wave for tripping and the Petes pressed without avail. Just before the close, they tied it up when Starr's corner shot on Kingdon's pass went in off a Kingston defenceman's stick.

Gordon was robbed by Harding to open the third and, when Tompkins went away for tripping, Kingston did everything but tally. Later a rush by Kingdon and Starr drew gasps and then Tompkins tallied in close on Kingdon's rebound. Gordon was gated for slashing and the Petes tore in again, finally scoring when Tompkins whizzed fast around defence and rifled the puck into the hemp. Kingston sent four up on the attack and made the Petes hustle, Kosick pulling a fine try inside defence but being blocked by Harding. Gow finally got another on a corner pass-out from Scrutton, batting it in like a shot. Weir was sent off for tripping and Kingston swarmed in hotly to do everything but counter, till all were back again. Kingston had an edge on their ganging up but the Petes scored the last one, a minute before the finish, when Nichol counted on a partial breakaway, having just one defenceman to beat and doing a neat job of it.

The teams:

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Gardner and Gray; centre, Kingdon; wings, Tompkins and Starr; subs, Coughlin, Nichol, Creighton, Weir and Crowe.

Kingston: Goal, Hewitt; defence, Nicholson and Roberts; centre, Gordon; wings, Gow and Scrutton; subs, Hagen, Crawford, Boyd, Kosick and Stoness.

Referee, "Bouncer" Holway of Belleville.

With All That Space Can't An yone Get the Puck

Tiny Thompson, Detroit Red Wings' goalie came way out of his goal to make a save from Cecil Dillon of the Rangers, but there was none of the enemy around to pick up the loose puck as it slid harmlessly by the nets after Dillon's shot had been deflected. Thompson and Dillon (8) are down on the ice at the RIGHT, while Ebbie Goodfellow swoops around his own goal to get at the puck. Clint Smith, Ranger centre, is coming in at it from the other side, pursued by Goodfellow's defence partner, Scotty Bowman.

Tweed Terriers Eliminate Trenton 8-1

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 28. — With their backs to the wall and facing elimination, the Tweed Terriers went to town at the local arena on Monday evening and trounced the Trenton Couriers to the tune of 8-1. Featuring wide open hockey and speed all the way, both teams opened up and put on best exhibition of the season. As a result of the win over the Couriers, the Terriers are assured of a position in the playoffs of the Trent Valley League.

Tweed opened the scoring in the first period, when Elsbury took a pass from H. Leal. However Trenton came back near the end of the period to tie the counter when Ingles sunk a three-way pass from Lott and N. Johnson. Penalties were handed out freely in this canto, with Heaney, J. Corr, Cain and Wager going to the box, Heany making the trip twice.

While keeping the Couriers off the score sheet in the second period, the Terriers rapped in six counters, with the Elsbury-Courneyea team in the limelight. Both these players put on a grand exhibition of combination, resulting in Courneyea scoring on two passes from Elsbury, and on one pass from H. Leal in this canto, while Elsbury secured one counter from Courneyea and then sunk one behind Steenburg on a solo rush down the ice. Meraw, on the second front line of the Terriers, counted the sixth counter of the period on a rebound off Steenburg's pads after he had stopped a shot from W. Leal. LeMoree, Lamorre and Meraw got the gate in this period for roughing, with LeMorre having two trips to the timekeeper's bench.

One More For Terriers

Attempting to stave off defeat in the last period, the Couriers put on a five man offensive throughout the last period, but the Terriers kept the Trentonites off the score pad, with their close checking, and the spectacular work of Reeves between the pipes, as he stopped shots from all angles. His brilliant playing in this period was the standout of the game. The only goal of the period was scored on a breakaway when Courneyea took the rubber down the ice and passed to French Leal, who sunk the counter. Tummon went to the box near the end of the period, and the Couriers, with the one man advantage, tried to cut the lead, but were held at bay by the Tweed boys.

As a result of the game, the fast-stepping Couriers from the south have been eliminated from the playoffs for this season. Hard luck and injuries have dogged this team since the middle of the season, when they lost some of their best players.

On the night's play, Reeves in goal, and Elsbury and Courneyea were the standouts, with the latter two players accounting for six of the eight counters, each tallying three. For the Couriers, Steenburg in goal, although the victim, certainly prevented the Terriers from increasing the count.

Summary:

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP).—Baseball men can't see how Ted Williams, the slugger from St. Paul, can miss with the Red Sox this season. . . Lew Tendler, ex-lightweight star, is slinging hash in Miami—in his own joint, of course. . . Friends are worried about John K. Tener, former president of the National Baseball League, gravely ill here.

The Dodgers are saving Burleigh Grimes' old number (13) for Van Mungo, if and when he shows up.... Rudy York's decision to transfer from an outfielder to a catcher for Detroit disappointed American League sluggers who were looking forward to bouncing a few off his dome this summer....What we want to know is whether last week's Galento-Feldman fight was postponed a day because of (A) threatening weather; (B) a chilling wind; (C) showers (as three different agencies reported) or a row over the referee?

The biggest man on the Cincinnati Red squad—235-pound Ernie Lombardi—is the lightest eater. . . Also he's the lustiest hitter....Arrivals from the coast say Maxie Rosenbloom is making dough head over heels via his night spot, the films and the radio and spending it the same way.....Jack Dempsey and Billy Taub, the broadway clothier, have opened a suit foundry in Miami.

Joe Jacobs and Tony Galento get back from the south to-day or to-morrow....Bill Terry has assigned himself to the third base coaching job with the Giants this year....By the way, what's become of Sonja Henie? . . . The Cards are the only National League club without an ex-member of the Yankee farm system on the roster.

The boys in the New York AP building had a tough time keeping their minds on their work yesterday what with Megan Taylor, the British skating champ, doing her stuff on the Rockefeller Centre outdoor rink across the street....Trade papers say the bookies are forming a bloc to try to keep Don Meade out of New York....The return bout between Mickey Farber and Al Davis, arch lightweight rivals, will go into the Garden March 17 as a St. Patrick's Day feature.

Goodyears Whip G-Men 2-1 Second Straight

Oshawa yet may win the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A title, but if they do—and the odds against them are mighty high—they'll go down in history as one of hockey's greatest comeback clubs.

Favored by their home ice, the strong Oshawans bowed to Toronto Goodyears last night for the second successive time, Goodyears need but one more win in the best-of-five series to retain the crown they won last season. The score was 2-1 with the Oshawa tally coming in the final minutes after the winners sheathed their scoring sticks.

Goodyears, undefeated in 24 league and playoff games this season, were hard-pressed to eke out the win. The third game will be played at Toronto on Friday, where Goodyears took the series opener last Friday 3-1.

As in the opening game, Goodyears got the jump by scoring the first two goals with Irish Johnny O'Flaherty playing a prominent part. Jerry Cooper was given credit for the lone Oshawa score when his shot, little more than two minutes from the end of the game, was deflected into the Toronto nets.

O'Flaherty, sometimes called "Peanuts" by his teammates because he used to sell that product as a candy butcher in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens, snared the first tally after 8.12 of the third period with a shot that never left the ice. O'Flaherty has figured in the five goals scored against Oshawa in the two playoff games.

Johnny Inglis made the score possible with a perfect pass to the Flying Irishman in front of the Oshawa nets. An Oshawa ganging attack with Goodyears short through a penalty backfired to give Toronto their second goal.

Blondy Sutcliffe, O'Flaherty, and Frankie O'Brien combined for the breakaway score with Captain Sutcliffe netting. Sensational work of the opposing goalies, Peg Hurst of Oshawa and Herbie Mortimer of Toronto, kept a crowd of 2,500 in an uproar throughout.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—Perhaps the happiest of the New York Yankees to open the world champions' training camp is Wesley Ferrell, veteran hurler who had some bone chips removed from his elbow last fall. Ferrell used his old-time wind-up and did his first hurling stunt without difficult. He says he has lost the dull ache that was in his arm for years, adding "all I want is a chance." In his hey-day Ferrell never won fewer than 20 games a season.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark.—Although Manager Billy Terry of New York Giants claims his present team is good enough to win the National League pennant, he's still looking for a trade with Jimmy Ripple as bait. He says Ripple is too good a player to sit on the bench. But every time he tries to start a deal the other clubs demand Mel Ott or Joe Moore.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Freddie Hutchinson, the expensive rookie, hasn't had a chance to show his stuff in the eDtroit camp but Manager Del Baker thinks he'll do. Baker was favorably impressed by Freddie's calm manner and decided his disposition at least was up to major league requirements. The Tigers' two question mark pitchers, Schoolboy Rowe and Dizzy Trout, both reported at playing weight.

ORLANDO, Fla. — Washington Senators don't quite know what to do about Charley Gelbert, the veteran infielder they grabbed in the draft last fall. They figured to trade Cecil Travis to Detroit, but the deal fell through and now both Gelbert and Ossie Bluege are around for extra infield duty .

FOUR-SPEED BIKE

LONDON — (CP). — A four-speed bicycle hub gear is to be marketed here shortly.

Tweed High Whips Bancroft Fliers

TWEED, Feb. 28.—In a wide open exhibition game at the local arena on Saturday night, the Bancroft Fliers were downed 6-0 by Tweed High school. Both teams played wide open hockey, and it was only the spectacular work of Wager in goal that prevented the Fliers from entering the score sheet.

G. Wager was the standout of the game with five of the six counters for the Tweed boys. With a little more practice in faster company, the Bancroft Fliers should round out into a fast team, able to hold their own against any opposition.

Nazi Triumvirate Becomes Auto-Minded

Radio Corporation's Profit 30 Cents Share

NEW YORK, Feb. 28—(AP).—Radio Corporation of America and subsidiary companies reported today net profit for 1938 of $7,412,072, equivalent to 30 cents a share of common stock, compared with net profit for 1937 of $9,024,858, or 42 cents a common share.

The report showed that after payments of dividends totalling $5,993,466, the corporation closed the year with increases in its working capital, cash and surplus as compared with 1937.

Announcing a television service will begin in the New York area with the opening of the New York World's Fair April 30, the report added: "Before network television service, comparable to existing sound broadcasting facilities, can be realized many economic and technical requirements will have to be met.

"Means must be developed for interconnecting stations, either by radio or cable. The establishment of television stations in network connection is a long-range program, and it will probably require many years to achieve, first, regional, and ultimately national network service."

$8,100. Annual cost at Lethbridge averages about $4,000, but a storm last November cost $6,000, so costs will be up there, too.

Snow removal costs at Vancouver so far have reached $4,000, about the same as usual.

Ontario centres with comparatively heavy snow removal costs include London, Hamilton and Kingston. At London snow removal has required so far $26,000, more than the entire cost last winter. The Hamilton cost of $15,000 also is heavier than 1937-38, as is the Kingston figure of $10,000.

Peterborough Fortunate.

The cost at Niagara Falls has reached $4,300, double last year's total appropriation. Peterborough has spent $6,500 to date against $12,000 for the full season last year. Kitchener reports expenditures of $7,050, against $9,250 in all of last winter. Stratford has jumped from $1,713 to $1,900, St. Catharines from $3,239 to $4,150, Galt from $2,000 to $2,350.

Guelph has spent $3,400, while Woodstock expenditures total $950 compared with $971 last year.

The cost to date at Windsor is $7,941, against $2,674 last year. Welfare workers do much of the snow removal work at Windsor, but as they are working out welfare and not paid in cash this is not included in snow removal costs.

Schools To Reopen On Monday, March 6

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28. — Schools which have been closed here since February 20 are scheduled to reopen next Monday, providing there is no change in the present diminishing trend of the scarlet fever epidemic, according to a statement given The Examiner by Dr. F. de F. Free, local M.O.H. last night.

Schools have remained closed during the past week as a precautionary measure, when it was found that several of those affected had been attending school. Nine homes are still in quarantine and although all have a mild type of infection it is felt that precautions should not be relaxed until conditions are definitely improved. The ban on theatres, skating rink and library will be lifted simultaneously with the reopening of school next Monday.

Milk Provides Fresh Supply Energy Daily

Importance of Milk as a Food.

It is by no means sure that we know all the attributes which the perfect food should have, but we can at least discuss some of them. We need, every day, a fresh supply of energy. Milk gives this and is cheap. The equivalent energy value in the firm of other widely used foods is more expensive.

PROTEIN—Milk is a good muscle builder. It is rich in protein which is required for muscle building. A child cannot grow and form strong muscles without protein; a full grown adult cannot keep his health without.

A quart of milk yields more than an ounce of pure protein of the highest quality. That is more than one-third of the total daily protein required of an adult.

LIME—Milk is a good tooth and bone builder, for it contains plenty of lime, and children particularly need lime. One cup of milk contains as much lime at 3½ cups of carrots, 7 eggs or 42 slices of bread.

MILK SOLIDS—Though milk is often considered as a liquid not much above the consistency of water, it really contains 13 per cent of solids which is more than is contained in onions, beets, carrots, squash, pineapple, turnips, oysters, cabbage, radishes, cauliflower, spinach, watermelon, pumpkin, tomatoes, asparagus, celery, lettuce or cucumbers.

In a pint (or one pound) of milk there is more dry solid food than in one pound of any of the above mentioned foods.

FAT AND SUGAR—Milk is an excellent source of fat in the form of cream, which with its milk-sugar is of great value.

VITAMIN A—Moreover, it is an excellent source of Vitamine A.

Professor Sherman of Columbia University states in his book on Chemistry of Good and Nutrition, that of the 3 vitamins, A, B and C, vitamin A is the factor of greatest practical importance of nutrition and health because so many of our staple foods are poor in vitamin A.

A diet, poor in this vitamin, causes widespread weakening of the body and increases its susceptibility to so many infectious diseases.

The relatives values of vitamin A in many of the common foods are:

Apples	250
Bananas	1,500
Butter	8,000 to 22,000
Carrots, raw	10,000 to 30,000
Cod Liver Oil	80,000
Egg Yolk	27,000
Lemon Juice	50
Milk	1,000
Tomatoes, canned	2,700
Orange Juice	350

A professor and his wife for five years took cod liver oil (rich source of vitamin A) daily and report that during this time they have been practically free from ordinary colds.

In the British Medical Journal is mentioned the effect of vitamin A on pregnant women. A significant reduction in morbidity was reported following the administration of this vitamin A.

Where all over Canada the infant death rate is fast decreasing, the deplorable fact is also reported that the death rate from infection in child-birth is not decreasing, but is increasing.

Perhaps this is due to the fact that in isolated settlements the help of a doctor or nurse is not always available.

To know that the resistance of the body against infection can be increased by the use of vitamin A (in milk and cod liver oil) is of the utmost value.

We will not go into details regarding the other vitamins contained in milk, but remember that milk is one of the most digestible of foods as it has a digestibility from 97 to 98 per cent, and is not surpassed by any other foods.

This brief and clear discussion of vitamins will help many to appreciate their importance more clearly. They are a very important part of our diet.

Not A Complete Food

Even if milk is such a valuable food mankind could not keep in perfect health by using nothing but milk. It is not a dependable source of all the vitamins, nor does it contain sufficient iron, and infants and young animals restricted entirely to milk develop anemia after considerable periods. The diet of normal children should include a quart of milk daily, supplemented with a wise selection of other foods—orange juice, cod liver oil and green vegetables. Normal adults may wisely include at least a pint of milk in their daily diet.

OBITUARY

MRS. WESLEY REYNOLDS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, Feb. 28. — The funeral services for the late Mrs. Wesley Reynolds, nee Olive Irwin of Bethany, were held from the John Anderson funeral home, Lindsay, on Thursday and were largely attended.

The Rev. Clarence Ferguson of the United church, Bethany, officiated and spoke on the words from the 9th chap. of Acts, 36th verse, 'A disciple called Dorcas, this woman was full of good works.'

Mrs. Reynolds had been in fragile health for some time and a week previous to her death had been removed to Ross Memorial Hospital.

She is survived by her husband, her aged mother, Mrs. Jane Irwin, relict of the late Thomas Irwin of Fenelon Falls, a sister, Edwina, Claude and Russell of Lindsay, Jack of Toronto, Howard of Clifton Springs, N.J., Pearl, Mrs. Max Ford, and Ruby, Mrs. Hughes, both of Detroit.

One sister, Elizabeth, nee Mrs. H. Fallis of Bethany, predeceased her. The floral tributes were very beautiful, bearing mute testimony of the high regard in which the deceased was held.

Interment was made at Riverside cemetery, Lindsay. The pallbearers were Sam Burton, Herb Chantler, Thomas Parsons, Herb Fallis, Frank Hazelton and George Kerr.

Among those who attended the funeral from Bethany were Mr. H. Fallis, George Fallis, Otto Spencer, Mrs. Frank Bigelow, Mrs. C. Rowan, Harry Bigelow, Frank Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. I. Morton, W. Rodwell, Hector Morton, Lou Staples and Beatrice Morton.

MISS HELEN E. CAMERON.

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 27.— The funeral of the late Helen E. Cameron was held Friday afternoon, February 24th, 1939, at 2 o'clock from the residence of her brother, R. Y. Cameron. Rev. F. W. Newell, of Hastings, officiated. Interment was at the Cameron's cemetery. The late Miss Cameron passed away after a lingering illness, borne with Christian fortitude. Of a quiet, unassuming nature she made many friends at Trent River while she lived here. She was born in Asphodel, the daughter of the late Donald Cameron and Catherine Neilson. Surviving are one sister, Mrs. J. A. Hope, and four brothers, Robert Y. Cameron of Otonabee, Hugh M. Cameron of Asphodel, David Cameron, of Peterborough, and William Cameron of B. C.

New Measures

In addition, Mr. Leader complained the bull schemes were not properly advertised and many farmers were ignorant of them.

Ireland Grabbing Lead

Ireland was beating Canada badly in the United Kingdom market and one way to meet that situation was for the government to take steps necessary to provide regular shipments from Canada.

Miss Agnes Macphail, U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce, believed a committee inquiry would lead to commodity marketing schemes under marketing boards and supported the proposal. Agriculture should take a leaf out of the manufacturers' book and see that export prices were not allowed to control domestic prices for farm products.

The entire day's sitting was devoted to farm problems, the main debate coming on a resolution calling for payment by the government of a fixed minimum price of 95 cents a bushel on wheat at the country elevators. This also with withdrawn.

C. E. Johnston (S.C. Bow River) moved the wheat resolution and quoted a mass of figures to support his contention that a minimum price of 95 cents a bushel at the local elevators, based on No. 1 Northern, was no more than enough to assure the grower an even break.

John Blackmore, member for Lethbridge and leader of the Social Credit group, offered to reveal the details of Social Credit which he said would enable the government to finance the resolution without paying interest in borrowed money.

Social Credit Blocked

Speaker Casgrain ruled that the Social Credit leader could discuss only the principle of the resolution and not monetary matters, and refused to permit him to discuss social credit. Mr. Blackmore said his group would create opportunities to discuss it later.

Mr. Gardiner said the government's new policy was one he hoped would embody the best principles of representations received from interested parties, and of the systems adopted by other great producing countries. It would not be as costly as the present system operating in Canada, whereby the Prairie farmer is assured 80 cents a bushel for No. 1 Northern at Fort William.

During the past 31 years western farmers had received an average of about 95 cents a bushel for their wheat, and they were not asking for government guarantee that this price would continue. The duty of the government was to those who had entered the western areas at the start of the present difficult times and had not benefited from the earlier prosperity.

E. E. Perley (Con. Qu'Appelle) urged the government not to "scuttle" the Canadian wheat board and asked the minister to make an early detailed announcement of government's policy. An investigation of the manner in which the board had handled the 1938 crop should be made before the system was condemned.

Objections From East

Eastern farmers objected to special treatment of the western farmers, cost of which had to be born by eastern farmers who were in difficulties and were not receiving similar assistance.

Arthur J. Lapointe (Lib. Matapedia-Matane), Herve Brunelle (Lib., Champlain), and H. A. McKenzie (Lib., Lambton-Kent) called attention to the plight of eastern farmers and urged that any policy of farm aid adopted should apply to all.

A tariff policy that would make necessities of living and necessities of production available to farmers at a price more consistent with the prices they must accept for their products was advocated by T. C. Douglas (C.C.F. Weyburn).

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) declared the time had come when partial methods of farm aid were not sufficient. With respect to wheat he said it was necessary to set up a marketing board representative of the wheat growers, to handle all wheat.

Costly Smoke

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 28 (AP).—Lonzo Stokes, 39, came into court as a spectator and left as a prisoner. In the course of a trial he lit a cigarette. Judge John Spence sentenced him to 10 days in jail for contempt of court.

Miners Stage Strike 500 Feet Below Surface

In the damp, cold surroundings of a coal mine, from 250 to 500 feet below ground level, 59 miners in Hazelton, Penn., staged at sit-down strike in an attempt to secure wages which they claim are owing to them for work done in January. Sickness forced three of the original number to the surface, but the rest carried on, cheered to some extent by playing cards and listening to a radio sent down by friends. Here Rev. Joseph Baran stands in water accumulated in the mine shaft and appeals to the men to return to the surface.

Luther A. Denike Dies In Campbellford

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28. — A widely known resident of this district for the past forty years, Luther A. Denike passed away on Monday morning. In his seventy-fourth year Mr. Denike was born in Rawdon Township, the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Denike. After spending his early years on the land in Rawdon he later moved to Seymour Township, where he took up residence on a farm just outside the town limits with his late wife, the former Elizabeth Gay. In 1919 Mr. Denike purchased the grocery business which was then being conducted by Charles O'Connor, and built it up in succeeding years to one of the finest in the town of Campbellford. Twelve years ago in 1927 he retired from the business, which he handed over to his son Harry, and since that time has lived a retired life with his garden and home being his chief interests. Until two years ago he was a familiar figure on the street with a ready smile and cheery word for everyone, but his health has been gradually failing him and he had been confined to bed for several weeks before his death.

Predeceased by his wife five years ago, he is survived by one son Harry of town.

The funeral service will be conducted from the residence of Mrs. James Saunders, Second Street, on Wednesday afternoon by the Rev. Harold B. Neal, and interment will be made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

Chamberlain's government, which has a Conservative majority. They proposed a motion in the House of Commons declaring recognition of Franco is "a deliberate affront to the legitimate government of a friendly power is a gross breach of international traditions and marks a further stage in the policy which is steadily destroying in all democratic countries confidence and good faith in Great Britain."

Every nation was watching closely for General Franco's next move (government sources in Washington said it was only a matter of time before the United States would recognize officially the nationalist regime.)

As ruler of Spain, whose possession strategically dominate British-French trade lines, Franco's decisions can have a vital bearing on mastery of the Mediterranean.

And Franco, who has at present an army of 1,000,000 men has asserted Spain must be considered in any Mediterranean adjustments.

Mr. Chamberlain's statement that Franco intends to secure Spain's traditional freedom did not satisfy critics who demanded to know whether Franco intended to remove Italians and Germans from Spain. The Prime Minister declared "assurances have been received," but regardless of that "the recognition is unconditional."

It was expected that Britain would choose a career diplomat for the Burgos ambassadorship.

Captive Eagle Grows Tame In Rawdon Barn

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 28. — Carl Fleming, farmer on the 7th Concession of Rawdon township, brought down a large eagle which he keeps housed in the granary of his barn. The bird is thought to be of the American Bald Eagle type, it was wounded in the wing when captured but is recovering from the injury and struts contentedly about the granary feeding regularly on the carcass of a lamb. Its wings measure seven feet when spread.

Uruguay shipped 88,000 tons of refrigerated meat to other countries in 1938.

HIT BY EPIDEMIC

The prevailing epidemic of colds or influenza or whatever it may be called has not spared the police force. Constables McGillen and Menzies are confined to their homes through illness as is Traffic Officer Lloyd McClure.

PLAN GOOD PROGRAM

Moving pictures of sporting activity of all kinds, with outdoor scenes aplenty, and all taken in this district, will be featured at tonight's meeting of the Fish and Game Protective Association in the Paragon Hall. A good program of pictures and discussions has been arranged.

38 REPORT FOR WORK.

Thirty-eight men on relief reported to the Streets Department for an emergency snow shovelling job this morning, and shortly after they began work the threatening weather turned to rain, a condition that was probably not anticipated by the men in the coats they put on for the day.

SAW WILD GEESE

A numerous flock of geese flying north is reported in the Belleville Intelligencer to have been seen a few days ago by several residents of Sidney township. James Magill and Lawrence Ketcheson that the familiar honking they heard and the birds they saw were heralds of an early Spring.

BRAKES FROZEN

With dozens of cars in the city useless because of frozen brakes, garages did a thriving business Monday night. Slush that spattered brake bands in the warm afternoon, froze when the thermometer dropped at night and many were the puzzled motorists who attempted to take their cars out for night runs.

BUSINESS FOR CAFES.

Some of the restaurants might not object if every morning of the business year followed the weather prescriptions of to-day featuring rain and icy sidewalks that recommended lunch down town instead of at home. Most of them were busier than usual, substituting for the domestic fare of the average day.

ICE CREEPERS HANDY

With footing almost impossible on downtown streets today, ice creepers —those handy little gadgets that fasten to the heels of goloshes or rubbers—came into use once more. The uninitiated were amazed as they crept and slipped along icy streets and saw more fortunate pedestrians striding along, upright and unperturbed.

NO MEDICAL EMERGENCY.

A report from Douro that farmers would have to dig a road on the third line of the township on account of the illness of John Kennedy at the home of Edward Kennedy, turned out to be considerably exaggerated. It is true that John Kennedy is ill and has been in poor health for some time, but medical attention was not required during the last week. Mr. Kennedy is 81 years old and is feeling the effects of his advanced age.

H. B. RYE IMPROVING

Harold B. Rye's improvement in health is suggested by the news that the executive of the North Monaghan Ratepayers' Association will meet this evening at his home to discuss details of next week's meeting which may be held in the Canadian Legion Hall. North Monaghan's Cato is just as keenly interested in the affairs of his municipality as ever, and his friends everywhere will be glad to know that he is well along the way to recovery, but is not likely to be out for another month.

CHOIR ARRANGING DATES

The Peterborough Male Chorus has arranged tentative dates for four concerts this season, three in outside towns and the concluding one here. The chorus is now at full strength and balanced nicely and the principal efforts of the conductor Charles Renaud are being directed toward putting polish, finish and coloring to the very varied program. This year's concert should make Peterborough music-lovers even more appreciative of the standard attained by the chorus. Practices continue every Tuesday night for the next two weeks at the Y.M.C.A.

Wide Range Of Weapons Appear In Court

A basket of large stones, clubs, a crow bar, a pick axe and a hockey stick were some of the weapons used in the battle of Dunlop street on the morning of February 11, according to the story told by witnesses called for the complainant in police court this morning, when Stanley Clark charged his neighbor, James Gates, Sr., with assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Several other charges of assault against Gates and his two sons were also on the docket and when the cases were called this morning Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., suggested that they be adjourned in view of the fact that Crown Attorney McElderry was unable to be present. However, both Magistrate Langley and W. J. Arthur Fair were anxious to have the cases disposed of today, and it was finally decided to go ahead.

Clark swore that the trouble started on the morning of February 11 because he had blocked up a drain that Gates had dug to run the water off his property onto that of Clark. The witness stated that Gates' two sons had tried to hit him over the fence wih a crow bar and later, when Gates Sr. arrived, Clark had gone out to see what the accused was talking about and Gates had pushed a bar through the fence and struck him in the stomach. Then, according to the witness, one of the Gates boys had climbed over the fence and Gates Sr. and the other son had come around the end of it onto his property. The accused had knocked Clarke's wife down and the two sons grabbed the complainant and threw him in the snow and Gates Sr. had piled on and the three of them had struck him on the legs, back and head. Clark's little step son went into the house and got a hockey stick and gave it to his mother, who struck Gates Sr. over the head with it, causing him to get up off her husband. Then witness claimed the three Gates came at him with sticks.

He said he sustained a number of bruises and cuts and was over a week recovering from the effects.

Mrs. Clark corroborated her husband's story closely in spite of a long cross-examination by Mr. Fair.

No Faceoffs

When the hockey stick episode was mentioned Magistrate Langley broke in with a question.

"Did they never stop for a faceoff," the Magistrate asked.

"Anyway there were all sent to the fence," replied Mr. Kerr.

Both Clark and his wife in cross-examination, said that there had been trouble with Gates ever since they had lived there and Clark intimated that Gates tried to run everybody off that property.

The last witness called before court adjourned for luncheon was Edward Constable, 11-year-old son of Clark, who also told of the fight, and in answer to Mr. Fair said that both his father and Gates had thrown stones that morning. Called upon to pick from a basket of stones the ones thrown by his father the boy selected the two smallest in the basket.

Mrs. Jas. Chandler Dies In Hamilton

Numerous friends in Peterborough and district were shocked when they learned of the death in Hamilton of Mrs. James Chandler.

A great lover of horses, she was one of this district's most widely renowned exhibitors of hackneys. Until seven years ago when she and her husband moved to Hamilton, there was not a fair or exhibition for many miles from this city at which she was not a ribbon-winner. Her knowledge of horses and her talent for appraisal were by-words.

She died on Thursday at her home at 1615 Main street east after a lingering illness.

Born in Woodstock 45 years ago, she lived in Peterborough for many years before moving to Hamilton. Her husband, James Chandler, was employed by Silverwood's Dairy here.

Surviving besides her husband are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newton of Hamilton; a sister, Mrs. Lewis Paterson of Drumbo, Ontario; and a brother, Frank Newton of Windsor.

The funeral service was conducted on Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from her late residence and interment was at Westmount Memorial Park cemetery.

Presenting Flag To Legion

A huge Union Jack will grace the auditorium of the Legion hall in future, thanks to the generosity of F. H. Merrett, Burnham street. Last night Mr. Merrett presented the flag to the Legion in memory of relatives and friends. Fire Chief George Gimblett, president of the Peterborough branch of the Legion, is seen here thanking Mr. Merrett for the gift. Behind the two hangs the new flag.

Huge Union Jack Is Given Legion In Memory Of Two War Victims

"In memory of loved ones who paid the supreme sacrifice for the British Empire." With that dedication a huge Union Jack was uncovered at the Legion hall Monday night, was accepted by Fire Chief George Gimblett on behalf of Branch 52, from its donor, F. J. Merrett, Burnham street. Rev. G. A. Easton, chaplain of the branch, performed the dedication ceremony.

The flag honors the memory of Mr. Merrett's brother, Harry Merrett and Thomas Salmon, brother of Mrs. Merrett, both of whom died in the Great War. Harry Merrett died on Armistic morning, unaware the "cease fire" order had been given. A member of the Royal Army Service Corps in Palestine, he contracted his fatal illness after nursing his commanding officer through severe sickness. In gratitude to his batman, the officer asked Merrett as he lay dying if there was any service he could do him to repay his devotion.

Merrett asked the officer to see that his infant son, named after himself, enter the Royal Air Force when he reached army age. The pledge was kept. Harry Merrett, junior, entered the service and has just arrived back in England after five years in Palestine, land where his father died and his career was settled. While there, Merrett visited his father's grave, and sent a picture to his uncle in Peterborough.

Thomas Salmon, the other relative whom the flag honors, was killed in action in France, while serving with an Imperial unit.

The huge flag occupies nearly the entire stage in the auditorium of the Legion Hall.

Miss Alice Reid Wins Prize In "Movie Quiz"

Announced at the Captiol Theatre Monday night as winner of one of the winners of a minor prize in the "Movie Quiz" contest that was conducted in theatres of the United States and Canada, Miss Alice Reid, 358 Aylmer street, is going to be waiting with a great deal of interest the coming of the mail carrier on Wednesday.

Miss Reid was in the theatre last night when the announcement was made, but it was stated that amount of her award was not known. The big $50,000 cheque, it was said, goes to some fortunate theatre-goer in Los Angeles.

Replies were received from 2,000,000 contestants, and Canada produced three prize-winners. It was intimated tha Miss Reid's share of the money might be anywhere from $1,000 down to $500 or $250. Letters to successful competitors are now in the mail and should be delivered on Wednesday.

BANK CLEARINGS

During the month of February clearings in Peterborough totalled $1,936,051 while for the same month a year ago the total was $2,159,238.

Inspector Starts With His Skis, Pack On His Back

UNDAUNTED by a drizzling rain, Leo W. Copp, public school inspector for Peterborough county, started out this morning for the outlying schools in the eastern section of his inspectorate, skis over his shoulder, pack sack on his back.

He took the train for Coe Hill at noon today and will proceed from that community by skis to schools that are practically inaccessible in winter.

Add Three Classes To Rose Prize List

W. H. Young, chairman of the flower show committee of the Peterborough Exhibition, informed the Examiner that three new classes for roses in pots or tubs have been included in the new prize list, and will likely be approved by the Board. Mr. Young's idea is to suggest at this season of the year to all rose growers that they make an early decision to compete in these classes.

"It is a long time until the Exhibition," Mr. Young said today, "but now is the time to start preparing for it. If we could get an array of roses in bloom growing in tubs for the flower show just think of what an improvement that would be. We have classes for tea roses and hybrid perpetuals. Nearly every person who grows roses buys some new ones every year, and we are asking them to think of this contest and the help they can be to the flower committee of the Exhibition in building up a rose department that could easily be a real feature."

ILLEGAL CONSUMPTION

Pleading guilty to illegal consumption of liquor in North Monaghan on Friday night a local young man was fined $10 and $5.50 costs by Magistrate Langley in police court this morning. "I am giving you the minimum but it is still expensive," the court said. Another man on the same charge pleaded not guilty and secured a week's adjournment, intimating he would change his plea then and pay the fine.

Car Output Is Expected To Be Below '38

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 28. — There will not be any more cars built in Canada this year than there was in 1938, according to the prophecy of W. R. Campbell, Jr., auto sales manager of Toronto, in an address before Rotarians here on Monday. "The industry is not picking up as much as we would like to see it owing to the persistent war scares and general conditions," he replied when questioned as to the general outlook for the motor industry. "The only chance for the industry to exceed 1938 production is for the export market to improve."

In his opening remarks which prefaced the showing of a motion picture titled "The Song the Map Sings," Mr. Campbell told briefly of how the automobile had revolutionized industry in the past thirty years. "It has had a profound effect on the lives of almost everyone in all walks of life. In our individual lives the automobile has brought a broadening of vision and a better understanding between people in different sections of our own country and between the people of neighboring nations. With good roads, paved highways, and automobiles there is a continual interchange between the people of different communities and such mingling brings with it greater understanding and resultant goodwill. But this would not be possible if industrial developments brought about by the manufacture of automobiles had not made possible higher wages and shorter hours. People have more leisure today and the automobile gives them an opportunity to employ that leisure usefully.

Opened Up Country.

Not only have highways and automobiles opened up countries commercially, but entirely new industries have come into being because of the automobile. Of these one of the most significant on this continent is the tourist industry which has reached tremendous proportions.

"You may say that's all very well. You are talking about countries, but how does this industry affect me personally, 'an average citizen?'"

It does affect you in many ways. When you stop to think carefully, do you not find that the automobile has added in some way to your business as well as to your pleasure? Let us consider an average small Canadian town of 30 years ago. It probably had a few stores, a hotel, a livery stable, and a couple of blacksmith shops. To-day the livery stable and blacksmith shops have disappeared; the latter probably employed two men each and the livery stable half a dozen grooms and stable boys. To-day the same town has three service stations, with seven men working; three garages with fifteen men employed and two stores or more which handle tires and other automotive accessories. You find that the original ten men are replaced by twenty or thirty workers and the latter in all probability earn much higher wages.

All who are in the retail trade know the effect that the automobile has had on business. It brings people to the place of business and often from remarkably long distances and they are enabled to carry smaller stocks because their orders can be delivered at short notice by trucks.

Reduced Costs.

It often happens that when people hear of new developments and of the new machines used in manufacturing that they argue the machines displace men and create unemployment. That is an exploded fallacy! It is true that we have machines that do the work that ten men did by hand years ago. But these machines have reduced manufacturing costs and brought the price of an automobile down to a level where millions of people are able to own cars. If the modern car was entirely built by hand it would cost approximately $17,850, and we would be lucky to sell half a dozen cars a year at such a price and very few men would be employed in making them. Most people are surprised to learn that machinery is not labor-saving, but labor-creating. The fact is definitely established that jobs have multiplied faster than people during the so-called machine age.

A vote of thanks was moved to the speaker and to P. B. H. Smith, also of Toronto, who accompanied him and operated the picture apparatus by Rotarian A. D. Bennett.

The Rambling REPORTERS

HEAVY SNOW IN MARCH

Dan Whetung, Indian chief of Curve Lake reserve and dean of weather prophets in this district predicts a long winter. He said yesterday there may be a thaw soon, but to prepare for a heavy snow storm in March. In the main, however, March will be a pleasant enough month so far as the temperature is concerned. "It will be a long draggy spring but crops will be excellent next year." So said Chief Whetung, whose earlier prophesy for this winter has been just about right so far.—P.

CITY HALL GETS HAY

The City Hall got its bale of hay this morning, dumped right on the door step, too. Curiosity about that seemingly incongruous delivery rejected the idea that it was directed to the council chamber, although the compressed timothy was deposited in the doorway leading up the stairs to the official municipal headquarters. Then, it was recalled that Dr. C. B. Waite holds forth in the Provincial Laboratory on the top floor, and Harry Kelsey, technician in the "lab", confirmed the opinion that the hay was fodder for rabbits and guinea pigs to keep them fit for their co-operation in the important work of the local branch of the Department of Health.—T.

Men Kept Busy Removing Snow, Sanding Streets

The Board of Works department was dizzy this morning trying to keep pace with the quick changes of the weather.

While extra men were engaged in trying to catch up on the drifts Sunday's snow storm had piled up on some of the outlying sidewalks, others were scurrying around the centre of the city with loads of sand to broadcast over the main street sidewalks on which the morning's sleet and rain was freezing as it fell. And about an hour or two after the first sand was flung at the elements it had taken on its own coating of ice, was more or less disarmed and its non-skid effect nullified, and the last condition was pretty nearly as bad as the first.

If the Board of Works men had been as generously armed and legged as centipedes they might have promptly obstructed the weather man's vagaries. As it was, they just had to battle along the roads as best they could, some of them shovelling stretches of bare spots where there had been an excess of snow, or doubling with pails of sand to maintain the safety and dignity of citizens, so easily upset, that is both their safety and dignity by a sudden toss of their toes towards the sky.

Worked During Night

Some of the snow removal work was carried on during the night, but the sandmen were not sent out against the common enemy until about nine o'clock or earlier. And while directing the diversified operation of the day, City Engineer Parsons was preoccupied with the thought that it all meant the expenditure of more money from which there would be no concrete and permanent return.

CAGE NOTES

A postponed Ladies' Basketball League game between Westclox and the Quaker Aces will be staged at 6.30 o'clock tonight in the P.C.I. gym. Other girls' games this week will be postponed till next week, probably then being played in the new Y.W.C.A. gym.

Leadership League Is Offering No Suggestions For Helping Economic Setup C.C.Y.M. Is Told

George McCullagh was on the wrong track with his Leadership League because he only attacked the government setup in Canada and had not offered a single suggestion for the improvement of the economic and industrial setup which was the real cause of most of the country's problems, Mrs. Grace MacInnis, daughter fo Rev. J. W. Woodsworth, the C.C.F. leader and wife of Angus McInnis, C.C.F. member for Vancouver East, told members of the Peterborough branch of the C.C.Y.M., the youth section of the C.C.F., at their annual banquet in the Moose Hall Monday night.

Mrs. McInnis, who is the secretary of the C.C.F. group in the House of Commons, was guest speaker at the enjoyable affair and spoke for an hour and a half on various features of the C.C.F. policy and strategy, paying particular attention to the latter.

She listed Mr. McCullagh with Hon. H. H. Stevens and W. D. Herridge as among the men who had come into the limelight in the discussion of the problems of the day but who had failed to accomplish much in the way of solution. She gave Mr. Stevens credit for inaugurating the price spreads investigation but said that nothing had been done to correct the evils that had been uncovered while of Mr. Herridge she said that people had gone eagerly to his meetings but had gone away disappointed because he had offered them nothing in the form of a cure for the problems he outlined.

Has Definite Solution

Speaking of the C.C.Y.M. she said that it differed from other youth movements in Canada. While all of those movements were concerned about the future of youth the C.C.Y.M. was the only one with a clean-cut policy and a definite solution. It was an integral part of the C.C.F. and that organization, she said, had the benefit fo the experience of people, not only in this country, but in Europe and other parts of the world.

"We are simply struggling," said Mrs. McInnis, "to have every man, woman and child in Canada share equally and fairly in the standard of living that the resources of this country and the machinery that is available should make possible."

The speaker dealt for some time with the history of the C.C.F. in the west, declaring that before long the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation would have driven the Conservative party in British Columbia completely out of the picture while in Saskatchewan in the last provincial election the C.C.F. had captured ten seats and added another in a by-election and it was the votes of the farmers in the most prosperous section of the province that had elected these members.

"The Canadian people are in a state of complete bewilderment in regard to the problems of today," Mrs. McInnis declared. "They are possibly as lacking in direction as could be found in the world at the present time."

When They Wake Up

Up to the Great War, the speaker said, Canadian had been living in a mid-Victorian, Pollyanna, atmosphere in which they believed they were living in the best part of the best Empire in the world and nothing could possibly happen to disturb things very much. The war changed their international outlook and they realized the world was full of predatory nations and then the depression had aroused them nationally and for the first time they realized that something was wrong.

Discussing the men who had come forward as possible saviors of the country Mrs. McInnis after referring briefly to Hon. H. H. Stevens and W. D. Herridge devoted considerable time to George McCullagh and his Leadership League. Mr. McCullagh, she charged, had never once suggested a change in the business and industrial setup. There was no need of a coalition government, she submitted, for the simple reason that the Liberal government now had a majority over all in the House and had the voting strength to pass any legislation it saw fit. However it, she said, merely played the part of a police agency, maintaining law and order, while the real government, the string of giant corporations, was unhampered in its activities.

"The job of the King Government," said Mrs. McInnis, "is to keep Canada safe for the private interests and you have to admit it is doing the job well."

Says Changes Necessary

Declaring that changes were necessary and that they must take the form of public ownership as opposed to private gain the speaker said that the C.C.F. had no sympathy for the group which suggested that the only way these changes could be brought about was by violence. A revolution, she maintained, was impossible in Canada because in the first place the farmers would have nothing to do with any suggestion of bringing about changes by violence and the middle class business men would be frightened off from any connection with a movement of that nature.

"We believe," said the C.C.F. secretary, "that the last great west has been reached. We can no longer run away from our problems by trying our luck somewhere else. On the contrary we must stay and face them."

In this connection she argued that the C.C.F. offered a clear cut program for the solution of most of these problems and that without departing from the democratic way of doing things.

Mrs. McInnis was introduced to the meeting by Gordon Powell, chairman during the banquet and Michael English moved the vote of thanks at the close.

War Canoe Greeting

VANCOUVER, Feb. 28—(CP). — British Columbia Indians anxious to pay homage to their King and Queen, yesterday considered plans for the part they will play in the reception here for Their Majesties May 29.

One suggestion presented to the civic reception committee would have a fleet of 20 war canoes manned by Indians form an official escort to Their Majesties as they leave Vancouver by coastal steamer for Victoria. The canoes would accompany the ship to the harbor entrance.

Board Rejects 30-Year Debenture Plan

The Ontario Municipal Board announces its disapproval of the proposed thirty-year term for the Nicholls Hospital debentures, in a letter received on Monday by Morley E. Shaver, City Treasurer, in which official assent is given to the alternate period of twenty years.

"It is felt that if a municipality cannot repay any expenditure within twenty years, the said expenditure is one which the municipality cannot afford," declares the letter whose substance has been relayed to the trustees of Nicholls Hospital for their consideration.

A further explanatory quotation from the letter is as follws: "It is felt in the long view that the general policy of requiring shorter debenture terms is saving, and will save in the future substantial sums of interest for the ratepayers in the aggregate."

That reference relates to one of the points that has been brought out in the discussion of the needs of a new hospital and the method of financing it. Thirty-year debentures could be issued at a smaller annual charge on the ratepayers for interest and sinking fund, than for twenty-year bonds, but the total payment of interest for thirty years would be appreciably higher than for twenty years.

Mayor Hamilton was asked by the Examiner this morning what the next step would be in the preparation of the proposed by-law.

"That is entirely up to the Hospital Board," His Worship replied, "and I suppose they will deal with the question some time to-day. We should know their wishes by to-morrow because the committees of the Council are meeting on Wednesday night."

Steady Progress Is Made By Duffus

MONTREAL, Feb. 28.—(CP)—J. J. Duffus, Liberal member of the House of Commons (Peterborough West), who was operated on for a brain tumor last Wednesday, was reported today to be improving steadily.

Officials at the Montreal Neurological Institute, where Mr. Duffus underwent the operation, said he had "a fairly comfortable day" yesterday.

Hastings Man Believes He Purchased Baby Muskrat With Lot Of Potatoes

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Feb. 28.—A. V. German is wondering if he purchased a baby muskrat with a lot of potatoes. For nearly two months, he had been setting traps in his cellar in an effort to catch a rat that had been stealing apples and potatoes, but the animal seemed to have a charmed life until Francis Kennedy got on the hunt. Francis is a full-fledged muskrat trapper and knows the habits of the water animals and how to capture them. It was at a time of urgent necessity that Mr. German called Francis in to assist him and at the same time admitting defeat. Traps were set three consecutive mornings until the culprit was nabbed. Mr. German at once saw he did not have an ordinary house rat but a fat baby muskrat. The puzzle is—how did it get there?

He recalled reading a newspaper account of a muskrat being captured in Bert Preston's cellar and that he had purchased potatoes from that same cellar about the time he first noticed a rat in the store cellar. Now he is suspicious that he may have purchased the rat with a sack of potatoes.

Mr. German operates a grocery store on Front Street here, and it is possible that the rat may have entered the cellar from a raceway at the back, but he is inclined to believe that Preston's rat had some bearing on the matter.

Woman Who Is Observing 91st Birthday Made 18 Quilts In Past Four Years

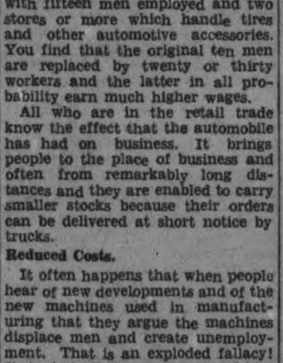
"A happy life is just as you make it yourself," so declared Mrs. Betty Ann Badgley of 611 Stewart street, who today reaches the age of 91.

She has no regrets. She has found life an enjoyable affair, and looks back on a long period of hard work and satisfying experiences. It was not too difficult when she was young for a person to be completely happy, Mrs. Badgley said yesterday. There was work and plenty of it for everyone; wars were far away and did not threaten the security of the average Canadian; things moved at slower pace.

"There are terrible hardships nowadays," she said. "We never know times like these."

Reads Great Deal

Mrs. Badgley is still in possession of all her faculties. She reads a great deal, often without use of glasses. "I like to read the papers and keep up with what is going on around me," she said. Always an active woman, she must still have some interest and so she quilts and sews. In the past four years she has made 18 quilts, given all of them away to her descendants.



MRS. ANN BADGLEY
611 Stewart Street, Peterborough

Of Dutch stock — her great grandfather came to Canada from Holland—has lived most of her life near Tweed. Her first husband, John Marchen, operated the Lost Channel Woollen mill, about 14 miles north of Tweed. It was a thriving business but one that demanded hard work and long hours of it by all.

Resident Here 4 Years

Thirteen years ago she moved to Uxbridge and four years ago came to Peterborough where she lives with her son, Gilbert Marchen. James Marchen, 108 Stewart street, is another son. Mrs. Badgley can boast a lengthy line of descendents. She has 16 grandchildren and 8 great grandchildren.

Hard work, a sense of security and early retiring hours, make for pleasant, healthy old age in Mrs. Badgley's opinion. She said she enjoys life immensely, now finds plenty of time to read and think. "I have had a happy life. I am satisfied with it," she said. "Of course I was fortunate. Both my husbands were fine men. They were very kind to me."

CENTRE THEATRE OPENS IN PETERBOROUGH ON MARCH 2nd

Floor Coverd With Sawdust Seats Were Planks In City's First Play House

It is a far cry from the new Centre Theatre with its air-conditioning, its luxurious chairs and its modern appointments to Peterborough's first moving picture house.

Only the old-timers will remember that first "palace of the silver screen, located on George street north of Brock street where Coleman's paint shop is now situated.

It was run by a man named Hannah, the admission price was five cents and the fittings, decorating and program, were on the same scale as the box office levy. Sawdust covered the floor, the seats were boards stretched between kitchen chairs and the moving picture machine was a primitive affair that never seemed able to grasp the idea that a theatre program should be presented with a minimum of interruption. It had an annoying habit of breaking down at the most thrilling moment in the screen drama. Just when the heroine was being shoved off the cliff by the villain and the handsome hero was coming to the rescue there would be a gurgle or two from the machine, the picture would flicker two or three times and then black out. Followed a printed announcement on the screen, "One moment, please, while film is being repaired" and the audience would sit back and wait in patient resignation for the necessary adjustments to be made.

The First Comedy

Incidentally, old patrons of the screen will recall the first comedy that was shown in "Wonderland" as Peterborough's first picture show was called. It dealt with the experience of a comedian who found himself in the path of a street roller which knocked him down, rolled him as flat as a circus poster and then he was picked up and hammered back into shape again. The picture was considered a wow in those early days.

The "Wonderland" theatre soon gave way to more pretentious entertainment places as the moving industry developed in leaps and bounds. Came the Crystal, situated where the government liquor store now is and it afterwards was converted into the Red Mill. Across the street where the Paris Cafe is situated today was the Tiz-It, famous as the place where the thrilling serial "The Perils of Pauline" was shown in weekly instalments. Mike Pappas launched the first Royal, to be afterward destroyed by fire and then replaced by the theatre that has now given way to the Centre Theatre. Mr. Pappas believed in giving a lot for the money the patrons paid in and the result was that some fifteen reels of motion picture entertainment were offered at five cents a customer. Interesting to note too is the fact that back in those early days of the Royal there was a fair-haired young Irish lad with a silvery ten voice who sang illustrated songs for Royal patrons. Today that pleasing singer is head of one of Canada's greatest baking concerns. He is Victor Loftus, of the Canada Bread Company.

On Charlotte street there was the Empire Theatre, given up to screen fare and situated on the north side near Aylmer street. Later the Grand Opera House, built originally for road shows came into the field with moving pictures so that at one time there was plenty of competition in the local amusement field.

Road Show Films

Before Peterborough had a picture show at all the few films that had been shown here were "road shows" and the most memorable of these was a film called "Our Navy" shown at the old Bradburn Opera House.

Heralds of the moving picture era were two well known citizens, the late R. M. Roy and James Stubbs, each of which had a very fine stereopticon lantern and used to show still pictures in churches and halls all over the district. These limelight views as shown by Mr. Roy were a feature of some of the band concerts in Victoria Park in the days before animated pictures came into existence.

As to the legitimate theatre it flourished in the old days in a hall situated on the market square and facing Water street. Later the former George Street Church building on the west side of George street was acquired by Thomas Bradburn and used as a theatre for some time. Then came the opening of Bradburn's Opera House on the east side of George street in the market block and there for many years Peterborough playgoers saw their road shows. Such old favorites as Harry Lindley and the Marks Brothers, Guy Brothers Minstrels, Louis Morrison in Faust, the Hanlons in Superba, Al W. Martin's Uncle Tom's Cabin, Pauline the hynotist and many others entertained crowds there before the Grand Opera House was built in the century to act as a home for road shows.

On Canadian Visit

Miss Megan Taylor, of England, youthful world's amateur figure skating champion, is seen as she arrived in New York on her way to Toronto where she will be featured in the annual show staged by the Toronto Skating club, largest show of its kind on the continent.

Defends Hips

Her modeling and figure were perfect, claims Helen Hirsch, ABOVE, until her employers found out that she was an officer in the professional models' union of America. It was then, said the svelte and streamlined Miss Hirsch, that manufacturers of women's garments, decided that her hips were too large. Miss Hirsch took her case—and a tape measure—before the New York state labor relations board for a hearing on her charge that she was discriminated against for union activities.

Lupe To Wed Again, Playboy This Time

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28 (AP). — Lupe (eet ees wonderful) Velez came to town yesterday with an announcement to top that of her soon-to-be ex-husband, Johnny Weissmuller.

She announced she was going to get married, and right away. That is, she said, as soon as she can hop over to Reno to get a "queeck deevorce."

Weissmuller said the other day that as soon as his divorce from Lupe is final, in August, he intends to wed Beryl Scott of San Francisco.

Lupe said she couldn't wait until August to marry a man whom she would describe only as a "beeg New York playboy."

Lupe is here to make a picture. She has an engagement to make another in Mexico City. Between pictures, she said she hopes to spend the six necessary weeks in Nevada.

Her romance? "Eet ees wonderful," said Lupe.

YOUNG'S POINT

A very pleasant evening was spent at the local school on Friday evening when Mr. F. Bradshaw, senior teacher, and Miss Lynch, junior teacher, were host and hostess to the school children and their parents and friends to an evening of enjoyment.

A hockey match was played on the school rink between the senior boys and the married men, the school boys winning the game. After the hockey game skating was enjoyed by all present for an hour.

Everyone then adjourned to the school house, where games were played for awhile. A very delicious lunch of hot coffee, sandwiches and cake, was then served by the host and hostess and their very efficient helpers. Everyone having enjoyed themselves and looking forward to another such evening.

The W.A. of St. Aiden's church met in their parish hall on Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon and quilted two beautiful quilts for their summer sale of work. Mrs. E. C. Moore, president of the W.A., served a delicious lunch to the quilters.

There is a lot of sickness in the village at present, many being confined to their beds with the flu.

Mrs. C. Merrill was called to Oshawa owing to the very serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Smith.

Ice cutting and wood hauling have been held up this past week, owing to the roads being blocked with snow.

New Theatre Is Built To Seat 606 Customers

A paradise playhouse that radiates comfort and restfulness is perhaps one of the best descriptions of the new Centre Theatre which opens its doors to the show going public this week.

The new theatre located directly south of the Robert Neill Shoe store is as modern as human hands and ingenuity can make it, and it occupies the premises once known as the Royal Theatre. It seats 606 people, and included among the modern refinements built into the theatre is air conditioning which assures the patrons of a warm even temperature in the Winter and a cool invigorating atmosphere during the hot summer months.

An innovation locally but one which is fast gaining popularity throughout the country is several sets of head phones which may be used by people who are a little hard of hearing. The person wishing to use the head phones is given a special seat, there being eight properly equipped in the loges, and the person then plugs the headphones into an electric circuit. The device will enable a person slightly deaf to hear the sound effects as clearly as one with normal hearing.

200 Loges

There are two hundred loges in the balcony cleverly arranged so that no person is sitting directly behind the person in front and assuring everyone of a fine view of the screen. In the loges, smoking will be permitted, which is something very new in Peterborough but fairly common in larger centres. Smoking by the patrons in the upper section of the theatre will in no way cause discomfort to the other patrons. The air conditioning and ventilation is so efficient that the smoke will be carried out and will scarcely be noticed by the people. Smoke-proof ash trays are fitted to the back of every seat, so that when a partly smoked cigarette is dropped into the tray, it immediately stops burning for lack of oxygen, and the trap lid also prevents the smoke from escaping from the tray.

Safety Features

The building is fireproof throughout, and safety features have been paramount in the mind of the designer and are indicated by the wide treads on the stairs, and the low steps to eliminate the danger of stumbling. Exits are half as wide again as an ordinary door and corridors leading outside from both sides of the theatre at the back are wide and clear. The doors swing outward whenever the least pressure is put on the crossbar, while the drapes over the inner doors, swing on a pivot arm promptly if they are touched.

Stream-lined Seats

Seats in the new theatre are streamlined and scientifically built to give maximum comfort. The seats by their construction fit the body in a way to give absolute satisfaction. They are roomy and are equipped with genuine Marshall cushions. Leather on the seats is in two colors, scarlet and green, with the colors in a staggered pattern to give more beauty to the whole layout. The seats are trimmed with polished chrome and the ashtrays are in chrome and green. The balcony has been completely rebuilt and the slant permits a clear view from the front row of seats to the back. Seats were supplied and installed by the Canadian Theatre Chair Company, 277 Victoria Avenue, Toronto.

A Great Man's Family

Here, in a straight, off-the-screen-pose, we see the family group that dominates "A Great Man Votes": John Barrymore who portrays in the story Gregory Vance, the scholar fallen on evil days but still the great man to his children; and Virginia Weidler and Peter Holden, who fill the roles of John and Donald Vance, respectively, and who share acting honors with the renowned Barrymore in this unique RKO Radio production. Appearing at the Centre theatre in the double feature program starting Thursday.

Re-enact "Drums" With Actuality In Frontier States Of India

CALCUTTA, Feb. 27. — (CP). — Following a long series of outrages and depredations on the part of marauding tribesmen, the government of the Frontier Province has clamped down on the movements of the Ahmadzai Wazir tribe in the settled districts of Dera Ismail Khan and Bannu, which form part of British India.

Although the authorities have done everything within their power to pacify the guerillas, the Fakir of Ipi and other hostile leaders have declined to make peace and gangs are still roving about Waziristan, launching sporadic attacks on government forces and raiding adjoining districts.

The raiding tribesmen are mostly fanatical Moslems living in remote parts of the desolate hill country which has been the grave of many British and Indian soldiers during the past century. They issue from tribal territory, neither under the administration of the Indian nor the Froniter Province government.

Their method of operation is to lie in ambush and pounce on the unwary, killing those who offer any resistance and taking as hostages those known to be rich or friendly to the government in the settled districts.

Take Hostages.

The mode of hide and seek the raiders play with troops and police is revealed in a report from Bannu. Cavalry took up a position near a trail where brigands were suspected be to be operating. Suddenly the gang was spotted driving two shackled Hindus before them. The brigands bolted into the tangled ravines leaving thir hostages behind. They had been compelled to walk 40 miles barefooted over rocky terrain and were completely exhausted. Two days later a lorry carrying villagers was ambushed, some of the passengers were shot and robbed and two members of the party kidnapped.

Most of the outrages were traced to the Ahmadzai Wazirs. The Frontier Province government first sought to halt their activities by ordering the tribal leaders to deposit £150 ($707) and 30 rifles as guarantee against further incidents. The money and rifles were to be confiscated in event of further raids, if they harbored the Fakir or his associates or if they failed promptly to release kidnapped Hindus. The ultimatum was ignored.

The government, however, has struck back with more drastic measures. It hopes to obtain results by paralyzing trade in the "outlaw" area. Ahmadzai Wazirs, living in tribal territory, have now been debarred from British India whose residents have been forbidden to have any business dealings with them. Tribesmen are liable to detention and their goods to confiscation in or near Bannu City, or any place south or west of the Kurram river. Tribal allowances have been stopped and other restrictions imposed.

Meanwhile a chorus of complaint is heard from Hindus living in the raided areas. These Hindus are mainly traders, money-lenders, artisans and sometimes owners of land. Their religion and comparative wealth single them out as profitable victims for the poorer and fanatical Moslems.

Deputations and meetings have bombarded the responsible Ministry with demands for protection against the gangsters. Specifically it is urged that suspects be rounded up, troops stationed in the villages and the Moslem Headmen bound over and held responsible for the protection of Hindu fellow-villagers. It is alleged the Ministry suspended the use of certain well-tried expedients for keeping peace on the frontier. One of these measures was to make villagers jointly responsible for the prevention of crime in their immediate area.

CENTRE THEATRE DESIGNED FOR YOUR COMFORT AND PLEASURE

Financial Stability Of City Brought Chain To Peterborough

Trio Theatres Limited chose Peterborough as a site for its third new theatre within two years, the Centre, because of the financial stability of the city, and because throughout the province it is regarded as one of the leading and most progressive of the smaller cities, S. Ulster, partner in the firm, said to-day.

"Alderman Glover is a prince; he smoothed out many of the details which threatened to give us some trouble, and from the very start was ever ready to assist in every way. I wish to state publicly that Peterborough is fortunate in having such an ambassador of goodwill," added Mr. Ulster.

During the past few years new theatres have been built at Ottawa and at London, and the Centre Theatre which officially opens this week is the third. Each of the three are the most modern of their kind in Canada, fireproof, comfortable and beautiful.

Spent $40,000.

We spent $40,000 renovating this piece of property after buying the building, and we are certain that with reduced prices bringing entertainment within the reach of many families with limited incomes that our expenditure will be fully justified," he said.

Employment being given to eight local people by the opening of the new show. There will be three ushers, a doorman-janitor, a ticket seller, and three operators, and all of these already hired live in Peterborough. Sid Goldstone of Toronto is the manager.

Mr. Ulster spoke of the fine co-operation and friendly hospitality of the merchants whom he had met, and explained that for years the bulding had been a dead spot in the heart of the business section. With the opening of the new theatre bringing many more people from the outlying districts he felt more business would naturally come to the merchants in the immediate vicinity.

Price of admission will be 30 cents for the loges upstairs, and a general admission charge of 25 cents for the ground floor.

Paralytic Burns

MONTREAL, Feb. 28—(CP).—His right leg paralyzed, Arthur Tardiff, 60, burned to death last night when fire destroyed a small wooden house in suburban Rosemount.

Tardiff was asleep in the summer kitchen of a frame house owned by William Hudakousky when the fire started. The explosion of an oil lamp was believed to have caused the blaze. Mrs. Hudakousky suffered minor burns.

Bette Davis, Spencer Tracy Win Academy Award

Brightly Illuminated Front Is Worthy Addition To Main Street

Strikingly modern is the new marque and brilliantly colored Neon sign at the new Centre Theatre on George street opposite the market square which celebrates its official opening.

The bright illuminated front is a worthy addition to the twinkling array of neons and other electric signs which in recent years have multiplied to make George street at night a miniature Broadway. Hundreds of light bulbs are used in the new arrangement and it is clearly visible up and down the main street.

Neon Lighting

Modern lighting which combines beauty with utility and eliminates the old fashioned chandeliers and drop lights is featured inside the theatre. Restful and beautiful neon lighting is used throughout. In the auditorium all lighting is indirect, coming from hidden slots in the sidewalls and the colors have been tastefully chosen to get the maximum in harmony from the decorative scheme.

The lobby is also lighted with neon and the foyer and lobby are both roomy and artistically decorated to give the theatre-goer a pleasant feeling as he enters the house of entertainment.

Check-Room Included

A feature which will be appreciated by many Saturday night shoppers is a large check-room downstairs where parcels or heavy overcoats may be left and properly supervised, while the patrons enjoy the picture.

Directly below the entrance and accessible by two wide stairways is a large restroom where men and women may recline in comfortable leather chairs and chesterfields while waiting for friends. The beautiful decorative scheme of green and eggshell is carried out in this room also. There is a cosmetic room for the ladies, properly equipped with long mirrors and small chairs. Wash rooms for men and women have terrazzo floors and are in gleaming white, at opposite ends of main waiting room. A large aquarium built into the wall adds an interesting touch to the rest room. Gold fish and other small marine life will be kept in the large tank, and the tank itself will be flanked with ferns and other different varieties of flowering plants.

Jews Eager To Leave

BERLIN, Feb. 27—(AP). — Jews filed into the central emigration office today, eager to complete German legal formalities for leaving the country in the hope that some foreign country would accept them.

Five times as many as police had ordered to appear has reported at the office by noon. A total of 100 daily are being notified by Jewish leaders to get their papers ready and leave Germany within two weeks.

Farmer Hauls Wreck Back To Airport

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, Feb. 28. — Handicapped by heavy snowbanks and drifted fields teams of horses owned by W. Bedford, Rednersville farmer, succeeded in hauling the wrecked R.C.A.F. plane that landed in a field on his property to the shore of the Bay of Quinte, from which point it was taken across the ice to the airport near Trenton on Saturday morning.

The tail of the plane was hoisted on improvised runners and hauled through the field with the front of the plane riding in its skis. The wings, which were broken off in the crash, and the other parts of the wrecked plane, were taken to the airport after the body had been successfully delivered.

Unconfirmed reports on Monday stated that another plane of the R.C.A.F. Station crashed on the ice of the Bay of Quinte on Saturday, seriously damaging the ship.

Conductor Shifted.

Howard M. Francis of Sherwood Street, Brockville, a conductor on the Canadian National Railways, has been transferred from Brockville to Tweed on Monday, where he will in future reside. He will have charge of a train, "The Quinte," which runs daily except Sunday between Tweed and Napanee. A resident of Brockville for the past thirty-two years, Mr. Francis is one of the division's best known railwaymen.

Mr. Reginaud Palmer was a visitor to Lindsay on Saturday.

Miss Cora Bailey of Franklin, was a visitor to Bethany on Saturday.

Oratory Delays U.S. Army Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 — (AP). —An outburst of oratory on foreign policy forced United States Senate leaders to-day to abandon plans for quick passage of the $358,000,000 Army Expansion Bill.

A series of lengthy addresses that started yesterday showed signs of continuing for several days.

The Bill, which would carry out a major portion of President Roosevelt's defence program, would provide $300,000,000 for Air Corps expansion; $23,750,000 for Panama Canal defences, and $34,500,000 for "educational orders" to familiarize manufacturers with army needs.

Senator Clark (Dem.-Missouri) served notice he would fight for an amendment limiting the army to 5,500 planes, the total voted by the House of Representatives. The Senate Committee approved a limit of 6,000.

Despite the indications of prolonged debate, all conceded the Bill would be approved by a big majority.

Senator Nye (Rep.-North Dakota) said he would read the Senate excerpts from debate in the French Chamber of Deputies in which the purchase of American military planes was discussed.

He said the French debate indicated some members thought the planes had been purchased here "for credit reasons" rather than for military reasons.

Yesterday's session found speakers stressing foreign policy, with several touching on the recent House rejection of proposed plane facilities at Guam.

Senator Logan (Dem.-Kentucky) asserted that if the United States wants to defend South America from aggression, it would be wise to aid Great Britain and France.

NATION IN UNIFORM

BERLIN — (CP). — Almost one-third of the 78,500,000 men, women and children in Germany now wear uniforms of one kind or another, it was estimated at the 1939 convention of the Reich Association of Tailors.

THE NEW CENTRE THEATRE IS ULTRA MODERN IN DESIGN

Equipment Put In Theatre Is Most Modern

Tremendous advancement has been made in the perfection of projecting and sound equipment for the present day theatre and the most modern equipment available has been installed in the new Centre Theatre.

Microphonic Sound System, manufactured by the Northern Electric Company, and installed by the Dominion Sound Equipment Company of Toronto, is the lataest thing in the realm of talking pictures. Special acoustic materials have been built into the front of the balcony and also on the walls in the upper section to complete the plan and assure perfect acoustics throughout the whole building.

Two other theatres, the Elgin in Ottawa and the Centre in London both completed within the past two years, are equipped with the Microphonic Sound Systems and are owned by Trio Theatres who have just added the Centre in this city to their chain.

The general construction work in the theatre was done by the Globe Construction Company, of Toronto, while the Canadian Plate and Window Glass Company, Don Roadway, Toronto.

Coleman Electric Supply Company, 258 Victoria Avenue, Toronto, and Toronto Electric Supply Company, 342 Queen street, Toronto supplied most of the electrical equipment and the wiring was done by J. Shearer, River Road, Peterborough.

The heating system is such that there are no radiators at any place in the building and air outlets in the ceiling are cleverly concealed by decorated plaques. Howard Air Conditioning and Heating Co., 881 Yonge St., Toronto, installed the air-conditioning and heating system.

Looking Back
On This Date

In 1909 the Parliament of Canada, at the suggestion of Mr. G. E. Foster unanimously agreed that the time had come when Canada must do something to defend her own coasts.

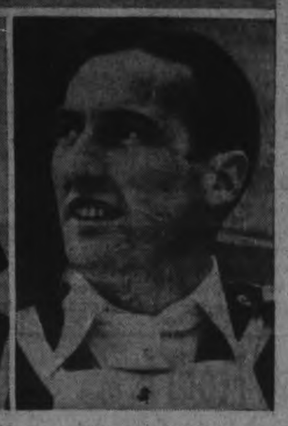
In 1910 Sir Wilfrid Laurier introduced a bill for the defence of Canada by a Canadian navy, with small units on the Atlantic and Pacific. This bill was passed into law, despite strong opposition by the Conservatives, first on the ground that such a naval force would not meet the desires of the British Admiralty, and secondly, that no such action should be taken until the policy had been submitted to the people. But Sir Wilfrid was defeated in 1911, partly by the votes of the anti-naval sentiment in sections of Quebec, and so the "Laurier navy" was rendered useless.

When Mr. Borden took office he visited England, conferred with the Admiralty, and returned with the conviction that it was Canada's duty to vote $35,000,000 to the Admiralty to build two dreadnoughts as Canada's preparation to meet the German menace. The Liberals opposed this naval aid bill with as much tenacity (or perhaps more) than had the Conservatives the Liberal bill in 1910.

Sir Wilfrid proposed the substitution of his two naval units for the contribution, and the fight was on. It was not until February 28 that the naval aid bill was read a second time, by a majority of 30, several of the Conservative Nationalists voting against it.

Then commenced a blockade which lasted for weeks. The House sat continuously from March 8 to the 16th, with the exception of the intervening Sunday, with scenes unparalleled in parliamentary annals. Reference to this fight will be made later; but it is worth noting that immediately after the second reading Mr. Borden hinted that if the blockade was continued resort would be had to closure, which was eventually to come. But that is another story, to be told later.

Champions In Dominion Ski Meet At Fort William



With Reidar Anderson, Norwegian ace, leading the way and Canada's own stars doing themselves proud, the annual dominion ski championship meet was held at Fort William and ABOVE are some of the winners in the three day event. TOP, shows a general view of the finish line of the cross-country race, with the club house in the background. Note the flags flying, the American, Canadian, Norwegian and Swedish, representative of the countries that nurture most winter sport enthusiasts and champions. BELOW, LEFT to RIGHT, Gault Gillespie, St. Marguerite's P. Q.; Gertrude Wepsala, Vancouver, and Reidar Anderson, Norway. Gillespie, in his second attempt at the cross-country title, ran the trails in 1:27.53 to come in ahead of Paul Jansson, of Sudbury. Miss Wepsala, previously crowned dominion women's combined slalom-downhill champion, was victor in a special invitation downhill race in which 12 other feminine stars competed. Anderson won the downhill event and this, combined with a sixth place in the slalom, gave him the open combined title with 170 points. He also had an easy time in the jumping competition, doing 170 and then 168 feet for the crown, and following this with a 177 foot effort to establish a record for the new hill.

Pastel Shades Are Used In Decorating

Centre Theatre will greet its patrons this week with a charming interior decorative scheme as restful as an apple orchard in blossom time. Housewives who view the delicate pastel shades on the walls and ceiling will conjure up visions of Spring painting and new tones for bedroom and living room decorations.

The attractiveness of the color scheme, the comfort of the seating accommodation and the even temperature controlled by air conditioning and electric heating all combine to make the new theatre an ideal centre for entertainment and a spot where theatre-goers from the city and district will thoroughly enjoy spending their leisure hours.

The side walls are cleverly done in a shade of rose, while the huge centre dome of the ceiling is in yellow and trimmed with gold leaf. Light green, blues and a little white are all cleverly worked into the general decorative scheme with the master touch of skilled modern painters.

Stage draperies and door drapes are of scarlet velour, rich and beautiful in appearance and all match. They are trimmed with golden colored tassels. The small curtains and drapes at the box office and entrance also match the stage and exit drape materials.

Brinton Carpet Company of Peterborough have supplied the rich deep pile carpets, which are also dyed to match the general decorative scheme.

Mexico To Make Canadian Planes

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 28.—(CP).—Howard Klein, representative here of Canadian Car and Foundry Company, announced last night his company had completed a deal with the Meixcan government for construction of 40 Grumman military, two-place planes and 10 conventional type training ships.

The planes are to be constructed in the government-owned factory, operated under company supervision, Mexican personnel will be instructed while the order is being filled and on completion of the 50 planes, the Mexican workers will replace the foreigners.

Klein said "no oil, or exchange, or barter are involved."

The company will provide the machinery, the government the plant. Mexico will share in 50 per cent. of "all profits on export business of this factory." Planes will be offered for sale to other Latin American countries. Initial production will be three planes weekly.

Tobacco Road Author Marries Artist

SILVER CITY, Nev., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Erskine Caldwell, novelist and author of "Tobacco Road" and Margaret Bourke-White, artist photographer, were married last night a few hours after they arrived in Reno from New York by transport plane. Rev. C. H. Sloan, Baptist minister and Democratic Nevada assemblyman from Las Vegas, married them.

Caldwell is 36 and his bride 31. Both were divorced last year.

Attacks "Met" Stars

Beniamino Gigli, Italian tenor who recently returned to Rome from the U.S., has raised a storm of protest after having allegedly declared that "something like civil war is not far distant in the United States." Gigli also termed the Metropolitan Opera, in which he appeared in New York, decadent. The reason for the "Met's" decline, he declared was because stars were chosen for their publicity value rather than their ability. To substantiate his claim he named Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore and Richard Crooks.

World Fair Ponders On Nude Ranch As Rand Packs Them In At 'Frisco

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(AP). — New York World's Fair officials, who hope to show the "world of to-morrow" to 50,000,000 customers, pondered to-day whether to establish a Sally Rand nude ranch among the wonders of flushing meadows.

Sally, who flew here from the west coast, was confident she could put more "umph" in the fair than any number of metal trylons and perispheres—but only if she is given a free rein.

"There will be no nude ranch at the Fair here if there are any stipulations," she said. "No clothes or no nude ranch."

She was equally positive her own shapely chassis won't be part of the display—if the Fair officials agree to her other terms.

"Who is going to look at me for 26 cents?" she snapped. 'Not me—not Rand—not this season."

Sally, who waved her way to fortune with ostrich fans at the Chicago Fair in 1933, also travelled financially with a nude ranch at the Fort Worth, Tex., Exposition and has an exhibit of girls and gurros at the San Foancisco Golden Gate Exposition.

Miss Rand said a "sea bottom revue," featuring nude nymphs capering in a sea made with mirrors, also was considered during her conference yesterday with representatives of the Fair's entertainment cimmittee.

A Drawing Card.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—(AP).—Golden Gate Exposition officials bared some figures to-day revealing that Sally Rand's nude ranch attracted more cash customers the first week than any other concession.

They said 55,449 paid their way into the nude ranch. The next most popular concession attracted 27,086.

Paying Of Greater Attention To Common Cold Present Need

The common cold is so prevalent at this season and affects so many individuals that one wonders why greater attention is not paid to it. Why is it that people neglect this infection because it seems such a simple illness? As we have said in a previous article, the common cold is dangerous because of its complications and should be treated with the respect it deserves.

Unfortunately we do not know the exact cause of colds. We know they are caused by germs which enter the body through the nose and throat, but the specific germ is not known. It is thought that several different germs are responsible and that any one of them can start the trouble.

Individual resistance plays an important part in determining who shall and who shall not develop a cold. If you are in good health you have a much better chance of avoiding a cold than if you are of low vitality. Sitting in drafts, getting your feet wet and chilling your body don't cause a cold. But they lower your resistance so that the germs in your nose and throat are able to attack the mucous membrane. Hunger and fatigue also lower vitality, and encourage the growth of germs. These factors are known as predisposing causes and should be avoided by care and common sense. People with colds mingle with well people and by coughing and sneezing spread germs through the air in fine beads of moisture.

If you are unfortunate enough to be in close proximity you may be sure some of these germs have entered your nose or throat, and if your resistance is not good you may develop a cold within twenty-four hours.

Prevention is always better than cure. Build up your resistance by good food, sufficient rest and adequate exercise. Avoid chilling the body or getting wet. Don't contact people already suffering from colds. Mouth to mouth transmission is possible by kissing, the common drinking cup, etc.

There is no sure cure. Drugs commonly used to treat colds relieve temporarily the discomfort of the inflammatory reaction, but they do not attack the actual cause. Nasal antiseptic sprays or inhalations help to relieve the congestion of the air passages. The one thing which will help your cold more than anything else is rest in bed. Nature works best on the rested body, and when all is said and done, it is nature that cures your cold, and what you take merely assists in the performance. By staying in bed you not only give yourself considerable benefit, but you do the community a good turn by preventing your spreading it to others.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadows, were sitting in the children's playroom when all at once Mrs. Cuckoo, who lived inside the little wooden clock which hung on the wall, threw open her front door. The next moment she called out in her shrill voice: "Cuck-oo! Cuck-oo! Eight o'clock! To-day is the last day of the shortest month in the year! Cuck-oo!"

Then she nodded to the two shadows and quickly shut her door again.

Knarf looked at Hanid in surprise. "Is February really the shortest month in the year?"

Only 28 Days.

"Oh, yes!" answered his sister. "There are only 28 days in February. All the other months have 30 or 31 days."

"H'm....why is that? February ought to have as many days as any other month, oughtn't it? Why has it only got 28?"

Hanid thought for a while. Then

It all seemed very puzzling.

she finally said she didn't know. "That's just how it is. It hasn't got any more days."

But it all seemed very puzzling. They decided to wait for Mrs. Cuckoo to open her door again and come out. "I'll ask her why February only has 28 days," Knarf said.

"Mrs. Cuckoo knows all about things like this. She takes care of the clock, and the clock takes care of all the hours in the days."

Cuckoo Knows.

Exactly half an hour later Mrs. Cuckoo opened her door again. The moment she did so, Knarf shouted up to her: "Mrs. Cuckoo! Why has February only 28 days?"

Mrs. Cuckoo didn't hesitate a moment. She called back: "Because long ago, when all the months came up to get their days, February was the last in line. And it got only 28 days because those were all the days that were left. But once every four years it gets one day more. And then it has 29—and that year is called Leap Year."

Why Leap Year?

"But why is there one more day in Leap Year?" Knarf asked as Mrs. Cuckoo was about to shut her door again.

"Because....because there are really more than 365 days in a year. There's a little bit of a day left over in each year. And at the end of four years it's a whole day. So February gets it. Just wait till next year. You'll see. February will have 29 days then. Oh! I must get back. I can't leave my door open this long. Good-bye. Cuck-oo!"

And in she went.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY

"NOW, MR. WITHERSPOON," Mac said briskly, "where are those shirts?"

"Shirts?" Mr. Horace surveyed the room blankly. "I dropped them somewhere—"

"They're here, at this side of the bed." Dr. Didmore, who had been yawning and gaping during the entire proceedings, indicated a spot at his feet. Mac walked around the bed and got down on all fours on the floor. And there, scattered on the carpet, were the shirts. Four of them. They were spattered with blood.

"Doc!" barked Mac, "suppose Mr. Witherspoon had not turned to the chair with the shirts?"

The medical examiner cleared his throat importantly: "In that case," he said, "the bullet would have penetrated the heart. The bureau is on an angle from the door. When Mr. Witherspoon swung around the bullet grazed his shoulder, struck the glass and glanced off into the woodwork."

"So," said Mac softly, "so the bullet was meant to be fatal!" And he looked squarely at Daphne Witherspoon.

"But who would wish to kill me?" questioned Mr. Horace in bewilderment. "I have no enemies—"

"Neither, apparently, had your wife or your mother," Mac stated bluntly, "and your mother was murdered. Dr. Didmore performed the autopsy this evening. Cyanide was found in the body!"

"I see—" Mr. Horace seemed to shrivel before our very eyes. "I—I think, if you don't mind, I will go to my room."

"Of course." Mac was at once contrite. "There will be an inquest tomorrow afternoon. Will you please notify your household?"

The wounded man nodded. With Phil's assistance he managed to rise from the bed.

"By the way," Mac raised his voice slightly, "may I trouble you for the keys to your laboratory?"

"The keys?" Something foreign flickered behind the colorless, opaque eyes of the wounded man. "The laboratory is never locked," he said slowly, "never."

"Thank you." McIntyre bowed "Miss Daphne, will you assist your father to his room?"

"Come along, father." Daphne took her place at his side.

"Coming, Mac?" Phil clasped my hand.

"Go along, children." He motioned us away. "I'm staying here for awhile. I have—something to do."

✧ ✧ ✧

"This is sure turning out to be one honey of a case!" remarked Phil, blowing great louds of smoke into the already polluted air of my bedroom. "One suspect after another goes down the drain! Looks now like it has to be one of the guests—or Daphne!"

"May I have a cigaret, please?" I took the pack from his pocket. I did not feel up to discussing Daphne's guilt or innocence. I had defended her so furiously in the past, and now—I did not know—she had done so many queer things.

Deep in my heart I still believed in her innocence. I guess that is why I had not mentioned the meeting in the arboretum. I would give her another chance—though I did not put it quite that way—I would not give her away—not yet.

"Thank God, we're safe for tonight!" I said presently, and thankfully. Chief Ellis had sent for and received half the town police force, who, even at the moment, paraded the corridors and grounds . the Manor. It was a comforting sight, believe me, the club and the gun and the blue uniform!

Phil hazarded: "Don't think there'll be any more fireworks tonight, baby."

"I hope not!" I had had enough excitement for one night and for one lifetime. I stifled a yawn. "Wonder what Mac has up his sleeve?" I said sleepily.

Phil frowned. "He has something, you may depend on that! Mac isn't a cautious Scotsman for nothing."

"He's staying upstairs a long time. What in the world can he be doing?"

"I don't know—but I'm going to find out!" He jumped up, determination written on his face.

My drowsiness vanished. "Not without me!" I said. "I'm going wherever you go."

"O. K., kid. I'm going to the third floor. Come on!"

Once again the Manor slept. The corridor, save for the blue-clad figures of the policemen on guard at the head of the front and back stairs, was deserted.

The door to Mr. Richard's room was closed. Phil opened it without knocking.

Mac McIntyre stood before the bureau, his arms filled with shirts!

"What the—" exclaimed Phil, and the detective spun around on his heel, dropped the shirts and clasped his hand to his shoulder.

"So!" he muttered, "so!" He bobbed his head several times; he gave a grunt of satisfaction He paid us no attention whatsoever.

"Is the man mad?" demanded Phil of Chief Ellis, who from a chair by the window regarded his colleague's peculiar antics unmoved.

Ellis shrugged. "He's been doing that for fifteen minutes."

Mac made no explanation. He was staring at the four shirts spread out upon the rug. On his face was an expression of rapture, as though he gazed into the eyes of a newly discovered and awakened love! Then with a quick movement he scooped the shirts into his arms.

"Where's that coat Didmore cut from Mr. Witherspoon?" he demanded of the chief.

"It's around here somewhere—there—on the chair!"

Mac exchanged the shirts for the coat. The latter he examined critically. One shoulder had been cut away. The jagged piece of material he subjected to minute scrutiny.

"Well," he said last. "Well." The fire left his eyes. He looked worried, puzzled.

"What's going on, Mac?" Phil asked petulantly.

"You kids still up?" He glanced around at us.

"Come on!" urged Phil. "What sort of bee's in your bonnet?"

"Bee?" Mac shook his head. "The bee has turned into a dodo bird, Benson! I'm all wet, I guess, and yet—" He shrugged. "Guess maybe I'm getting old!"

Bowling Aids Health

No game has proven more popular than bowling, through the winter months. It is a convenient and economical means of enjoying oneself as well as healthful way of getting the much-needed exercise so few people are able to have in the cold weather.

Insult To Injury

VANCOUVER, Feb. 28.—(CP)—A prospective customer added injury to insult yesterday when he walked out of a store without making a purchase. B. H. Weare told police after he had measured the man's neck for a shirt the customer left the store saying he would return later. Weare discovered his watch and chain were missing.

Pay Attention To Humidity

We know that wet days are chilling and dry cold days invigorating. We know the oppressive heat just before a summer thunder storm. We also know that these quirks of nature are caused by moisture in the air or humidity.

One fact we should remember before all others is that our sense of temperature either hot or cold, is controlled by the evaporation of perspiration from our bodies.

In a dry atmostphere perspiration evaporates quickly and we feel cool; in moist air evaporation is slower and we feel warm. This is especially true in summer. There is another factor which must be reckoned with in winter, namely, that moisture in the air increases the air's property to conduct heat away from the body so we feel chilly on a cold wet day.

Most houses are as dry in winter as the Sahara Desert. Our floors creak, our furniture springs its joints, our potted plans dry up, our noses get raw, and we have colds, lots of cold. All this because we don't pay sufficient attention humidity. If we could moisten the air, most of our winter troubles would be over. Normal, moist, healthy mucous membranes would help to combat cold germs and home would be a more comfortable place to live in because of a little moisture.

Fortunately equipment is now available to produce an atmosphere in our homes comparable to balmy spring and summer weather. These are known as electric air conditioners and have been on the market long enough to have proved their worth, and to be priced low enough to put them well within reach of the home owner.

Seventy-five Per Cent. Accidents Happen Right In The Home

About seventy-five per cent of accidents happen in the home. The presence of equipment to render first aid therefore becomes practically a necessity. A shelf in the medicine chest should be reserved for the following:

Tincture of Iodine or Mercurochrome, 2 per cent.
Sterilized Absorbent Cotton.
Sterilized Gauze Dressings.
Bandages 1", 2", 3" widths.
Soda Solution for burns.
Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia.
Adhesive Plaster.
Scissors.

These are necessities. Other articles may be added if desired.

The Car.

The above articles may be conveniently packed in a small tin box and stored under the seat. An emergency may arise at any time, and the driver will find this equipment the means of saving life. It is suggested that a tourniquet and a triangular bandage be added to the car equipment.

The Store and Factory.

No institution employing ten or more individuals should be without a first aid kit. It should be under the care and direction of a responsible individual trained in first aid. All the above equipment should be included in larger quantities. The addition of gasoline to remove grease and oil is indicated. The complete kit should then included:

Tincture of Iodine or Mercurochrome, 2 per cent.
Sterilized Absorbent Cotton.
Sterilized Gauze Dressings.
Bandages, 1", 2", 3" widths.
Triangular Bandages.
Soda Solution for burns.
Aromatic Spirits of Ammonia.
Adhesive Plaster.
Scissors.
Tourniquet.
Gasoline.
Camel's Hair Brush for removing grit from eye.

In all cases some member of the unit should be familiar with first aid principals and practice and a book of directions should be available.

Care should be taken to keep the kit fully stocked at all time.

200 Brothers Escape Novitiate Fire

JOLIETE, Que., Feb. 28 — (CP). —The Novitiate of the Brothers of St. Viateur was destroyed early today by fire which caused damage estimated at close to $150,000. More than 200 brothers were evacuated from the buildings during the fire.

Firemen were handicapped at the outset by the fact that the building is about 1,000 feet from the nearest water hydrant and water pressure consequently was low.

The fire, believed to have been due either to an overheated furnace or a short circuit in the wiring, broke out about an hour and a half before midnight while all except the night caretaker, Brother Gagnon, were asleep. Brother Gagnon wakened other brothers and all gained safety.

The novitiate building, originally constructed 40 years ago and enlarged from time to time, was built mostly of wood and was three storeys.

Planted recently a tree grew a foot overnight in Puerto Rico.

Paying Of Greater Attention To Common Cold Present Need

The common cold is so prevalent at this season and affects so many individuals that one wonders why greater attention is not paid to it. Why is it that people neglect this infection because it seems such a simple illness? As we have said in a previous article, the common cold is dangerous because of its complications and should be treated with the respect it deserves.

Unfortunately we do not know the exact cause of colds. We know they are caused by germs which enter the body through the nose and throat, but the specific germ is not known. It is thought that several different germs are responsible and that any one of them can start the trouble.

Individual resistance plays an important part in determining who shall and who shall not develop a cold. If you are in good health you have a much better chance of avoiding a cold than if you are of low vitality. Sitting in drafts, getting your feet wet and chilling your body don't cause a cold. But they lower your resistance so that the germs in your nose and throat are able to attack the mucous membrane. Hunger and fatigue also lower vitality and encourage the growth of germs. These factors are known as predisposing causes and should be avoided by care and common sense. People with colds mingle with well people and by coughing and sneezing spread germs through the air in fine beads of moisture.

If you are unfortunate enough to be in close proximity you may be sure some of these germs have entered your nose or throat, and if your resistance is not good you may develop a cold within twenty-four hours.

Prevention is always better than cure. Build up your resistance by good food, sufficient rest and adequate exercise. Avoid chilling the body or getting wet. Don't contact people already suffering from colds. Mouth to mouth transmission is possible by kissing, the common drinking cup, etc.

There is no sure cure. Drugs commonly used to treat colds relieve temporarily the discomfort of the inflammatory reaction, but they do not attack the actual cause. Nasal antiseptic sprays or inhalations help to relieve the congestion of the air passages. The one thing which will help your cold more than anything else is rest in bed. Nature works best on the rested body, and when all is said and done, it is nature that cures your cold, and what you take merely assists in the performance. By staying in bed you not only give yourself considerable benefit, but you do the community a good turn by preventing your spreading it to others.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

Knarf and Hanid, the shadows, were sitting in the children's playroom when all at once Mrs. Cuckoo, who lived inside the little wooden clock which hung on the wall, threw open her front door. The next moment she called out in her shrill voice: "Cuck-oo! Cuck-oo! Eight o'clock! To-day is the last day of the shortest month in the year! Cuck-oo!"

Then she nodded to the two shadows and quickly shut her door again.

Only 28 Days.

"Oh, yes!" answered his sister. "There are only 28 days in February. All the other months have 30 or 31 days."

"H'm....why is that? February ought to have as many days as any other month, oughtn't it? Why has it only got 28?"

Hanid thought for a while. Then

It all seemed very puzzling.

she finally said she didn't know. "That's just how it is. It hasn't got any more days."

But it all seemed very puzzling. They decided to wait for Mrs. Cuckoo to open her door again and come out. "I'll ask her why February only has 28 days," Knarf said.

"Mrs. Cuckoo knows all about things like this. She takes care of the clock, and the clock takes care of all the hours in the days."

Cuckoo Knows.

Exactly half an hour later Mrs. Cuckoo opened her door again. The moment she did so, Knarf shouted up to her: "Mrs. Cuckoo! Why has February only 28 days?"

Mrs. Cuckoo didn't hesitate a moment. She called back: "Because long ago, when all the months came up to get their days, February was the last in line. And it got only 28 days because those were all the days that were left. But once every four years it gets one day more. And then it has 29—and that year is called Leap Year."

Why Leap Year?

"But why is there one more day in Leap Year?" Knarf asked as Mrs. Cuckoo was about to shut her door again.

"Because....because there are really more than 365 days in a year. There's a little bit of a day left over in each year. And at the end of four years it's a whole day. So February gets it. Just wait till next year. You'll see. February will have 29 days then. Oh! I must get back. I can't leave my door open this long. Good-bye. Cuck-oo!"

And in she went.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY

"NOW, MR. WITHERSPOON," Mac said briskly, "where are those shirts?"

"Shirts?" Mr. Horace surveyed the room blankly. "I dropped them somewhere—"

"They're here, at this side of the bed." Dr. Didmore, who had been yawning and gaping during the entire proceedings, indicated a spot at his feet. Mac walked around the bed and got down on all fours on the floor. And there, scattered on the carpet, were the shirts. Four of them. They were spattered with blood.

"Doc!" barked Mac, "suppose Mr. Witherspoon had not turned to the chair with the shirts?"

The medical examiner cleared his throat importantly: "In that case," he said, "the bullet would have penetrated the heart. The bureau is on an angle from the door. When Mr. Witherspoon swung around the bullet grazed his shoulder, struck the glass and glanced off into the woodwork."

"So," said Mac softly, "so the bullet was meant to be fatal!" And he looked squarely at Daphne Witherspoon.

"But who would wish to kill me?" questioned Mr. Horace in bewilderment. "I have no enemies—"

"Neither, apparently, had your wife or your mother," Mac stated bluntly, "and your mother was murdered. Dr. Didmore performed the autopsy this evening. Cyanide was found in the body!"

"I see—" Mr. Horace seemed to shrivel before our very eyes. "I—I think, if you don't mind, I will go to my room."

"Of course." Mac was at once contrite. "There will be an inquest tomorrow afternoon. Will you please notify your household?"

The wounded man nodded. With Phil's assistance he managed to rise from the bed.

"By the way," Mac raised his voice slightly, "may I trouble you for the keys to your laboratory?"

"The keys?" Something foreign flickered behind the colorless, opaque eyes of the wounded man. "The laboratory is never locked," he said slowly, "never."

"Thank you." McIntyre bowed. "Miss Daphne, will you assist your father to his room?"

"Come along, father." Daphne took her place at his side.

"Coming, Mac?" Phil clasped my hand.

"Go along, children." He motioned us away. "I'm staying here for awhile. I have—something to do."

✧ ✧ ✧

"This is sure turning out to be one honey of a case!" remarked Phil, blowing great louds of smoke into the already polluted air of my bedroom. "One suspect after another goes down the drain! Looks now like it has to be one of the guests—or Daphne!"

"May I have a cigaret, please?" I took the pack from his pocket. I did not feel up to discussing Daphne's guilt or innocence. I had defended her so furiously in the past, and now—I did not know—she had done so many queer things.

Phil hazarded: "Don't think there'll be any more fireworks tonight, baby."

"I hope not!" I had had enough excitement for one night and for one lifetime. I stifled a yawn. "Wonder what Mac has up his sleeve?" I said sleepily.

Phil frowned. "He has something, you may depend on that! Mac isn't a cautious Scotsman for nothing."

"He's staying upstairs a long time. What in the world can he be doing?"

"I don't know—but I'm going to find out!" He jumped up, determination written on his face.

My drowsiness vanished. "Not without me!" I said. "I'm going wherever you go."

Co-ed Color-Registering Scheme Brands Style Of Her "Date"

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 28. — (AP).—Bright red entries in one dormitory register at Radcliffe college brought forth sighs and squeals of joy to-day, for red, under a new "date reporting" system devised by the girls of the house, means anything but a deficit.

It appears that a girl simply MUST report the salient features of her "dates" if she expects to share the big moments of her dormitory pals.

"It's really very simple," one of the college beautifuls explained "We have to register anyways when we return from a date, so now we do it with different colored pencils."

"Take green," another said. "An entry in that color means a girl had just a plain nice time—a date with a Harvard man, for instance. They usually average green."

As for red—that's another story. In dormitory language it spells "a perfectly swell time."

Purple Rates Tops.

Tops, however, is purple. When a girl reaches for a pencil with purple lead she means her experience was "too, too divine."

As for the other colors:

Brown: Doing anything that takes up a night but isn't exactly fun.

Yellow: "An utter flop."

Blue underlined: A walk "with eats."

And last of all (and some of the girls say least frequent) an entry in pink means the date was on a "high and intellectual plane."

A German Denial

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP)—An official at the German consulate general's office her last night termed "absolute nonsense" a Calgary report that German born residents of Alberta of military age are being askd by the German government to return to Germany at once under threat of reprisals against relatives in the Reich.

Alex Walker, president of the Alberta command of the Canadian Legion, told delegates at a meeting in Calgary yesterday that the German government had made this request.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

EXACTNESS INCREASING

PROBABLY THE MOST definite advance in bidding tactics of fine players during the last few years has been in their improved accuracy. More and more hands are being bid to the exact spot which would be chosen if all fifty-two cards were in clear sight. Duplicate tournaments disclose this more emphatically of course than any other form of the game. Not until a good rubber player has tried himself out in duplicate competition can he tell just how good his accuracy is in comparison with other players.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

On a deal of this kind, with the strength pretty well divided between the two sides, it would be hard for some kibitzers to tell whether the game was auction or contract. The big idea, as soon as the side has found a suit fit and does not seem to have a game in its cards, is to try to buy the contract as cheaply as possible. The test then hinges on just how high the side can afford to go.

North started with a third-hand 1-Club. East bid 1-Diamond, South 1-Spade and West 2-Hearts. Since the partner of each major bidder had four-card support for him, no other declarations got mentioned thereafter. North and East passed the 2-Hearts, then South bid 2-Spades. Came two more passes, followed by 3-Hearts from East, then another couple of passes and 3-Spades by North, which became the contract.

It was made right on the head, with the loss of two diamonds, a heart and a spade, producing a score of 140—90 for tricks plus 50 for contract. West would either make the 3-Hearts which got bid, or go down one, dependent on how the clubs were played, but in either event neither opponent could very well have afforded to double this. In brief, each side had bid what it should, no more and no less, and the same thing exactly occurred at nearly all other tables in the game.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If North chooses to bid 1-Spade in opening the bidding here, and East doubles, how should the bidding then proceed?

C.N.R. Revenue

MONTREAL, Feb. 28—(CP)—Increase of $173,373 was reported today by Canadian National Railways in January operating revenues of $13,495,005, compared with $13,321,632 in the corresponding month of 1938.

Operating expenses, however, showed a decrease of $729,185 to $14,103,200 compared with $14,832,385.

UNUSUAL CHARGE

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad—(CP)—A 21-year-old research station assistant was sentenced to 12 months imprisonment with hard labor when he pleaded guilty to the unusual charge of unlawfully and maliciously destroying a public document—a record of the date of birth of his aunt. The case was the outcome of a family dispute over property.

Reducing Price Of Radio Sets Will Double Sale In Canada Canadian Tariff Board Is Told

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP).—Business executives and barristers crowded the tariff board room for the continued hearing of the Board's enquiry into the operations of Canada's radio industry.

Hearings were resumed from last July. According to its terms of reference the Board was required to investigate "not only the production, distribution and sale of radio receiving sets, radio tubes and batteries but such related matters as the bearing of the patent low upon the manufacture, use and importation of radio sets, tubes and batteries, and effects upon the importation, cost and use of radios in Canada of the alleged pooled control of patent rights."

Argument was opened to-day by Hon. W. D. Herridge appearing for Philco Radio Products Ltd.

"The position of Philco," said Mr. Herridge, "fundamentally is that given the same tax situation, the Canadian public should be able to buy radio receivers at substantially the same price as can the United States' public."

"At that price," he continued, "there would be in Canada double the number of receivers now in use."

The Canadian market for radio receiving sets, tubes and parts of sets, he submitted, "should be given to the Canadian manufacturer exclusively. Then the Canadian consumer and labor would be in equally advantageous positions."

The first step towards lower prices and greater distribution in Canada was the interview in October, 1937, between Philco executives and A. H. Dymen, chairman of the Canadian General Electric Coroprat ion.

Objects To Repetition.

At this point L. A. Forsyth, counsel for the Rogers Majestic Co., protested against Mr. Herridge traversing ground he had covered last year. He objected to repetition of argument, and was joined in his protest by Lieut.-Col. J. L. Ralston, counsel for the Radio Manufacturers' Association.

"Now that we've heard the Bren gun defence forces perhaps I'll be allowed to go ahead," commented Mr. Herridge.

Mr. Herridge should be given an opportunity to proceed, interposed Chairman George H. Sedgewick, "don't let's me like 'Mary Baxter'," he said, "who 'refused a man before he asked 'er'."

Mr. Herridge said Philco products believed that the high prices of radio receivers in Canada were "due to the excessively high cost of royalties, the excessively high cost of tubes and parts." Manufacturers had made the defence that the high cost were justified by "current local situations."

"We are not making a defence," objected Mr. Ralston. "As I understand it we are here to lay the facts of the radio industry before the board, not to hear 'charges' by Philco and 'defences' of other members of the industry."

The reason for low distribution of radio receivers in Canada was the high price, Mr. Herridge had placed before the board a tabulation of comparative Canadian and United States prices of identical Philco receivers, and from that tabulation it could be seen, he said, that Canadian prices ranged from 50 to 90 per cent above the United States prices.

The radio manufacturers association had maintained, in support of higher Canadian prices, that Canadian-made receiving sets were superior. "I shall bring a witness to prove that Canadian sets are not superior in quality to the United States set," he said.

Ignored Distribution

Mr. Ralston said Mr. Herridge had singled out two or three small arguments but had ignored such an important factor as the vast distribution of radios in the more populous United States.

"But better distribution in Canada could be obtained by lower prices," rejoined Mr. Herridge. "Lower the prices and more radios will be sold."

Divided Into Two Groups

He would place evidence before the board to show, said Mr. Herridge, that the Canadan radio industry was divided into two groups— the patent group, and the independent group.

The latter body comprised Philco and six or seven other companies. The patent group was made up of Canadian General Electric, the Northern Electric, the Marconi and Westinghouse Company. The status of Rogers Majestic was obscure. He did not know whether Rogers Majestic was "in parallel with these other companies" with respect to patent holdings and ownership of subsidiary companies.

Mr. Forsyth interjected there was no mystery so far as Rogers Majestic was concerned.

A Canadian Company

"Rogers Majestic is a Canadian Company, maufacturing radios in Canada, and is thus different from the offshoot of the large American companies Mr. Herridge represents," he said.

Mr. Herridge asked if Rogers Majestic was a stockholder in Thermionics Limited. To this Mr. Forsyth said all the records of the company had been placed at the disposition of the board.

"I'm quite satisfied if Mr. Forsyth doesn't want to answer," said Mr. Herridge.

The patent group, he continued, controlled two patent pools. One was the Canadian Radio Patents Ltd., which, itself, controlled the licensing rights over substantially all receiving set patents except those owned by Hazeltine Corporation and Philco.

The second patent-holding company was Thermionics Ltd., which controlled all licensing rights over substantially all tube patents, Mr. Herridge said.

"I will submit that at least two-thirds of the Canadian radio business is done by this patent group, its shareholder companies owning and controlling these patents. Philco does 8.9 per cent and 28.2 per cent is done by the remaining independent companies," Mr. Herridge declared.

"Do you include Rogers Majestic in the group?" asked Mr. Forsyth.

Controls Radio Industry

"Yes. This patent group, because of its dominating position in the radio field, does in fact control the radio industry of Canada, and I shall have to examine the advantages they take of the situation," Mr. Herridge went on. "I shall offer evidence that this patent group I have named fixes and enhances the prices of radio sets and tubes in Canada."

Mr. Herridge crystallized his arguments under several heads as follows:

Thermionics Ltd., he said, controlled licensing rights for all tube patents; list prices of all Canadian tubes are the same, the quality of Canadian tubes is not higher than that of United States tubes; the prices of Canadian tubes are "unwarrantably high"—27 to 56 per cent increase over the United States prices.

"I submit that therefore, in respect of tubes this situation prevails: Fixed prices, prices unduly enhanced, the two elements that under the Combines Act constitutes a combine," declared Mr. Herridge.

The patent group controlled all patent-right with regard to tubes in Canada, in spite of the fact that it also imported tubes from the United States into this country. The group did not manufacture the entire Canadian output.

A patent pool, the Canadian Radio Patents, Limited, held most of the patents except those held by Philco and Hazeltine Corporation. Mr. Herridge said he would attempt to prove the pool acted as a combine in fixing prices of Canadian radio sets, tubes and component parts.

Price Fixing.

There was evidence of price fixing in radio sets, he said. Prices of various Canadian sets were "substantially the same."

"These prices are unwarrantably high," he said.

"Does that mean the fanufacturer is making too much profit?" asked Mr. Ralston.

"I don't know," admitted Mr. Herridge.

"My friend has some odd economic ideas," said Mr. Ralston. "He said a few minutes ago we could sell more radios by lowering prices. Perhaps he means we should lower prices below cost in order to get better distribution and then bring down the price.

The "unwarrantably high" prices of Canadian radios were dut to the cost of tubes, cost of parts and the license royalties, continued Mr. Herridge. Parts in Canada cost the manufacturer 37 per cent more than in the United States.

Canadian manufacturer had to pay double the royalties United States' manufacturers did and about six times the British royalty.

Honduras bought more goods from the United States than from any other country last year.

Ottawa Weatherman Takes It On Chin Shovels Half a Day

Ottawa, Feb. 28 (CP)

EVEN the weatherman took it on the chin from the snowstorm that laid a blanket of more than 10 inches of powdery snow over Ottawa yesterday.

F. W. Baker, the weatherman, was unable to fight his way 300 yards from his home to the main road in suburban Woodroffe and the drifts were so high a team of horses couldn't pull his motor car through.

He finally got through at noon today by the old fashioned method—shovelling a path for himself.

Miracle Baby

After 35 minutes of "death" due to bronchial pneumonia, 14-months-old Edward Danner, of Woodstown, N.J., was brought back to life by Dr. Ralph Davis, at Audubon, Pa., who used his own method of artificial respiration when the boy's breathing stopped.

Necessary To Blindfold Dog Before Removing Master

Here's a picture story of the saying "A man's best friend is his dog." Chester Brooks lies injured beside his wrecked car on Jericho Turnpike, Old Westbury, L.I., while his faithful dog, Fritz, who was also in the accident, stands guard over him. It was necessary to blindfold the dog to keep him from following the ambulance that took his master to the hospital.

Ennismore Mourns Mrs. Ann Donoghue

ENNISMORE, Feb. 28. — Seldom has a person been as generally mourned throughout this community as is Mrs. Ann Donoghue (Ann Crough), widow of Robert Donoghue, whose remains were brought to Ennismore on Thursday last for burial following the funeral Mass in St. Peter's Cathedral, Peterborough. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Crough, she belonged to one of the pioneer families of this township. Of a family of ten children, most of whom lived to old age, she was the last member to be called by death. The deceased lived the greater part of her life her, but in later years moved to Peterborough where her husband predeceased her some eighteen years ago. At the time of her death she was residing with her son Robert L. Donoghue of Reid Street.

After leaving Ennismore she kept in close touch with her many realtives and friends of her earlier days, and scarcely a gathering, whether on occasion of pleasure or one of the sadder type, was complete without her presence. During her life it was particularly noticeable that in a home where there was sickness or death there was to be found her charitable personality to lend a helping hand or to utter consoling words. At joyful gatherings her Irish wit and ready response were always outstanding features. The last occasion on which she returned on one of those sad misisons was about seventeen months ago when although in failing health she attended the funeral of her niece, Mrs. Mary Ellen Killen, for whom she had a particular fondness and at whose home she visited almost every summer.

It is deeply regretted by many here that owing to unfavorable weather and road conditions they were unable to pay their last respects to one who had been such a true and devoted friend. Their most sincere sympathy goes out to Reverend Mother St. Robert of Mount St. Joseph and the other members of Mrs. Donoghue's immediate family in the loss of a mother whose memory will remain in the hearts of many as "a friend in need."

Big Shovelling Job.

If snapshots of the countryside were flashed on Saturday no doubt the man with the snow shovel would be the outstanding figure. The weather man put both man-power and snow ploughs to the test during the week with the grand finale in Friday's storm. As a result not only the side roads but the main highways were blocked to traffic. Snowbanks are so high and firm that plows are powerless to do anything until a certain amount of snow is shovelled away. Saturday found large numbers of men busily engaged at the work. Just whether all this will open roads to traffic or will just make a convenient landing place for the snowfall of the next storm is a question we would not venture to answer.

The last pre-Lenten entertainment held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday evening took the form of a motion picture show. Although the attendance was somewhat small due to road conditions a very interesting program of educational and novel films was screened.

Dennis Perdue of Toronto visited his mother, Mrs. Catherine Perdue, on Friday last.

WARSAW

A fairly good number attended the social on Wednesday evening in the United Church basement when what was left after the annual oyster supper was used.

Mr. and Mrs. Leither and family have moved into the house lately occupied by Mark Lonsberry.

The United Church W.A. Service was fairly well attended on Thursday afternoon. After opening devotions at which Mrs. Arthur Payne presided, a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Earl Payne for fruit sent during illness was read.

Mrs. Horton, presbyterial president of W. A. sent a letter advocating the use of W.A. programs. The letter was much appreciated and 30 programs were ordered. Mrs. A. B. McIlvena gave a piano selection "Mystic Illusions". Mrs. Arthur Payne gave the scripture lesson and Mrs. C. Cooper led in prayer. An interesting berry cContest was given by Mrs. Gordon Payne. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson closed the meeting with prayer and Mrs. W. Darling, Mrs. Weller, Mrs. Wilkinson served refreshments and a very happy social half hour was spent.

Mrs. Frank Lonsberry is quite ill. Her daughter, Mrs. Max Tucker is with her.

Mrs. Judge, Toronto, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Tucker was home on account of her father's serious illness.

The world's day of prayer service in Warsaw was called off as some who were to have taken part were unable to come.

Aberhart Opposes Leadership League

EDMONTON, Feb. 27. — (CP). — Premier Aberhart of Alberta, at the Edmonton Prophetic Bible Conference last night, was asked the position of social creditors in signing ballots of the Leadership League.

(The Leadership League, sponsored by the Toronto Globe and Mail, provides ballots to be sent members of Parliament, urging them to "forget party advantage and co-operate for the common good.")

Provincial secretary E. C. Manning read a letter from Galahad, Alta., which asked: "Is it all right for social creditors to sign these ballots that he (George McCullagh, Globe and Mail publisher, speaks of, in which we are going to ask for good clean government at Ottawa?"

Premier Aberhart replied: "I have no advice to give you in this matter. I can hardly understand a social crediter asking such a question. Surely you do not hope to solve the present financial problems by a work and wages program like that which Mr. McCullagh proposes?

"If you want these increases in debt, in interest and taxes, then you had better send a ballot and support the recommendations of the money barons, who are recommending a coalition of national government."

Three Societies Join In Service Of Prayer

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28. — "More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of," is a fact that, apaprently, lies back of the annual World Day of Prayer, as petitions rise from sunrise to sunset from prayer groups girdling the globe, the occasion this year being on the first Friday in Lent, February 24.

The special occasion was observed locally by the three misisonary auxiliaries, the presidents Mrs. C. M. Westmacott, Mrs. A. L. Sisco, and Mrs. S. E. Eakins, occupying seats on the platform, and leading in turn for the three sections of the program, prepared this year by the Spiritual Life committee of the Presbyterian Boards, U.S.A., the theme being: "Let us put our love into deed, and make it real."

The gathering was in St. Andrew's church and was representative of the three women's organizations of the village, considering the unfavorable state of roads and weather, and the prevalence of colds and flu throughout the countryside.

The program opened with quiet music played by Miss E. L. Hetherington, and the special prayers, during the period of intercession, were taken by Mrs. Westmacott, and Mrs. L. M. Bonneville, for the Anglican W.A.; by Mrs. P. Stinson and Miss Hetherington, for the hostess auxiliary, and by Miss Agnes Johnston for Grace Presbyterian W.M.S.; Mrs. (Rev.) William Simpson took the prayer for the Christian church, particularly in those lands where persecution is rife.

Miss Rose Macnamara gave an interesting paper covering the origin and history of the World Day of Prayer, and following the offering, which is devoted to the printing and distribution of Christian literature, Mrs. F. L. Edworthy and Mrs. Stinson sang a duet: "There's a Blessing in Prayer," this forming the dedication of the money contributed.

After a hymn, the benediction was recited in unison, and a most helpful and impressive service was brought to a close.

FEW WEEKS ON SYNTONA MADE BIG DIFFERENCE TO THIS LADY

Tells How It Brought Quick Relief From Two Years' Suffering With Stomach Misery, Backache, Headaches and Loss of Sleep. Pure Herbal Formula.

MRS. HARRY G. ELLIS

"When a medicine will help me the way Syntona did, I think it deserves the highest praise," said Mrs. Harry G. Ellis, 646 Concession St., Hamilton, in a report received only a few days ago:

"I will never forget how I sat up night after night, suffering with stomach gas, cramps, nausea, and heartburn. I was afraid to go to bed because when I would lie down the trouble got worse and I had difficulty keeping food in my stomach at all. I was subject to headaches, backache, and dizzy, bilious spells.

"One night I had a very bad attack of this trouble, so I sent out for a bottle of Syntona, and as soon as I got it, I took a dose and went to bed. Well, that night I got the first decent night's sleep I had in ages. As I kept on taking Syntona, I soon got so I could eat anything I liked without any of the former trouble. I am free of those awful headaches and dizzy spells now, and the pains have gone out of my back and muscles. I am so pleased with the way Syntona has helped me that I will be glad to have others know about it."

Syntona produces these results without the aid of drugs or depressors. It is made only from pure herbal extracts that have long been known for their beneficial action on the organs of assimilation and elimination. It is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

You, who suffer like Mrs. Ellis did, are cordially invited to call at Ellictt's Drug Store, Peterborough, and find out for yourselves about Syntona. You, too, may receive these priceless benefits.

Sardines Packed In Winter For First Time

DEER ISLAND, N.B., Feb. 27.—(CP)—Winter packing of sardine herring from the Bay of Fundy has been possible this season for the first time in history. Previously canning plants in this district have had to wait for catches until March or later.

Since Jan. 1 the herring have been caught in varying quantities at three different places in Charotte County waters. Fishermen, boatmen and factory employees have enjoyed earning money during a season usually blank in the sardine industry.

Demand for the fish has been good at $12 a hogshead. On several occasions supply exceeded the demand at Black's Harbor, and the excess catches were sold to Eastport dealers who ship the fish fresh to metropolitan markets.

With Maine factory officials reported to be seeking an earlier legal opening date than April 15, fishermen expect a continued good demand this year. Most of the sardine herring bought by dealers in Maine coastal towns is supplied from southern New Brunswick.

Light Pack In 1938

The 1938 pack was unusually light both in Maine and New Brunswick. The Maine output was estimated roughly at 700,000 cases of canned sardines, as compared with 1,600,000 to 1,800,000 cases in normal seasons. The season was a poor one for weirmen at Deer, Campobello and Grand Manan Islands, although each weir of a few Deer Island fishermen caught several thousands dollars worth of smaller herring.

The goods sold for $4 a case last fall, the highest price in recent years. Near the end of the 1938 packing season in Maine a set price to fishermen of $1 a case was maintained until December 1 by agreement of packers in the eastern part of the state.

At that rate sardines sold by Charlotte County fishemen brought them from $30 to $35 a hogshead while larger fish brought sums ranging down to a minimum of $15 per hogshead.

Gales wrecked many weirs this winter. Repairing or rebuilding will cause heavy expense, fishermen report. These operations will start early in the spring.

Tough Job For Tough Men

Some fishermen have been "killing two birds with one stone" this winter by catching ground fish at the sea bottom and sardine herring near the surface at the same time.

The men make "night sets" of baited gear before dark, using warps and buoys to mark the location. Then they leave the trawls and turn to the method of "driving" herring, or pursuing school of the little fish and dipping them from the sea under the light of torches. The fishemen get one to three hogsheads at night. They cease "driving" at daybreak, return to the trawl buoys and haul in the catch of groundfish.

"It is hard work, this doubling of our efforts to make things pay, but there's good money in it as well as plenty of exercise," said a highliner in the industry. "The only trouble is our boats are not suitable for the kind of work that we are doing. Each craft should be larger and have two engines instead of one, so as to make the business safer.

"Only the other morning when the vapor was sky high and half a gale blowing from the northwest, my chum and I felt the need of a better equipped boat when we started for home from the Wolves Islands. We had a tough time getting around Molasses Rock, it was so thick, and if anything had happened to the engine we would have fetched up on the Nova Scotia shore—if we were lucky enough to get that far. It's a tough job—even for tough men."

After a short business session a spelling match between sides captained by Jack Gray and Isabel Phillips was conducted by Josephine Mumby, program convener, the honors going to the latter side. The remainder of the evening was spent in a "stunt" game.

Swans were frozen in the ice on the Granthan Canal during the recent cold spell in England.

Gigli's Rap At U.S. Seen Sour Grapes

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—(AP).—Beniamino Gigli's attack on the United States and its singers brought sharp reaction today from the tenor's one-time colleagues in the Metropolitan Opera Company who denounced his critical statements as "sour grapes."

Frances Alda, who sang with Gigli when he made his debut 21 years ago, said Gigli was "a nasty little pig" whose words were "worthy of a tenor."

Gigli, back in Rome from return engagements in America after an absence of seven years, said the United States was "in the hands of Jews" and approaching "something like a civil war." He added that the Metropolitan Opera Company was decadent. Edward Johnson, of Guelph, is manager of the "Met".

John Brownlee, Australian opera star, said it was "Disgraceful" for Gigli to question the artistic ability of Lawrence Tibbett, Grace Moore and Richard Crooks, "who have been good enough to sing in the greatest opera houses in Europe."

Gigli cited the trio of Americans as stars "who cost less and substitute notoriety created by publicity for intrinsic value."

Airforce Terror Of Enemies, Keeping It That Way Boasts Nazis' Goering

Will Continue Piling Up Fighting Planes As Fear Grips Democracies; Calls On Germans To Join Flying Service

BERLIN, March 1 (AP). — Field Marshal Goering, Air Minister and economics administrator, declared in a nation-wide broadcast today that "the German air force is the terror of our enemies and we are determined to keep it that way."

Opening the annual observance of air force day, Marshal Goering predicted that aviation forces "will continue to play an important role in world politics" where the situation "continues to be full of tension stirred by international Jewry."

Goering said he was determined to continue to build Germany's air force because "armament fear has gripped many great democracies which makes it necessary for us to proceed with steady improvement of this weapon."

Without the power of the air force, he said, it might have been impossible for Chancellor Hitler to create greater Germany (including Austria and Sudetenland).

Calling upon Germans to join the air force, Goering described his men as "elite of the nation."

A parade of Berlin air force regiments before the Field Marshal in front of the Air Ministry at noon and afternoon manouvres over Berlin by the Richtofen squadron were other parts of the day's program.

Classes in schools throughout the country were halted to permit students to listen.

Scared Enemies Off?

"How could the Fuehrer have brought Austria back to the Reich and founded the Greater Germany despite the fury of our adversaries?" he demanded. "How, without this military force, could he have liberated the Sudetens without drawing his sword? In 1938 our aviation gave a warning of prudence to all who want to hurl themselves into aggression.

"The offensive appearance of our aviation was enough. It played a remarkable role in dealing with the avid demagogues of war.

"We are under no illusions. The political situation is strained. We are slandered. Jewish incitements continue on both sides of the ocean. The armaments fever has seized upon the entire world. Our adversaries rejected the disarmament proposals made by the Fuehrer. Now they claim to hold us responsible for their super-armament."

Claim U.S. Wheat Subsidized, Floods Ontario

OTTAWA, March 1.—(CP)—Debate on the new Canada-United States trade agreement, which has occupied the House of Commons almost exclusively since Feb. 14 with nearly 50 speakers taking part, has been halted but by no means ended.

Today and probably to the end of the week, the House will take up government bills in an effort to make some progress on the normal legislative program which has been at a standstill since the House opened Jan. 12.

The trade treaty and the government's trade policies in general were under fire from the Conservatives yesterday but received a measure of support from Social Credit speakers and was defended b ythree government supporters. No ministers took part in the debate.

Attacks McCullagh

Features of the discussions included an attack upon George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, in which a campaign has been conducted criticising the government and parliament for inaction.

J. A. Glenn (Lib. Marquette) said Mr. McCullagh's "Leadership League" would find itself in "mixed company" if it resulted in formation of a new party. 'I would not be surprised if he enlisted all the elements present in the communist and fascist factions in Canada."

Referring to Mr. McCullagh as "the boy wonder of Toronto—and I hope Toronto will keep him," Mr. Glenn declared, "it is journalism of this kind which gives point to those who would seek to trammel and prohibit a free press.

Karl Holmuth (Cons.-Waterloo South) spoke, he said, to "protest against the unwarranted and continual castigation of industry and those employed in it" in Eastern Canada.

"I happen to be one of them and one of those interested in the welfare of this country," he said.

"I realize as well as any man that industry's best customer is the prosperous agriculturist. But I know, too, that the best customer the agriculturist has is the prosperous factory worker of Eastern Canada."

Hard work is no new experience for this aged man. At the age of nine years he was working from sun-up to sundown behind a team of oxen, clearing land on his father's homstead. He drove that same etam

Stowaway Lass Gathers Her 17 Fan Letters Heads Home, Wanderlust Uncurbed

HALIFAX, March 1—(CP).—Canadian immigration authorities today released attractive, footloose Loretta Eccleston of Hamilton, after they had detained the 20-year-old stowaway for a day. Miss Eccleston arrived in Halifax aboard the steamship Aurania yesterday from England where she travelled as a stowaway on the Queen Mary.

She was immediately detained by immigration officials because she did not have "proper identification."

So today, with her freedom after two weeks at sea and a week in a British detention quarters, she gathered up the 17 fan letters she received and prepared to go home.

But she won't return to the commercial class she has been attending, Miss Eccleston said, because she wants to see the world. Her father, A. E. Eccleston, a Hamilton grocer, seems to frown on her wanderings.

Miss Eccleston said she boarded the Queen Mary on a dare while seeing some friends off at New York. She made no attempt to hide and was discovered by a steward in one of the ship's lounges.

She expects to leave for home some time today. She will be glad to get back but there are two words she will always hate: They are "stowaway and alien."

Ontario's March Arrives With Faint 'Ba'

(By the Canadian Press.)

Mild weather and sunny skies prevailed over most of Canada to-day and the lamb-like advent of March enabled believers in the old saying to forecast the month would end with a Leonine roar of snow storms, chill winds, low temperatures and generally miserable weather.

Only in Eastern Ontario and the Upper St. Lawrence districts of Quebec was the weather unfavorable. A light fog but comparatively high temperatures after a night of rain were reported from the Maritimes and elsewhere in the Dominion the weather generally was fair—with a forecast of dropping temperatures by nightfall.

Those prairie residents who view the lamb-and-lion adage with reservations welcomed the upward climb of the thermometer readings for they had gone through the coldest February in years. Many an Ontarian also approved the change in weather after a month of heavy snowfall that had tied up highway travel throughout Ontario.

Five persons were injured in traffic mishaps at Ottawa, where a sleet and rain storm during the night created the worst traffic conditions of the winter. Slippery streets made vehicular and pedestrian movement precarious but by morning the rain ceased and temperatures rose.

Mild and Sunny

Mild, sunny weather prevailed over other sections of Ontario. In Toronto, workmen clearing the streets of the remains of a heavy, early-week snowfall, found their work made easier by temperatures

Mexico Smashes Nazi Spy Ring

MEXICO CITY, March 1—(AP).—The Mexican press today linked the hunt for a mysterious, unlicensed wireless transmitter to an investigation of so-called German espionage in which newspapers said the brother-in-law of the police chief of Berlin was detained.

Among eight persons taken into custody Monday was a man identified in the press as Baron Hans Heinrich Von Holleufer, related by marriage to Count Wolf Heinrich Von Helldorf, Berlin police head.

The German legation announced it had intervened through the Mexican foreign office to obtain a stay in deportation proceedings against Baron Von Holleufer. He came here in 1931 as a refugee from pre-Nazi Germany and remained as the representative of several German firms.

Informed sources said those detained with the Baron were "mostly Germans." Their detention followed disclosure that an unregistered short wave wireless transmitter was operating in a Mexico City suburb. Communications department officials were said to have picked up the strongest signals in the vicinity of the Spanish cemetery on the outskirts of the city.

Acquaintances of the Baron said he negotiated a German-Mexican barter deal more than a year ago in which Mexican rice was exchanged for German hospital and sanitary equipment. The newspaper El Popular, organ of the CTM (Mexican Confederation of Labor), said last November he tried to buy 10,000 barrels of Mexican oil. Mexico expropriated the foreign oil industry last March 18.

Taximan Lays Charge Kidnapping

Move Follows Drive At Gunpoint Toronto-North Bay

TORONTO, March 1.— (CP).—Albert Powell, Toronto taxi driver who was forced at gun point to drive to North Bay and Temagimi last week, to-day laid a charge of kidnapping against Robert Trowhill, of Haileybury.

Powell's action was taken on the advice of his counsel, Remington White, who said that police had not laid the charge and the only way that the man could be brought to trial was by his client taking action.

Trowhill is held with another man at Haileybury on a charge of armed robbery.

"The kidnapping charge is the more serious," Mr. White declared. This man should be brought to Toronto face trial for kidnapping."

Incessant questioning by police officials was a greater shock to his nerves than his experience with the two men who kidnapped him, Powell said to-day.

When Powell told the story of his abduction to police at North Bay, they seemed reluctant to believe him, he said, and one officer suggested that "we have a lot of these phoney stories."

If the North Bay and provincial police had co-operated properly, his captors could have been caught within a few minutes of the time the affair was reported, Powell said.

The taxi-driver was forced by two men he picked up in Toronto to drive to North Bay and then on to Temagimi last Wednesday night. He was robbed of $20 and was released in North Bay Thursday.

Duplessis Turns Guns On Reds

QUEBEC, Mar. 1 — (CP). — Assistance of Federal authorities in "more complete" suppression of Communistic activity in Quebec was sought last night by the Quebec Legislature as Premier Duplessis declared all the people of the province backed the request.

Before the Legislative Assembly approved a motion asking the Ottawa Government to take a hand in the fight against Communism the Provincial administration started two years ago, the Premier said Quebec people want the "rout of Communists."

He described Communists as "vipers" and their doctrines as "perfidious and pernicious," suggesting the Lower House give full support to the motion by Herman Barrette on a 47-12 division with Opposition (Un-Joliette).

Approval of the motion was given members holding out in favor of an amendment requesting continued Federal action against all "subversive doctrines, particularly Communism." The amendment was beaten by the same count.

Barrette proposed only that Federal steps be taken against the Communists by closing the mails to their propaganda, prohibiting their admission to Quebec and closer supervision of immigration and the issue of passports.

He denounced spread of propaganda through the mails and "granting of passports to Communists who went to fight in Spain.'"

Hitler, Duce Plan Meet In Italy To Draft Colonial Demands?

ROME, March 1 (AP) — Fascist circles reported today that Premier Mussolini and Chancellor Hitler might meet soon in a northern Italian city to discuss the future operation of the Rome-Berlin axis.

Confirmation of the reports was lacking, but it was said that announcement of such a meeting would come only after preparations were well developed.

Significance was attached to the presence in Rome of General Wolff, Hitler's first adjutant. It was believed he might have come to arrange a meeting between Il Duce and Der Fuehrer, which political circles said would be a logical step in view of their apparent determination to press for recognition of their colonial claims.

Spokesmen for the Fascist and Nazi regimes have said their claims "march together." Diplomats have expected the axis to apply pressure for colonial recognition as soon as the Spanish civil war is concluded, an event which seems near.

Premier Mussolini exhorted his subordinate chiefs today to intensive military preparation "for the Fascist people." He said such preparedness was a guarantee of Italy's defence against plans of anti-Fascists throughout the world to encircle authoritarian states.

Il Duce addressed the recently reorganized directorate of the Fascist party in his offices. Military preparedness and "ever higher social justice," he said, were two slogans of Italy as Fascism approached its 20th anniversary.

Awaiting Call To Spanish Throne

With recognition of the Franco regime in Spain by France and England assured, Prince Juan and his wife, the former Princess Maria Mercedes of Bourbon, are anticipating a call from Generalissimo Franco to return to Spain and occupy the throne left vacant by the abdication of Prince Juan's father, King Alfonso. The prince will occupy the throne, if called, with the consent of his father, since Alfonso now is reported to realize that he is not likely to be invited back to the throne.

West Asks Continued Help, Minimum Wheat Price

Fear Disastrous Outlook For New Season If Guaranteed Price Under 80 Cents

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP). — Continued operation of the Canadian Wheat Board—the recommendation of the Turgeon Grain Commission report for coping with abnormal market conditions—was urged upon the Dominion Government today by a committee representing western wheat growers, dealers and business men.

The committee also urged maintenance in 1939-40 of at least the same protection given during the last crop year, by the setting again of a minimum price of at least 80 cents for No. 1 Northern, basis Fort William.

Only by such assistance was a major economic disaster averted in 1938, the committee told the government, the same forces of high production, low consumption and low prices now threaten the outlook for 1939.

The committee, led by Premier Bracken of Manitoba, simultaneously advocated some subsidiary assistance for growers of coarse grains through crop insurance or some other plan. It met the government in camera, but later made its brief public.

Farmers and Business Men.

The 20-man committee, "representative of those who are entitled to speak on behalf of the farmers of Western Canada as well as of Western business," was set up as a result of the Western Markets Conference held in Winnipeg in December.

Later it drafted detailed recommendations in January and early February meetings in Regina and Saskatoon.

The committee recommended continuation of the Wheat Board plan—which automatically involves the setting of a minimum price—because of its simplicity of operation, economy or administration and the fact it carried out the suggestions of the Turgeon Commission for abnormal conditions.

The plan afforded protection against possible further demoralization of the market structure during a period of excessive world wheat supplies, as appeared would be the case this year.

No Act This Session To Aid Revenue Of Separate Schools

Toronto, Mar. 1 (CP).

PREMIER Mitchell Hepburn announced to-day the Government is not contemplating legislation at the next session to provide additional revenues for Separate Schools.

The Premier said he would be glad to hear representations from the Catholic Taxpeyers' Association, but "certainly no new legislation is contemplated at the moment."

John Mackenzie Dies

WINNIPEG, Mar. 1 — (CP). — John S. MacKenzie, 70, treasurer of the Winnipeg Electric Company, died at his home her last night. Born at Kirkfield, Ont., Mr. MacKenzie came to Winnipeg in 1902 as purchasing agent for the Winnipeg Street Railway Company. Previously he was assistant controller of the Toronto Street Railway Company.

Suggest Some Reports From Chief After 41 Robberies

Amherstburg, Ont., Mar. 1 (CP)

DEPUTY REEVE Rennie Down believes Police Chief J. E. Taylor's report should be a little more complete. "There is a little matter of 41 recent robberies without a single conviction that should be added to the report," Down told council here.

Boost In Gas Tax Or Licenses Brewing In Ontario Says Premier Hepburn

Favors Former But If Plate Fee Wins Out Increase To Be Effective April 1; Extra Revenue To Cut Municipal Taxes

TORONTO, March 1 (CP).—Premier Mitchell Hepburn said today the Ontario Government has under consideration the question of increasing the gasoline tax or raising motor vehicle license fees. He indicated he was inclined to favor the gasoline tax raise because "those who use the roads should pay for the roads."

It was learned that should provincial revenues be increased by either means, the increase would be used to aid the municipalities in reducing the taxes on real estate.

The Premier warned that should increased license fees be decided on, it would be effective April 1 and that motorists purchasing 1939 licence plates after that date, would have to pay it.

Relents on Roebuck.

TORONTO, Mar. 1 — (CP). — Arthur Roebuck and David Croll, former ministers in the Mitchell Hepburn Government, but who have at divers times and on divers subjects disagreed with Mr. Hepburn, will remain on the front Government benches at the session opening on March 8, Mr. Hepburn said today.

The Premier approved of a plan of Legislature seating that leaves Mr. Roebuck and Mr. Croll where they were last session. It won't be necessary for them to find new friends in the House.

When Mr. Roebuck sided with Prime Minister Mackenzie King at various stages in the King-Hepburn battle, Mr. Hepburn announced his former Attorney-General would be moved to the "cool shades of Opposition." He has relented and the Toronto-Bellwoods member stays put.

Mr. Croll was a target for the Premier during the Windsor municipal election campaign, but he, too, will stay close to Mr. Hepburn in the House.

Roland Patterson, Grey North member, is to become Deputy Speaker, it was announced. Mr. Patterson succeeds James Clark, Windsor-Sandwich member, who becomes Speaker in succession to Hon. Norman Hipel, now Labor Minister.

Girl Leaves Home

FORT ERIE, Ont., Mar. 1—(CP).—Police conducted an international search to-day for 16-year-old Louise Catherine Williams of Alden, N.Y., who disappeared from her home yesterday with a birth certificate belonging to an elder sister. A pair of black suede high-heeled shoes found on the Peace Bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie led police to believe she may have attempted to cross into Canada.

Boston Trolley Runs Wild Kills 6, Hurts 40

BOSTON, March 1 (AP) — A broken brake part, which "never occurred before," today was blamed by Boston Elevated Company officials as the cause of the trolley smashup which killed six persons and injured nearly two score others yesterday in this city's worst street car accident since 1916.

"An inspection of the car showed that a slide valve spring in the air brake relay valve had broken," said Edward Dana, president and general manager of the company. "This has never occurred before."

The trolley car suddenly went out of control on a downhill grade in the Dorchester section of the city, near the Franklin Park Zoo, careened off the track, sped across a broad intersection and halted, virtually demolished against a tree.

The six persons killed, all residents of greater Boston, were standing in the car's vestibule, police investigators said. Four of them were thrown out and crushed under the car. Another was smashed against the tree.

Hastily established first aid stations treated more than a score of passengers for minor hurts and 11 others were held in hospitals for treatment of more serious injuries.

Heartsick over the tragedy, the car operator, Edward Hanley, 57, who had been in the service 22 years, was released in $2,000 bail after being booked on a technical manslaughter charge. Dana absolved him of blame.

Cardinals Begin Vote Ceremony

VATICAN CITY, March 1.—(AP)—The 62 cardinals met in solemn conclave today to begin the elaborate proces sof electing a new pope, the spiritual head of 331,500,000 Catholics.

Most of the princes of the church already were within the conclave quarters when William Cardinal O'Connell of Boston, the last to arrive, reached Rome a little more than an hour before the opening of the conclave. He and two South American cardinals joined them, completing the gathering.

It was the first time in many years that the entire conclave was present for a conclave.

The sun breaking through a sudden shower encircled the Vatican with a rainbow as the cardinals went into conclave. Before the doors were locked, attendants rushed the last pieces of baggage and supplies for their lenten meal into the conclave quarters.

Ceremonies of the opening were expected to last until 6 p.m. (noon E.S.T.) when the last outer door was to be sealed. Only ceremonies preliminary to the voting were performed. The cardinals and their conclavists swore the oath of secrecy and were locked up in a wing of the Vatican, after saying prayers to the Holy Ghost for guidance. The actual voting begins tomorrow.

Friend Of Kidnapped Boy's Father Admits Job-Evening Up Bad Tips

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—A friend of George Katz, Brooklyn racetrack bookmaker who acted as intermediary in the ransoming of Katz's four-year-old son was held by police today as one of two men who kipnapped the boy February 20.

Captain Frank Bals said that Charles Mitchell, 31, the intermediary and Sol Schwartz, 29, employed with him in the shipping department of a lithographing firm had confessed the kidnapping.

Locked up for further questioning was Mrs. Nellie Resnick, 31, Schwartz's sister, in whose apartment authorities said the boy Michael was held.

The two men, Capt. Bals said, told him they abducted Michael in an attempt to recoup $6,000 lost in racing bets placed in the last year with the father George Katz.

The boy, seized a week ago Monday, was released within two hours after payment by the father of only $180 of a $7,000 ransom demand. Mitchell earns $60 a week as a shipping foreman, police said and Schwartz, a shipping clerk under him, $45.

Inspector Michael McDermott said Mitchell and Schwartz would be charged with kidnapping and Mrs. Resnick would be held as an accessory for withholding information from police.

Tory Caucus Decides Globe Ballots Have a Good Purpose

Ottawa, Mar. 1 (CP).

A STATEMENT issued at the conclusion of the weekly caucus of Conservative members of Parliament to-day said "the opinion was expressed" that "so-called ballots" circulated by the Toronto Globe and Mail "have a good purpose in arousing public interest in the political problems of Canada and that their circulation is to be commended and not condemned."

The statement said that reference was made in the caucus to the attack on George McCullagh, publisher of the Globe and Mail, "from the Liberal side of the House." (Last night J. A. Glen (Lib. Marquette) charged the publisher with transgressing the best traditions of journalism.)

The "ballots" call upon members of Parliament to co-operate for the common good.

Last Minute News Flashes

MYRTLE, Ont.—Working for 14 hours straight throughout the night, an auxiliary wrecking crew early today replaced on the rails the semi-weekly combination train and snow plow running on the C.N.R., spur line from Whitby to Port Perry. The combination freight and passenger train left Whitby yesterday afternoon with a snow plow in front, but was dertailed due to ice and snow on the line just north of Myrtle. No persons were injured.

TOKYO. — Leaders of the Japanese armed forces estimated today that it would cost 5,270,000,000 yen (currently $1,438,710,000) to continue the Japanese-Chinese conflict until March 31, 1940.

'Rat' Says Lad In Court Of Policeman Father Whose Tip Jailed Son As Bicycle Thief

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 1.—(CP)—Sequel to a crime wave perpetrated in Lincoln County in recent weeks by boys under 18 years of age was heard in Magistrate J. H. Campbell's police court today when seven youths appeared to be sentenced on breaking and entering charges. Terms ranging from two months to one year was imposed in six cases. The seventh was remanded until Friday for sentence.

William Kalls, 18, of Hamilton, jointly charged with Alf. Crapps, 17, of Hamilton, said Crapps father, a Toronto police officer, had betrayed the boys to the police in connection with the theft of two bicycles.

"We are at the mercy of the court and we are willing to take our sentence, but any father that wil squeal on his son is nothing but a rat," Kalls, standing in the prisoner's box, said.

"No matter what he does?" asked Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, K.C.

And Kalls said: 'Well, he could have got somebody else to lay the complaint."

Kalls and Crapps pleaded guilty to breaking and entering a garage and stealing two bicycles from W. R. Ibson of North Grimsby township. They were each sentenced to three months in the county jail.

"We got into Grimsby; we were up against it and we were hungry. Nobody knows what it's like to be out on the road and have no place to go," Kalls explained.

Ilsley Defends Two-Party Regime System

TORONTO, March 1.—(CP)—A contrast to suggestions of centralized government, Canadians today weighed the words of Hon. J. L. Ilsley, the Dominion's Minister of Revenue, that the country as a whole could be brought under a single governmental system only "by force ruthlessly exerted in the fascist style."

Mr. Ilsley told the young men's section of the Toronto Board of Trade last night he believed the individual provinces, particularly Quebec and the Maritimes, would not consent to sink their provincial identity in a unitary Canadian state.

The revenue minister defended the two-party system of government as the best for this country and warned that "we could have a one-party system if a sufficiently powerful group were able to establish it by force—it is only by violence that it could be established."

"If this country desired to get rid of party politics, working for party advantage, it could do so by submitting to the setting up of a dictatorship in Ottawa," said Mr. Ilsley. "Then provincial boundaries would be abolished, and all jurisdictions would be vested in the government, or more probably the head of the government."

Another Idea

Mr. Ilsley said that the alternative suggestion to central government was that certain provinces united. As member for Digby-Annapolis-Kings, a Nova Scotia federal riding, he was sure the maritimes would not, for a long time, consider union.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island would carry more influence in the Dominion as a unit, he thought, but stressed that "each of these provinces had a strong provincial consciousness. A long provincial history, a deep provincial pride."

He had heard much about leadership recently, the minister said. Only in a general way was this matter discussed. Mr. Ilsley commented that "leadership in the abstract had not merit—it is good or bad, depending on the direction it takes."

"There is no advantage in being led unless you are being led to a better place," continued Mr. Ilsley. "That has always been fairly obvious to rank and file Canadians. So they have always concerned themselves with polices of their leaders instead of the mere act or state of being taken by the hand and led."

Dominion Holds Back On Spanish Issue

OTTAWA, Mar. 1 — (CP). — The Dominion Government is waiting for more complete information before taking any action with regard to recognition of the insurgent Government in Spain, Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons yesterday.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. Leader, asked the Prime Minister what the position of the Dominion Government was on recognition and whether Canada would impress on the British Government and the League of Nations the need of obtaining from General Franco guarantees against reprisals on the conquered Loyalists.

Mr. Mackenzie King said he was "waiting further advices, but said the British Government had already asked Franco for guarantees of the safety of the defeated Government forces.

Most Constipation IN BIG BOWEL!

Why Take Upsetting Laxatives That Work Elsewhere in Bowel Tract?

Your intestinal tract is about 25 feet long, but most constipation occurs in the big bowel (marked X), right when body waste has travelled almost to the point where bowels should m-o-v-e.

So when you're constipated, draggy, headachy, it's only sensible to take a laxative that works where the waste has jammed; one that won't upset other parts of the bowels.

Doses like calomel do most of their work on the other end of the bowels, more than 20 feet away! Salts flush from end to end; may leave you weak and worn-out. Oils act chiefly on the small intestine.

To relieve constipation fast, make sure your laxative works first where the waste has piled up! That's the action you get from Chocolate Flavor Cascarets. They move waste those last few inches, bringing blessed relief overnight. They can do this because each tablet contains cascara, said to give nearest to natural action of any cathartic, which acts to cleanse the big bowel in 10 to 12 hours!

Try this sensible, pleasant form of relief. Get Chocolate Cascarets now. Each foil-wrapped tablet is a gentle, effective dose, and pleasant to take because the taste is that of fine milk chocolate. All druggists, or write Dept. P-3, "Cascarets," Windsor, Ont., for free sample.

Fog Victim

Lt. Norman M. Ostergren, was killed when, trapped in a dense fog, eight of a flight of 12 U.S. navy pursuit planes were wrecked during a routine training flight. A Brazilian navy officer, receiving regular training with the U.S. fliers, was also killed. Six student fliers escaped by bailing out in the darkness in their first parachute jump. The remaining four pilots landed their ships safely.

Truck Turns Over On Bancroft Road

Delivery of bread throughout the country surrounding Peterborough still bristled with difficulties today. Stocks Bread truck on the route to Bancroft upset this morning in the ruts near the village, turning completely over, but without damage. It was reported that the snow had been heavier in the northern area than around Peterborough.

The roads to Bensfort were completely blocked on Tuesday, and arrangements had to be made with farmers to project the deliveries in that area by horses and sleighs.

This afternoon it was learned that some of the roads in Cavan may not be open to motor traffic for the next month. Alderman Dutton said that recourse would have to be made to sleighs to continue deliveries in that section.

Stocks Bread failed to reach Harwood and that district south of Rice Lake on Monday, and the Northumberland-Durham county plow broke down on Tuesday somewhere around Plainville on the road from Cobourg. By the time it was repaired and the bread truck enabled to continue its trip it was six o'clock Tuesday evening when the first delivery of Stocks Bread reached Harwood since Saturday.

OBITUARY

GEORGE N. BELL.

A resident of Bridgenorth for more than fifty years, George Nelson Bell died suddenly this morning at the home of his son, Samuel B. Bell.

Mr. Bell was born in Vermont, and was in his eighty-seventh year. When he was nineteen he moved to Port Hope from the United States, later coming to Smith Township, where he had lived for the last fifty-five years, most of that time in Bridgenorth, where he had worked as a carpenter. For more than half a century Mr. Bell had been one of the best known residents of the hamlet on Chemong Lake, with many friends in the city and elsewhere in the county. His death this morning was caused by a sudden heart attack.

The surviving members of his family are two daughters, Mrs. Norman Nelson of Lemsford, Sask., and Mrs. Ralph Sutton of Sceptre, Sask., and one son, Samuel B. Bell, of Bridgenorth. His wife predeceased him in 1934.

The funeral will take place on Friday, March 3, at 2 p.m., from the home of Mr. Bell's son, to Bridgenorth Cemetery. Rev. H. Wilkinson of Bridgenorth United Church, of which Mr. Bell was a member, will conduct the service.

Still Hale At 90

BRANTFORD, Ont., March 1 — (CP).—If all men were like Samuel S. Moyer, the lot of a physician would be unfortunate.

Moyer, who moved here from Kitchener a year ago, celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary to-day, as hale and as hearty as ever. One of his proudest boasts is that he never has required the services of a physician. Moyer's hobby is writing, at which he spends considerable time.

"Jitterbug" Mouse Is Trapped In Radio Mysterious Sounds Came From Box

This is the story of the sad end of what might be described as a jitterbug mouse. For some time a south end resident has been perplexed by mysterious sounds coming from the interior of his radio. He suspected mice and yet several examinations of the machine failed to reveal the presence of the disturber. When however he found a bit of dog biscut in the radio cabinet and removed it only to find it mysteriously returned to the radio again, he made another examination of the machien and decided to set a trap. This morning he found securely caught, a very dead mouse. The little animal, evidently a music lover had been making his home in the chassis of the radio and even the loudest blasts of Cab Calloway's orchestra had failed to drive him out. A jitterbug at heart, he wanted to be right in there where the swing originated—and it finally got him.

Cordova School Has Been Closed

CORDOVA, March 1.—The public school was shut down on Friday owing to the rapid spread of chicken pox, mumps, whooping cough, and several skin diseases. Two Havelock doctors were at the school the first part of the week and examined most of the pupils, finding that conditions were in bad state. Some of the pupils are very sick and may take considerable time to fully recover.

Cordova-Marmora roads were badly blocked on Friday and Saturday and the mail failed to get through. Also the butter and bread shortage was getting to be uncomfortably felt. But Sunday afternoon the snowplow made it through fairly early although a party of shovelers were along to help through bad spots. Snow banks in places were getting impossible to get through even with horses. Side roads off Marmora-Cordova highway are blocked and will be for some time.

MORE ABOUT—

Duncan McIntyre

of oxen for twenty years and for many kinds of work he still prefers oxen to horses.

Always Worked Hard

"I always had to work hard. In those days men worked far harder than they do today," he said. He lived in a log cabin that was sturdily but far from luxuriously built. There were no feather beds in the house, indeed there were no mattresses of any kind. And there was no easy market for the farm products. They had to be drawn as far away as Cobourg. And in winter, when farm work became slack, he used to go to the bush with logging companies to earn a little extra.

Duncan McIntyre comes of good Scottish stock. His father and mother both came out from Perthshire, Scotland, to settle in Canada. Both their families came out on the same boat, but Peter McIntyre and Margaret Comrie were not married at that time. He was a youth of eighteen, she a baby of two years. But their parents settled in Otonabee and she grew up and became his wife. Duncan McIntyre's father was a shoemaker by trade—a trade he had learned in Perthshire from the man who later became his father-in-law. Then later he took up farming on the 8th Concession of Otonabee, and that farm is still in the hands of a McIntyre, great-grandson of the man who cleared the land, after more than a hundred years.

Still Active

Duncan McIntyre grew up on that farm, operated it for himself for more than 30 years, then turned it over to his son and worked for him. He moved to Peterborough nine years ago. Still extremely active, he goes for long walks each day, and the only signs of old age that are on him are eyesight that is fading a very little, hearing that is becoming just a little dulled, though neither appreciably so.

The old man has never travelled a great deal, he said today, preferring to stay around his home. He has never been outside Ontario, can count easily the times he has been on trips to Toronto and Guelph.

He finds modern living too fast for enjoyment of life. For moving pictures he has no use, has never seen one, and has no inclination to do so. On them he blames increased crime, saying they teach youngsters how to rob and kill, hold men of ill-repute in high esteem. "I never had much time for pleasures," he said. "I've been to a couple of circuses and that's about all."

Nor did he ever find much time to be sick. About the worst illness he could recall was when he got into some poison ivy. "With some people that keeps coming back, but it never did with me."

He had one son, Archie McIntyre, who died many years ago, as did Duncan's wife. In his own family were four boys and six girls, only one of whom besides himself still survives. She is a sister, Mrs. John Robinson of Otonabee.

King And Queen To Miss Muskoka Lakes Stop During Tour

Bracebridge, Ont., Mar. 1 (CP)

MUNICIPAL authorities said today they had been advised by H. L. Keenleyside, secretary of the inter-departmental committee at Ottawa, that the King and Queen will not visit the Muskoka Lakes district during their Canadian tour next summer. The original plan called for a brief stop at Muskoka Lakes on June 6, but under the new arrangements the party will pass through South Parry to Washago, to Beaverton and Zephyr enroute from Sudbury to Toronto.

Ratepayers To Hear Captain Innes

A meeting of interest to taxpayers of both the city and county will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall next Monday night, with Captain Innes of Toronto, chairman of the executive committee of the Taxpayers' Association of Canada, as the guest speaker. This meeting has been arranged by the North Monoghan Ratepayers' Association, of which H. B. Rye is president. It is an enterprise of the North Monaghan members, but it is likely to bring out a considerable attendance from the city. Local interest was recently indicated by a letter written by F. T. Tuggey and published in the Examiner, and also by many expressions of agreement and approval which Mr. Tuggey told the Examiner he had received from many citizens.

Demand of property owners for relief from the burden of taxes that has been piled on to property during the last twenty years or more has not yet become vocal in Peterborough, Mr. Tuggey said, but it is along the same desire for redress that has been declared at ratepayers' meetings in Toronto, Kitchener, Belleville and elsewhere in Ontario.

well above freezing. A light, westerly wind assisted in drying the streets. Similar conditions were reported from Western Ontario centres.

The improved weather conditions were particularly noticeable in western Canada. Manitoba, which had a 15-inch snowfall in February, double the normal fall for that month, enjoyed temperatures of seven above zero. Last month was the coldest February in that province, with the exception of 1936, when 50-below-zero weather was common, since 1884.

Similar reports came from Regina, Saskatoon and other Saskatchewan centres. Prince Albert, in the north, had a reading of five below zero but that was comparatively mild after the 20-below-recording during the night. It was 12 above at Regina and 10 above at Saskatoon.

King And Queen Will Make 8 Appearances While Visiting In Canadian Capital

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP). — The King and Queen will appear before the public eight times during their four-day stay in Ottawa next May, according to tentative plans made public last night by Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

The plan may be changed as it has not yet been submitted to Their Majesties. It calls for them to leave their train at 11 a.m. on May 17, a short distance outside the southwestern limits of the city and ride through the city on the driveway system to Rideau Hall, residence of the Governor-General. That evening they will attend a state dinner there.

On May 18 His Majesty will dedicate the national war memorial in the afternoon and attend a parliamentary dinner with the Queen at the Chateau Laurier Hotel at night. On their way back to Rideau Hall they will stop at Nepean Point to look west to Parliament Hill where a fireworks display will be staged.

Next day the Queen will lay the corner-stone of the new Supreme Court building, driving through part of the city to the site of the structure just west of Parliament Hill. That afternoon they will visit the Senate and the House of Commons, both of which will have adjourned for the month of the Royal visit.

New Mission Be Opened By Ben Wilson

The happiness of helping men and women to reform their lives and make a new start in the world is glowing and vital spiritual possession that emanates from the personality of Ben Wilson, the former Peterborough boy who founded Ben Wilson's Mission in Toronto. He was in the city to-day on his way to Norwood to dedicate to-night another mission that materially represents the gratitude of one of the men Mr. Wilson helped to set on his feet and get going again in the right direction.

"We placed 319 men and women last year in jobs throughout the province," Mr. Wilson told the Examiner to-day. "A great deal of my work is done in the prisons of Ontario, and also among dope addicts and others who can be described as down-and-outers, close to despair. Men released from prisons find a welcome at our Mission in Toronto. We have rooms and meals for them, baths, new clothing, everything to help them face the world again. And they can't pay us a cent for it. People who are interested in my work make contributions of money, and of course we have the collections from our Mission services. The Mission auditorium accommodates four hundred persons."

Religious Institution.

The Ben Wilson Mission is essentially a religious institution, its fruits reflected by the testimonial of the new Mission that is to be opened in Norwood to-night. The man who has been largely instrumental in its present development was "down and out" in Toronto, no work, no money, and even his hope in life was just about gone. He had other serious problems that eventually vanished as a result of the helpful ministrations of Ben Wilson, whose reward comes from the growth of that seed of faith and courage now transplanted in Norwood.

It is probably safe to say that Ben Wilson wouldn't go back to the oil company he once worked for if they gave him the whole set up, oil wells, refineries, and so on. In his prison work he has met a number of Peterborough men, and so his mission in life goes on among convicts, a harsh word, dope addicts and other forms of human debasement. He told of a woman who had been addicted to drugs for thirty years, who had been saved at the Mission, and now had cast off the habit.

Mr. Wilson was a dinner guest of his cousin, Miss Ethel Wilson, Murray Street.

5,000 Japs Fight Fire In Powder Magazine

OSAKA, Japan, March 1—(AP).—The explosion of a military powder magazine in suburban Hirakata spread fire through the district today and led army officials to mass 5,000 troops, firefighters and relief workers in the neighborhood.

The number of casualties was not immediately learned. Extent of the disaster seemed indicated by the fact the fire trucks and special police were brought from Kyoto, 20 miles from Osaka. Osaka, Japan's second largest city is 330 miles west of Tokyo.

Windows for miles around were broken by force of the blast. Telephone and telegraph lines were disrupted. Fire swept quickly through buildings and warehouses of the suburb. The cause was not at once determined.

Charge Is Reduced In Fatal Shove

SHERBROOKE, Que., March 1—(CP).—A charge of murder reduced by a King's bench jury which convicted him of grievous assault, 66-year-old John Henry Pope was in jail here today awaiting sentence for the "shove" physicians said brought about his wife's death after a domestic altercation.

Calm but obviously relieved by the verdict, the miner from Eustis, Que., will be sentenced at the end of the Assize Court's current term. The two-day trial ended yesterday after Pope, last of three defence witnesses, took the stand to testify.

"She had been nagging me all during breakfast," said the accused, describing the fatal quarrel last October. "I suddenly lost my temper, jumped from the table and gave her a shove. She fell and struck the woodbox. She wouldn't have fallen if her legs had been strong."

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Mar. 1 — (C.P.). — Higher values at Liverpool and the presence of only light offerings gave Winnipeg wheat futures prices a firm trend to-day. Final quotations were ⅛ to ¼ cent higher, with May at 62⅜, July 63⅛, and October 63½ cents.

Operations moved quietly throughout the sessions as export houses and local traders made minor purchases. Export sales of Canadian wheat were expected to reach 150,000 bushels, most of which was cleared from Vancouver.

Market Review

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 1—(CP)—Western oil issues registered a moderate advance in the last hour today after showing a small net decline at noon. Old shares also firmed on a light puick-up in the trade, while base metal and the industrial groups held steady to strong. The weight of changes was on the up side at the close. A regate turnover was around 400,000shares.

Volume slumped off to 237,000 shares in the first three hours and prices weakened slightly in the early afternoon after both mining groups and the industrials had shown minor index gains at noon. Western oils posted a small decline.

Utility, steel, paper and senior oil and Perron sold off. Changes were narrow in the base metals.

Home Oil backed up to 2.51 and shares boarded more gains than losses and foods, banks and building issues held steady.

Trading appeared mainly in the gold section. Wright-Hargreaves, Teck Hughes and Sigma were stronger and Hard Rock, Preston Calgary-Edmonton wa soff to 2.23. Anglo-Canadian and Okalta posted minor gains.

WALL STREET CLOSE.

NEW YORK, March 1—(AP). — Aviation shares went into a downspin to-day as the stock market turned hesitant after its climb the last week.

Losses in some aircraft shares amounted to more than a point near the final hour and the list generally was uneven. Steel shares, in the vanguard of the preceding advance, ran into selling from traders who were tempted to cash profits while waiting for more signs of spring business improvement.

Turnover was about 700,000 shares.

NORWOOD MAN CHARGED

Thomas Mullins, agent, of Norwood was charged in police court this morning with the illegal possession of liquor and the case at the request of the crown was adjourned until March 9, by consent. The charge was laid by Provincial Constable Don. Carruther. D. S. Balfour appeared for the accused.

Mrs. J. Spencer Hostess To Group F

Mrs. James Spencer, Stewart Street, was hostess on Tuesday evening when a meeting of Group F of the Missionary Society of George Street United Church was held with the leader, Mrs. A. F. Lane, presiding.

The meeting opened with a hymn and the Lord's Prayer in unison, and the roll call was answered by a gem on flowers of tht Bible. Mrs. Coleman Elliott gave the Scripture reading, and prayer was led by Mrs. W. H. Morton.

Plans were made for sponsoring a play the latter part of March. A short talk on India was given by Mrs. H. S. Powers, and Mrs. C. Elliott spoke on Temperance.

Mrs. H. Ballard was guest speaker of the evening, and took for her subject the greatest thing in the world, "Love," based on the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians, in which the Apostle Paul explains that love is made up of the following nine elements: Patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courtesy, unselfishness, good temper, guilelessness, sincerity. Answering the question, why do we love? Mrs. Ballard explained that it is because God first loved us. When we look at Jesus, we see His perfect character and life, and the great sacrifice made for us on Calvary, which is the essence of love. The final test of love, she said, is not in what we have done, believed, or achieved, but in how we discharge the common charities of life. Mrs. Ballard's talk was followed by the hymn "Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me."

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. A. I. Brown. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Spencer and her committee. A vote of thanks to the hostess and those taking part in the program was made by Mrs. J. W. Hales and Mrs. E. Brown.

George Street Y.P.U. Hear Interesting Address

"Little Bits of This and Little Bits of That" was the subject of a most interesting address given by Mr. C. N. Hall before about seventy young people at the George Street Y.P.U. meeting on Tuesday evening. The speaker used as the basis of his talk selections of prose and poetry which were both pohliosophical and humorous.

The program was in charge of the Christian Culture group, led by Miss Betty O'Brien, who acted as chairman. A short sing-song, with Wallie Crouter as song leader, opened the meeting. Miss Mary Jane Wharry delighted those present with two wel-rendered violin solos.

The president, Mrs. C. R. Wasson, took the chair during the brief business session, and announced the presentation of a religious drama, "The Burden Bearers," to be presented by the Y.P.U. on Good Friday evening in George Street Church.

The recreation period was conduced by Miss Loretta McDougall. Others taking part in the meeting included Messrs. Henry Winslow, Gordon Thompson, George Bouckes and Charlie Munro. The meeting closed with singing "Blest be the Tie that Binds."

Redden—Lewis

TRENT RIVER, March 1—A quiet wedding took place on Saturday, February 18, at Centre Street United church parsonage, Oshawa, when Muriel Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Redden, of Stanwood, became the bride of Percy Lewis, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lewis, of Trent River, with Rev. S. A. Kemp (formerly of Havelock and Trent River) officiating.

The bride wore navy blue triple sheer with matching accessories. The bride and groom were unattended.

Following the ceremony the happy couple left for a short motor trip to Toronto and points west, the bride wore a navy blue fur trimmed coat. Upon their return they took up residence on the Hutchinson farm, Belmont township.

We Noticed

....That orange blossoms seem to have gone out of style. Recent weddings would indicate it, anyway, since almost everything is used as the bride's headdress except the traditional flowers.

✧ ✧ ✧

....Two large water lilies made of pearly sheils was worn by a recent English bride—other smart brides have appeared this season with such head attire as a golden coronet, a jewelled crown with blue ostrich feathers waving about it, a iara of skeleon leaves edged wih gold.

✧ ✧ ✧

... One prominent London bride appeared in a headdress of parma violetes and gentians—so here's a tip, you girls who plan to step to the altar in the fragrant spring time, why not be different, too?

Stuffed Shoulder of Yearling Lamb.

The average price for this cut of yearling lamb is 13 to 15 cents this week and many housewives will be glad to purchase this economical cut.

Have the butcher remove the shoulder blade. Make stuffing to fill the cavity when bone is removed.

Stuffing.—One and one-half cups soft crumbs, 2 slices bacon chopped finely, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 1 tablespoon finely grated onion, 1 teaspoon salt. This stuffing is unusual but very appropriate for lamb. Skewer meat together and roast at 450 deg. Fahr. for 10 minutes—reducing heat to 325 for remainder of time—give lamb 2 to 2½ hours in all. It must not be rare or it may be slightly tough. A nice surface for the roast is to rub it with butter, sprinkle with lemon juice and salt and pepper. Do not add water to pan—but baste two or three times with drippings in pan.

UNIQUE LIBEL CASE

LONDON—(CP).—Libel suit of a mother of two children, against a newspaper which she claimed hinted her husband was not married, was dismissed.

Fashions

There is nothing more charming than a soft dressmaker bolero jacket suit for spring of navy blue sheer woolen. A beguiling and feminine touch is the contrasting navy and white printed crepe top. Accent the becoming vee neck with a colorful corsage flower or a sparkling jeweled clip. It's so comfortable under your coat right now....and also nice for southern wear. The model also includes the tied neckline version, which is smart of print crepe silk; with or without the jacket.

Style No. 2847 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 39-inch material with 1⅜ yards of 35-inch contrasting.

Question—Would it be possible for you to print on your interesting page a recipe for Sweet Potato Pie? The pie I have in mind contains sweet potatoes and brandy. Thanking you,
MRS. J. C. McD.

Answer—Thank you for your kind letter.

Sweet Potato Pie

Peel, boil and mash through a sieve 4 or 5 medium-sized sweet potatoes. Cream together ¼ cup butter and ½ cup sugar, adding the well beaten yolks of three eggs, and the juice and grated rind of one lemon (or replace the lemon with two tablespoons brandy), and ¼ teaspoon cinnamon.

Add the potato pulp and one cup whole milk—or preferably one cup milk and cream mixed—and fold the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs in last. Pour filling into pastry lined pie plate. Have oven temperature at 400 deg. Fahr., and stand pie on bottom grate so that crust bakes quickly before it has time to soak. After 10 minutes raise pie to centre of oven and reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr.—bake about 45 minutes in all.

We hope this is the recipe you want and that we can help you again.

Question—Would you kindly give me the recipe for making English pork pies (Cambridge style) through your columns. Thanking you for your trouble, E.M.K.J.

Answer—Not long ago we printed a recipe for Melton Mowbray Pork Pies—but we have a second method for them which I have printed below—also one for Small Pork Pies (Devonshire Style). I cannot locate one that is described as Cambridge Style.

Pork Pie

Put 2½ lbs. bread flour in a bread pan. Add ½ lb. best lard to ¾ pint cold water and put over low heat until it boils. Make a depression in centre of flour and pour the hot flour and lard mixture in slowly while mixing with the hand. When well kneaded with the hands roll out into a sheet about ¼-inch thick. Line individual pie tins with the paste. The filling consists of lean raw pork cut into dice, seasoned well with salt and pepper and sage, covered with just enough water to immerse and brought to boiling point and boiled for 20 or 25 minutes. Fill into pies, cover with rounds of the dough, pinching the edges together well. Bake 1½ hours at 325 deg. Fahr.

Small Pork Pies

(Devonshire Style)

Chop finely ¼ pound beef suet, and mix it well with an equal quantity of butter. Rub both of these into 1 lb. of bread flour and stand over low heat until the butter and suet are melted and flour is very hot. With hands knead together into a stiff paste, then cover and keep warm while you make the filling.

Cut into small pieces about 2 lbs. pork from the neck and season well with salt and pepper and sage, adding just enough water to moisten it, and cook slowly for 25 minutes.

The paste must then be divided into as many rounds as you wish to have pies—and "built up" to form sides. This is quite a trick — the fist is put into the middle of the piece of dough and worked in a circular movement to form a hollow —while the left hand lifts the edges up around the hand. (The process should been seen to be properly copied.) When the pie is "raised" the meat is put into it, a round of paste is laid on top—the edges pinched together. Bake in oven of 325 deg. Fahr, for about 1 to 1½ hours.

We hope that from one of these recipes youcan make what you are after and that we can help you again.

Question—I enjoy your cookery page very much. I would love to bake "Em's Dark Fruit Cake". What do you mean by steam? I have a small roasting pan without a rack. Could I bake this in a slow oven? If so for how long? Do I have to put the cake away to ripen—how is the best way? I was told to put whiskey over the cake when done—does that improve the flavor. I have never baked a fruit cake before.
MRS. S. S.

Answer—Thank you foryour letter. I hope you have patience and will be willing to make the Plain Fruit cake I have given below before attempting to make Emem's Dark Fruit Cake. It is very rich and the ingredients would cost more—consequently it is not a good cake for an inexperienced fruit cake maker to start with.

Plain Fruit Cake

One cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 3½ cups flour, 1 cup milk, 4 eggs, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon cloves, 2 lbs. raisins (or 1 lb. raisins, ½ lb. mixed peel), 1 lb. clean currants. Wash the currants and raisins, and add 1 cup boiling water to them and let stand while you are mixing the cake. Cream the butter, add the sugar while creaming, then add the eggs which have been well beaten beforehand—beat these three ingredients for five minutes when mixed. Then sift together the flour and soda and spices, and add them alternately with the milk. Add the fruit last. Pour into greased and paper lined loaf tins (the paper should be heavy brown paper cut to the shapeof the tins and greased after fitting in) and steam by standing in roasting pan containing about ½ inch of hot water—covered for two hours—then lift from roaster and bake 1 hour at 300 deg. Fahr.

Emem's dark fruit cake would be steamed in the same way—time for steaming it is contained in the recipe.

It is best to let fruit cake "ripen" for a month before using.

If a fruit cake is dry whisky or brandy is sometimes poured over it to make it moist and to give it flavor—it also helps it to keep well.

You May Not Think You Have The Ideal Wife When The Real Problems Of Marriage Become Exacting, But After All She Usually Is Worth Her Weight In Gold.

YOUR marriage has not turned out to be the love idyl that you expected it to be. You are disappointed and disillusioned and you have joined the lodge of I-wonder-what-made-me-do-it husbands. Well, son, there never was a marriage yet where the show came up to the advance notices. Nor has there ever yet been a wife who was just what her husband wanted her to be. The only perfect wife is the one you did not marry.

The woman you married is getting along toward middle age. She is losing her looks. She is getting a little stout. Her complexion is going and her hair getting gray. Sometimes after she has done a hard day's work and been up all night with a sick child and has on a bungalow apron she is positively homely. You think you must have been blind, or drunk, or doped, or something when you picked her out from all the other women in the world to sit across the breakfast table from you the balance of your life.

The only woman who never loses her beauty and stays glamorous to the end is the woman you didn't marry. She never grows old. She never loses her figure and turns fat or scrawny on her husband. She never loses her schoolgirl complexion or the crimp in her finger waves. She can do the family wash without losing the red polish on her nails. Cook a seven-course dinner without smelling of the kitchen. And she is always dressed in fluttering pink chiffon and looks like something out of a fashion magazine.

The woman you married is a good cook and manager. What she can get out of a dollar entitles her to rank among the major magicians. Every night you sit down to a dinner that is a triumph of the culinary art. But as a companion she is a total loss. In the first month after marriage she ran through her whole conversational repertoire and she hasn't had a new idea or heard a fresh story since. Or perhaps you married a college graduate who is brilliant and scintillating and who keeps you entertained and amused, but who throws half you earn in the garbage can. She can turn an epigram, but can't make a biscuit that isn't a menace to life.

It is the woman you didn't marry who would feed your soul as well as your body; who would be Mary Ann in the kitchen and Aspasia in the parlor; who would season up everyday living with her wit and make it gay and thrilling, just as she turned a stew into a ragout by throwing in plenty of paprika.

The woman you married is always harassing you about money until it seems to you that marriage is just one bill after another. It is money for rent, for fuel, for light, for food, for new clothes, for new shoes. For the dentist and the doctor, for beauty shops, for schools, for a million and one things that a bachelor never heard of. There is nothing about marriage that is such a surprise to a man as what it costs, and somehow he feels that his wife is to blame for it.

Anyway, he is sure that he woman he didn't marry wouldn't have introduced this sordid commercial note into their perfect union. She wouldn't always be reminding him that the coal bill was due. Or that she positively didn't have a rag to wear and must have a new dress, and the oculist said Mary must have glasses. She would somehow just have conjured good meals out of the air and grown feathers instead of sweaters on the children. And you two would have been able to spend your time billing and cooing instead of standing off the bill collectors.

The woman you married has a lot of funny, fussy, feminine ways that get on your nerves. She wont screw the cap on the tooth-paste tube. She is never ready to go anywhere on time. She is naggy and bossy. She argues with you and contradicts you and sets up her opinion in opposition to yours. She doesn't like the things you do. She wants to go to symphony concerts, while you consider them something left over from the Inquisition. She not only has the last word in all family discussions, but most of the others. In short, she is a human being.

The only wife who is always sweet and amiable and smiling, who always yes-yeses her husband and agrees with him on every subject, who conforms to all of his ways and puts up with all of his crankiness and peculiarities and makes him think she likes them is the one he didn't marry.

Of course, there is no such person as the woman who is the kind of a wife a man would like to have, but it is a comfort in times of stress to think of her.

Do You Know?

That peroxide is useful for tidying up the cuticle around the nails? A scrap of cotton wool wrapped around the orange stick and dipped in the peroxide will clean away the dead skin.

✧ ✧ ✧

A good whitening treatment for a coarse and sallow complexion is to take a handful of oatmeal, mix with a little milk and massage the skin well with it? The brisker the rubbing the sooner you will see your skin show a decided improvement.

✧ ✧ ✧

Oatmeal cream can easily be made at home? Melt four ounces of lanoline, and one dessertspoon of boiling water, stir well until nearly cold, then sift in about one and a half dessertspoons of fine oatmeal. If this is rubbed into the hands, it will quickly relieve all signs of roughness.

Whatever Soup you make or buy

IF BABY IS CROSS FIND OUT WHY

HEALTHY BABIES are not cross. Your baby should not be cross. If he is, then something in his little system is "out of order". Probably Baby's Own Tablets can promptly "put it right". Mrs. H——, of Fenelon Falls, had the experience. She writes: "My little girl was irritable, feverish and sometimes sick at her stomach—what a relief it was, after giving her Baby's Own Tablets, to see how much better she was."

No matter how delicate your baby may be, these little sweet-tasting tablets cannot harm him. Easy to take. Promptly effective in clearing up simple fevers, diarrhoea, colds, constipation, simple croup, colic, teething troubles and other minor ills.

Never be without a full box of Baby's Own Tablets. Sickness so often strikes in the night. 25 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

For Quick Cough Relief, Try This Home Mixture

Splendid Results. Saves Money. Easily Mixed.

You'll never know how quickly and easily you can overcome a bad winter cough, until you try this well known recipe. It gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money and you'll find it very pleasant and dependable, for real relief.

Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed—it's no trouble at all. Then put 2½ ounces of Pinex (obtained from any druggist) into a 16 oz. bottle. Add your syrup and you have 16 ounces of medicine that will surprise you by its quick action. It never spoils, lasts a family a long time, and tastes fine—children love it.

This home mixture takes right hold of a severe cough. For real results, you'll say it's splendid. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and quickly eases soreness and difficult breathing.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine, in concentrated form, well known for its soothing effect on throat membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you perfectly.

Do This If You're NERVOUS

Don't take chances on products you know nothing about or rely on temporary relief when there's need of a good general system tonic like time-proven Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women from wholesome herbs and roots.

Let Pinkham's Compound help build up more physical resistance and thus aid in calming jangly nerves, lessen distress from female functional disorders and make life worth living.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with Pinkham's—over 1,000,000 women have written in reporting glorious benefits—it MUST BE GOOD!

Where Farming Is Easier

When Premier Hepburn was in New Zealand he took occasion to visit the state agricultural farm at Auckland, being there while milking operations were going on. Being a farmer himself he would recognize the difference in methods. He would know that at this time of year the Ontario farmer would have his dairy cattle in the barn, and they would all be fed from stores put away for winter feeding. He would know it would be several months yet before pasture came to the assistance of the farmer in this country.

Possibly that is what caused him to remark to a reporter of the St. Thomas Times-Journal that "The cows are driven into a shed and milked six at a time with milking machines. There are no large barns and no winter feeding and care of the cattle. I really believe that with conditions right a New Zealand dairy farmer could produce butter at ten cents a pound and make money."

We doubt whether there would be much of a living in it in our country with butter under the 30-cent mark, or three times the figure mentioned by Mr. Hepburn for New Zealand. New Zealand makes more butter than it needs for home use and exports to the British market. In Canada we do the same thing, and we also desire to export as much as possible to the same British market. Mr. Hepburn's observations may provide one of several explanations as to why it is difficult to sell more Canadian butter abroad. We are producing butter here under conditions which call for a far greater expenditure of time and money; we must have great barns to store food and to house the cows; we have to devote many acres for the purpose of providing feed for the late fall, winter and spring when there is no pasture. The dairy farmer in New Zealand works under conditions which are favorable to cheap production and the utmost in returns. He could probably undersell the Ontario farmer in the British butter market and still make money.

The Chief Speaks Again

Chief Dan Whetung of the Curve Lake Reserve has spoken once again. Several weeks ago he went into a huddle with himself and emerged with the prophecy that we would have much snow during the winter, and that was at a time when it looked as though snow was going to be scanty. The whole country has since learned how right was the Chief. Some of our larger cities have long since exhausted their appropriation for moving snow about from one place to another, and even the lesser ones are worried lest snow removal leave a hole in the civic purse.

We had been hoping for an early spring; we have seen the boys playing marbles; some one reported having seen a robin, and not long ago a small boy brought a snake to the office anxious to know if that meant spring was coming.

And now Chief Whetung speaks again. From Curve Lake Reserve comes the warning of much snow in March; the weather will not be very cold, but spring will be what he terms "draggy." We get the general meaning contained in that word, but the Chief ties a little comfort to the tail of his prediction by saying it will be found that crops have come through the winter weather in great condition.

So there you are. We hesitate to say the Chief is talking through his hat. We would like to utter some sort of an intelligent pooh-hooh but at the moment can think of nothing on which to base such statement. The Chief has established somewhat of a reputation because he spoke previously and 72 inches of snow—a full six feet—has been the answer to date. From his point of vantage out on the Reserve he may see things which are hidden to the bungler who makes his daily rounds in so artificial a thing as a city. We can chant something about "March winds, April flowers, bring forth May flowers," but that will not dissipate the prospect of March snow and much of it. So we can only fear that Chief is right and fervently hope he is wrong.

It Could Not Be Done

Social Credit and C.C.F. members of parliament from the West found common ground when it came to opposing the suggestion that the fixed price for wheat should be abandoned in favor of new schemes which amount to a bonus on acreage.

C. E. Johnston of Bow River wanted the fixed price for the best Western grain raised from 80 to 95 cents per bushel, and that price should be paid to the producer at his local elevator and not on the basis of being delivered at Fort William. The claim was that under the 80-cent price at Fort William many of the farmers were not receiving more than 60 cents for their wheat.

Among the arguments advanced was one which said it cost the farmers about $1.10 to produce a bushel of wheat in the Canadian West, and if there is truth in that claim then perhaps it is high time they turned their attention to growing something else.

If there were a fixed price of 95 cents at local elevators it would mean the government would have to undertake the movement of the grain from all these local elevators to Fort William, then move it to St. Lawrence points and finally put it on its long trip to Liverpool. The average cost of moving a bushel of wheat from the West to Liverpool or other British ports is not far removed from 35 cents. Add this to the fixed price of 95 cents at local elevators and Canada would be laying down wheat abroad on which it had expended $1.30 per bushel. The price at the moment in Liverpool is about 76 cents, so that would represent a loss of 54 cents per bushel, and if we desire to arrive at the point of bankruptcy speedily we know of no more effective way of accomplishing such purpose.

Loyalty Not The Issue

We have noticed in a number of places they have had discussions regarding the cost of arrangements for welcoming the King and Queen on their visit to Canada. It seems to be a ticklish question and some of those who have thought it advisable to keep expenses down to a point where they were within the ability of the people to pay have been rather sharply brought to task. It has been suggested that they lack loyalty and so on. We do not believe they do, because loyalty is something which is hard to measure by the size of a display. We believe neither King nor Queen would desire any municipality to make a display beyond the means of the people to pay for it. They are well informed people and probably are quite aware of the extent of our relief and unemployment problem.

The truth is there is much more of that sort of talk in the Old Land than there is in Canada. We recall listening to one of the many orators in Hyde Park, London, discussing what it cost to maintain the Royal family, and figuring they could get along all right without such a family. He was not inciting to violence in forwarding his theory and no person molested him.

Sir Stafford Cripps, one of the highest-paid lawyers at the bar in England, who has just been tossed overboard by the Labor party because he desired to include Communists and Liberals if they would enter, was another speaker who made some rather pointed remarks about the ceremonials. It was Cripps who after the festivities of crowning King George VI. referred to "coronation bunkum and bunting," a saying which would not be repeated in this country. But Sir Stafford Cripps has the faculty for saying what he likes and of those who come to his office and pay him some $150,000 a year for his services, he said: "They pay me big sums to get them out of their difficulties. I think the working class is more capable of ruling England than they are."

Those who are charged with arranging receptions and decorations for the visit of Their Majesties should feel at liberty to speak honestly and frankly. The question of loyalty should never be raised, and if it is it should be speedily recalled.

Something New To Face

British motorists have something new about which to worry, and briefly stated it comes from this cause: Mrs. Mary Smith, a widow of 49 years, while walking on the street in Manchester, saw a car and lorry collide. From the position of the cars it looked as though they were headed straight for her; she collapsed and required much attention for some time. Medical evidence was that her nervous system was permanently impaired. She was awarded damages of £2,500, which is not far removed from being $12,000. A few days before in the Appeal Court at London the lords justices allowed the appeal of relatives who saw a car crash into a funeral coach. They held that "mental shock was as much damage as a broken leg."

During argument it was submitted that if 100 people witnessed the same accident and all of them claimed damages for shock the effect would be disastrous. There was no reply made to that suggestion, but the two cases have at least established precedent for the claim that one who witnesses an accident can secure damages on the plea of shock or mental injury.

One of the London barristers suggested that if insurance companies did not cover this field in their policies, and if each driver involved in an accident was liable to be sued for having caused shock to a spectator, then "drivers undoubtedly face bankruptcy." He characterized the situation as "fantastic."

If such findings are possible in British courts we know of no good reason why they might not be attempted in our own country. We admit at first glance the suggestion may sound, as the English jurist said, "fantastic," but the stubborn fact is that two substantial awards have already been made in that very score.

So Easily Excited

It is quite easy to find a stick with which to stir up the waters. Easier than it ever was before. Beniamino Gigli, one of the great Italian tenors, now home in his native Italy, had something to say about the Metropolitan Opera in New York, and the sweet singer from Italy thought it was not what it used to be. Possibly it was getting a little hard up and was admitting talent because of its popular appeal rather than by reason of its musical worth.

From there Gigli turned toward the labor unions, saying they were in the hands of Jews and causing no end of trouble in United States, and it would surprise him not the least some day to hear some form of civil war had broken out in the republic.

After that was printed in papers in Rome the words were placed on the cable news for the day and the artistic world of United States was stirred to the point of reply. And the reply was just what might have been expected. They shot back that Gigli was a trifle disappointed because he had received a lukewarm reception on his last appearance. Then it was brought to the surface there had been some sort of a session in which the taxing authorities were trying to find just how much money the singing Benianimo had been making in New York, and there was the added suggestion that the process of prying him loose from a section of his earnings had caused the great tenor to break out in a rash.

And it all takes up space in the newspapers and it causes people to give utterance to all sorts of foolish sayings. And it is causing some reporters in Italy to go scampering about looking for Gigli so he may answer the replies of his critics in United States. Actually what Gigli thinks of the Metropolitan in New York or what American singers think of Gigli does not enter deeply into the lives or customs or the hopes or efforts of people in United States or Italy or elsewhere. If it indicates anything at all then it is evidence of the world's lack of good manners and common sense.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is reported that a local pastor desiring to refer to skiing on Sunday had thought of advertising it as "Backsliding on the Weekend."

Reports say people have noticed flocks of geese flying north. We have a feeling they may change their mind. Also their direction.

CHANGED

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My Uncle Eben used to snort, and utter such a quick retort, when people ailed a bit; he'd always fall back on the phrase, a man should so direct his ways, he'd always feel quite fit.

¶ When Uncle Eben ran his store, none ever beat him to the door, when came the morning time; he'd be there to unlock the place, and walked with calm and stately grace, with steel inside his spine.

¶ And if a clerk was ever off, and suffered with a cold or cough, then Eben stepped right in; he'd stay right till the closing hour, and shove in them some extra power, you could not slacken him.

¶ And uncle somehow scorned the men, who turned up limping now and then, were slow to get about; he used his brains, least so he said, and figured diet in his head, and thus escaped the gout.

¶ And uncle never felt the cold, to mention such a thing he'd scold, for one should not complain; for every day he turned up there, if heat or cold were in the air, or if it turned to rain.

¶ But uncle's mellowed quite a lot, on cold days likes to feel it hot, and he's a trifle thin; on days when he feels rather flat, he likes the folk who come and chat—and sympathize with him.

Deachman Says There Is A Cure

CHAPTER 3

THEN beyond that there is the great problem of so ordering our economy that we may no longer be faced with the problem of unemployment and all its concomitant destruction of life and hope.

Is that possible?

The answer is "yes, it can be done."

It cannot be done by governments—they may help but they cannot do it alone. It is a problem of industry but industry tries to run the government instead of facing its own tasks.

Progress in the solution of unemployment will come when industrial leaders who control the great industries of the nation recognize that only by a thorough reorganization of their own businesses can national confidence be restored. In this task labor must aid capital or the worker will continue, as he does now, to walk the streets in idleness.

Industry has triumphed in the fields of production. We have the capacity to produce. Industry and labor have succeeded in blocking the channels of exchange so that the purchasing power of the producer is restricted—the basis of industrial expansion is lost.

Man, with his machines has triumphed only to find that, by reason of his own selfishness, victory is ashes in his hands. All the technical and mechanical advance of the ages should have reduced the cost of production, lowered the selling price of goods, increased the purchasing power of the people.

Why is more machinery employed in factories? Because the application of improved machinery, though it throws men out of work, lowers the cost of production. But the manufacturer does not lower the selling price of his products. If he did there would be no decrease of employment. Sometimes he cannot. Labor in control may take for itself the full saving brought about by mechanical change, thus throwing into the discard, workers who have lost their jobs. In plain straight language, the problem of unemployment is up to industry and labor. They have created it—they alone can cure it. It is, and I say it quite frankly, beyond the power of government. Oh, for a combination of the wealth of a McCullagh and a Wright and the penetrating power of mind necessary to drive home these facts.

Manufactured products today are wholly out of line with the prices of basic products. This condition is driving people off the land — it is forcing farmers on relief. If reductions in costs, which are the natural fruit of improved methods, had been passed on to the consumer in a lower selling price of products instead of in higher wages and increased profits, there would have been no unemployment, no problem of government finance, no swelling tide of debt.

Great leaders in some fields of industry have realized these facts. Some of them today are attempting, to their eternal honor, to carry it out. They are the real leaders seeking new and ever expanding frontiers of effort. There are others who concentrate their lives on attacks upon governments, failing to realize that they are themselves responsible for the situation they condemn. The remedy lies with industry and labor. The men who have created the problem are best able to provide the cure.

If only the leaders of industry and labor could realize these facts we might indeed achieve what we desire, we would not be on the road to recovery, recovery would be an accomplished fact. Will industry speak? Will it act? Has it the driving power? If so, the nation marches forward—nothing can stop it—nothing except war.

ABOUT LENT.

Fourteen centuries ago Gregory the Great described Lent as the "spiritual tithing of the year," the thirty-six days of the season then observed being approximately a tenth of three hundred and sixty-five. The period is now forty days, but the significance of St. Gregory's phrase is not thereby impaired. In it the Christian is particularly stimulated to contemplate the Passion and by self-denial, prayer and good works to justify his espousal of the faith to which he gives allegiance.

Originally the word Lent meant no more than spring. Its ecclesiastical use has obscured this. The church in its approach to its greatest festival has endowed it with an import profoundly moving to all except those who reject the Nazarene, and even they are influenced in their daily lives by the social effects that result from the church observances. No person, regardless of his religious convictions or lack of conviction, can escape the impact of this annual manifestation of faith with its vale of sorrow leading to the cross of sacrifice and the crown of resurrection in glory.—(New York Sun)

SHINING EXAMPLE.

THERE ARE men in Canada who, today, after spending many years in public life, are bankrupt, or almost so. Had everything been true that some cynics say about politicans, they would be well-off. It will be recalled that not many years ago, the parliament of Canada voted a pension to a former finance minister of the Dominion. He had served his country so long and so faithfully, that he never had an opportunity to accumulate money for himself.—(Sydney Post-Record)

PENALTY ON SAVING.

One of the anomalies with which Sault assessment and tax collecting authorities are struggling these days is the fact that when a man repairs his home with Government aid under the Home Improvement Plan he is given three years' tax exemption on the improvements. But when he does the work at his own expense he receives no exemption. This seems like putting a penalty on private initiative.—Sault Ste. Marie Star.

Letter To The Editor

SURPLUS IS ADEQUATE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—I have read with interest your editorial in The Examiner of Friday the 24th, referring to the Peterborough City Trust, entitled "Our Reserves Can Shrink." I think you have used the word "reserve" wrongly. "Reserve" is something set aside or specially earmarked. It is excess earnings over the amount calculated the fund must earn and therefore is a surplus and actually exists in interest bearing investments which are conservatively taken in the Auditor's Report at par value.

Regarding re-investments, each year the City Trust receives monies from the city for sinking funds also interest on investments and amounts from investments that have matured throughout the year. From these sums the Trust must pay the city debentures that fall due that year and only what is left over must be re-invested. City Debentures maturing for the next eight years that have to be paid off will be quite heavy and leave comparatively very little new funds for re-investment. In fact take your own illustration where you refer to $51,000 Province of Ontario 6% bonds coming due in 1941. Instead of having to re-invest this amount, the Trust will require to sell possibly $80,000 more of their investments as they will be about this amount short of the sum required to pay City of Peterborough Debentures maturing in 1941. In addition to this there are three other years in which a total of more than half a million dollars of securities will have to be sold to make up the difference in the amounts received from the several sources and the sum required to pay maturing City of Peterborough Debentures, and this amount will pretty well offset any new investments to be made in the other intervening years. From these figures it will be seen that the loss from the re-investment of new funds is not a serious matter.

An estimate of future surplus earnings of the City Trust after making provision for loss on new investments and loss on excess interest on debentures maturing for the next twelve years shows a sum of practically $175,000.00 (which if correct and there is no evidence that it is not) the total surplus (if no sums have been rebated to the City in the next twelve years) would amount to more than half a million dollars.

The City Trust holds more than a million dollars worth of City of Peterborough Debentures earning all the way from 4½ to 6¼ per cent and maturing at intervals up to 1961. I think it is the contention of most of the members of the City Council that if a legal way is found to rebate the city a mill on the dollar each year that the present surplus would not be impaired and that with the very large reduction to be made in the debenture debt in the next few years, the security befind the debentures yet to mature is more than ample.

Yours truly,
R. M. GLOVER.

• Minerals In Eastern Counties

MAYOR JOHN T. HORAN, of Prescott, has an idea that if the proper authorities could be interested, much could be done to relieve unemployment in the eastern part of the province by bringing about greater development of the mineral resources which are known to exist in the rear parts of such counties as Leeds, Frontenac, Addington and Hastings, as well as in Lanark county, and which are for the most part lying untouched for want of sufficient enterprise and capital to exploit them.

After consulation with men who are familiar with those districts says The Brockville Recorder and Times, and who have gone over the field, he thinks that if prospectors took a greater interest in examining the region, they might find mineral occurrences of the greatest promise.

The matter is worthy of official investigation, at least, for there can be little doubt that scattered all over the rocky country which has been mentioned there are occurrences of minerals and metals which could be profitably utilized and at the same time furnish work for those in need of it.

We have had mines—and successful ones — in the County of Leeds, and the same is true of neighboring counties. They lapsed because of more spectacular discoveries elsewhere, but the minerals or metals are still there awaiting development and other counties less fortunately situated from the standpoint of mineral wealth would have utilized them long ago.

Eastern Ontario's mineral belt is deserving of more notice than that which it has received. The geological formations are similar to those in which important mining camps have been established, and the district may yet produce great wealth. Mayor Horan's proposals are entitled to the closest consideration of those authorities who have charge of our mineral development and also of those who must wrestle with our unemployment problem.

• Editor Says "It Simply Is not True"

SOME of the Ontario ministers who know better ought to take Hon. Gordon Conant quietly aside and tell him he is talking nonsense upon the subject of highway financing says Woodstock Sentinel-Review. Speaking before the Ontario Good Roads Association in Toronto, the Attorney-General is reported as saying:

"Motor vehicle traffic should alone bear the cost in future of construction of highways. The general taxpayers already are burdened sufficiently."

Mr. Conant further said the Chevrier Commission's report revealed that from November 1918 to March 1938 total expenditures for highways exceeded total revenues by $121,957,000, equal to an annual subsidy of $5,488,000 to motor users of the province above what they paid in license fees and gasoline taxes. The Attorney-General cited the railways as an example of over-construction to a "disastrous extent," and said "we must not repeat that experience with our highways."

The statement about a subsidy to motorists is simply not true, and there is no other way of describing it. If Mr. Conant knows anything about the matter at all, he must know that all capital expenditure upon highways of Ontario has been made from borrowed money, and we still owe it. The Chevrier Commission estimates the total at $212,000,000. That costs a lot of money annually in interest. But motor taxation has always supplied the money for that interest, as well as all the annual outlay for maintenance of highways, and provided a large surplus each year which could have been applied—but was not applied—to debt retirement. Although it has been quoted before in these columns, a concise statement by W. G. Robertson, general manager of the Ontario Motor League, will bear repetition:

"As a matter of fact, the motorists of the province have paid in gasoline taxes and in license fees a sufficient sum of money to build every foot of road on the provincial highway system in this province and to pay for its maintenance and leave a balance; and if all the moneys which have been paid into the treasury had been put out on roads and no moneys borrowed for the purpose of building roads, there would be today not one cent, of provincial highways debt, but on the other hand there would be a surplus. Motorists of this province have paid and paid in full, and there is a balance to their credit for the construction of the highways of this province and for the moneys paid out also by the government to assist the counties."

General taxpayers have contributed nothing—except the credit of the province—to highway construction or maintenance; consequently they have not been burdened, "sufficiently" or otherwise, any more than for the Hydro project.

The Attorney-General's allusion to the railways is interesting. If over-construction has been "disastrous," as he says, the burden is due to the interest charges on capital investment. That is also where the burden comes in respect of highways, because succeeding governments borrowed and borrowed, and paid nothing off, although motor taxation provided the means. Now Mr. Conant wants motorists to pay the capital cost all over again, with interest.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

Philip said unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us. Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hath thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father? Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works. Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works' sake.

Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do because I go unto my Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. —John xiv, 8-13.

NEVER ON A TRAIN.

Some idea of what has happened to railway profits is seen in the fact that, while in 1923 the Canadian railways carried 38,000,000 passengers that number had dwindled to 18,000,000 in 1937. We were rather startled the other day to hear members of a family which does considerable traveling admit they never had been in a railway train, their travel having been invariably by automobile. And, of course, that is one of the reasons for the steadily mounting railway deficit, the change in the habits of the traveling public.—(Niagara Falls Review)

Britain Adding Extra 15,000 Men To Army

LONDON, Mar. 1 (CP Cable). — Great Britain boosted her Army estimates to-day by $250,000,000 to a new peacetime record and made provision for adding 15,700 men to its strength.

Following the unprecedented post-war naval appropriations announced yesterday, the Government published the Army's 1939-40 estimates of £161,133,000 ($755,713,000). The corresponding figure for 1938-39 was £106,500,000.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, Secretary for War, in a memorandum issued with the estimates, said the strength of the regular Home Army, exclusive of troops in India and Burma, would be increased by 15,700 to 185,700, which will be the highest for any post-war year. Britain maintains 45,250 troops in India and 1,680 in Burma.

Taking together the increase in strength and the increased money vote it is believed the British Government has envisaged the need of a wartime Continental army and is preparing in advance for it.

At the same time civil estimates covering non-defence departments were issued, calling for £534,596,081 an increase of £2,177,705.

New Peacetime High.

This shot the British budget over the £1,000,000,000 mark for the first time, during peace. There is every indication, estimating the 1939 armament bill at £580,000,000, that Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will be forced to raise £1,114,000,000 by taxation and borrowing if he expects to balance the budget for next year.

The Army will get £66,232,000 of its 1939-40 requirements from defence loans which the Government plans to boost from £400,000,000 to £800,000,000 to cover expansion of the five-year rearmament program started in 1937. A further £12,978,000 will be provided out of Government funds in hand.

The taxpayers thus will have to furnish £81,923,000 out of the £148,155,000 of new money required to keep the Army in fighting trim.

For the Air Force apparently the unprecedented peacetime total of £209,000,000 will be asked. The combined Army and Navy estimates of £314,000,000 deducted from the estimated total defence cost of £580,000,000 leaves £266,000,000, of which £57,000,000 is expected to go to civilian defence and the remainder to the Air Force.

Setbacks Stir Drive Upon Labor Board

WASHINGTON, Mar. 1—(AP).—First major reverses suffered by the National Labor Relations Board in the United States Supreme Court encouraged the board's critics to-day to press demands for new restrictions on its operations.

An official of the American Federation of Labor said, "The Supreme Court decision in the Fansteel case" which ruled the sit-down strike illegal, "is a justification of the policies of the A.F.L. with regard to the Labor Board."

Senator Burke (Dem., Nebraska) declared the decisions were "excellent" and said they would bring support for proposals to amend the Wagner Labor Act, under which the board was set up in 1935.

Both Burke and the A.F.L. have proposed changes in the act. Burke would make the law recognize specifically the rights of employers as well as employees in labor disputes. The A.F.L. would attempt to set up legal safeguards against what it terms the board's partiality toward the Congress of Industrial Organization.

The court delivered its opinions yesterday in the midst of efforts by President Roosevelt to end the bitter rivalry between the A.F.L. and the C.I.O.

It will pay big dividends in health if your family has plenty of fresh vegetables during March.

Goodnight Story

By MAX TRELL

As soon as they reached the other side of the playroom wall, there were horses waiting for Hanid and Knarf and General Tin, the tin soldier. The other side of the playroom wall is a strange and interesting land ruled over by merry King Fat-Wat. Only toys and shadows-of-children can ever go there.

Hanid and Knarf hurried to look at the horses which King Fat-Wat had left there for them to ride on to his palace. The three horses were standing in a little meadow in which daisies and buttercups and violets were growing.

"Just look at them!" Hanid exclaimed. "They're rocking back and forth like rocking chairs!"

Queer Horses.

"They're certainly funny-looking horses," said Knarf.

But the tin soldier frowned and said: "They're the finest horses in the world. King Fat-Wat brought them up himself. You'll soon see how fast they can gallop and trot. I'll call them over here." So he called: "Come over her, horses!"

But the horses just kept on rocking.

Knarf went close to the fence and peered at them. "Why, they're painted all different colors!"

"And their tails look exactly like dusters!" added Hanid.

Won't Come.

"That's how King Fat-Wat's horses are supposed to be," said the tin soldier. "It's very plain that you shadows know very little about horses. Come here!" he shouted to the horses again. Then he whistled. Finally, he said: "I guess we'd better go over and get them. They're not used to coming when they're called."

"They're funny-looking horses."

So they climbed over the fence—the two shadows had to lift General Tin over because he couldn't climb very well — and marched to the middle of the meadow where the horses were standing.

Hobby Horses.

And what do you suppose? They were hobby-horses!

"I bet they won't take us anywhere," said Knarf as they all got in the saddles.

Knarf was right. The hobby-horses belonging to King Fat-Wat didn't take them anywhere at all. They just kept rocking back and forth, back and forth, always in the same place.

"We'll never get to the palace at this rate," sighed Hanid.

But the tin soldier made them all keep sitting and rocking. And if they haven't got off those queer hobby-horses, I'm sure they're rocking still. Now isn't the other side of the playroom wall a strange place?

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

"WHAT ARE you looking for?" Phil asked Mac.

"It doesn't matter now," Mac refused to be baited. He managed a grin. "Little boys, Philip, should be seen and not heard. Anyway, the less you and Elsie know, the better."

"That's what you think!"

"What are you kicking about, Benson? Haven't you got it all over on those other news hounds who've been hanging around and not even getting inside the gate?"

"I'm not kicking. I only want to know—"

"What did Minnie have to say?" I interrupted. If Mac really were on the inside track—well—I was not overly anxious to have Phil join him. "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing" is one saying with which I heartily agree.

"About the same as Mr. Horace, Elsie. Says she was passing through the hall and heard the shot. She opened the door and found Mr. Horace lying on the bed. Then she ran."

"What was she doing in the hall at that time of night?"

Mac's eyes twinkled. "You have a rival, Elsie! She was sort of hoping, I gathered, to catch sight of Ludwig!"

Phil exploded: "Romance and murder, eh? My God!"

I persisted: "Didn't she see anyone?"

"She says not. She was climbing the back stairs when the shot was fired. By the time she reached this room the intruder had fled."

"But how did she know which room to enter? And why does Mr. Richard live up here among the servants?"

"His permanent quarters are on the second floor," Mac explained. "When the house is filled with guests he moves up here. The count and Toddington and that actor chap are on this floor also. I don't know the answer to question number one. Perhaps, he grinned wickedly, "perhaps Minnie is psychic." He turned to the chief. "Getting late, Ellis; we'd better mosey along."

"I'm staying here tonight," the chief said. "If there's any more shooting, I want to be on hand."

"Well, that's not a bad idea. Guess I'll curl up in the library. Benson, you drive Didmore into town. He's waiting somewhere below."

"O. K., Mac I'll round him up."

"What about Richard?" I followed them outside. "Will he be released?"

"He'll be all right," Mac assured me. "Now get to bed and be sure to lock your door!"

"Then — then the danger isn't over?"

"Oh, I wouldn't say that." He patted my arm. "No one is going to hurt you! Just pays to be on the safe side. If anything scares you, yell!"

"Sure!" I smiled weakly, "I'll yell. But can't I come down to the library and stay with you?"

"Why, Elsie! Such a suggestion at my age!"

"Please!" I begged.

"You aren't really scared?" He lifted my chin and looked straight into my eyes.

I nodded, unashamed.

"Will you believe me when I say that you're in no danger as long as you lock your door and keep out of the way?"

I quavered: "Out of the way?"

"No one is after you, Elsie. Just remember that. No one is after you!"

"Then—then you know who shot Mr. Horace?" I faltered, glacing fearfully up and down the hallway.

"Walls have ears and they have eyes," he answered me strangely. "Get along with you! And don't forget what I told you—no one is after you!"

◆ ◆ ◆

They brought Mr. Richard and Toots Lemoine out to the Manor in the morning. From my bedroom I saw Karns drive in with them. I finished dressing and hurried to the library. Mac and Phil, who must have flown out to arrive so early, stood before the fireplace talking. When they saw me they shut up like two clams. If I had not been so excited at the return of the other pair, I might have been plenty peeved at the way they were holding out on me; as it was, I was too thrilled and happy to bother.

"So, you're still alive!" Mac greeted me. "Guess you aren't important enough to murder, eh?"

I made a face at him. "Mr. Richard is here!"

"So?" He was not at all surprised.

"Baby, I have great news!" Phil whirled me around in his arms "The Chicago Blade wants me to handle the murders exclusively! Trial and everything!"

"Oh, how—" but I could not say wonderful. The trial! He had said the trial! Somehow I had not thought of trials and courtrooms and—hanging! Two women had been murdered in cold blood; a third had been fatally wounded. Eye for eye, tooth for tooth! I shivered. A living man, a living woman—he or she must pay the penalty!

"Here we are, chief!"

Karns burst in upon us in his usual cyclonic manner. Mr. Richard and Toots came after him. "Where's Ellis?" He peered about in some surprise.

"I'm right here!" the chief, puffing and panting, appeared on the scene.

"Morning, Ellis," said Mac. "Have a good night?"

"No!"

"And good morning to you!" Mac bowed to Toots.

"Cut the comedy!" growled that young woman. A night in jail had not improved her disposition. She flopped into a hair. Jail had not improved her looks either, I thought with inward rejoicing. Her blond hair was limp and waveless; the strong morning sunlight revealed a criss-cross network of wrinkles about her nose and eyes.

Young Richard, on the other hand, though pale, seemed outwardly at least none the worse for wear. He nodded to me, and asked for a cigaret. I passed him my pack and he lighted one and inhaled hungrily.

"You might offer me one!" Toots said sharply. "I been in the jug, too, y' know!"

I tossed her one cigaret and she gave me a mean look and stuck it between her lips. Phil struck a match and held it out to her. "You aren't going to get away with this fake arrest, copper," she said, flipping the match into the fireplace. "I'm gonna sue this burg for plenty!"

"I wouldn't do that if I were you." McIntyre teetered back and forth upon his heels.

"No? And why not?"

"Folks around these parts aren't partial to receivers of stolen goods."

She tossed her head. "You can't prove a thing on me! I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Maybe I could jog your memory—"

"Oh, cut it, Toots!" Mr. Richard put in wearily. "I stole the emeralds."

"Why you!—" Toots was on her feet.

"Easy!" Mac stepped between them. "Let's have your story, Witherspoon."

The boy ran his fingers nervously through his hair. "Might I have another cigaret? Thanks."

"He can't double-cross me!" screamed Toots, struggling to escape Mac. "I didn't have a thing to do with it!" . . .

"I suppose you are holding the jewels for safe keeping, er?" jeered Mac. "Well, Witherspoon?"

"I" — Richard wet his lips — "I stole the emeralds from the salon the night of the ball. I didn't plan to steal them. But when I saw them there on the table and no one in sight—"

"Wait a minute! Where was Miss Ritter? What time was this?"

"It was around nine-thirty, I think."

"Nine-thirty!" He whirled upon me. "Didn't you tell me you were in the salon every minute that evening?"

"I—I" —I felt my face turning red— "I never said I was."

"Good God! Do you mean to say you did leave the room?"

Phil added hastily: "She was with me. It wa. my fault."

Mac ignored him. He demanded: "Then you weren't present when Mrs. Witherspoon died?"

"No," I confessed miserably. "She was dead when I returned."

"Why in the name of Heaven didn't you say so? Scared, or what?"

"Well—" I hesitated. Surely Mr. Horace would expect me to remain silent no longer. I plunged on, anxious to exonerate myself. "Mr. Horace asked me not to mention my absence."

"Mr. Horace, eh? What was the big indea?"

I tried to explain. "He thought it would complicate matters. I didn't understand exactly, but I didn't see any harm—"

"You wouldn't!" Mac laughed nastily. "Witherspoon! Was your grandmother dead when you entered the salon?"

"Yes," the boy confessed, not lifting his eyes. "You see, I knew she was there, getting fixed for the ball. I—I was desperate for money. I meant to ask her once more—"

"Then you had tried to borrow from her?"

The boy nodded: "I tried—she refused me. I couldn't tell her why I needed the money. I couldn't"—he broke off—"I couldn't tell her that I owed it to a loan shark."

Mac barked: "How did you know she was dead?"

"I—I called to her. The drier was making so much noise, I couldn't seem to make her hear." He moistened his lips again. "I lifted the hood and—and she fell forward into my arms. I—I listened to her heart. I discovered that it had stopped beating." His voice rose wildy. "Then I saw the emeralds! I—I put grandmother back under the helmet and—and took the emeralds."

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, March 2

A VERY lively and interesting day is forecast from a set of rather perplexing or complicated planetary aspects. In business and intellectual as well as social or sentimental affairs, all should be extremely active although attended by situations rather complex or intriguing. There may be sudden and drastic change in social, romantic or business affiliations.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and interesting year, with unusual and intriguing experiences both in business and private associations. There may be an element of the vague or mysterious adding to the pleasure of social or romantic adventures, or stimulating the mental, spiritual, or creative energies and faculties.

A child born on this day may have great versatility in cultural lines, with its mental, emotional and creative faculties and forces under high and rather curious or indefinable stimuli. It may be inspired by music, poetry, art or literature, or in some peculiar romantic or spectacular manner.

Looking Back On This Date

By FRED WILLIAMS

Seventy years ago a number of laymen of the Church of England in Canada took alarm at what they considered the spread of "ritualism" in Canada and especially in the diocese of Toronto. On March 1, 1869 it was announced that the Church of England Evangelical Association had been formed. Dean Grasett was the president; Archdeacon Fuller, Rev. Saltern Givens, Professor Daniel Wilson (afterwards Sir Daniel, president of the University of Toronto) and Homer Dixon, vice-president; Canon Baldwin and F. W. Kingstone, Q. C., secretaries; Herbert Mortimer, treasurer, with a managing committee of Archdeacon Boddy and nine laity, including Hon. S. H. Blake, Dr. J. G. Hodgins and Robert Baldwin.

The association at once issued an appeal to the laity, addressed to "the lay members of the Church of England and Ireland in the Diocese of Toronto." It was a call to the delegates to the synod to "strenuously oppose ritualism." Special pressure was brought to bear upon the delegates known to be this organization merged with the Church association which waged a strenuous campaign for the maintenance of "the principles of the Protestant Reformation."

For years the Anglican family was disrupted; personal sentiments became bitter on each side; Bishop Bethune was brought into the fray; and the result was far from a united church. The Evangelical Churchman was established to voice the opinions of that section; and in 1877 an Evangelical school was started with Rev. J. R. Sheraton as leader and an attendance of eight students. From that little gathering evolved Wycliffe College. The name Wycliffe was chosen in 1883, but it was not until January, 1885, that it was made the legal name by court and legislature order.

Britain Building 173 Warships In '39 To Sink Another $768,333,405

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Mar. 1 — (CP Cable)— Great Britain will spent £153,666,-681 (about $768,333,405) on the Navy in 1939, which will see the world's biggest peacetime building program under full sway.

Compared with the 1938 appropriation, there will be an increase of £23,281,500 (about $116,407,500), but the taxpayer will have £26,718,500 less to find. This is because £80,-000,000 will be provided through loans.

The naval estimates will form part of Britain's total defence bill of £580,000,000 (about $2,900,000,000) which Prime Minister Chamberlain recently forecast would be the nation's rearmament appropriation to March 31, 1940.

The naval building program for 1939 will comprise two battleships, one aircraft carrier, four cruisers, 16 destroyers, four submarines, 20 fast escort vessels, and 20 small miscellaneous vessels.

Giving some indications of Britain's gigantic naval building program for 1939, 173 warships will be in various stages of construction in shipbuilding yards of the country. Some will be completed, others will be laid down; but most of them will be in the process of construction.

Of this 173, nine are battleships, 25 are cruisers, six are aircraft carriers, 39 destroyers, 19 submarines, 24 escort vessels, 14 mine sweepers, 19 fast torpedo boats, and the rest are miscellaneous vessels.

Away Over 1938 Program.

The 1939 building program will be bigger than that of 1938 by two destroyer flotillas, 20 fast scort vessels of a new type, and 10 mine sweepers.

This is believed due to Germany's new submarine building program, because in depending the nation's merchant shipping against underwater attack Great Britain relies on destroyers for convoy purposes and escort vessels especially equipped to attack subs.

The total cost of the 1939 program is expected to be £80,500,000.

In a brief reference to the Canadian Navy a statement by Earl Stanhope, First Lord of the Admiralty, said the purchase of a flotilla leader from the Admiralty was under consideration. It would augment the Dominion's squadron of six destroyers.

The Australian Government has progressed considerably toward completing "naval and seaward defences for main ports in order to secure them against attack by submarines and minelayers," Lord Stanhope said. Australia also increased munitions production and strengthened fixed coastal defences.

South Africa's bases are to be strengthened and modernized as the result of a complete review of defence needs by Oswald Pirow, South African Defence Minister, last fall.

Six new motor torpedo boats were shipped to Hong Kong in the past year.

Lord Stanhope admitted the Government would have difficulty in the next two or three years finding engineers to man the expanding fleet, but asked for the "sympathetic co-operation of the industry."

No More Coal.

The Navy, he said, is experimenting with new types of fuel oils for warships and definitely has decided against the return to coal burning models.

The navy, he continued, acquired "a valuable test of organization" in smooth mobilization of the fleet during the September, 1936, war scare. Even reserve ships were ready for action in advance of the stipulated time, he said.

The current naval estimates form part of the total of £580,000,000 which Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, forecast would be the nation's rearmament bill to March 31, 1940.

The admiralty will draw to the extent of £80,000,000 on defence loans which the government is increasing from a £400,000,000 to an £800,000,000 maximum to meet expansion of the original five-year rearmament program from £1,500,-000,000 to above £2,000,000,000.

Since the government is using £4,267,661 already in hand the total new money to be found is £149,399,-000, including £1,620,000 for interest on previous loans.

Navy personnel showed a decrease of 13,500 to 133,000 but wages increased by £1,423,000 to £17,566,-100.

City Births Higher

OTTAWA, Mar. 1—(CP).—Births registered in January in 68 Canadian cities and towns of 10,000 population and more rose 6½ per cent over January last year, according to a report issued to-day by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Marriages decreased two per cent, and deaths were unchanged. Figures for the month showed births numbered 7,088 against 6,600 in January, 1938. Marriages were 2,371 against 2,413, and deaths steady at 4,601.

OBITUARY

DAVID TUCKER.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, March 1. — The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon of David Tucker at his late home in the village. In spite of the badly drifted roads there was a very large turnout of friends present. The service was conducted by the Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, and interment was made in St. Mark's Cemetery.

David Tucker was one of the most highly esteemed citizens in the community. He was always a good neighbor and an outstanding Christian man. For years he was an active member in the Warsaw Presbyterian Church, and since church union has been an elder of the United Church. Though invalided for the past few years, he was always cheerful and had a friendly word for everyone.

Born 73 years ago on a farm near Indian River, the deceased was a son of William Tucker and Mary Jane McMaster. Mr. Tucker lived on the farm on which he was born for seventy years—until he moved to Warsaw two and a half years ago.

On June 14, 1899, Mr. Tucker married Mary Manley of Otonabee. Had he lived until June of this year the couple would have celebrated their fortieth wedding anniversary.

Deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. Stanley Judge of Toronto, and Mrs. Ernest Garbutt of Lakefield. Four grandsons also survive.

The pall-bearers were two sons-in-law, S. Judge of Toronto and Ernest Garbutt of Douro, Milton Drain, Hilliard Darling, Gordon and Allan Payne.

THOMAS JAMES ROBINSON.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 1. — The death of Thomas James Robinson, which occurred on Friday, February 24, in his seventy-seventh year, following a comparatively brief illness, removed a widely-known citizen from the community.

Deceased was born in Otonabee Township on the family homestead, and was a son of the late John Robinson, and his wife, Sarah Ann Lawson. In 1906 he married Jane Manes Simpson, who survives her husband, their home, until removal to Millbrook after Mr. Robinson had retired from an active agricultural career, twenty years ago, being on the Zion Line, a short distance west of the village, on the farm homestead now the property of Mr. Samuel Hamilton.

Mr. Robinson was a member of St. Ives Lodge Sons of England, and for some years in his earlier manhood was actively connected with the Orange Order, membership being in L.O.L. No. 40, Fallis Line. In religion he had a life-long connection with the Methodist and United Churches, and in politics was a Conservative.

Besides the bereaved widow, the other immediate surviving relatives include three sisters: Mrs. J. Presley (Esther Ann), of Grand Prairie, Alberta; Mrs. James Christo (Emma), and Mrs. James Moore (Sarah), of Peterborough; and one brother, Christopher Robinson, of Cleveland, Ohio, who was here for the funeral, and who had paid an extended visit 1 lexperiments in the county last

The funeral took place from the family residence, Main Street, on Sunday at 2.30 p.m., and would undoubtedly have been very largely attended had it not been for the very unfavorable state of roads and weather, which made it extremely difficult to reach the Zion Church and Cemetery, where interment took place in the family burial plot. Rev. A. L. Sisco conducted the service, and the pall-bearers were: Messrs. A. J. Henderson, H. C. Lord, John Ridge, John Pitt, Cecil Hubbeard, and John Coulter.

MRS. ELIZA OLIVIA CLARK
(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 1.—The funeral of the late Eliza Olivia Clark was held on Tuesday from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Young, Sebastopol street. Mrs. Clark who was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Barton of Rawdon Township, came to Campbellford with her late husband about 32 years ago. She was predeceased by her husband nearly 15 years ago. In poor health for some time she passed away at the residence of her daughter on Sunday morning last. Surviving her are one son George and two daughters, Mrs. Harry Young and Mabel, all of town.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Harold B. Neal of St. John's United Church of which the deceased was a member. Interment took place at Mount Pleasant cemetery. The pall-bearers were William Tedman, Isiah Boyd, Charles Clark, Harry A. Young, Allan Young and Clarence Young.

ELEANOR WALSH.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Mar. 1. — Succumbing to a lengthy illness of some years, Eleanor Walsh died at the home of her brother, Frank Walsh, in Asphodel Township early on Tuesday morning. She was in her 61st year. A lifetime resident of Asphodel Township, the late Miss Walsh was a graduate nurse, completing her training in Suffern, N.J. She has resided with her brother Frank for the past ten years.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. P. J. Crowley, Asphodel Township; Mrs. Robert Barry, Vancouver, B.C.; three brothers, Joseph N. Walsh, Borradaile, Alta., Timothy A. Walsh, Hastings, and Francis J. Walsh, of Asphodel.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday morning, proceeding from her late residence in Asphodel to Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church, arriving at nine o'clock where Requiem Mass will be sung. Interment will be made in Mount Carmel Cemetery.

SISTER M. ELZEAR MAHER

The death occurred at Mount Saint Joseph, Peterborough on Friday of Sister M. Elzear Maher. Sister was born at Cobourg, Ontario, and entered the Community of the Sisters of Saint Joseph in March, 1892, making her Novitiate at Lindsay. Her work for many years was with God's poor, in the person of the orphans and aged poor of the diocese, who at that time were living at St. Joseph's Hospital and later at the House of Providence. Sister continued her work among the old people when the House of Providence was enlarged to its present size. This work, oftentimes the most difficult of all kinds of charitable endeavor. She carried out with earnestness and success. She was not only an efficient worker in what is now termed social service, but was a tender and devoted friend to all the poor who came under her care.

During many years of ill health Sister Elzear lived at Mount Saint Joseph fulfilling the less arduous duties of the community, and her greatest pleasure was in sewing for the altar. Her work, almost at the last, was to prepare church linen for the community's mission in Saskatchewan.

Besides her bereaved community, she leaves to mourn her three brothers: William of Cobourg, Hugh of St. Boniface and John of Chicago, also one sister, Mrs. McMahon of Cobourg.

His Excellency Most Reverend Denis O'Connor, D.D. L.L.D. sang the Solemn High Mass of Requiem on Monday morning in the Chapel at Mount St. Joseph. He was assisted by Rev. E. Welsh as Deacon and Rev. G. Wolfe as Sub-Deacon; Honorary Deacons: Rev. J. C. Maloney and Rev. Dr. F. Grant of Sacred Heart Church; Rev. P. J. Kelly, LL.D. of St. Peter's Cathedral, High Priest; Rev. V. J. Masterson, D.D. of St. Peter's Cathedral, Master of Ceremonies.

The blessing at the grave was performed by Rev. J. Killen of Cobourg, assisted by Rev. E. Welsh of St. Peter's Cathedral and Rev. G. Wolfe of Cobourg.

Relatives attending the funeral from Cobourg were: William Maher, Mrs. McMahon, Miss M. Maher, Mr. and Mrs. McCaig and family and Mr. H. Maher of Montreal.

NORWOOD

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McKenzie and daughter, Patricia Ann of Moncton, N.B., visited recently with Mrs. G. M. Webb.

Messrs. Earl Hamblin and Roy Scott visited friends in Weston over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Baker and daughters, Betty and Gail, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. K. Edmonds motored to Toronto and spent the week-end with relatives. Mrs. F. Stewart returned home with them.

Miss Ruby Preston is spending a few days in Weston visiting friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Iden J. Bonds attended the hockey match in Toronto on Saturday night.

Miss Laura Cuthbertson and Mrs. John Rogers have returned from Toronto after spending a few days visiting friends.

Messrs. Jack Stewart and Alex Lumsden motored to Toronto and spent the week-end with friends.

Mr. James Rothwell spent Sunday in Warsaw.

Miss Echo Rogers has returned to Peterborough after visiting over the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rogers.

Mr. Garfield Innes is visiting his brother, Mr. Ollie Innes of Fort Erie.

Not a single Liberal speaker in the treaty debate "had a kind word to say for industry or those engaged in it." He had never known a Bill in Parliament designed to help Western Canada farmers, to be opposed by Eastern members.

"If we are going to solve the problems of Canada there can be no Eastern Canada or Western Canada, no Ontario or Quebec. We must solve thees problems on the broad Canadian principle."

U.S. Wheat for Ontario.

At a time when Western members were seeking help in marketing wheat, Mr. Homuth said, "hundreds of thousands of bushels of American subsidized wheat are coming into Ontario," Mr. Homuth declared. "This wheat is coming into a country flooded with wheat we don't know what to do with. Farmers of Ontario are eating bread made with subsidized American wheat while their own granaries are filled with wheat they don't know what to do with.

"I call on Ontario and Quebec to protest to this Government that it is neglecting the farmers of Ontario and Quebec," Mr. Homuth said.

Even the increased Canadian share in the United States cattle quota announced to-day would mean only that the Dominion could supply one-third of one per cent. of the total United States consumption of live cattle. Waterloo County alone produce three times the milk quota provided in the agreement and the cream quota would provide about one tablespoon a year for every American. "What a friendly gesture," Mr. Homuth declared.

While a section of the Liberal members of the House were talking against protection they were demanding and obtaining protection in the form of a wheat bonus.

Not one man in the present Government had any experience in industry nor any knowledge of the viewpoint or desires of labor. The Canada-United States trade agreement was only a side issue of the Anglo-American trade agreement which was "a business deal between Great Britain and the United States with us in between and we are getting squeezed as a result."

Authoress Of 80 Books Mrs. Richards Now 89

GARDINER, Me., Mar. 1—(AP)—Mrs. Laura E. Richards, whose love of children found expression in 80 books read by young and old alike, observed her 89th birthday yesterday.

The author of "Captain January," which is the story of a little girl and a grizzled New England mariner, gathered her family about her in the "yellow house," where she has lived since she was a girl, and observed that she already was looking forward to the celebration of her 90th birthday. She is a daughter of famed Julia Ward Howe, composer.

Congratulatory telegrams poured into the comfortable, old house, but no other unusual events marked the occasion.

Boy 3, Clerk Of Store Die As House Burns

FANNYSTELLE, Man., Mar. 1—(CP)—Two persons were burned to death and two others received injuries when fire destroyed the home of G. C. Barney Mollott here early today.

The dead: Grant Mollott, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Mollott, and Charles H. Jack, 29, Winnipeg man who worked as a clerk in Mollott's store. Injured: Mrs. Minnie Mollott, 27, Mollott's wife and William Leblanc, a lodger in the Mollott home.

Three others in the house when the blaze started, Miss Germaine Guyot, Mollott and his five-year-old daughter Deanne, escaped injury.

Fannystelle is 35 miles southwest of Winnipeg.

A Help To Those Past Middle Age

When men and women get past middle age their energy and activity, in many instances, begin to decline, and their general vitality is on the wane.

Little sicknesses and ailments seem harder to shake off than formerly, and, here and there, evidences of a breakdown begin to appear.

Now is the time when those who wish to maintain their health and vigor, and retain their energy unimpaired should take a course of Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills.

They brace up and invigorate the system, and help stall off the decrepitude of advancing years.

NO CONCESSION.

Belleville Utilities Commission has decided that families on relief must pay for their water service or the connection will be cut off.

PICNIC IS POSTPONED

On account of the death of George Evans, a past master of Peterborough Lodge A.F. & A.M., the Masonic winter picnic has been postponed from Thursday night until next Tuesday at the Y.M.C.A.

ATTEND CONVENTION.

John A. Smith, president, and Sandford T. Harris will represent the Peterborough Horticultural Society at the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Society in Toronto on Thursday and Friday.

BUILDING TOTALS $4,675.

Eight building permits totalling $4,675 were recorded during the month of February. A severe winter has apparently driven thought of new houses from citizens' minds, for not one permit for a house was listed. The figure was nearly $2,000 below the total for February of 1938, which stood at $6,600.

BUILD NEW SMOKE STACK

A new smoke stack of steel, sixty feet in height and built on a concrete base, will replace the two stacks at the Peterborough Gas Works, both of which will be torn down. The Utilities commission yesterday authorized that step. To- cost has been estimated at near $-00.

MANAGER OF HEINZ COMPANY.

J. F. Scruton has been appointed general manager of the H. J. Heinz Company, succeeding E. James, returning to the home office in Pittsburg. Mr. Scruton joined the Heinz organization in 1912, his first territory being the Peterborough district. Later he was made manager of the Montreal office and Maritime Provinces, and from there was transferred to the Canadian headquarters in Toronto in 1932.

THREATENS SUIT

Threat of a suit for $100 damages as a result of a collision on January 27 between a car driven by Irving Moldaver and a Utilities' truck, faced the Utilities Commission yesterday. G. N. Gordon informed the commission he had been instructed to sue in Division Court. No action is taken, Chairman G. S. Matthews remarking the case was in the hands of the insurance company.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS.

Committees of the City Council are meeting tonight preceded by the Finance Committee in preparation for the regular meeting of the council for March next Monday night. It was expected at the City Hall this morning that representatives of the Nicholls Hospital Board might call on the Finance Committee in regard to the terms of the hospital bylaw, which was to be discussed at a meeting of the Board this afternoon.

GEESE OVER OMEMEE.

The second flock of wild geese seen on the wing in the district this week is reported by Jack Bailey of Omemee. He told the Examiner to-that while waiting for the bus Monday that while waiting for the bus on Monday in front of McQuade's barber shop in the village he heard the honking of the geese, flying high and straight north. There were about twenty in the flock, which was also seen by Mr. McQuade. "So spring can't be far behind them," Mr. Bailey remarked.

MANTON PARK SUBDIVISION.

Dr. J. E. Middleton has sold the first lot in his property on Monaghan Road to a Peterborough business man who is planning to construct a modern house for himself as soon as the building season gets under way. The Middleton lots are known as the Manton Park subdivision which was recently opened for sale. Other enquiries from prospective home owners indicate that the new west-end residential area is likely to attract considerable attention this year.

FLAT RATE HEATERS

Twenty per cent of hydro electric users in this city now have flat rate heaters installed in their homes, Utilities Manager Ross Dobbin told the commission yesterday. The installation requires a huge initial outlay by the commission and Mr. Dobbin told Chairman G. S. Matthews that he anticipated a slackening off in the number installed in future. Last year approximately 200 were placed in homes in the city. But the experience of the city of Winnipeg would seem to indicate that Peterborough's saturation point is far from being reached. In that western capital 50 per cent of hydro users have flat rate heaters.

Water Supply Is Not Adequate Board Is Told

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1—The application made by one of the members of the Public School teaching staff for a raise in salary caused considerable discussion by members of the School Board at their monthly meeting.

"The present basis of payment is worse than wrong, its rotten," declared W. Roy Loucks, chairman of the property committee. "Here is a case of a teacher with from 10 to 12 years exeriepnce and she is one of the lowest paid members of the staff."

"When making application for the position she knew that the salary schedule had been abandoned," added a member.

"That is what we might expect all of those not getting the maximum salary to do. I'm not anxious to spend the money but I don't feel that the present arrangement is a fair one," Mr. Loucks added.

School Inspector A. A. Martin addressed the board, stating he had recently inspected the Public Shools. "The staff is doing good work," he said. He would like to see a proper type of opaque glass fixture placed over lights in the classrooms. These would overcome the strain placed on the pupils' eyes caused from the uncovered glaring lights.

"Knowing that your chief problem is one of finance, I would suggest that this work be done a little bit at a time."

"The water closets are clean and the floors in the basements are in good condition. The top floor is in splendid condition and the board is to be commended on the excellent job of redecorating it has done."

Referring to the lareg amount of money that had to be spent on books by the board since the adoption of the new course of study, Mr. Martin pointed out that this does not loom so large when it is compared with those purchased for the high school. "Books, particularly in Grades VII and VIII are very badly needed."

Not Sufficient Water

"Pupils of the public schools are getting an inadequate water supply," continued Mr. Martin, who has for several years been urging the Board to install drinking fountains in the schools. "This year the public school grants are up $200.00 or more than last year and the scheme I propose would cost about $600.00, and could be paid for in three years with the extra grant taking care of the whole thing. For three hours in the forenoon and two hours and a half in the afternoon, these children are not getting any water. I saw very few of them visiting the pump when I was here. A pressure tank could be installed in one of the two basements with an automatic pump attached to bring the water from the present well and force it up to the cloak rooms in the second and third floors of the buildings."

The application made by Miss Blanch Wright to be used as a supply teacher, together with the request for an increase in salary by a public school teacher, was placed on file.

Real Estate Scheme In Havelock District

The Examiner has received a complaint from a Havelock reader to the effect that a smooth-working well-dressed stranger, driving an expensive car and wearing elaborate jewelery has been operating in that district with a real estate selling scheme in which he offers to sell farms and other property, collects a fee in advance for his services and then disappears. One widow contributed $50 which she could scarcely afford to lose and another gave the stranger a donation of $75. The flashily dressed visitor and the cash are both missing and the Havelock reader says that other persons in the district should be on their guard.

Hydro's 13th Bill To Utilities $7,222

Chairman G. S. Matthews announced Tuesday the Peterborough Utilities Commission had received a rebate of $7,222.46 from the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, on the "13th bill."

The Peterborough commission buys its power at an interim rate of $26 a horsepower. Each year the commission is presented with a 13th bill, which may be either a debit or a credit. For the past few years it has been a credit. Tuesday's credit lowered Peterborough's interim rate by about 75 cents for this year.

Bert Hall's Rink Defeats Galt Four 14-10

TORONTO, March 1.—(CP)—Bert Hall's Ontario Tankard rink from Kitchener, coming from behind with a six on the 11th end, defeated N. H. Sternall of Galt 14-10 today to enter the semi-finals of British Consols curling for the right to represent Ontario in Macdonald's Brier trophy play opening March 13.

Eight rinks, winners of regional rounds, are competing in the Consols, the finals of which will be played tonight. The Kitchener four was the first to finish the morning round. Other entries are from Toronto Granites; Toronto High Park; Oshawa; Sarnia; Barrie and Kingston.

The Galt skip got off to an early lead in his game with Hall, winner of the Tankard, emblematic of the provincial championship, last year. But Hall's big six on the 11th enabled him to overtake Sternall who scored only a two on the last end.

The rinks:

Kitchener	Galt
D. A. Seagram	J. A. Broomfield
G. E. Sparkes	H. B Clark
P. G. Hall	M. F. Robertson
B. Hall, sk ..14	N. H. Sternall, sk 10

In the remaining three games, H. Lockhart's Sarnia rink had difficulty eliminating A. J. Simon of Barrie 10-8 but the Toronto rinks advanced without trouble. D.J.P. Kelly of the Granite club eliminated W. J. Brownlee, Oshawa, 13-2 and F. H. Sproule, Toronto High Park, took the measure of Kingston's George Hanson, 12-8.

Results:

Toronto Granites	Oshawa
H. J. MacDonald	H. D. Wilson
F. W. Graham	C. R. Bailes
H. W. Allan	J. H. McDiarmid

Charges Are Laid In Firearms Case

As the result of an investigation by Corporal T. J. Woods of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the seizure by him of eight sporting rifles and shotguns allegedly smuggled into Canada, a local citizen will face six charges under Section 217 of the Customs Act in police court here on Tuesday next.

In five cases he is to be charged with illegally selling rifles or shotguns upon which the duty was not paid and in the sixth with being illegally in possession of two fire arms upon which it is alleged no duty was paid.

Corp. Woods has been investigating the case for some time and the informations were served on Tuesday afternoon.

Mayor Will Open New Centre Theatre

Mayor James Hamilton will officially open the new Centre Theatre tomorrow evening, when a capacity crowd is expected to grace the glistening building. Doors will open sharp at 6 o'clock and the official ceremony will take place at 6.45 o'clock. Ald. R. M. Glover will introduce the Mayor, who will cut a ribbon that is stretched across the stage. Work is being rushed today to completion in order that the new theatre may be seen in all its splendor. A double bill of outstanding pictures has been arranged for the opening: John Barrymore in "The Great Man Votes," and Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern in "There Goes My Girl."

Farmers Are Well Satisfied With Tests Made In Rust Resistant Wheat And Oats

For several years the Dominion Experimental Stations have been endeavoring to produce rust resistant spring wheat. In the past two or three years several such varieties have been released, one of which is Coronation.

In the spring of 19338, Earl Osborne and Garnet Rickard of Bowmanville each obtained two bushels of Coronation wheat, while Alex. Fuller of Enniskillen No. 1 sowed six bushels. All there were exceptionally well satisfied with the yields obtained. Mr. Osborne had his field near the barn with the result that the hens got a fair share of one end of the field. However, he had between 25 and 30 bushels and expects to sow 10 or 12 acres this year. Mr. Rickard had over 40 bushels; 22 bushels of this was obtained in two bushel lots and distributed at the junior farmers' seed judging competition at Blackstock in January. Mr. Rickard plans to sow five acres this year. Mr. Fuller had between 90 and 100 bushels from the six bushels of seed sown, and he will have a considerable supply of Coronation wheat for distribution, amongst Durham county farmers. There should be a place on most farms for at least an acre or two of satisfactory yielding spring wheat.

Erban oats, a leaf rust resistant variety that is also resistant to smut, yielded an average of 59 bushels on to his brother last fall.

year. Several boys in our junior grain club grew from five to ten acres. The Port Hope Fair Board and the Brighton Fair Board are obtaining Erban oats from one of these boys for their field crop competitions. tI is impossible to recommend any one variety of oats that will be suitable to all soils and conditions, but it appears that the variety Erban comes the closest to this objective. Further information will be gladly furnished by E. A. Summers, Agricultural Representative, Bowmanville, Ont.

Resignation Of Fred Marshall As Fish And Game Head Accepted

Fred Marshall announced his retirement from the presidency of the Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association at its meeting in Paragon Hall Tuesday night.

The appreciation of his associates was expressed to Mr. Marshall by Fred L. Roy, with a word of regret that he had decided to withdraw from the leadership he has given during the last two years.

A series of motion pictures of outdoor life and sports, plus scenery, of them received from the C.P.R., and the others the photography of Mr. Roy and Chri G. Graham, provided fine entertainment for an hour or more.

Fishing on the French River and runnings its rapids in canoes; camera hunting records from the Tobique River in New Brunswick, and thrilling ski trip into the mountains at Banff were close-ups of far away scenes, and then came the local projected by Roy Pitchford.

Mr. Roy's movies were fishing episodes at Lake Katchawanooka above Lakefield, and also Rice Lake, with an exceptionally graphic landing of a big muskie, and trout fishing at the head of the Little Ouse River in Dummer township, featuring the late Tom and John Brightman, Clint Smith and Mr. Roy himself.

Mr. Graham's reels were mostly of duck shooting at Rice and Pigeon Lakes, "starring" Clare (Shorty) Gutterson, Denton Massey, Sid Black, E. V. (Sitting Bull) Eldridge, Mr. Graham and several others who gave the ducks around Pigeon Creek a grand peppering. Mr. Gutterson's unposed reaction to missing one of the birds was a touch of comedy that croppped up here and there throughout the pictures.

It was a grand stimulant of a new desire for Spring to roll around again with its trout season and summer with its full glory of the lakes and fields and streams.

Organized In 1921

In his retiring review of the work of the Association, Mr. Marshall recalled that it was organized in 1921, was one of the oldest game conservation groups in the province, and that the need which inspired it then was greater than ever now. Its membership last year was 260; millions of young fish have been put in the fishing grounds of the district; members of the executive did most of that work at one time and still actively co-operate with the Department.

Another accomplishment was the establishment of the Crown Game Reserve in 1933 of approximately 1,900 square miles in east Peterborough, and appealing for a hatchery which is now practically complete. The closed season for moose south of the French and Mattawa rivers was the result of pleas from the Peterborough sportsmen.

Mr. Marshall mentioned the county council's action in appointing a fish and game committee, and hoped that the co-operation between the two bodies in the past would result now in the county having some of its members on the executive of the association.

Lads Spree On $2 Bill Till 2.30 a.m. Then Meet Aunty

Toronto, March 1 (CP)

JIMMY COSGRAVE, eight years old, and Albert Watts, 11, had a high old time yesterday with $2 Albert had. In a 13-hour interval they visited stores, saw two double-feature movie programs, purchased a large cake and several chocolate bars.

Police found them wandering the street with 20 cents left at two o'clock this morning. At the police station, the boys heard their name on the police broadcast of missing persons.

"I'm not going to do anything tonight," said Watts' aunt when Albert was returned to her at 2.30 a.m., "but you just wait until morning."

Engineers To Hold Students' Night

From the highly technical presentation of the why and how of the glorified lightning rods that protect electric transmission systems, the Engineering Institute at its next meeting is devoting an evening to radio subjects that should bring out a big audience for the meeting in Paragon Hall Thursday, March 9.

It will be the annual junior and student night, and the speakers will be J. R. Dunn of the C.G.E. test department, Toronto, on "Radio Aids to Aerial Navigation" and B. K. Scarlett of the engineering department of the C.G.E. who will give a paper on "Radio Fundamentals." He has made a hobby of radio and will discuss what makes it function. There is no admission charge for the meeting, and apparently everybody will be welcome. The twin addresses should be of special appeal to those who want to know more about the radio operation than merely turning a button.

Radio Dealer Has Narrow Escape

Ken McCannan, Simcoe street radio dealer, had a narrow escape from serious injury Tuesday afternoon when an ornamental iron gable dropped from a Simcoe street building and crashed to the street a few feet away from him. The gable weighed some fifteen pounds and the result would undoubtedly have been serious had it fallen upon Mr. McCannan.

Two Snowplows, Two Teams And Seven Men Work Hours To Open Cemetery Road

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 1. — Seven men using two teams of horses and two snowplows labored for nearly four hours yesterday morning to clear a road for 300 yards at Trent Valley cemetery here to permit a funeral to pass. They plowed five times through snow that averaged from six to eight feet before they reached a level which would permit a sleigh to pass over without danger of upsetting. The main road from this village to the cemetery was in a condition that only sleighs could use.

Funeral services were held in Trinity United Church here yesterday afternoon for the late Mrs. Jane Johnston who died Saturday. The cortege to the graveyard was reminiscent of the days before cars came into being. Heading the procession of two vehicles were the pall-bearers sitting on an open sleigh and following was the hearse mounted on runners and horse drawn.

Application was made to Peterborough county yesterday for a snow plow to clear the road from Westwood corners in a side road for a mile and a quarter to permit a funeral to take place Thursday morning. Snow on this road is reported a depth of six to eight feet and barely passable for sleighs. William McEachnie, funeral director, reached the home yesterday by car but he was pulled most of the way behind a team. The most direct route from the house to Hastings is plugged so full that it was discarded as a source of travel.

Highway number 45 from Cobourg to Norwood is still impassable as the snow plow has never reached here since the heavy snow fall of last Sunday. The noon mail reaching here from Norwood each day is brought around by Westwood. The road to Warkworth is also plugged for motor travel and motorists are forced to detour part way down the Campbellford road to Bethany corners. Side roads are all blocked with little hope of the farmers getting their cars out until a healthy thaw.

Gates Is Found Guilty Of Common Assault

Declaring that he was satisfied that an assault had been committed upon the complainant without any legal justification, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in police court this morning found James Gates Sr. guilty of assaulting Stanley Clark on February 11. His Worship, however, reduced the charge from the original one of assault occasioning actual bodily harm and found Gates guilty on common assault.

The accused was fined $15 and $9 costs, with the alternative of 15 days in jail.

'Next time there will be no fine but a jail sentence," he informed Gates, at the same time pointing out that he could have sentenced him to two months in jail on the present charge.

Mrs. Rose Gates, wife of the accused was the first witness called by the defence this morning, and she swore that after she and her husband had returned home from town that morning she had seen Clark poking a stick through the fence at her husband and that a stone was thrown from the Clark side of the fence in the direction of her husband. After the fight she said that Mrs. Clark had apologized to her for what had happened.

Called in rebuttal Clark denied that he had torn a board off the fence as alleged by defence witnesses, and Mrs. Clark testified that she had not apologized to Mrs. Gates, as the latter had stated.

After the arguments of W. J. Arthur Fair for the defence and Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., for the prosecution had been heard, Magistrate Langley gave judgment. He was satisfied, he said that there had been an assault but it was doubtful whether it had caused actual bodily harm.

Tuesday's evidence.

After the complainant's case had been concluded in Tuesday afternoon's session of the police court, Gates himself and his two sons James Jr. and William took the witness stand and flatly denied most of the statements made by the complainant's witnesses.

The first witness for the prosecution after the luncheon period was Charles Munden, a neighbor of the Clarks and Gates, who gave evidence as to the line fence between the two properties.

Clark was recalled and explained that when his step-son had said during the morning session that stones were thrown by the witness and by James Gates Sr., the boy referred to something that had taken place later in the day and after the fight already described. Clark said that after the police had been up to investigate the affair he went out into his yard and the two Gates boys had thrown stones at him. He had returned the fire.

Defence Evidence.

James Gates Jr. was the first witness called by Mr. Fair for the defence, and he testified that the trouble had arisen over the fact that Clark had damaged the fence put up by the Gates'. The witness denied that he and his brother and father had piled on Clark and hit him, and said that Clark had started things by throwing stones after Gates Sr. had appeared on the scene. Witness said that Clark slipped and fell in the snow and that he had fallen at the same time but maintained when cross-examined by Mr. Kerr, that he had not struck Clark nor had he seen his father strike the complainant.

William Gates, another son, gave similar testimony, although he stated that he did not see his brother strike Clark when Clark was down. He swore that he did not hit Clark and that he had not seen his father hit the complainant. Both boys denied the story told by the Clarks that one of the Gates' boys had climbed over the fence.

James Gates Sr. also gave a flat denial to most of what had been said by the complainant. He said that Clark had thrown stones and called him a foul name and that the other only time he had struck at Clark was when the latter tried to hit him with a stick.

Gates said that the stones produced as an exhibit had been thrown by Clark and must have come out of the complainant's cellar.

After Gates had been cross-examined at length by Mr. Kerr the case was adjourned until Wednesday morning.

Enforcing Code

Toronto Doctor Removes Diseased Gland

TORONTO, March 1. — (CP).— Surgeons to-day operated on Maurice Fleming, 20, Sudbury hockey player, whose body has been slowly shrinking because of an obscure bone disease known to science as "hyperparathyroidism." A diseased parathyroid gland, no bigger than a grain of rice, was removed by Dr. R. I. Harris.

The operation was never before attempted in Toronto General Hospital and only one similar case has ever been reported here.

In six months, Maurice lost 55 pounds. Until last summer he had never been really sick in his life. Three months ago he was admitted to hospital, too weak to move. His body had shrivelled to 85 pounds.

His illness was first diagnosed as diabetes. Then it was rediagnosed as tonsilitis. His tonsils were removed but still the malady's progress was not arrested. Finally he was ordered here for examination.

Broke Both Legs.

By a twist of fate, Maurice provided the medical world with the clue to his afflictions. The day he was to leave for Toronto he slipped and fell, breaking both legs and his right arm. His arm has mended but his legs are still in casts.

X-ray pictures of the fractures were sent to Toronto and it was immediately apparent to Dr. Harris what was causing the steady loss of weight and continuous fatigue from which Maurice suffered. His bones lacked calcium.

A diet of chicken, beefsteaks, strawberries and cream and like delicacies has been given Maurice to help overcome the calcium deficiency. The parathyroid glands act as the custodian of the calcium content in the blood. A diseased gland impairs the calcium deposits in the bones.

George Evans Passes Away In 69th Year

The death of George Evans, member of the City Council for several terms more than a decade ago, and a merchant tailor for many years, came as a shock to his many friends in Peterborough last night. Mr. Evans died at his home at 802 Water Street at about 6 o'clock in the evening after an illness that had lasted for about a year. He was 68 years old and had lived in this city all his life.

As well-known for his church work as for his civic service, he was an admirable type of citizen and will be greatly mourned in Peterborough. He was clerk of sessions of St. Andrew's United Church for many years until last year, when he was forced to retire due to ill-health He was still an elder in the church at the time of his death. His pastor, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young, paid high tribute to his service this morning. "Mr. Evans was a great friend of the ministers," he said. "When I came to Peterborough he took me through the country, introducing me to my new parishioners. He was of the greatest possible assistance."

Mr. Evans was also prominent in the fraternal life of Peterborough. A past master of Peterborough Lodge, A.F. & A.M., he was also a member of Moore Preceptory. He was a member and prominent in the activity of Peterborough Lodge, I. O. O. F.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Enos Evans of this city, he was educated in Peterborough schools.

His wife predeceased him in 1937. Surviving are one son, George H., of Toronto; and two daughters, Mrs. H. O. Almas of Peterborough and Mrs. M. M. Kerneghan of Peterborough. Also remaining are three brothers, Harry and Wallace of Peterborough and Dr. Russell P. of Hamilton; and one sister, Mrs. Fred G. Adams of Toronto.

The funeral service will be conducted on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Funeral Home of A. Comstock and Sons, 305 Water Street, Rev. Dr. E. W. Young of St. Andrew's United Church officiating. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery.

COMES IN LIKE A LION

The March lion woke with a start last night and roared in mighty volume. Peterborough citizens stirred in their sleep, huddled deeper in to their covers. This morning the jungle king was still shaking his mane and growling fiercely, but no one was greatly alarmed. for doesn't the proverb promise that the bleat of a lamb shall follow?

It Pays To Look After Your Health

Keeping your nervous system functioning properly is a great aid to the health of all bodily tissues.

The vital organs are supplied by nerves which leave the spinal cord through openings between segments of the spinal column.

Here constriction may occur and when it does a portion of the nerve energy is shut off from the tissues supplied by those constricted nerves.

This means weakness, disordered function and disease in those tissues.

Spinal manipulative treatments pay good dividends in health, strength and productive energy.

Kayak II, Cravat Favorites For Handicap

LOS ANGELES, March 1.—(AP)—It does seem that Santa Anita, having built one of the finest multi-million dollar racing plants in the world, could go another step forward and put in a nice, comfortable wailing wall for use around dusk Saturday after the running of its $100,000 horse race.

Such an adition has been needed ever since they staged the first $100,000 special five years ago and the followers of the great Equipoise, an even money shot which finished seventh, had reason to organize an Southern California Chapter of the Aching Hearts Society.

The next year, amidst a tremendous demonstration of wailing the Discovery Branch of the Lodge was founded. Discovery having swept in a brilliant seventh to tie Equipoise's achievement, and in 1938 all membership records wer broken when the mighty Seabiscuit was beaten by that upstart, Stagehand.

The Seabiscuit mourners are still in active session, and who knows but that a monster wake will follow the fifth running of the race three days hence, with, for instance, the Cravat lamenters group or the Kayak II cult joining forces with holdovers of the Seabiscuit congregation.

The Two Favorites

The Kayak faction, which has a stable relation with the Seabiscuit crowd, and Cravat's admirers seem to be the most numerous at this writing, followed closely by the Whichcee and Specify rooters, who could contribute a community cry if these two speed burners killed each other off in the early stages and some stretch charger like Heelfly came on in.

Whichcee, it may be recalled, jumped into a lead over Seabiscuit, Stagehand, Aneroid, Pompoon and the rest of the field in the big 'cap last year but ran himself out by the half-mile mark and straggled in 11th. He had not real public following at that time however but he made many friends last Saturday when he whipped the field in the 1⅛-mile San Antonio and he can make many more if he can do the same at the mile and a quarter this week.

Quaker Aces Win Girls' Cage Tilt

Quaker Aces scored twice in overtime to beat Westclox 15-11 in a thrilling Ladies' City League game in the Collegiate gym last night to retain possession of first place.

Westclox were ahead by a small margin in the dying minutes but the Aces tied it up at 11-all and won out in the six minutes of overtime. It was 4-3 for Westclox at the half and they increased their lead to start the last period, only to lose out.

It was a fast, close-checking but clean game all the way with the issue in doubt from whistle to whistle. Quakers had a small margin in play, their passing being a little more efficient, but neither squad had a big edge at any time. Referee H. Smith called 12 fouls in all, 5 against the winners and 7 on Westclox, with Aces making 1 free throw and the losers 3. H. Cole retained her position as league-leading scorer, pacing the Quaker attack with 9 points while J. Fowler and D. Weese also starred. C. Whatman and M. Allison were best for the losers. The teams:

Westclox (11)—M. Hawthorne, N. Pammett, D. Dawson, J. Crowe, C Metcalfe (2), J. Hair (1), M. Allison (4), C. Whatman (4), M. McFadden, P. Wolstenholme.

Quaker Aces—H. Cole (9), P. Lawless, M. Hooton, E. Kirn, H. Howden, D. Weese (4), J. Fowler (2).

Referee—H. Smith.

HAVELOCK

Mixed Doubles In Club Play

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 1—The Havelock Badminton Club finished up their February schedule Tuesday evening with a lively round-robin of mixed doubles and "pot luck" supper.

For the next few weeks, both Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be open to all members. Anyone may play on these nights during the hours of 6.30 to 12 p.m. This new arrangement is to be tried out, instead of the usual grouping method, in which the club was divided into four groups, each with separate playing hours

Results of play was as follows:

E. Russell and G. Kemp defeated M. Armstrong and R. Spalding, 15-1.

M. Jones and B Harryett defeated E. Russell and D. F. Miller, 15-7.

J. Hoffman and J. Covert defeated M. Leng and B. Jones, 15-9.

M. Armstrong and G. Kemp defeated Mr. and Mrs. G. Wright, 15-5.

M. Leng and R. Spalding defeated M. Roche and A. Poste, 15-5.

M. Jones and D.F. Miller defeated G. Thomson and B. Marryett, 18-16.

J. Hoffman and W. Snoddy defeated E. Russell and G. Kemp, 15-12.

M. Leng and B. Jones defeated M. Armstrong and W. Snoddy, 15-9.

G. Brennan and E. Williams defeated M. Jones and B. Quinn, 18-17.

J. Hoffman and B. Harryett defeated M. Leng and G. Wright, 15-4.

G. Brennan and D. F. Miller defeated M. Jones and A. Poste, 17-13.

J Hoffman and W. Snoddy defeated M. Leng and R. Spalding, 15-8.

M. Armstrong and E. Williams defeated E. Russell and B. Quinn, 15-7.

M. Jones and G. Wright defeated G. Brennan and D. F. Miller, 16-9.

Joe Louis Agrees To Meet Galento

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 1 (AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs made his expected announcement today that Tony Galento would meet Joe Louis in a heavyweight championship bout sometime in June. Two-Ton Tony signed for the bout late last night and Jacobs said Louis' agreement was assured. Jacobs said the fight probably would be in New York, Philadelphia or Chicago.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By the Associated Press)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 1 — (AP) — Paul Krichell's target which he devised to help the pitchers learn control and Rookie Charley Keller from Newark are two main points of interest in the New York Yankee camp. The target won't be tested until the flingers are ready to cut loose but Keller already has been performing with his big bat and it's reported he can hit a ball farther into left field than any Yankee since Babe Ruth.

LAKE CHARLES, La.—Ready for action, Philadelphia Athletics advance squad arrived today for spring training. Lamar Newsome, who joined the group at Opelika, Ala. with Lou Finney, said he was confident of regaining his shortstop post. He was hit on the head on the way north last spring and was out all season.

CLEARWATER, Fla. — Although the Brooklyn squad has been pretty thoroughly overhauled since last season, manager Leo Durocher still is looking for one more player. What he wants is someone like Pat Crawford, who was so valuable to the Cardinals five years ago. "He could play any position in the infield or outfield," Leo explained, "and what a pinch hitter!"

BRADENTON, Fla. — With one casualty already reported, Manager Stengel of the Boston Bees is bearing down on his pitcher and catchers. Freddy Frankhouse was hit on the knee by a batted ball during the first session but escaped with a bruise. Al Simmons, Casey's new outfielder, delivered several good wallops at bat.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

A dash of water to start it. Coach Gord Minty of the "Y" swimmers says big doings now at the George St. natatorium, 24 lads already being enrolled in two boy scout life-saving classes, a third being organized in the "Y" boys' division. In the men's section, the second yearly swim-to-nowhere begins today and runs till the end of April. It's a 15-mile marathon, being done in 15-minute heats. Crests to all who finish and special prizes to the three fastest swimmers. Gold, silver and bronze medals also for those doing the jaunt in less than 6 hours and 30 minutes, seven hours, and eight hours, respectively. Or even respectably! Local aqua cleavers travel—but not by water—to Toronto Saturday to compete at the Broadview "Y" Club, and also to attend the Canadian championship water polo game betwixt Montreal A.A.A. and Toronto Central "Y".

While down in Kingston on a puck trip night before last, we talked to some of the baseball gents of that town. Ran into Bob Elliott first, manager of the ex-Ponies; later saw Wally Elmer, of the ex-Ponies' executive; and finally Bill Walshe, Kingston scribe and ball scorer. All were unanimous in saying the Kingstons would not be back in senior ball this coming season. Might not have an intermediate club, even, but hoped to start a gradual revival with maybe a city ball league. They were most emphatic in saying that the senior Ponies had folded for this year.

* * * * * *

Wally Dislikes Bill

Some of the reasons given were slack times, with no chance of importing several stars, poor gates at their semi-open park, lack of interest by responsible parties, and finally a dislike for the way the O.B.A. treated 'em last year. Elmer was particularly peeved at Secretary Bill Snyder of the Ontario body for tossing Kingston out. Said he wasn't blaming the C.O.B.L. nor the Petes, but felt Snyder—unlike Hewitt of the O.H.A.—wouldn't give a struggling club a break, but persisted in clamping down on the sport that made him. Bob Elliott, in a fanning bee, boosted the diamond ability of such recent Central Loop stars as Vinny McQuaide of Kingston, Tommy Foley and Red Jubenville of Oshawa, and Eddie Murphy and Bob Doll of the Petes.

* * * * * *

Ere leaving baseball for a spell—a milder spell—we hear that Oshawa has applied for a berth in the T.A.B.A. The O.B.A. will not grant permission unless sure that there is no chance of a C.O.B.L. but the chances are slimmer than a skeleton's ankles. Two Toronto clubs would join Oshawa and the Petes in a loop but insist upon pooled gates to help pay their way, and neither the GM-men nor the locals can see that. So it looks like Oshawa are not going to wait upon the Petes but plan to get into a grouping themselves, somehow or other. And it doesn't look too promising for Peterborough in senior ball right now. Though something may pop up later to brighten the local diamond picture. We hope.

Petes Readying Up

Rested up after their first game in a couple weeks, and a long tiresome trip, the Petes' puckists are getting set for the return O.H.A. senior "B" playdown game here Friday 'gainst Kingston. The homesters are hanging onto a two-goal lead and they think they can take the Limestone City steppers on local ice, but they figure on a real fight. The Kingstons are fast, experienced and plenty tough—and they'll be doing lots of ganging up and forcing the play, with elimination staring 'em in the mug. This will be a redhot, open tussle and should pack in the customers — the folks who glory in these senior "B" playoff battles.

Lindsay Post puts the blast on our junior Monarchs, not only for defaulting their game Monday in Lindsay, or just because they didn't notify the Midgets' management till around seven that eve, but mainly for holding the Scugog squad up for $20 expense money to make the trip. Said they couldn't make the trip without this dough. Well, seems the Lindsay gang 'phoned Sec. Hewitt of the O.H.A. and he said the crowd of fans must be considered, to pay the Petes the money and he'd attend to that matter later. Now this is the Lindsay side of it and we haven't heard from the locals yet—though we're curious to know why Lindsay would let them get away with such a demand. Why not just say: "Come up here for nothing, and like it." But, no, that juicy gate meant something. However, if it is true, the Monarchs deserve all they'll get from the O.H.A.

Doesn't Smell Good

This Post item is quite true: "We are expecting to see the Monarchs get a blast from their own paper when the truth of the mixup is heard down in the Liftlock City. The majority of Peterborough fans and their scribe are proud of the Peterborough teams' ability to pay their own way around the circuit. They won't like the idea of the Petes begging expense money from the Midgets and they won't like the general smell that surrounds the whole setup." No doubt there is much to be said on both sides of the fence and the sooner the unsavory mess is aired the better it'll be for both towns. We await with interest the Monarchs' side of it.

Quaker Aces took a 15-11 girls' cage win over Westclox in overtime last p.m. at P.C.I. gym in a dandy joust. Gals' games this week will be postponed until next week when the new Y.W. gym may be ready. As for the L.O.B.A. lasses' playoffs, Belleville and our Orfuns clash at eight tomorrow e'en in the P.C.I. court; it may be a sudden-death tilt or the first of two out of three in group semi-finals. Matter will be decided ere game time. At nine p.m. tomorrow there, C.G.E. plays Port Hope Rascals, male grads of Port Hope High, in an exhibition fray for the fun of it. Senior boys and senior gals of P.C.I. have games in Lindsay this Friday. And there are three senior men's cage contests slated for the "Y" on Saturday gloaming, but what about that church playoff there?

CURLING

By HERB. MARTIN

The "Leads and Seconds" competition got under way last evening and will continue each night until winners have been declared.

For the first night the boys turned out almost 100 per cent. and that shows just how much interest these younger lads take in their curling.

Nearly all the games were well contested and the brand of curling was pretty good considering it was the first time some of the boys had ever stood on the rings and had charge of the game. There was one thing that stood out more than anything else. There was none of this holding a post-mortem over a shot. There's the shot, get it or miss it, take or leave it.

A Trotsky Plot

WINDSOR, Ont., Mar. 1 — (CP). —H. B. Rand, national commissioner of the Anglo-Saxon Federation of America, told the Windsor branch of the British-Israel World Federation that Leon Trotsky, former Communist from Russia, is plotting in Mexico to take over the United States by revolution. "Detroit already has been named Lewisburg on their maps," he said.

More than 16,000 schools have been built in Russian in four years.

Edmonton Grads Star and Award

When Edmonton Grads, nonpareils of the basketball floor, attended a National Hockey League game between Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs en masse, it was, in addition to being one of high spots of their tour of the east, the occasion for the presentation of the Rose Bowl, awarded annually to the girl voted Canada's outstanding feminine athlete, to Noel MacDonald, Grad centre star, who was recipient for 1938. Miss MacDonald, who ran into an attack of the 'flu in Toronto, had to receive a doctor's O.K. before she could journey to Maple Leaf Gardens for the official presentation.

It's A Grand Old Game Is Curling But Women Find It Not Slimming

WINNIPEG, March 1.—CP)—Some sports may expedite slimming but not the "roarin' game" of curling on the ice, Manitoba women at the annual bonspiel have decided.

Mrs. J. H. Kliewer of the St. Vital club, brought her baby along, Iris Mae, a chubby, curly-haired tot, dressed in a red snow suit like her mother.

"Curling is grand exercise, but no good for reducing!" said the women playing in the opening games. "In fact, it's the way to put on pounds. Why, the first year I played," volunteered a woman from the St. Vital club, "I gained 40 pounds." The St. Vital women balanced the scales at such weight as 147 and 168 pounds, one of their number weighing close to 200.

The idea wasn't a bit appalling. They laughed heartily at themselves, prodding each other other's arms and backs. "You see, we work so hard out there on the ice we come in ravenous and eat all we can get."

In the Fort Garry Curling club, where some of the games were being played, an egg beater whirling busily punctuated the comment. It was the young man in the white cap behind the refreshment bar.

He had a brown bowl full of whipped cream. He spread the entire contents on top of a butterscotch pie.

The women looked very trim in their snow suits and peak helmets, "much better than we did when we wore tight skirts and jumbo sweaters," they were quick to comment. How long had women been curling? Not in the Victoria days, certainly, when the womanly thing to do was swoon, look delicate and raise big families. Picking up 40-pound rocks wouldn't have done at all. Winnipeg women began curling in 1904.

Asked how their families fared while they were at the bonspiel, they said, "Oh, we leave things ready. Besides, we'll be home for dinner." One player reported: "I'll tell you what I did yesterday, then you'll understand. I made a big pot of soup, a chocolate pie, cooked a lot of lima beans, plenty of peas, and a roast of beef. I worked! And I made this hat besides," she added triumphantly. It was a red and white felt cap, finished with pinking, with a little appliqued rock and monogramed in front.

"Yes," interrupted the umpire at the Fort Garry rink, who was a man, "either that or they phone their husbands to look in the ice box!" The women plopped him down good naturedly.

So much for the first day at the rinks. "It's just the beginning of a glorious week," they beamed. Another played said she managed because it was her annual holiday. "My family does the cooking for me, while I have my bonspiel week off," she said.

THE SPORTS ROUND-UP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, March 1.—(AP)—Man on the spot: Bill McKechnie, manager of the Reds and the peepul's cherce to win the National Baseball League bunting...Patrick Edward Comiskey has enough offers to keep him fighting seven nights a week, including a $5,000 bid to box George James, Welsh heavyweight, in London...Al Bannister, an old pal of sports writing days in the south, is off to a fine start as president of Columbus Red Birds.

John Roxborough, co-manager of Joe Louis, is supposed to be bankrolling the John Henry Lewis-Dave Clark fight in Detroit March 31...Clark is a protege of Roxborough's and is always on hand as a sparmate in Joe Louis' training camps...Eddie Miller, the wrestling maestro, is officially listed as promoter, but insiders insist Roxborough is putting up the dough...John Henry still is light-heavyweight champ in almost every state except New York and Roxborough may wake up April 1 to find himself manager of two world champions...Not a bad April fool.

Al Schact and Moe Berg had the very devil of a time taking off for Florida...Time to go and Al couldn't remember where he parked his car the night before...Waite Hoyt, the old pitcher, interviewed Ford Frick, president of the National League on the air last night...Oscar Vitt, Cleveland, sporting a brand new set of store teeth and Dolph Camilli hit the Dodger camp at Clearwater sporting a five-gallon hat, a full beard and moustache.

Next to Wes Wallace of Fordham, Harvard's Jim Lightbody, Jr., is about the fastest man at 600 yards around...But he won't run the distance because he wants to run with the Harvard two-mile relay team which have a chance of placing in the Intercollegiate Association of Amateur Athletics of America meet Saturday night...If it does and wins only one point, each member will get his "H"...With Lightbody out the Crimson doesn't stand such a fat chance so, for the second year in succession the kid is giving up a swell chance for a major individual title so his teammates can get their letters.

Holdout Problem Begins To Worry Moguls Of The Major League

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, Mar. 1 — (AP). — Now that all the major league ball clubs have a batch of players in training camp or en route there, even the hard-to-convince business managers are beginning to admit there is a holdout problem again this year.

The bosses seldom call a player a holdout until he fails to turn up in camp. Then they usually try to laugh it off but this year they're having a hard time getting around the determined statements of such stubborn gents as Paul Waner, Joe Medwick, Van Mungo, Dick Coffman, Buck Newsom, and Luke Appling.

Coffman conferred with Manager Bill Terry of the Giants at Hot Springs and got nothing but an ultimatum. Terry said the veteran flinger had been given a raise in mid-season last year and another for the coming campaign and that would be all. To this Dick replied, "But it still ain't enough."

The other holdout arguments mostly have reached the waiting stage. Mungo, offered a cut from $15,000 to $5,000, has returned two contracts and says he'll stay in Pageland, S.C., unless he's offered a lot more. Brooklyn Boss Larry MacPhail retorts, "I hope he does." The elder Waner also has returned the proferred document twice with the remark, "It must have been written with a surgeon's knife."

In addition to the temperatmental flinger, the Dodgers also have Babe Phelps regular catcher, Charley George, Bill Crouch, Fred Sington, Tot Pressnell, Luke Hamlin and Whitlow Wyatt to deal with.

Others On The List.

Other long holdout lists belong to Cleveland Indians and St. Louis Browns, while only Boston Red Sox, Detroit Tigers, and the Phillies have reported their contract lists complete.

The world champion Yankees aren't saying much and perhaps they don't know just what to expect, but Joe DiMaggio, last year's loudest and most stubborn objector, Red Rolfe, Joe Gordon and Frank Crosetti remain unsigned. Gordon, en route to Florida, wants a few details straightened out, while DiMaggio, ominously silent is stid to be asking for the money he lost by reporting late last year.

Cleveland's list, reduced yesterday when Hal Trosky and Bruce Campbell signed, includes Rollie Hemsley, Earl Averill, Lyn Lary, Mel Harder, Jeff Heath and Johnny Brosca, who changed his mind after saying he'd sign up. The Browns' holdout collection, headed by the talkative Newsom who's still mentioning $20,000, takes in such players as Russ Van Atta, Don Heffner, Billy Sullivan and Mel Almada.

Bowling Results

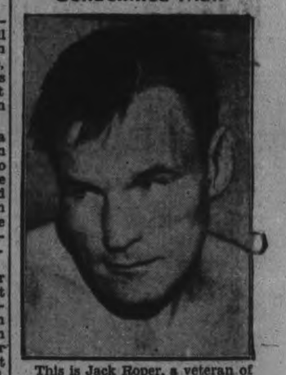
The C.G.E. League: V. Craig 663; E. Donavan 632; G. Robertson 631; P. B. Munroe 623 and E. Burton 611.

The Raybestos-Nashua League—A. Morrison 676; P. Collins 655; R. Lewis 648; L. Burton 646; Haynes 642.

The Mercantile League—W. Muirhead 960; J. Lynch 658; B. O'Toole 631; O. Price 617; W. Muir 603 (308); Mrs. W. Jeffries 500; Margaret Parker 466; Mrs. Hendry 465; Vera McInvoy 464 and M. Allison 405.

Condemned Man



This is Jack Roper, a veteran of many, many years of ring warfare, whom promoter Mike Jacobs and a Los Angeles confederate are threatening to impose on the public as an opponent of champion Joe Louis, come April. The idea has drawn forth numerous blistering press attacks, but the manner in which the curious flock to witness "Louis killings" makes it at least possible that the idea will be carried out.

$1,000 In Oysters

BALTIMORE, March 1—(AP). Paul Safchuck paid a dollar for some oysters—and profited a thousand per cent. In one oyster he found a pearl which he said a jeweler told him was worth more than $1,000.

Leafs Tie Amerks 1-1 In Dull Test; Bruins Whip Canadiens 6-2 To Leave Last Position A Tossup

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

The National Hockey League schedule-makers didn't realize it. But they couldn't have done a better job of preserving customer interest right to the finish of the present campaign. The fight for the fifth and sixth places in the playoffs may be carried through to the last game of the schedule.

Three nights before the schedule ends March 19, Chicago plays the Canadiens at Montreal. On the final night Chicago meets the Red Wings at Detroit, while the Canadiens tackle the Bruins at Boston. There's a strong possibility it will take one or all three of those games to eliminate Detroit, Montreal or Chicago, who currently are running fifth, sixth and seventh respectively.

The battle among the trailers was intensified last night when the league - leading Bruins whipped the Canadiens 6-2 at Boston, ending the Montrealers' great four - game winning run. Detroit is two points up on the Canadiens, who are a point ahead of Chicago.

Bill Cowley

After picking up three points in two week - end games with the second-place New York Rangers, the Canadiens were exhausted for the meeting with the top team. Boston scored five times before the Habitants finally replied when it was too late to do much.

Cowley the Go-Getter.

Bill Cowley led the Bruin attack, scoring one goal and assisting in two others. He helped Dit Clapper on the counter that gave Boston a first-period lead. After Gordon Pettinger and Roy Crawford made the advantage 3-0 in the second, Cowley and Clapper relayed the puck to Mel Hill for the fourth goal.

Milt Schmidt extended it to 5-0 in the third before Smith finally broke through for Canadiens. Less than two minutes from the finish Cowley got his goal and then Toe Blake of Canadiens. The league's point-making leader, maintained his advantage over the pack by closing the scoring.

Toronto Maple Leafs would have caught New York's third-place Americans in their game at New York but for the spectacular goaltending of Earl Robertson of the Americans. The Leafs rushed spasmodically all through the dull affair and came out with nothing better than a hard-earned 1-1 overtime tie.

Gus Marker

Lorne Carr gave New York a lead with less than seven minutes to play in the regular time, and it seemed all Toronto's rushing was in vain. But in a minute and a half Gus Marker pulled Toronto even on a relay from Red Horner and Doc Romnes, and in the extra period the Leafs went on peppering Robertson to no avail.

Frankie Genaro of New York outpinted Pancho Villo, Filipino, in 15 rounds at New York 16 years ago to-night to win the world flyweight boxing championship. The swarthy Genaro lost the title to Fidel La Barba in 1925, won it back in 1930, and dropped it the following year.

Port Hope Club Loses Here In Badminton

Peterborough Military Badminton Club defeated the Port Hope Garrison Club in an inter-club badminton tournament here on Monday, 16 to 8. Ladies', men's and mixed doubles were played with the visitors making their best showing in keenly-contested mixed competition where they won five matches, taking two men's doubles and one in ladies' play.

Results were: Miss Adams and Mrs. Preston defeated Miss Davidson and Miss Scott, 16-8 and 15-12; Miss Donaghue and Mrs. Stuart won from the Misses Armstrong, 15-8 and 15-11; it was 15-9 and 15-12 for Mrs. Putnam and Mrs. Matthews over Miss Fox and Miss McBride; Mrs. Selkirk and Mrs. Green were successful against Misses White and Peacock, 15-11, 16-17, and 15-10; Mrs. Clifton and Miss Ackford defeated Mrs. Foote and Miss Johnson by scores of 15-13, 16-18, and 18-15; and the Port Hope pair of Mrs. Clarke and Miss White won from Mrs. Sparrow and Miss Scott of Peterborough, 15-11, 18-13, and 15-11.

Men's Doubles.

Men's doubles resulted: Messrs. Putnam and Brown of the locals lost to Harrison and J. Brackenbury of Port Hope, 15-8 and 15-6; Black and Baker of Military Club defeated Wynn and Quantrill, 15-12, 12-15, and 15-11; Green and Sparrow won from the Messrs. Ryan of Port Hope, 15-9 and 15-10; Preston and Bailey of Peterborough were successful against Barmeville and Brackenbury 15-12, 12-15 and 15-12; the Port Hope duo of Marsh and Quantrill beat Tollington and Drynan, 15-10, 6-15, and 15-9; and Allin and Macdonald of Peterborough won from Colquhoun and Gallagher, 15-4 and 15-7.

In mixed doubles, results were: Miss Adams and D. Black lost to Miss Davidson and J. Brackenbury of Port Hope, 15-7 and 15-8; Miss Donaghue and R. Baker fell before Miss Fox and C. Harrison of Port Hope, 15-6 and 15-7; Mrs. Putnam and J. Green of Peterborough defeated Miss A. Armstrong and E. Quantrill, 15-12 and 15-12; Mrs. Matthews and G. Putnam of the home club won 15-8 and 18-13 against Miss E. Armstrong and E. M. Wynn; Mrs. Preston and W. Preston of Peterborough lost to Miss A. McBride and H. Wynn, 15-11, 6-15 and 18-17; Mrs. Stuart and G. Bailey of Peterborough were defeated by Miss M. Scott and Stuart Ryan, 15-8, 6-15, and 17-14; Mrs. Selkirk and G. Tollington won over Miss White and L. These wise and devoted children see that their bibulous father gets his dose of Castor Oil after his accustomed spree—in this scene from John Barrymore's new screen comedy, "The Great Man Votes." On either side of John are seven-year-old Peter Holden, playing his first screen role after his sensational success in the New York stage hit, "On Borrowed Time," and little Virginia Weidler, eleven-year-old veteran of the screen. Both youngsters are featured in the RKO Radio cast. Appearing at the New Centre theatre double feature starting Thursday.

Warn Gun Owners To Re-Register

HAMILTON, Ont., Mar. 1—(CP)—Magistrate H. A. Burbidge remarked in police court today "a lot of good citizens may find themselves in trouble because they do not know that they must re-register any revolvers or pistols they own between March 1 and July 1 of this year."

The magistrate's remarks came after he had imposed two fines of $25 and costs, or 30 days, on Charles Annis, 25, on two charges of possession of unregistered weapons. The jail terms are to be consecutive if the fines are not paid.

An amendment to the criminal code calls for reregistration of revolvers and pistols every five years and sets the period at from March 1, 1939, to July 1, 1939, and the same period every five years thereafter.

There are 2,967 pistols and revolvers registered here. The code makes no discrimination between the most modern revolver and what might be called a museum piece.

Find Law Unfair

PONTIAC, Mich., Mar. 1—(CP)—Michigan's law designed to control sausage production by licensing sausage-makers was ruled invalid in circuit court here when the judge found the law was discriminatory because it aided chain stores.

The statue established a $5 license for each store, but chains with 21 or more stores paid only $50.

FAMILY BIVOUAC

ROMFORD, England—(CP)—A father was sent to prison for three months for neglecting his five children, police discovering the family bivouacing in a field. He said "I was born in a field and I am all right and the children are all right."

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN JOHNSTON.
(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, Mar. 1. — The unexpected death of Mrs. Jane Insley Johnston on Saturday at her home in Hastings, came as a shock to her many friends. After visiting a friend's home in the village, she was seized with a heart attack, culminating in her death.

Before her marriage 26 years ago to her late husband, John Johnston, she resided in Percy Township. Daughter of the late Jane Huff and Daniel Insley, who were the second settlers of the Dutch Line, she was one of a family of six children, only one remaining, Miss Alzina Insley of Rochester.

The late Mrs. Johnston, who spent her childhood and girlhood days on the farm where she was born, was educated in the Dutch Line School. Possessed with a fine Christian spirit, she was a member of Trinity United Church and Sunday School, and had been an enthusiastic member of the W.M.S. and W.A.

Her nephew, Rev. S. A. Kemp of Oshawa, formerly of Havelock, was the only relative able to be present at her funeral, which was held on Tuesday afternoon from her late residence on Front Street, thence to Trinity United Church for the burial service at 2 p.m., conducted by her pastor, Rev. F. W. Newell.

Interment was in the Trent Valley Cemetery.

Pall-bearers were: A. V. German, A. J. Brown, M. J. Baker, Tom Kirk, L. E. Kelley, and J. E. Oliver.

Evening Up

PARIS, Ont., March 1—(CP). — While sinking fund payments were in arrears, the company purchased bonds at advantageous prices in the open market, considerably offsetting this condition, George A. Dobbie, president of Gypsum, Lime and Alabastine, Limited, told shareholders at the company's annual meeting held here yesterday. Reports were adopted and directors re-elected.

Women Turn To Fish For Spring Fashions

CHICAGO, Mar. 1—(AP)—Women are going to hang strings of fish around their necks for fashion's sake this spring.

That was the forecast made today by exhibitors of new whims in costume jewelry. The fish are of glass or colored composition, minnow-sized, and attached to link necklaces and bracelets.

If the fancy doesn't run to two-inch fish in crystal white, or, for instance, there's a bracelet strung with amethyst sea-horses.

The sea has contributed much to this spring's style news.

All manner of small sea-shells have been fashioned into decorative gadgets to add novelty to pre-Easter costumes.

Smooth sea-shells about the size of a dollar and in the gay spring colors have been made into clips. Small cone shells are linked into cluster clips, necklaces and bracelets.

Dog Sounds Alarm Saves Family

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 1—(CP)—"Frank," a house-dog, sounded the alarm that allowed a family of four to escape today when fire threatened the York township home of Mrs. Thomas Phillips. The dog became so excited as the family escaped that he was marooned in the kitchen and was almost overcome by smoke.

The Phillips were asleep when the fire broke out and "Frank," scampering up and down stairs and whimpering, awakening Kenneth, 17, who aroused his mother and his two brothers, George, 33, and Bud, 17. They escaped without having time to dress fully.

A kitchen window had to be smashed to allow the dog to escape.

Guild Is Planning St. Patrick's Supper

(Examiner Correspondence.)

APSLEY, Mar. 1.—The Women's Guild of St. George's Anglican Church met in the rectory Thursday evening with a good attendance. The meeting was opened by the president, Mrs. J. Downing after prayer and Bible reading. The sunshine committee reported quite a few visits made to the sick and also to the Red Cross Hospital. The committee for the play and St. Patrick's supper to be held on March 17 gave a splendid report, the play being well under way. Several members reported tickets sold and ready for sale on the treasure chest to be drawn on March 17th. A quilting bee was arranged. Members to meet on Wednesday, March 1 in the Parish Hall at 10.30 a.m. Two quilts, one for the Junior W.A. and one for the guild are to be finished. A pot luck dinner to be served in the new kitchen at noon. The meeting closed with prayer and dainty refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Day of Prayer

The Women's Day of Prayer was observed in the Apsley United Church on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Wellington Lean was leader. Those who assisted her in the service were Mrs. Stanley Windsor, Mrs. J. Downing, Mrs. G. Robertshaw, Mrs. W. G. Smith and Mrs. Don Newberry, who also took up the offertory. Mrs. (Rev.) McMullen gave a short address and explained that the money collected all over the world went to the Literary Society for the printing and distributing of Religious books. Mrs. McMullen was at the organ, several appropriate hymns were sung during the service.

Born—At Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, on February 23, 1939, to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Patterson, a son.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

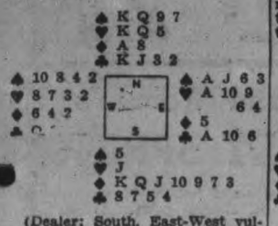
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

USE IT OR LOSE IT

AGAINST A HAND of proved freakish distribution, the problem of playing one of your aces on some early trick is likely to be a question of either use it or lose it by means of a ruff. Finessing against some intermediate honor in the dummy is then fraught with plenty of danger. Whatever tricks your side can get will be probably on the earliest rounds of each suit, so you had better hurry and give a good demonstration of why the old-time expert, Whitehead, invented the term "quick tricks."



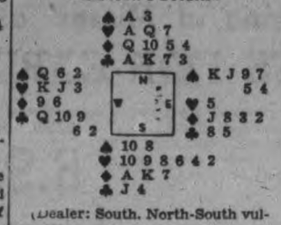
(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

North opened the bidding here with 1-Spade, East doubled and South gave a very good picture of his hand with 3-Diamonds, indicating lack of defensive strength but quite a diamond suit. He was Francis L. Wurzburg, canny New York publisher and member of the Metropolitan Club team. After North bid 3-No trump, which as it turns out would have been a cinch to make, he hopped to 5-Diamonds, which East was pleased to double.

When West opened the heart 2, the 5 being played from the table, East thought himself right out of the set he could have scored by playing three successive aces, and presented the declarer with his contract. He decided not to set up both the dummy's K and Q, so finessed against the J by playing the 9. Of course the J won. A diamond was led to the A, the heart K covered by the A and ruffed, then another diamond to the 8 and the heart Q furnished a discard of the spade 5. All that East could get after that was two club tricks.

• • •

Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

If South makes a weak opening bid of 1-Heart here, West ventures a sickly 1-No trump, North doubles and East bids 2-Spades, what bidding should follow to get North and South into their best contract?

Ontario House Looks Forward To Royal Call

By Norman Campbell
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP). — Ontario's 20th legislature will open its second session March 8 and will not be formally prorogued until May 22 when for the first time in history, it is hoped a reigning monarch will prorogue a Canadian assembly. The formal dismissal of the provincial legislators will be timed for the scheduled arrival of the King and Queen in Toronto.

Business of the House is expected to be concluded by the end of April, no suggestion of contentious legislation having been made, and the house may then adjourn to await formal prorogation.

Standing Unchanged

Party standing in the legislature—66 Liberals, 23 Conservatives, one United Farmer—will be unchanged but the Conservative group will have a new chief, Col. George A. Drew, elected to the leadership last December and subsequently by acclamation to the Simcoe East seat, vacated in his favor by William Finlayson, one-time minister of lands and forests.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn, a storm centre of Canadian politics, because of his disputes with the federal Liberal chief, will again lead the Liberal government party in the Ontario house. Just returned from a trip to Australia, impressed by the national bank and the monetary system there, Mr. Hepburn has proclaimed his belief Canada might in some measure adopt Australian politics.

The premier's health, which has troubled him for years, is still a cause of worry to his followers but Mr. Hepburn has said he will carry on until after the visit of their Majesties. Decision as to whether or not he will then continue to lead Ontario Liberals will likely be considered after that.

Highways Problems

Legislation may be introduced to implement some of the recommendations of a report of a royal commission that investigated Ontario's highway and transportation system, but Highways Minister T. B. McQuesten is on record as apposed to the increase in the gasoline tax from six to nine cents a gallon as the commission recommended.

The report advised a sinking fund be set up for the retirement of the more - than - $200,000,000 highways debt. Mr. McQuesten answered that most of this expenditure represented the creation of a permanent, non-wasting asset and there was no urgency about a sinking fund.

Highways estimates for construction are likely to be increased, expansion of the dual-pavement highway program having been announced, one plan calling for such a highway from Buffalo, N.Y., to the Muskoka area, Ontario's resort region, the highway to pass by Toronto without touching it.

Premier Hepburn has announced that redistribution, postponed from before the last election, will not be dealt with this session. It is the government's intention eventually to reduce the house membership to 72 but the redrafting of constituency boundaries will wati on the next federal census.

Tax Demand

Revival of the Catholic Taxpayers' Association of Ontario—its aim, a larger share of corporation taxes for the Roman Catholic Separate schools—provides another interesting angle to provincial politics. Its membership includes followers of both Liberal and Conservative parties.

The present government in 1937 passed legislation with the aim of having larger share of corporation taxes to go to the separate schools. In 1938 it was repealed, being found unworkable in practice and the premier also declaring it resulted in a creed cry by the Conservative opposition.

There has been no statement as to whether school tax legislation is to be introduced this year, but there have been reports the matter of aid to separate schools might be dealt with by a new system of grants from the provincial treasury to primary schools.

One of the first duties of the house will be to elect a new speaker to succeed Hon. Norman Hipel, now minister of labor. James Clark, Windsor-Sandich Liberal, s slated to succeed to the speaker's chair.

Meanwhile such general redecoration, painting and cleaning up of the legislature buildings as has never been seen before, is going ahead in anticipation of the royal visit.

Card Index Of Lovers Kept By Wife Wins Hubby Divorce

Seattle, March 1 (AP)

VIRGIL E. MADSEN told Judge Chester Bachelor his wife went out with some man every night and kept a card index of her "boy friends." Madsen said his wife listed thumb nail descriptions of several men, their drinking habits and aptitude at dancing. He won a divorce. from Beulah Florence Madsen, who was 15 when he married her last July.

2 Tunisian Natives Shot By French

TUNIS, Hunisia, Mar. 1—(AP).—Two Tunisian natives were reported today to have been killed and several wounded in a skirmish with French gendarmes behind French defence lines facing Italian Libya.

Local French press reports said the clash occurred near Sidi Mansour, midway between Gafsa and Gabes, in the southern part of this French North African protectorate.

This was the first evidence of disorder in the protectorate since reports of a frontier clash February 17 between French and Italian troops—reports denied by officials of both countries. The date of the clash between the Tunisian natives and gendarmes was not disclosed.

The gendarmes were inspecting a road to Gabes when they were fired on by the band of natives, it was said. The gendarmes returned to their post for reinforcements and, when attacked a second time, returned the fire.

It was reported the natives fled, leaving a pistol, described as a "Martini" model, and a hunting rifle. The gendarmes escaped injury, it was said, but a truck in which they were riding was struck by bullets.

NOW AIR PIONEER

LONDON—(CP). — Speaking on behalf of an air service company that sought a licence to run planes to race meetings, Steve Donoghue, famous jockey, said he was "possibly the pioneer of flying" in his profession.

Saskatchewan's Budget Scene Brightens

REGINA, Mar. 1—(CP). — The picture was brighter than last year and the outlook not without hope, Premier W. J. Patterson, who is also provincial treasurer, yesterday told the Saskatchewan legislature when he presented his annual budget. Saskatchewan had suffered many reverses but given reasonable opportunity her people could be rehabilitated, he said.

Premier Patterson reported a deficit for the 1937-38 fiscal year of $195,858, with receipts of $19,109,668 and expenditures $19,305,526.

"There has now been a deficit in each fiscal year since 1928-29 but this is the smallest in the period," he said. "Conditions throughout the province generally are substantially better than a year ago."

He told the House there would be no new or increased taxation during the present fiscal year.

The public debt of Saskatchewan at Dec. 31, 1938, stood at $206,120,079, including a bonded debt of $123,927,953.

"There is absolutely no evidence that the investing public generally has lost faith either in Saskatchewan's ability or willingness to pay its just debts," Premier Patterson said.

Refunding Plans

He discussed various refunding plans: By refusing to pay the interest agreed and paying only an arbitrary rate determined by the borrower; by an agreement made between borrower and lender under which the latter accepts less than his contract calls for; by borrowing at lower rates of interest to pay existing obligations as they mature.

"The province," said Premier Patterson, "has a good reputation and a high standing with those with whom it does business. We should be careful to maintain that reputation and any improper action undertaken to avoid our just obligations would be in the long run costly and expensive to the province and its people."

Canada by pursuing a policy of borrowing money at lower rates of interest to pay maturing obligations effected a greater percentage reduction in interest rates than either Great Britain or Australia, he said.

Saskatchewan had not been able to achieve some of the reductions obtained by the dominion and some of the other provinces because of crop failure, relief expenditures and low production values. He said there was much misunderstanding as to the saving that could be made by a reduction of interest rates.

Cobourg Utilities Cuts Salaries

COBOURG, Ont., Mer. 1 — (CP). —Cobourg Public Utilities Commission made reductions in salaries at their meeting last night, reducing one salary more than 25 per cent. in the economy program of the Commission. Salary of W. G. Henderson, manager, was reduced from $3,000 to $2,400 per year and the $200 car allowance removed. Another employee was cut from $100 a month to $75 er month. Another received a cut of 5 cents an hour, and a waterworks employee had his income reduced from $140 to $135 a month.

Collegiate Notes

Well, this week we've a little more happy story with which to open our quarter monthly chatter. Activity around the old house of learning seems to have taken a bit of an uplift. What with all you students waiting, pending the opening of the opera and publication of the Echoes, there is a bit of the air of excitement around about. So, here goes with what we hope is a little bit newsier news column.

A Bit Of Basketball

Tidings of our wandering basketeers this week are just a wee bit more cheerful. Yes, we may even say joyful. For indeed instead of dropping two out of three games (or even three out of three, perchance) our trio of hopefuls grabbed themselves a triple victory, come last Friday. Truth to tell, one of these games was just a bit of an exhibition tussle but as we remarked (very cunningly) last week it will give us at least an idea of the potential strength of our senior lads.

Here at home, our senior girls, under Miss Brisbin's capable guidance, helped themselves to a 21-3 victory over the gals of C.C.I., geographically known as Lindsay. They led at half-time 3-3 and were apparently definitely superior at all times. Elfie Saunders and Ruth Dalliday led the P.C.I. basket bombers with 12 points and 8 points, respectively.

Then our junior lads, although not winning by as big a margin as your humble correspondent surmised, still were easy victors 24-9. They were in advance of the Lindsay junior lads 26-5 at the half and were also definitely superior. McPherson with 8, Clarke and Dundas with 6 and Gillespie with 4 were our leading point getters.

Moving to another point of interest, our senior lads were playing an exhibition fray, contra Western Technical School in Toronto. Some of the P.C.I. players were stopped by snow drifts, near Bewdley, and didn't arrive till half time. Orm Weir, who played for P.C.I. juniors of 3 years back was at the game (he attends the U. of T. now) and was rushed into uniform and played the first half. It was 17 to 12 at the half for P.C.I. who looked better all the way, and 26-20 at full time.

Cutting and Foster led the scorers with 9 points each. Now, by way of comment: Western Tech is second of all the senior interscholastic teams in Toronto and it doesn't take any master-mind to figure from that that P.C.I. must have something.

Point of interest seems to centre in the coming triple-header with Cobourg a week from this Friday. If P.C.I. juniors beat C.C.I. juniors they are group winners; if not, Cobourg are the champs. If P.C.I. seniors whip C.C.I. then Peterborough must play a sudden death game with Bowmanville for group honors. And Miss Brisbin's senior girls must also beat Cobourg to stay in there.

This week, the senior boys and girls are in Lindsay to hook up with L.C.I. in what should be two easy P.C.I. wins. Only game here is a P.C.I. junior boys versus St. John's of the Senior City League, likely at 8 Friday night in the gym.

Crowd last week was much better —but the audience a week from Friday should set a school record as these battles are all championship clashes and all-mighty important to P.C.I. Yeah, man!

A Bit Of Broadway

Once again, as time aproaches for one of the school's yearly big moments, the play, thought we'd run over some facts and factors concerning it. As you probably have learned through various secret sources, it wil be entitled "Dear Brutus," is by the way of being a comedy and is scheduled to take place on the evenings of March 23 and 24, the year of '39. Ticket sale is scheduled to open tomorow (Thursday). To run through the cast for you, and indeed 'tis a promising looking one.

Joanna, Olga Westbye; Margaret, Eileen Zellon; Alice Dearth, Slyvia Boorman; Mabel, Ruth McNeeley; Caroline, Pauline Paterson; Mrs. Coade, Mary Curry; Matey, Emile Armstrong; Purdie, Tom Hooper; Coade, Barrie Jack; Job, Bob Crocker; Dearth, Ken Brown.

A poster contest is being run off now, and the cast of the play is working hard, so look ye to the nights of March 23 and 24.

School Song

And, once again there goes forth a plea to the would-be Gershwins and Carmichaels of the old alma mater to set about composing a new school song. Now, for years and years the brave warriors of old P.C.I. have gone forth to battle with the echoes of "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" ringing in their ears. Which, may be as it should be. But, all things considered we can't help but agree the time has come when the Garnet and Grey must have a new fight song with which to send its warriors off to battle. So, the mentors of P.C.V.S. have set forth prizes and all that remains for you to do is write a song. The contest has few qualifications. The melody, you select yourself. It must be, however, in march time. Then just write your words and lo, P.C.I. has a new school song. Easy, isn't it?

Glee Club

A week or so back, as we reported, the Glee Club, under the direction of Miss Weddell, made its first appearance (outside of the commencement exercises) singing a German folk song and Santa Lucia. The Glee Club, composed entirely of girls, practices hard every week and on the few occasions we have heard them, listened very well. But, why not a few more appearances. Certainly, we could use some new songs in the assembly and what better way to introduce them than with the Glee Club singing?

Assembly Doings

No morning entertainment the past week—at least none of the vocal or musical variety—but a couple of happenings to break the morning monotony. Last Friday, assembly visitors were treated to some movies of the Sopal Festival in Czecho-Slovakia. These pictures of youth gymnastics, etc., introduced by Miss Brisbin, were very interesting and were again shown at the noon hour. Then, on Monday, Mr. Battey of the Canadian Packing Co., presented the three prizes to winners of the C.P.C. Echoes contest. He also gave assembly goers a very interesting talk on the local plant, etc.

Prize Winners

And so, comes time to reveal a few of he prize winners in various of the Echoes contests, as the date to begin printing draws nigh. Starting with the art prizes: Best drawing, Maralin Munro; best comic drawing, Hugh Kenner; best linoleum cut, Doris Glover; best illustration, 1 Jim Lillico, 2 Mary Masters.

No award was given for the cover design. Then, the Echoes also sponsored a photography contest. Winners in it, too, have been announced: Table top photography, Walter Hanbidge; school life, Hugh Kenner.

Then the biggest contest, the literary efforts of P.C.I.'s authors. Open to the whole school:

A—1, Humorous prose, Barrie Jack, VB; 2, humorous poetry, Hugh Kenner, III A.

B—Best commercial contributon, Arleigh Murray, Special Commercial.

C—Best household or industrial contribution, Ken Turnbull, IV 1A.

From IV, V and Special Commercial—Short story, Ken Turnbull IV, IA. Prize reverts to Rosamund Burns, Special Commercial.

Form IX: Non fiction—1, Harold Mathias, IXH; 2, Lyon Head, IXE.

Poetry—1, Marjorie McGee, IXH; 2, Burton McBride, IXH.

We Hear Tell....

New screens around the lights in the gym are O.K., but it occurred to us that that one light directly over the north basket must make it awfully hard shooting....Basketball teams practice hard this week and next for that all-important triple header next week....School rings and pins arrived Friday and can be had in room 13 after four....Bulletin board says: "Strictly Cash Terms".....You song writers really go to work on that new fight song. ....or we'll republish our effort of some months ago....And you certainly wouldn't wan't that to happen!....What member of P.C.I.'s junior basketball gallants, dropped a small wager, betting that P.C.I. would vanquish Port Hope by 45 points....Another group of Echoes pictures were in the Camera Club showcase last week.....Prices the same as the former group....Judging by last week's performance in Toronto, P.C.I.'s senior boys look like potential C.O.S.S.A. championship repeaters....And so Aloha, as the George St. Hawaiins say in farewell. —J.E.C.

Youth Gets 30 Days For Threatening Girl

LINDSAY, Ont., Mar. 1—(CP).—Hugh McNeill of Sonya, near here, was sent to jail for 30 days by Magistrate O. A. Langley yesterday for writing threatening letters to Ethel Wilson and for using the words: "If I can't have you alive, I'll have you dead." Charge was laid by Miss Wilson's father.

The court was willing to bind McNeill over to keep the peace for one year on sureties of $1,000, but accused could not furnish the sureties.

No Price Fixing Say Radio Manufacturers

OTTAWA, Mar. 1—(CP). — The Canadian Radio Manufacturers' Association assured the Dominion Tariff Board to-day there was "no agreemen, among the manufacturers to fix prices or to control production."

"There has been much talk of a combine but no proof has been offered," J. L. Ralston, K.C., the manufacturers' counsel, told the Board at the second day's hearing into the manufacture, sale and distribution of radios, tubes and parts in Canada.

It had been entered in evidence, he said, that radio manufacturers in this country had made a return of only 3.96 per cent on capital invested, which could hardly be considered exorbitant.

The spread between radio prices in Canada and the United States had not been accurately and fairly shown by the Philco products submission, he considered. Some manufacturers could show the spread ranged from 32 to 40 per cent, with the later the top figure.

"The public, I'm afraid, holds an exaggerated idea of the spread between U.S. and Canadian radio prices," he said.

Mr. Ralston did not agree with the Philco theory that the Canadian radio market should in five or six years handle 4,000,000 radios. The proportion of automobiles to population in Canada and the United States was about the same, and so was the proportion of radios, so it was unreasonable to expect the radio market would be doubled.

Canadians Poorly Paid

Workers in the Canadian radio manufacturing industry receive very low wages compared with similar workers in the United States, said I. Burman of Montreal, representing the United States Electrical and Machine Workers in America. He was most familiar he said, with conditions in the R.C.A.-Victor plant in Montreal, producing several pay slips in evidence.

One case was that of a married man's 11 years service in the sanding department. His pay cheques averaged from $9 to $11 for a 40-hour week on a piece-work and bonus basis. The basic rate figured out at 23-29 cents an hour compared with a rate of 66 cents an hour for similar work in Camden, N.J.

Another married man with three children, working in the cabinet working department, earned about $14 for a 40-hour week, or 34-36 cents an hour compared with 67 cents in United States plants. Girl workers on the chassis assembly line averaged 23 cents an hour. Many of the girls fainted frequently at this type of work, he said.

Working conditions in the plants of parts manufacturers were far worse, Burman said. Many of them were virtual "sweat shops."

Burman said he had worked at the Montreal plant of R.C.A.-Victor for two years before being dismissed for "union activities."

RESTED IN MORTUARY

When one of the "bodies" in a morgue in Cracow, Poland, sat up and spoke to him, the guard fainted before Jan Hoszewski, an unemployed man, could explain that he had wandered into the mortuary and lain down beside a corpse without realizing where he was.

Issue Of War Close King Hints

Urges House Hurry, Warns Arms Profiteering Taboo

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP).—So far as the government is concerned, it will not permit any profiteering on Canadian arms contracts and it will "make an example" of any officials found guilty of any wrong-doing in connection with contracts.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King made this declaration in the House of Commons yesterday. He said the government would bring on the fullest investigation of any arms contract in question, confident that there would be no evidence of suspicion or evidence of wrong-doing.

A miniature Bren gun debate broke in the House yesterday, precipitated by Grant MacNeil (C.C.F., Vancouver North), who moved to have a contract for 30,000 shells, given Montreal Construction, Supply and Equipment Company, Limited, referred to the Public Accounts Committee.

Although the resolution was immediately "accepted with the utmost pleasure" by the government through Defence Minister Mackenzie and supported by all speakers, there was a debate of more than two hours with Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative Leader Manion and J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F. group, participating. It was adopted unanimously.

The Issue Of War.

The Prime Minister bluntly warned parliament it might soon be called upon to discuss more important questions than any referred to it so far, as he pointed to a critical international situation.

He did so in an appeal to members of the House to get along with the business before them and also to avoid making statements which might be misinterpreted in other countries or might create unnecessary suspicion concerning the National Defence Department.

"I think all of us," he said, "would be well advised to get along with the business of this parliament as rapidly as we can because we may at any moment be called upon to consider questions larger than any we have discussed thus far. I pray it will not come but who can say it will not in the light of the knowledge that every man has who reads the daily press from day to day or from hour to hour?"

Time Wasted.

Mr. Mackenzie King objected to the time of the House being taken up debating contracts when all parties were agreed upon a committee inquiry. Members had not read the contract and were in no position to discuss it without full information which the committee would obtain. Yet Opposition members, when the Government agreed to a committee inquiry, insisted on making speeches suggesting something was wrong in the Defence Department.

At a time when certain people in Canada were seeking to undermine democratic institutions and in the light of the international situation, it was surely undesirable to raise any unnecessary suspicion concerning any government department, especially the Department of National Defence.

It was Mr. MacNeil who precipitated the long debate on the Bren gun contract when he moved that it and the report of the Royal Commission which invesigated it be sub-

Rev. David Price Dies

BERWICK, N.S., March 2.—(CP)—Rev. David Price, 81, one of the Maritime provinces outstanding Baptist ministers, died at his home here yesterday. He retired 15 years ago.

Born at Holy Head, Anglesey, North Wales, he came to this country as a young man, taking his first charge at Paradise, N.S. His wife, who predeceased him last September, was also a native of Wales.

Boys Wake In Flames, Both Saved By Mother Neighbors

Toronto, March 2 (CP)

SCREAMS from two boys when they awoke to find their bed in flames brought their mother, Mrs. Hazel Smith, and neighbors running to the rescue last night. The older brother, George, 13, leaped from the bed with his night clothes on fire. His dash through the house extinguished the fire in his clothing.

Mrs. Smith meanwhile picked up three-year-old Harley and ran out of the room with him. Neighbors battled the fire until firemen arrived. Neither boy was seriously burned.

Royal Plan Delay By Ottawa Peeves Nixon

TORONTO, March 2.—(CP)—Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial secretary of the Ontario committee in charge of the visit of King George and Qunee Elizabeth, complained once more today at Ottawa's delay in approving the committee's plans for Their Majesties visit to Toronto.

Mr. Nixon said he had written Jan. 25, Hon. Fernand Rinfret, secretary of state, asking approval of the schedule for the Toronto visit. Again Feb. 27 he telegraphed expressing impatience at the delay and today Mr. Nixon complained that although Mr. Rinfret had replied promising immediate action, approval of the plans was still not forthcoming.

The schedule for the Toronto visit proposed to the Ottawa authorities was as follows:

1—Their Majesties will be met on arrival at the North Toronto station by an artillery salute and a guard of honor of the R.C.N.V.R.

2—Proceed to city hall for civic reception.

3—Proceed to parliament buildings; artillery salute on arrival; guard of honor will be inspected.

4—Loyal address read by the Prime Minister in the Legislative chamber. To prorogue the legislature if His Majesty has not prorogued the House of Commons.

5—Rest period in the Lieut-Governor's suite.

6—Presentation of colors to Toronto Scottish Regiment by Her Majesty.

7—Luncheon at Hart House.

8—Rest period in the Lieut.-Governor's suite.

9—Artillery salute and salute from guard of honor on leaving parliament buildings.

13—Christie Street Hospital. Veterans guard of honor.

14—Gathering of school children and the general public in the exhibition grounds, from which Their Majesties will depart by train.

15—Artillery salute and guard of honor.

VATICAN CITY.—Vatican authorities to-day said the coronation of Pope Pius XII was expected to take place March 12, but the coronation date is decided by the new Pontiff. Cardinal Pacelli Becomes New Pontiff—Pius XII

Secretary Of State, Italian, Is 262nd Pope On 63rd Birthday, Chosen On 3rd Ballot

VATICAN CITY, March 2—(AP).—Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, former Papel Secretary of State, to-day was elected Pope to succeed Pius XI.

As the 262nd Pope he chose the name of Pius XII.

The new Pontiff succeeded to the throne of St. Peter on his 63rd birthday.

The new spiritual head of 331,500,000 Roman Catholics is an Italian.

Camillo Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni made the announcement of the election and the new name from the central balcony of St. Peter's.

As soon as he uttered the name of Pius XI's Secretary of State, the crowd understood Cardinal Pacelli had been chosen.

Their cheers drowned out Caccia-Dominioni's next word and it was several seconds before he was able to say: "Pacelli."

Cardinal Caccia - Dominioni, dean of the Order of Deacons, appeared on the balcony at 6:07 p.m. (12:07 p.m. EST).

Cheers Drown Announcement

The cheers of the great crowd in the piazza prevented him from speaking for several moments.

Then, speaking in Latin, he said:

"I announce the glad tidings—we have a Pope."

Election of Pacelli on the third ballot of the first day of the conclave voting was unprecedented in the modern history of the church.

Not since the year 1621 when Gregory XV was chosen has the holy conclave acted so rapidly.

An immense throng of 50,000 persons or more shouted joyfully when the thin wisp smoke appeared.

As it appeared they pushed up on to the steps of St. Peter's for the announcement of the name of the cardinal elected and the name he would take as Pope.

The election also shattered another tradition since rarely has the papal secretary of state been named pontiff.

The new Pope, a member of an Italian noble family whose relations with the Vatican always has been intimate, was reported before the conclave of the sacred college to have been the favorite of foreign cardinals for election to the throne of St. Peter's. This was due to the fact he was believed to be the cardinal best qualified to continue the policies of the late pontiff.

As if to indicate his intentions of following in the footsteps of his beloved predecessor, Cardinal Pacelli selected the same name.

Coronation Date Later

The date of his coronation will be announced later.

Bylaw Vote Postponed Until June

May Seek To Get Government Loan Low Interest Rate

The vote on the Nicholls Hospital by-law will not be taken next month as originally intended by the Board of Trustees, but is being postponed until June, according to their decision Wednesday afternoon.

It was learned this morning that federal legislation to provide $100,000,000 to promote building activity throughout Canada and thereby assist constructional tradesmen may contemplate such enterprises as the erection of the proposed new Nicholls Hospital, making funds available at an attractively low rate of interest. In that prospect, the Board agreed that it would be advisable to defer their plans until definite information was received regarding the labor and building policy recently announced by the Hon. Norman Rogers, Federal Minister of Labor.

As the services of the Hospital are a public benefit it was believed that the Board's plans involving an expenditure of $395,000 would appeal to the Minister as an undertaking which should share in the general financing scheme which has been conceived to stimulate the building industry in Canada this year.

A minor influence was the delay in completion of an architect's model of the new hospital which was to be used for the purpose of local information and publicity.

For these reasons the Board decided to advise the council they did not wish the by-law to be submitted to the ratepayers on April 14 as suggested recently, and it is understood that the postponement will be continued until some time in June.

Balks At Registering New Son; Prefers Jail

GRAND FORKS, B.C., March 2.—(CP)—Tom Savin, member of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect here, appeared in police court late yesterday and was fined $5 or 10 days in jail for infraction of the Vital Statistics Act, failure to register the birth of his child.

Savin chose the jail term and said he did not intend to comply with the law because it was "man-made, not God's law."

He was informed he would face prosecution again on completion of his sentence if he failed to register the birth. Doukhobors were excluded from the court room.

Tuesday 200 members of the Russian religious sect crowded into the building, chanting songs and resisting efforts to evict them when Savin made his first appearance on the charge. There was no violence.

The Sons of Freedom group is independent of the Christian Brotherhood at Brilliant, near Nelson, B.C., and which includes the majority of Doukhobors in British Columbia.

Forms New Party

A new political party will be launched in Canada by Hon. W. D. Herridge, according to reports from Ottawa. The name of the new party was not known, but it was revealed that Mr. Herridge plans to make a Dominion-wide tour in order to organize the new party.

Franco Waiting On Negrin, Peace Or War

MADRID, March 2 (AP).—Republican Spain, with an army of 500,000 men seasoned by 2½ years' warfare, today awaited calmly Premier Juan Negrin's verdict on whether to fight General Franco's nationalists to the end.

British and French recognition of the Nationalist Government and the resignation of Manuel Azana as president of the republic became public knowledge but there was no outward reaction among the people of Madrid.

A midnight announcement said Negrin would broadcast soon to all Spain and many looked to that broadcast for a determination of their fate. Some believed the Premier would announce constitutional steps to elect a new president.

Azana, now in self-chosen exile at Collognes-Sous-Saleve, France, resigned Tuesday, the day after France and Great Britain withdraw regotiation of Negrin's regime as the legal government of Spain and conferred it on Franco's government.

Election Inside 30 Days.

Under the constitution a new presidential election must be called within eight days after resignation and held 30 days thereafter. An official communique last night said that Diego Martinez Barrio, president of the Cortes (parliament), had assumed the post of Azana's interim successor. It was understood Martinez Barrio was preparing to return from Paris to the Madrid-Valencia-Alicante zone held by the republicans.

He was expected to do this to facilitate election of a new president. Article 68 of the Spanish constitution declares the president shall be elected jointly by the Cortes and a body of "compromisarios" (non-Cortes electors) equal to the number of members of parliament, normally 473.

Only 48 Of 117 Are Located As $800,000 Blaze Sweeps Through Hostelry

Twenty In Hospital, Many Seriously Injured Leaping From Flaming Rooms; Almost Whole City Block Left In Ruins

By E. L. Williams (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

HALIFAX, March 2 (CP).—More than a score of persons were listed as missing and were believed to have perished early today in a holocaust that devoured the old Queen Hotel and gnawed a huge chunk out of this historic seaport's closely-built business sector. Damage was estimated at $800,000. Two blackened bodies were recovered.

The number of the toll could not be estimated. Only 48 of the 117 persons in the big frame and stucco hostel were accounted for definitely some hours after the mysterious blaze. Of these, 20 were in hospital, some injured seriously. The fire raged over almost a city block, extending back to Water Street, fringing Halifax harbor.

Police, after conferring with hotel employees, said the death list possibly might reach as high as 30. But there was nothing definite. Police broadcast appeals to all those who escaped to register at police headquarters in an effort to prepare an accurate list of missing.

Guest List Buried In Safe.

The only accurae record of the guests listed—the hotel register—was buried in a safe beneath tons of debris that overflowed into the narrow streets, disrupting power and communication lines.

Occupants leaped from windows, some into fire nets, others from low windows into the streets. One landed on the marquee over the main doorway. Some fled into neighboring stores, houses, taxi waiting-rooms. Others, burned and injured, were carted away in ambulances or taxis, commandeered and sent to the scene immediately word of the tragedy was flashed to police headquarters.

Most of the 87 guests and 30 hotel employees were sleeping when a taxi driver saw flames suddenly burst from a mainfloor window at the hotel barber shop. He shouted for help and began tossing rocks through the windows. But within 20 minutes the five-storey building was enveloped.

2 Bombings Fail On Key Canals

LONDON, March 2 (AP)—Attempts to dynamite two of Britain's most important canals were investigated today by Scotland Yard and government explosives experts as a possible outburst of terrorism by the Irish republican army organization.

In both cases the blasts failed to break the walls of the canal and loose water which might have flooded busy factory areas for miles.

At Wednesbury, an important Midlands steel centre near Birmingham, police said a charge of high explosives had blown out part of a wall of the Birmingham navigation canal during the night.

The aqueduct carrying the Grand Union Canal over North Circular Road, in Stonebridge Park, near London, was slightly damaged by a bomb explosion early today.

The blast did little damage and injured no one, but Scotland Yard officers said that had the bomb been placed three inches deeper the whole structure—one of the most important of its kind in England—would have been wrecked.

Criminal investigation department officers were told that two men, about 30, visited a cafe half a mile away last night. Both carried large suitcases. They stayed about 15 minutes. A postman said he saw a car stop near the aqueduct and four men, carrying a box, set out, not long before the explosion occurred.

Britain Reaches 1st Billion Pound Budget

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, Mar. 2 — (CP Cable) — Great Britains first £1,000,000,000 budget became a reality to-day when the Air Ministry announced 1939 appropriations of £220,626,700.

At the same time Sir Kingsley Wood, Secretary for Air, announced Britains home first-line air strength will be 1,750 planes at the end of this month. That does not include many hundreds of reserve planes, the number of which is treated as an official secret.

The three military services — the Royal Navy, the Army, and the Air Force—will spend £535,426,351 in 1939, a peacetime record. When appropriations for the civil departments are added it boosts the general budget to £1,070,022,432, a sum exceeding Canada's national debt. Roughly Britain will spend $2,500,000,000 on armaments and the same figure for civil government.

In the last three days Britain has disclosed details of the worlds biggest defence program, involving staggering sums of money. Total appropriations for the Navy were £153,666,651; Army, £161,133,000; Air Force, £220,626,700.

An 86 Million Boost.

The air appropriation showed an increase of £86,223,700 over 1938, but the amount to be provided by Parliament will be £6,940,000 less because of the Government's borrowing policy. In 1934 Britain spent only £17,670,893 on her air force.

Of the total to be spent on the Air Force £66,561,000 will be provided by Parliament and £142,000,000 will be borrowed. The rest comes from money on hand and various incidental receipts.

The Government is pushing through Parliament a bill enabling it to borrow a maximum of £800,000,00 for defence purposes. It will save British taxpayers from a general tax increase. Despite the unprecedented armament bill it is not expected that the basic rate of income tax of five shillings sixpence in the pound will be increased.

When all estimates, supplementaries and debt charges are completed, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, may announce a budget total as high as £1,250,000,000. It is expected the taxpayers will be levied £900,000,000, with £350,000,000 to be raised by loan. If this division is followed it would reduce ordinary revenue below the 1938 total of £945,000,000.

Another 12,000 Fliers

The air secretary's statement showed the air force personnel would be increased by 12,000 during the next year to a total of 118,000. This would be nearly four times the 1934 total of 30,000.

Three new air force commands and 47 balloon barrage units were proposed along with three new squadrons to strengthen the air force in the middle east.

The secretary's statement, while stressing that plane production had been speeded up, gave no figures for the rate of production. Recent reliable estimates, however, placed Britain's monthly production at 500 planes and set her existing home bomber strength at 650.

Officially the air ministry is concentrating on accelerating the program so as to have 2,840 first line planes at home and in overseas possession by March, 1940.

Jap Drops Bomb, 200 Die 500 Hurt, 10,000 Homeless 800 Homes, Asylum, Burn, But War in China To Go On TOKYO, March 2—(AP).—The army arsenal explosion at Hirakata in which an untold number of Japanese died yesterday "will not interfere in any way with the execution of military operations" in China, War Minister Seishiro Itagaki assured parliament today.

He said the disaster was extremely regrettable, "especially in view of the sacred war in China," and added that the original cause of the series of earth-shaking blasts was not known.

A large section of the industrial town of Hirakata, 14 miles from Osaka, was destroyed. The damage had not been calculated but it was enormous. Police said probably 200 persons were blown to bits or burned to death. The war office said only 22 bodies had been found and that 151 persons were missing. The number injured was 550.

An insane asylum was burned and the fate of the patients had not been determined. Three policemen were missing after rescuing 30 women arsenal workers.

Ten thousand of Hirakata's 27,000 population were homeless. The army, directing relief, supplied blankets and hardtack rations for the refuges. They were housed at Osaka and Kyoto.

An unofficial report was that a careless worker caused the disaster by dropping a bomb on a pile of gunpowder in a loading operation. The explosions came at five-minute intervals. Sheets of flame were blown through residential streets, eight hundred houses were burned.

"One Eye" Crashes Golden Gate Exhibition But Admits Admission Beneath His Class

SAN FRANCISCO, March 2 (CP)—"One-Eye" Connelly, who claims to have "crashed" every world series, major prize fight, political convention and operatic concert in the United States since 1897, wants it known that his latest crashing feat was far below his standard.

The other day Connelly crashed the Golden Gate International Exposition on Treasure Island by going over in the early morning and presenting himself as a concession employee who left his pass in the pocket of his other trousers.

"Ordinarily I don't stoop to fifty-cent jobs," he explained today. "Your fair is a beautiful show, but the admission price is far below my standard. I'm used to crashing $27.50 championship fights."

Connelly recounted how he got started on his gate-crashing career after a varied life as newsboy, jockey, steeplejack and hobo.

It was after the John L. Sullivan-Jake Kilrain bare knuckle fight in Richburg, Miss., July 8, 1889, which Sullivan won in 75 rounds.

"I bought a ticket, but when I got to the arena somebody was sitting in my seat," he related. "I could not get the guy to move, so I swore I would never again buy a ticket."

Chinese Children's Junk Picketing Crusade Keeps 2 Loads Of Iron From Jap Shell Makers

ASTORIA, Ore., March 2 (AP)—A Chinese children's crusade, a local incident when it started six days ago, threatened to create a far-flung issue today over the transportation of vast piles of American scrap iron to Japanese munition makers for transformation into weapons for the war in China.

The dispute, tying up the freighters Norway Maru here and the Kostis at Marshfield, involved the Longshoremen, the Japanese government, the city council, the school board, junk merchants, shipping companies and stretched out toward the national labor relations board.

While Longshoremen refused to pass the protest line, 21 carloads of scrap rusted in the rain, collecting $4 a day per car demurrage charge.

About a score of Chinese children, most of them the sons and daughters of cannery workers, skipped school last week to picket. This week they picketed after breakfast and left when the school bells rang. Women and youngsters who have graduated kept the lines going until the others were dismissed from classes.

Manion Asks Editor Prove Charges

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday declined to summon the editor of the Ottawa Citizen before the bar of the House of Commons although he agreed with Conservative Leader Manion's criticism of a recent Citizen editorial alleging profiteering in armament contracts.

At the same time Mr. Mackenzie King said he hoped the public accounts committee which will investigate munitions contracts would give the Citizen editor an opportunity to appear and substantiate its statements. That was the proper place for him to appear.

Dr. Manion proposed the editor of the Ottawa Citizen be called before the bar of the house and asked to prove editorial charges of corruption against the present and former governments. He said he was surprised Prime Minister Mackenzie King had not taken this action sooner.

Dr. Manion was speaking on a motion to refer a shell contract to the public accounts committee just after Defence Minister Mackenzie had criticised statements made in a Citizen editorial. He said irresponsible charges against governments, political parties, and public men were undermining democracy and should not be ignored. He was satisfied the Citizen editor could prove nothing against either the present government or any other party in the house.

Before the House

"I suggest right now to the prime minister that the editor of the Ottawa Citizen should be brought to the bar of this house, and asked to give us a tittle of evidence that this or the other party is guilty of those charges."

"I wonder that the prime minister has never stood up and demanded that editor be brought before the bar of this house to give proof of the charges he has been making against the right honorable gentleman. I will help him all I can.

"I believe one of the dangers to democracy today is this type of journalism," Dr. Manion said. He did not believe any corruption of the kind dealt with by the Citizen could be proved against either par-

Sealer Sinking With 150 Aboard

CHATHAM, Mass., March 2 — (AP). — Radio marine corporation here today received a message from the British steamship Newfoundland saying she had "sighted" the Newfoundland sealer Ranger which radioed several hours before that it was "leaking badly" with 150 men aboard and in need of immediate assistance.

Half an hour of waiting, however, brought no further details from either vessel.

The station here and the coast guard in Boston said it had no further word from the Newfoundland steamship Imokgene.

Replying earlier to a message from the Newfoundland the captain of the Ranger said:

"We are just about holding our own by use of buckets. Engines filled up and not running. We are drifting off Cape Lawrence. Terrible roll now but getting better. Are you coming?"

The Chatham operators said the bearings they were given indicated the vessel was about 90 miles from St. John's Nfld., and the United States coast guard in Boston said earlier they believed she was at a point about 385 miles northeast of Halifax and 40 miles east of St. Pierre Island and the mouth of Placentia Bay. Messages picked up here were being relayed from Canadian shore stations.

Trent River Man Is Found Dead In Bed

Cardinal Pacelli

papal benediction from the central balcony of St. Peter's to a wildly cheering throng shortly after the announcement of his election.

Cardinal Caccia - Dominioni made the announcement into a microphone which carried his voice to loudspeakers in the great square before the basilica.

In latin he proclaimed:

"Annuntio vobis gadium magnum: Habem es papam—eminentissimum ac reverendissimum Cardinalem Eugenium Pacelli, qui sibi nomen imposuit pio diodecem."

In English this was:

"I give you tiding of great joy; we have a pope—the most eminent and Reverend Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, who has taken upon himself the name of Pius XII."

After another wait by the crowd which pushed ever nearer to the steps under the balcony, noble guards, Palatine guards and Papal gendarms took their places at the sides of the balcony.

Crucifix bearer and acolytes who first appeared with the Dean of the Order of Deacons, reappeared.

Tremendous Ovation.

Then the new Pope, surrounded by cardinals, came into view.

Papal guards executed military honors, first on the balcony and then from below.

The crowd burst into a tremendous ovation as His Holiness came forward to the balustrade and silently gazed down.

"Viva Il Papa!" the crowd roared. Handkerchiefs and hats waved from thousands of hands.

The Pontiff let the ovation continue for some minutes, then lifted his right hand and signalled for the benediction.

A silence fell on the crowd and some knelt.

A monsignor opened a large ritual book and held it for the Pontiff to see.

Then Pius XII began to speak in Latin.

"Blessed be the name of the Lord," he said.

From now and henceforth for evermore," tens of thousands of voices responded.

"Who made heaven and earth," rolled back the response.

The Pontiff raised his right hand and three times made the sign of the cross, turning to the four corners of the earth.

"May the blessing of God Almighty, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, descend upon you and remain there always," he concluded.

"Amen," answered the faithful.

Pius XII appeared on the balcony at 6.22 p.m. (12.22 p.m. E.S.T.), 13 minutes after the announcement of his election.

After giving his blessing, he remained for several minutes, smiling down on the vast throng.

Then he raised his hand again in blessing and retired, followed by the cardinals and attendants.

The crowd remained for some minutes, then began to disperse.

Jam Fills St. Peter's Square.

The jam in St. Peters Square was so great that it took some time for all to leave.

Dusk was falling and the square was illuminated only by four small clusters of electric lights.

Workmen began setting flares and oil lamps along St. Peter's Facade, the dome and the bernini colonnade for the illumination which traditionally marks the Pope's election.

When the election was announced, the great 11-ton bell of St. Peter's, which tolled the news of the death of Pius XI. February 10, rang again —this time with the joyous confirmation of the announcement of the choice of the successor to the late Pontiff.

The Vatican radio station was installed since Pius XI.'s election so this marked the first occasion in the Vatican's history that the election news was broadcast to the world.

St. Peter's bell continued to ring a half hour after the announcement. The sound was audible as far as Castel Gandolfo, the Papal summer palace, 15 miles away.

Age-old tradition prescribed colorful scenes behind the locked doors of the Sistine Chapel the moment Pacelli was chosen Pope.

According to the prescribed ritual: Gennaro Cardinal Granito-Pignatelli Di Belmonte, Dean of the sacred college, rose from his seat and beckoned to William Cardinal O'Connell, head of the Cardinal-priests, and to Camillo Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni, head of the cardinal deacons.

The three prelates presented themselves before the throne chair of the newly-elected Pope. Cardinal Pignatelli demanded in Latin:

"Acceptas ne electionem in summum pontaficem?" "Do you accept your election as supreme pontiff?"

The Cardinal Accepts

Cardinal Pacelli replied that he considered himself unworthy of so high an office but, since the large majority of cardinals desired him to accept it, he would.

From this historic moment on the Catholic church had a new pope.

Cardinal Pignatelli then demanded: "Quomodo vis vocari"—"How do you wish to be called?"

The new Pope replied:

"Pius XII."

Various Cardinals dressed His Holiness in the robes of his supreme office. They chose from the three white cassocks—large, small and medium—which had been prepared beforehand.

They put on the cassock, white stockings and red slippers adorned with crosses. Over the cassock they drew a white stole, or symbol of the priest's office, and a white mantle.

In place of the red hat and red skull cap he wore, they put on a white skull cap. The new pontiff handed his red skull cap to one of the Cardinals attending him, as a remembrance.

While he had been in the sacristy, a throne had been prepared for him on the gospel side of the altar. He mounted to the throne and seated himself on it.

The cardinals advanced in the order of their seniority, the dean of the Sacred College, Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, leading them.

The aged prelate knelt before Pope Pius and kissed his hand. The Pope leaned forward, raised the dean to his feet and embraced him, kissing him on both cheeks.

In turn, each of the cardinals knelt and was embraced by his holiness. It was their first obedience to their new master.

The People Are Told

When Cardinal Caccia-Dominioni, head of the cardinal-deacons, finished making his obedience, he left the Sistine chapel to mount to the balcony of St. Peter's looking out over the great square and announced the election to the impatient crowd.

Cardinal Pignatelli Di Belmonte, as dean of the cardinals, placed on Pius' finger the famous fisherman's ring, or symbol of the papacy.

Its gold gleamed an instant on his holiness' finger but he then drew it off and handed it to Monsignor Respighi for his name, Pope Pius XII, to be engraved on the inner surface.

A new pope has been elected but the secret conclave still remains in session. Its doors will not be opened until later this afternoon after a second obedience by the cardinals.

The two gestures of the 61 high princes of the church — most of them snowy-haired—were the first of a series of five "obediences" in which the cardinals and high priests of the vatican emphasize the single authority of their new sovereign.

Farmers of East Sussex, England, have resolved not to go to church until the tithe laws are abolished.

Cardinals Cast 2 Ballots Both "Black"

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 2 — (AP). —Black smoke from the chimney of Sistine Chapel told the world to-day that the 62 cardinals had voted, but that no Pope was elected on the first two ballots in the conclave to choose a successor to Pius XI.

The black smoke appeared at 12.18 p.m. (6.18 a.m. EST).

A crowd of approximately 30,000 in St. Peter's Square raised the cry, "There it is," when the smoke appeared

Before 8 a.m., attendants with hand bells had called the self-imprisoned cardinals from their cells in a wing of the Vatican which is the Conclave City.

Paris Sends Petain To Franco Court Cuts Off Loyalist Supplies

PARIS, March 2—(AP).—Marshal Henri Petain, 82-year-old Great War commander, today was appointed French ambassador to the Spanish nationalist government.

The appointment was announced after a cabinet meeting at Elysee Palace as France undertook to halt shipmen of supplies through French ports to the republican regime of Spain, in accordance with recognition of General Franco's nationalist regime and apparently in the hope the action would hasten the end of the civil war.

The civil court at Marseille authorized representatives of General Franco to seize all republican property being loaded at that southern French port, the republican's principal supply point.

The French government was understood to have agreed further that nationalist agents might seize all Spanish vessels in French ports, even if their home port still is in republican hands.

The French admittedly are seeking a republican surrender, hoping thereby to force a quick withdrawal of Italian troops which helped the insurgent nationalists in the civil war—the first step in the French program to curtail Italian influence in Spain.

To end the war, the French argue, would be to end any excuse for the Italians remaining in Spain.

Italy Wants More War

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet discussed the situation yesterday in a closed meeting of the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs committee. He was reported to have said that:

1. Italian leaders seem to want the Spanish war to continue.

2. General Franco has asked Premier Mussolini to withdraw his troops.

The only way to end the war, Bonnet was said to have argued, was to persuade the Republican government of Premier Juan Negrin to give up.

Despit Franco's reported request for Italian withdrawal, Bonnet told the foreign affairs committee that advices from Spain indicated the Nationalists were planning a grand offensive, in which the Blackshirts would be used, unless the Negrin government surrendered.

(On Feb. 22, Premier Mussolini assured Franco that "Italian Legionnaires are at your orders until final victory.")

Reports of the impending offensive said nine army corps, numbering almost 500,000 men, already were in position for attack in the Madrid-Valencia-Alicante zone.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 2 — (CP). — General lack of interest and scarcity of offerings combined to-day to hold Winnipeg wheat futures within a narrow range throughout a dull session. Final quotations were ⅛ cent lower to ⅛ cent higher, with May at 62¾, July 63, and October 63⅛ to ¾ cents.

Except for a few minor purchases by Southern houses and routine local spreading, operations were at a minimum. Only a small export business in Canadian wheat was reported.

Liverpool closed ¼ to ¼d lower when the English market eased after the appearance of March contract tenders totalling 228,000 bushels.

Market Review

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 2—(CP).—Industrial shares advanced moderately and mining and Western oil issues closed irregularly lower on the Toronto Exchange to-day in the quietest trading of the year. Aggregate turnover of about 325,000 shares gave the market a sleepy atmosphere. Aside from fair action in the Abitibi issues, Fanny Farmer and Imperial Oil, the cheaper gold issues attracted the main buying.

Mining shares and the Western oils posted moderate losses in the early session while the industrials held up with strength showing in the food, bank and oil groups. Only about 217,000 shares had changed hands.

Fanny Farmer, Laura Secord, Consolidated Bakeries, and Barker's Bread Preferred were the strong spots in the food group. Steel issues weakened and in the paper group Abitibi Common dropped to a new low for the year and the preferred advanced moderately.

Weakness in the golds hit the secondary and penny stocks mainly. Augite slipped to 62, off 4 cents. Losses were narrow in the base metals.

Wall Street Close.

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP). — Mild support for aircrafts and specialties came into the stock market to-day, but many recent leaders were permitted to slip to moderately lower levels.

Small minus signs predominated near the final hour, although a handful of new highs for the past year or so was in evidence. Transfers were about 600,000 shares.

EXTRADITION GRANTED

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 2—(CP).—Judge Daniel O'Connell to-day granted the State of New York an order for the extradition of Meyer Brenner, wanted in New York on a charge of grand larceny. Hearing of the extradition application concluded yesterday.

The State claimed Brenner obtained $48,000 by representing shipments of scrap iron as nickel cathode.

Horses from 10 nations were entered in Berlin's 1939 riding tournament.

Drifts Almost Maroon Downeyville

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, March 2.—The severe snow storms of the last week have been the worst around here in a number of years. In fact the young people of today never witnessed such snow drifts and they wonder if they are ever going to get out for it is a real old time winter.

Mr. Alex Elliott, county road overseer was out every day trying to keep the road open but finally had to give up as he broke the two snow plows. The road from Lindsay east to Downeyville is open now for a team and sleigh and from Downeyville to Omemee barely open. There were teams and several men out to shovel out the drifts which were in some places six feet high. The bread deliveries from Lindsay had to be made with a team and sleigh to Fox's corner and then met there by a farmer with his team to deliver it to the people. There was no delivery from Omemee for the week-end and it was feared a bread famine was in sight. The mail from Bobcaygeon was not out for a week as the north and south roads were drifted the most. The Downeyville mail man was able to go part of the way, and they are still at the roads to open them up for traffic.

The ice harvest is on here now and they are cutting on Pigeon Lake which is about 17 inches thick and of good quality.

New Mill Open

Messrs. John and Cecil O'Neill have started a chopping mill at Downeyville which is of great convenience to the farmers.

The shingle mill at Downeyville is in full operation and every one is taking advantage of the chance to get shingles cut. The mill is operated by Mr. Thomas Quibell and Sons of Lindsay.

A sale on the Downeyville road last Friday had to be postponed on account of the storm and is to be held next Saturday.

Mr. Alvin Perdue spent the week-end the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cavanagh in Ennismore.

Mr. Trotter of Peterborough made a business trip up here Tuesday.

Mr. Ralph O'Neill of Toronto is at present the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neill.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Herlihey and Mrs. Patrick Perdue were the guests of friends in Peterborough on Wednesday.

Warden Joseph Guiry, Messrs. W. C. Herlihey, Paul McGuire, W. D. Wilson and William Patrick attended the Good Roads Convention in Toronto and spent a few days visiting friends.

Russians Go On Trial In U.S. Spy Case

LOS ANGELES, March 2 (AP).—Two alleged Russian spies were quoted in federal court records today as once discussing the possibility of Japanese torpedo boats operating in California waters as disguised fishing craft.

O. B. Dierst, federal bureau of investigation agent, testified he was told of the conversation between Mikhail Orin and Hafis Salich by the latter when he was an investigator for the United States naval intelligence service last year.

Orin, manager of a Soviet travel bureau, his wife, Natasha, and Salich are on trial accused of purveying United States naval intelligence secrets to the Russian government.

It was Salich's claim, Dierst said, that the only information he sold concerned a "common enemy," Japan.

The federal agent testified Salich gave this account of his "partnership" with Gorin:

In need of money to meet alimony payments to his estranged wife, Salich received an offer to "help out" from Orin in February, 1938.

Returning To U.S.

Countess Johan Heinrich von Bernstorff, who lost her American citizenship when she married the German diplomat who was ambassador to Washington before the U.S. entered the world war, is shown as she sailed on the S.S. Queen Mary to rejoin her ailing husband in Switzerland. The countess recently regained her U.S. citizenship in New York federal court. Count Von Bernstorff, once the most popular diplomat in Washington, was blamed for Germany's unrestricted submarine warfare.

Tammany Leader Found Guilty

The smile of confidence worn throughout his trial by Tammany leader James J. Hines, shown here with his wife and son, James, Jr., was not so confident as he heard a jury convict him on 13 counts, charging him with partnership in the late Dutch Schultz's $20,000,000-a-year gambling syndicate. Hines faces a possible 27 years in prison following the verdict of guilty.

Warsaw Police Curb Students

WARSAW, March 2 — (AP). — Policemen armed with rubber truncheons and fire hose guarded Warsaw's streets today, under strict orders to stifle further student demonstrations against neighboring Germany.

The authorities, after "tolerating" outbursts for several days, decided on sterner measures when 5,000 students clamored yesterday for "a change in our foreign policy" and milled in the streets shouting, "down with Hitler!" and "down with Germans!"

The demonstrations, which started last week, embarrassed the Warsaw government in view of the current visit of Italian foreign minister, Count Aleazzo Ciano. Italy is Germany's axis partner.

Informed sources believed Poland still intended to adhere to a neutral position in European affairs—hemmed in as she is by Germany and Russia. Authorities believed some anti-government agitators had mingled with the yelling students.

Count Ciano and the Polish foreign minister, Col. Joseph Beck, returned from a hunting trip near Bialowieza for further conversations today at Krakow.

Count Ciano was awarded the order of the White Eagle, Poland's highest decoration, and this prompted some Poles to comment, "High decorations are given to friends when one turn down their demands." Thus, they supposed Beck had refused to align Poland with the Rome-Berlin axis.

MARMORA

Owing to the inclemency of the weather and bad road conditions the lantern lecture to have been given in Deloro Hall on Tuesday evening, under A.Y.P.A. auspices was cancelled.

Mr. C. A. Lummiss has been confined to his home through illness.

Mr. J. E. Gehan and daughter, Dorena and Mrs. T. J. Byrnes spent Tuesday in Belleville.

Thousands Of Nazis Building Planes

BERLIN, March 2—(AP)—Coincident with Field Marshall Hermann Goering's avowal of his determination to "maintain Germany's leading position" in the air the Essen newspaper National-Zeitung, which is close to the Field Marshal, today disclosed that "several hundreds of thousands of workers" were employed in "several tremendous" German airplane plants.

The paper also reported that a "fully developed air defence zone" 37 miles deep had been created behind the Reich's western fortifications during the September, 1938, crisis which led to the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia.

The National-Zeitung said Germany's "unparalleled air defence development" enabled the Nazis last year to assign anti-aircraft detachments to each of the 96 mobilized German divisions, to build an air defence blockade around Czecho-Slovakia, and to protect all the important points within Germany.

All railway passenger fares in London will be raised to two cents a mile.

Plane Secrets Shown King

BIRMINGHAM, England, March 2—(CP-Havas) — Secret facts and figures regarding the Austin airplane shadow factory were disclosed to the King and Queen Wednesday, when they visited the plant at Longbridge, a few miles from Birmingham.

Their majesties began a day's visit to Birmingham with an inspection of the factory. Prime Minister Chamberlain, himself a Birmingham man, was minister in attendance, the first time in a considerable period that he has acted in this capacity.

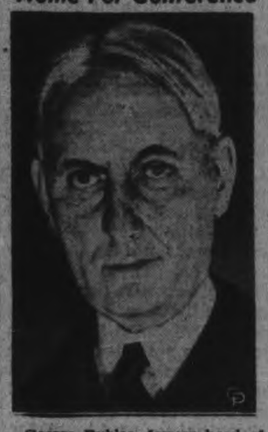
The king and queen were shown fuselages in various stages of completion and given secret information regarding production. The king expressed to Lord Austin appreciation and surprise at the progress made since he last visited the factory less than a year ago.

Rejoining their train, their majesties went to the New Street station where cheering crowds lined the embankment. At one point schoolchildren climbed out on the branches of a big oak tree and waved Union Jacks.

In addition to the prome minister, the king was accompanied by Sir Eric Mieville, his assistant private secretary. Viscountess Halifax was lady-in-waiting to the queen.

The prime minister in a black coat and bowler, and carrying an umbrella, travelled in a car which followed that of the king and queen as the royal procession drove slowly through the crowded streets of Birmingham to the Centre hospital, which was christened by the queen.

Home For Conference



George Rublee, former head of the international refugee committee, arives in New York on his way to Washington to confer with U.S. Secretary Cordell Hull. He indicated the committee hoped to arrange for 150,000 Jews to leave Germany in the next five years.

HASTINGS

Misses Winifred Metcalfe and Audrey Oliver of Peterborough spent the weekend at the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Metcalfe, Asphodel Township.

Miss Kathleen Doherty, R.N., was called as special nurse for Mr. Walter Humphries, who has been critically ill for some days.

Mrs. Gerald Maryatt spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

Mr. Frank Pantling spent the long weekend visiting his wife, who is convalescing in Hamilton.

HARWOOD

Mr. Edgar Butters of Plainville was in the village over the week-end visiting with Mr. Glenn Hogg.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Callahan and family of Cobourg are visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Callahan.

Mr. Leslie Hall was in Toronto last week.

Congratulations to Mr. W. J. Edminson who celebrated his 83rd birthday recently.

Mrs. Dawson Timlin had the misfortune to slip on the ice outside her home, fracturing the large bone in her ankle. Dr. Hayden of Cobourg was called and reduced the fracture.

The meeting of the Women's Institute will be held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. R. MacLean. This will be the grandmother's meeting.

Mrs. John Graham is very ill at the home of her son, Mr. Hilton Graham. Her daughter, Mrs. Sylvester Elder is with her here.

Miss Norma Isaac is in Cobourg hospital where she underwent an operation. Her condition is reported as fair.

Harwood, like many other village in the district has been busy digging itself out of one of the worst snow storms in many years, all roads being completely blocked for motor traffic and on many the fences are even far from sight. However much credit is due the driver of the county plough, Mr. Max Harvie, who is working night and day to keep the road passable to Cobourg. Rice Lake which is usually used for travelling in any direction to ploughed highways, is also impassable just now.

The progressive euchre held in Merriam's Hall on Friday evening was well attended. This is the third euchre put on by the ladies of St. John's Church, the ladies' prize being won by Miss Lettice Drope while the gents prize was won by Mr. Joseph Walker.

There were no services in any of the churches here on Sunday, owing to weather and road conditions.

Open To Questioning

Premier Hepburn admits he is thinking of increasing either the license fee for cars or the tax on gasoline. He seems to be in favor of the latter step on the plea that "those who use the roads should pay for the roads." And that in itself is a sound enough theory, but it loses some of its weight when those who have been paying such taxation for a good many years reply they have paid in enough to take care of all the roads, but their contributions have been used for other purposes of government. If the increase in gasoline tax were to be used, as recommended by the Chevrier report, for wiping out the provincial highway debt, it would have more reason for becoming effective.

It is also intimated that if provincial revenue is increased by such means — license fees or gas tax—the increase will be used to aid municipalities in reducing the taxes on real estate. That may be a laudable enough undertaking, but it is difficult to see how it would be justified. If there are ten men living in the same block and seven of them have motor cars and three have not, then it would be plain that the seven would be contributing to a fund which would benefit all but to which fund three men in the block would be making no contribution.

What a Drop In 30 Years

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture, gave some advice to members of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association at their session in Ottawa.

Just this: That they should seek to regain the position occupied 30 years ago when they were selling 100,000,000 pounds per year more than they are now selling. And one will readily enough admit that 100,000,000 pounds is a good deal of cheese.

Mr. Gardiner pointed his finger directly at Great Britain as the place where we could sell a great deal more cheese. Britain is using more whole milk and therefore making less cheese. And it is a fact that Canadian people themselves are about at the bottom of the list when it comes to cheese consumption. We eat a good many things which cannot compare with cheese in food value.

It was emphasized at the same meeting that we can do better with cheese than with butter in the export market. As things stand at the moment we are continuing to make more butter than we can sell, and the existence of a huge surplus stock keeps down the price regardless of what it may be costing our dairy farmers to produce the butter fat.

It does seem that the evidence which has been submitted from so many sources all points to the desirability of making our cheese factories busy in the May-to-October period. The people who urge such a course are those who have ample knowledge of the whole situation, and we believe they are honestly trying to advise our farmers as to the best and most profitable course for them to follow. Certain it is—butter looks like a dead-end street at the moment.

Counties Should Find Out

Those who are responsible for county roads should read and consider the full import of a decision given by the Appeal Court. Briefly the case is: Action was brought against the county of Wentworth following a motor accident in which one person was killed and three injured. A car had skidded and gone through a guard rail and dropped 100 feet into a ravine and a verdict of $24,691 was given against the county by Mr. Justice Jeffrey.

An appeal was taken from that finding on the ground that the county should provide only guide rails at such places and was under no obligation to make such rails of sufficient strength to oppose the impact of a car. Appeal Court sustained the original finding, which is another way of saying that it is necessary for guide rails to have sufficient strength to keep a car out of control from going through.

Admittedly that is a fairly stiff order, particularly in districts where there are roads where many such railings are erected. It would be well if there was something announced which would clarify that ruling or limit it to places where a hazard of known severity exists. If it is to be taken for granted that all guide rails must be so securely fixed that they will hold a car during a time of impact then it seems plain enough that counties in general are going to take on a good deal more responsibility than has previously been admitted.

Mr. McKenzie Knows

Mr. McKenzie, a Liberal M.P. from Lambton county, expounded a plain theory in the House of Commons when he referred to the long debates which have been running in connection with the trade agreement with United States. The treaty was going through anyway; it was already in operation and the government had ample majority to make certain it would be ratified. Then why continue the debate?

It may be it shows some sort of defect in what we term democracy in that an agreement cannot be changed even if a good and sensible suggestion were made by an opposition member advancing adequate reason for making such change. But as things stand at the moment—and as they have stood for a long time — every member at Ottawa knows the trade treaty will come to a vote and will be passed just as it stands. We suspect a good many members anticipate an election before long and they desire to go on record in Hansard as having made a speech to which they can refer on the hustings.

But as far as changing anything goes debate is useless. Mr. McKenzie, in view of that certain and recognized situation, wonders why such a debate should be continued. And many others wonder the same thing.

Born In Slack Times

There are 960 people in the border city of Windsor who do not know whether they can keep on working in Detroit and living in their own city. It may be they will have to quit their jobs or decide to move to Detroit.

Frank Martel, president of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, says his organization is supporting a bill before Congress which would put an end to commuting from contiguous foreign countries by aliens employed in United States. Mr. Martel says his organization has no objections to Canadians moving in if they can find jobs, but he objects to them coming in and taking the wages and then going out of the country with them. He sees no protection to U.S. workers in such a system.

It is possible that Canadians in turn might object if people from the States were coming over here to work in the daytime and returning home at night.

That sort of feeling always comes to the surface when work is scarce. If the people in Detroit were fully employed there would probably be nothing heard of the situation and if folk from Windsore wanted to ride to and fro across the river or under it no person would care where they did or not. It is when business is dull that legislation of the kind now proposed has its most rapid growth.

One Way Is Open

Premier Duplessis of Quebec wants the Dominion government to join issue with him in driving the Communists out of Quebec. The premier of our neighboring province refers to Communists as "vipers" and calls their doctrines "perfidious and pernicious," so he has made it plain enough he has no use whatever for Communists.

The Examiner doubts whether Communism is going to be stamped out that way. It would be almost too easy if it were possible to round all the Communists up and then ship them out of the country. It would be much the same as taking all the children who had measles and mumps and locking them up or sending them away in order to be rid of measles and mumps. The weakness in such a plan would be that the following year there would be nothing to guarantee that more children would not be suffering from the same maladies. It is much the same with the Communists. If we rid ourselves of them all today we would have no guarantee we would not have another crop later on.

The cure will come when Premier Duplessis is able to show that he has a form of government which will produce such desirable results in terms of happiness and contentment for his people that communism will have nothing to offer which would be any better.

The Value Of a Dollar

In a letter to the Examiner a reader suggests we need some way to stabilize our currency. He is certain that when the British pound is low in value it cuts down the amount we receive for exports to that market as we have to accept payment in the depreciated pound. Our correspondent says he has read a good deal on the subject, but has not yet seen the light. He puts it this way: "I believe that in some way a pound should be a pound, just as our dollar should be a dollar. Then we would know where we are at at all times. I find a good many people agree with the principle, but I have not yet found a solution showing how it could be done."

And that of course is an old question. If there were a law passed tomorrow saying that our dollar must be regarded as 100 cents at home and all over the world we would actually be just about in the same position. A dollar is not a fixed unit of value. It is worth nothing at all until it is spent; a man could have several hundred of them in his pocket and freeze to death or perish from starvation. His way of escape would be in spending them to provide against freezing or starving. When he comes to spend his dollar he will find no fixed value; he may find he has more than a dollar or a good deal less.

Wheat is widely bought and sold the world over. A year ago today the man with dollars in his pocket might have gone to the wheat pit in Chicago with the idea of buying May futures, and he would have found the price $1 per bushel; if he were to go today he would be informed the price is about 68 cents. The bushel of wheat would be exactly the same quantity from year to year, but last year the man could get but one bushel for his dollar, while this year his dollar would purchase exactly 1.47 bushels.

Only a few days ago a resident of this city was explaining to the Examiner that he is now paying $35 per month rental for the house in which he has been living for a number of years, and when he first moved into the place he used to get it for $25. The house is no larger and no better; his purpose in renting a house is the same—securing a place in which to live, but it takes more of his dollars now to purchase the same commodity. The same man has in his possession an old book kept in the days when his grandfather was a merchant, and entries show that tea used to sell for $1 per pound, which is away above the price which is paid for the same article today.

Saying that the dollar should always be worth 100 cents means almost nothing at all. Your dollar is subject to all the variations of supply and demand, of the urgency of some party to sell or the urgency of the owner of the dollar to purchase. It may do the full duty of 100 cents today and two months from now in certain purchases it may be able to work to the extent of only 80 cents. It is only a medium of exchange and its power to buy reflects the conditions existing at the time when it is spent.

NOTE AND COMMENT

We still contend that spring is coming. Noticed a report which said 1939 maple syrup had been offered for sale on the market at London, Ont.

If hostilities open Paris plans to move its 5,000,000 inhabitants out into the country. We figure it might take something as serious as a war to get a back-to-the-land movement under way.

Public school inspector for Peterborough county is making some of his rounds on skis. Of course when he comes to a school house he will cease letting things slide.

It is planned that when Their Majesties visit Vancouver there shall be 20 canoes filled with Indians. And let us hope they do not dress them in plug hats, tail coats and spats.

One expert says grasshoppers will be more than usually plentiful in the West this year. That is one reason why we engage experts—to give us something to stew about several months before it comes to pass.

Stores in Pennsylvania have received orders to take all displays of intoxicating liquors from their windows. We do things in a different way here when most of the displays take place in court the following morning.

Prince Juan is reported waiting a call from Franco to come along and occupy the throne of Spain, left vacant by his father's hurried departure a few years ago. We take it the new king will not have to spend much time figuring out what to do as Franco will have that all arranged for him.

Cobourg Utilities Commission is out for economy by cutting salaries and the manager's pay was cut from $3,000 to $2,400 and $200 car allowance was stopped, making a decrease of $800 per year. Possibly it was necessary, but it has yet to be demonstrated that cutting pay is the sure road to better times.

Tobacco growing is a relatively new industry in Ontario, but already it faces this problem. Estimates are there will be a crop of from 65 to 80 million pounds this year, and the sales possibilities centre around an outside mark of 45,000,000 pounds. Apart from being able to sell only about half of the production everything else seems all right.

PINK SEDAN

(By A.R.K.)

¶ My pink sedan must long for spring, and dream of pleasure it will bring, my pink sedan is old; and when the wind blows down the street, when there's no sign of coming heat, I know it feels the cold.

¶ Each night I lay a quilt on it, and try to tuck it in a bit, a kindly thing to do; I can store up some heat that way, perhaps when it comes on next day, the thing may run like new.

¶ When I go out when comes next morn, I sometimes try and toot the horn, to see if it is dead; instead of loud and striden blast, to show me that the thing will last, I hear a groan instead.

¶ When I step on the starting pin, expecting wheels and things to spin, my pink sedan has fits; it really has no style and poise, it makes the strangest sort of noise, and after that it quits.

¶ I go and get the kettle then, and try my pink sedan again, mount in the driver's seat; I'm hopeful that my car will go, and in that way will rise and show, as how it likes the heat.

¶ I work a quarter of an hour, at last I feel a touch of power, I've reached the vital spot; my pink sedan is going once more, and making such a fearful roar—I fear 'twill never stop.

Must Not Read Their Speeches

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. DONNELLY: I should like to ask the hon. member what he is reading from.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I have not been quoting from anything.

Mr. DONNELLY: You have been reading something. I do not know what it is, but I should like to know.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I just stated that I have two tables which for the benefit of hon. members I should like to place on Hansard. They are statements in regard to the cost per acre of producing wheat. One deals with horse-power equipment, and the other with power equipment. Both contain information prepared at the experimental station at Whitla, Alberta.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member has no right to place a table on Hansard, unless he includes it in his speech. Only the Minister of Finance can do that, on the presentation of the budget, by special leave and with the unanimous consent of the house.

An hon. MEMBER: Read it.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member cannot read it like that.

Mr. DONNELLY: I rise to a point of order. I want to know what the hon. member is reading from—whether he is reading his speech, or what he is doing.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): No, I am not reading anything.

Mr. DONNELLY: You are reading your speech, or some article.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I am not reading anything. If the hon. member would listen he would get some information.

Mr. DONNELLY: You are reading your speech, or some paper. Is it your speech?

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I will answer any question the hon. member has to ask after I have finished.

Mr. SPEAKER: There is a rule of the house that no hon. member may read his speech, or read a prepared statement. He must make his speech. He must deliver it to the house.

Mr. PELLETIER: Speaking to the point of order, I submit the hon. member is referring once in a while to some notes he has prepared. That has been the practice followed by most hon. members of the house. Notes have been prepared, and they have referred to them.

Mr. SPEAKER: I have rendered my decision. If the hon. member is only consulting his notes, he is in order. If he is reading his speech, verbatim, from a written statement prepared in advance, he is out of order.

Mr. JOHNSTON (Bow River): I am just consulting notes.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Copious notes.

Mr. DONNELLY: I contend the hon. member is reading his speech. I have sat in the house for most of this session and so far I have not spoken at all, but I have had to listen to dozens and dozens of speeches which have been read and I think it is time this practice was stopped.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Mr. Speaker, on the point of order, I should like to know why the hon. member picks on this member to raise an objection.

Mr. DONNELLY: It is not this hon. member alone; it has been done by hon. members all over the house. It is all right when an hon. member first comes into the house to use notes when speaking; we have no objection to his reading his speech then, but I think it should be stopped when it goes on day after day, week after week and month after month.

Mr. SPEAKER: Is there any other hon. member who wishes to speak to the point of order?

Mr. PELLETIER: I submit that the hon. member is dealing with a technical matter involving the use of a number of statistical tables, something which could not possibly be memorized. As I stated a moment ago, he is referring closely to his notes in order to give accurate information to the house.

Mr. SPEAKER: Standing order number 41 deals with those things which should not be done by an hon. member and, paragraph (o) of that order reads:

(o) read from a written, previously prepared speech.

If the hon. member is reading from a previously prepared speech, he is not in order and he should discontinue reading; if he is not, then he is in order.

CONSIDER THE KILT.

War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha is wondering if the kilt is quite the ideal garment for wartime wear. While there is no intention of abolishing the kilt as a "walking-out" dress in times of peace, Army authorities are inclined to the view that it is hardly suitable on a modern battle trout.

Experiences of the last war are being taken into account. In the war days bare knees had an unpleasant habit of contacting barbed wire entanglements and legs were often badly cut when the pleats of the kilts became frozen stiff in severe winter weather.

It is likely that a new active service uniform will be devised, but there will no be no drastic change so long as "Scottie" is on a peace footing.—(Pearson's Weekly)

NEW YORK'S 18,000 COPS.

TODAY New York City is guarded by a force of 18,000 policemen. This body is larger than the standing armies of Peru (10,000), Norway (14,000), Denmark (11,000), Cuba (14,000), or Venezuela (13,000). It is equipped with the latest scientific gadgets for law enforcement and crime detection, including radio, the radio car, teletype, emergency trucks and complete crime laboratories. The character of the personnel has changed since the bleary Hollanders in droopy gallagaskins cried the hour and the season of the weather in the downtown streets. Of 2,427 men appointed to the force since March, 1936, 301 are college men of whom 61 hold college degrees; 1,658 have had complete, or some part of high school education, and 2,231 are native Americans.—(New York Times)

Correspondents Discuss Various Topics

FUNCTION OF GOVERNMENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The true function of government is to protect all its citizens in the free enjoyment of their natural rights, and its activities should be strictly limited and confined to that function. These natural rights, existing from the beginning antedate all social systems and forms of government. They are inherent to all human beings, having the authority and validity of natural laws with the power of self enforcement to reward obedience and punish violations, a quality peculiar to all natural laws and totally absent from human enactments.

Every human being is possessed of personal rights inherent and absolutely his own and also enjoys communal rights in common with all others. These two forms of rights with which the individual is endowed are separate and distinct in nature and origin, not contradictory but supplemental to one another. The preservation of these composite rights is the sole justification for the existence of any form of government. It is therefore evident that if their recognition and preservation dominate human legislation, none will suffer wrong. It is equally apparent that if these rights are ignored or violated, human society will sink into hopeless confusion, a prey to anarchy and military despots. Experience proves the truth of this, for such is the condition of the world today and from no other cause than the violation of the natural rights of mankind.

This being so, it follows that the only cure for social ills is in a radical reformation of our present system, bringing it into harmony with those natural laws which determine the nature and extent of the natural rights of human beings. Short of this, the formation of a new party or of a dozen of them or the prodding-up of old parties to adopt some makeshift or temporary expedient to alleviate present distress, will accomplish nothing. The basic defects of the old system having led us astray from the highway into a bottomless bog, the sane thing is to get back to the highway by scrapping the old and adopting a better system as fast as possible.

COULD NOT TIE A ROPE

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—It was with keen delight I read the letter a few days ago signed Edgar Wallace II dealing with the robbery in this city for which two men have since gone to Kingston. The letter asked what was wrong with their tactics and what a person should have done.

First of all, if they had not obtained a rod (gun) in one of their previous jobs they might not have attempted their last job which has landed them on the inside looking out.

To go on with the story—my dear Watson—let us take it apart a little and understand these men. One of them came from Nova Scotia where sailors are plentiful and where a knowledge of boats abounds and that life makes me think of ropes and knots and all such things. Keep that in mind for a moment. The other said he came from Manitoba where there are supposed to be a few cowboys and farm hands and such. Now then does it not strike you as odd that neither one of them knew enough to tie their victim securely so he would have to stay tied for three or four hours. He had not much trouble in getting free. So they were bunglers right there.

They had made no plans in advance for getting away. They could have looked up a car some place around the city if they knew anything about their business and when they were through in the garage they should have turned out the lights and shut the door and gone their way. It would not have been difficult for them then to have reached Toronto before the alarm was spread and they could also have ditched their car in the meantime and split the money. For them to stick together was evidence of being green at the business. It looks to me as though they were learning the poor hold-up business the hard way. Tell Edgar Wallace II to write again as that sort of thing is interesting.

DIFFERENT

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—Having resided in Peterborough for the past 28 years might be deemed qualified to reply to "New Comer's" letter who claim that the sociable and generous qualities of the Peterborough people do not equal that of his home town; at least she feels that way.

Apparently "New Comer's" home town is a small village where the neighbors are well known to each other and live as one large family, whereas Peterborough being a large city where acquaintances live miles apart, hence the reason for telephone notice or similar means of an intended visit. From the fact that "New Comer" uses the plural word "we" may be taken for granted she is not alone—a privilege for which she may feel grateful and proud.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And when he came to his disciples, he saw a great multitude about them, and the scribes questioning with them. . . . And he asked the scribes, What question ye with them? And one of the multitude answered and said, Master, I have brought unto thee my son, which hath a dumb spirit. . . .

When Jesus saw that the people came running together, he rebuked the foul spirit, saying unto him, Thou dumb and deaf spirit, I charge thee, come out of him, and enter no more into him. And the spirit cried, and rent him sore, and came out of him: and he was as one dead; insomuch that many said, He is dead. But Jesus took him by the hand, and lifted him up; and he arose.—Mark ix, 14, 16, 17, 20, 21, 22 25-27.

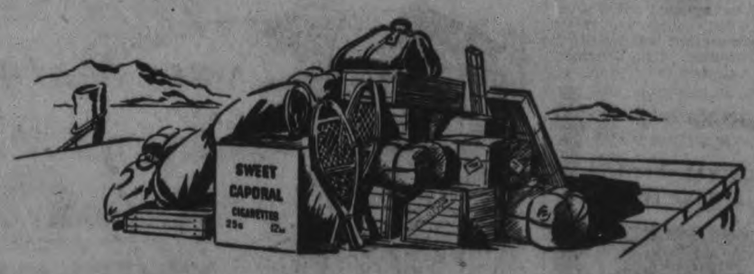
BAD MAN

Westerner: "Yeah, we're sure plenty tough out here, stranger. Why, every time I kill a man I carve a notch on my revolver handle, yeah."

Stranger: "Well, you can't scare me, for you haven't done much killing, I see. That revolver handle of yours hasn't a single notch on it."

Westerner: "Yeah, I know it, stranger. I have to put a new handle on every week."



CIGARETTES FLY NORTH

Canada today pioneers on wings—and Imperial Tobacco products are only half a jump behind. For a typical "flying boxcar" load for the North includes such things as a dog team, sleeping bags, snowshoes, machine parts, ammunition, cigarettes. More freight is carried by air in Canada than in any other country, with the possible exception of Russia.

Yellowknife, the booming new mining base on Great Slave Lake in the Northwest Territories, is some 600 miles north of Edmonton. But, if you fly there, or to any other far-off point in the Dominion, you will find your favourite brand of cigarettes or pipe tobacco ahead of you. Today they are flown in. Yesterday they were packed in by canoe or dog team. Wherever there are stores — on fashionable street or newest frontier — there the products of the tobacco industry await your pleasure.

Continuation School Reopens At Millbrook

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Mar. 2.—The local Continuation School re-opened on Monday morning, after being closed since last Wednesday owing to the number of pupils having the prevailing colds and flu; about one-quarter the number of regular pupils are in attendance. The Public School will remain closed for another week.

Bridge Party.

Miss Jean L. Burnham entertained with four tables of bridge at her home on Saturday evening, Mrs. H. D. Bigelow winning first prize and Mrs. D. R. Fowler the consolation.

Services on the Presbyterian charge were dispensed with on Sunday owing to the heavy snow storm, and the practically impassable condition of the roads in all directions from the village.

Hostesses entertaining recently at pot-luck suppers, in connection with the Woman's Association of St. Andrew's Church included Mrs. P. I. Bentley and Mrs. Percy Stinson at the former's home on Friday evening; Miss Josie Sutton and Miss M. E. Duncan at Mrs. M. Sutton's on Wednesday evening; and Mrs. A. L. Sisco and Mrs. G. E. Burnham on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Luella Kennedy, the party to-night being at 6.30. Over thirty guests have attended each pot-luck supper, and financial returns have been most satisfactory.

Miners Win $14,000 Of Back Wages

HAZLETON, Pa., Mar. 2—(AP)—Forty-nine hard coal miners, ending an underground sit-down protest in the dark, damp passages of a mine at nearby Oneida, caught up on lost sleep today as they basked in the comforts of home for the first time in a week.

Only partly successful in their attempt to obtain payment of $66,000 in back wages, the men emerged from the mine last night after the Wolfe Collieries Company issued an ultimatum that it no longer would be responsible for compensation payments.

The miners, bundled in heavy blankets provided by families and friends to protect them against the cold during their 160-hour underground stay, were lifted from the 250-foot level in a mine car in groups of five and six.

Before the miners came out, pay envelopes covering $14,000 in wages due February 20 were carried into the mine by the parish priest, Rev. Joseph Baran. Spokesmen said the miners would ask the courts to settle the other claims.

Mrs. Walker of Medicine Hat, Alberta, was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. E. H. Syer and Mr. Syer for a few days last week.

Mrs. Vance of Bethany has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Edgar Falls.

Because of a severe and general epidemic of flu in this district combined with almost impassable roads, several social and church functions have been postponed. The C.G.I.T. meeting scheduled for Friday night, the World's Prayer Day meeting on Friday, the Kotton Kids Klub meeting on Saturday and the W.A. and W.M.S. intended for Thursday, March 2, all were withdrawn.

As Film Stars Receive Their "Oscars"

Hero Skipper To Quit After 35 Years At Sea

MONTREAL, March 2 — (CP). — Captain Arthur Rothwell, central rigure in rescue of twenty-eight seamen from the sinking tug Reindeer off Nova Scotia seven years ago, is leaving the sea. Retirement of the veteran master mariner after 35 years with the Canadian Pacific Steamships was announced by the line last night.

Captain Rothwell was in command of the liner Montcalm in March of 1932 when her lifeboats took off the crew of the Reindeer I as she was foundering in heavy seas near Sable Island. For his skillful manoeuvering of the liner into position for the rescue, he was awarded Lloyd's medal for saving life at sea.

A native of Lancashire, England, Captain Rothwell is 60.

After 18 years at the bottom of the Black Sea, the Russian steamer Peter the Great has been raised to the surface.

Accidental Meeting With King And Queen Gives American Lady 83 Thrill Of Life

LONDON, March 1—(AP)—An 83-year-old American woman, Mrs. R. Cantor of New York City, accidentally met the King and Queen yesterday, kissed the Queen's hand, and then chatted with Their Majesties just as she would with "home folks."

"I got the biggest thrill of my life," she said afterward.

Mrs. Canto said she was sitting in an office at the British Industries Fair when it was announced King George and Queen Elizabeth were entering. Everyone in the office was asked to leave.

"But because I was old," she said, "and not very active I was allowed to stay.

"When the Queen saw me she held out her hand and I kissed it. Then she took my other hand and held both my hands while she talked.

"The Queen is so very sweet and dainty.

"Oh, and the King! He was so young and unassuming. When he came over to join the Queen in speaking to me it was the most genuine gesture you could imagine."

Mrs. Canto said the Queen asked her what she thought of England and the fair.

"I was too overcome to remember what I answered," remarked Mrs. Cantor.

Palestine Assembly Authorizes Strike

JERUSALEM, March 2.—(AP).—The Palestine Jewish Assembly authorized its National Council today to call a general strike if necessary to demonstrate Jewish solidarity against a reported British plan to make the Holy Land an independent Arab state.

The National Council issued a manifesto rejecting the plan declaring it would "impose a minority status" on Palestine Jews, and threatening to withdraw from cooperation with Great Britain if the plan were effected.

Troops in armored cars patrolled Jerusalem streets after two days of scattered violence. An estimated 220 have been killed and 265 wounded since the first of the year.

The Jewish Council called on the British and American peoples and the League of Nations to stop the British Government's alleged attempts to "blast the hopes of the ancient Jewish people, weary of exile and yearning for restoration" of a Palestinian homeland.

CENTRETON

On Friday A. Coffey and H. Honeywell celebrated their birthdays at the home of R. Honeywell, when a dinner was served. Guests on the occasion were Mr. and Mrs. A. Coffey, Frances and Clara, Rev. and Mrs. Bromwich, R. Honeywell, and Mrs. S. Coffey.

The roads in our village have been blocked on several occasions this past week, and the mail has been unable to get through. On Friday morning 10 inches of new snow had fallen during the night. There was no church service nor Sunday School on Sunday.

C. Richardson has returned home from Toronto, where he has been trying exams for higher office on the boat for the summer months.

Charles Blogett had the misfortune to have one of his horses die, it is believed, of eating some poisonous weed in the hay.

ST. PAUL'S TAKE FIRST PLACE IN MEN'S SENIOR CAGE LOOP

St. John's Lose To Heclas In Other Tilt

St. Paul's led all the way to beat C.C.E. 42-25 and go into undisputed possession of first place, while Heclas beat St. John's 33-29 in the dying minutes, moving up into a third place tie with the Anglicans, in a Senior City League cage doubleheader played in the Y.M.C.A. gym last night.

C.G.E. and St. John's were both in the hunt until late in the games, but the winners broke ahead to win by good margins.

The decisions left St. Paul's a half game ahead of Quakers, who have an extra game to play, which Heclas pulled up even with St. John's, each with 4 wins and 4 losses.

Hold Thorburn.

C.G.E. held Jim Thorburn, who leads the scoring race, by a runaway margin, to 6 points, but Ross Pulkinghorn stepped in to lead the Presbyterians with 18. The winners had a 17-11 edge at half time. C. G.E. had almost as much of the play as the winners, but missed shot after shot under the basket and from the free throw district.

St. Paul's were breaking faster than the losers and had better passing, with the guards setting up a lot of the plays and adding 14 points of their own. C.G.E. lost Holmes near the end. Pulkinghorn with 18, McArthur and McIntyre stared for the winners, and Broadley, who starred all night, and Cameron, were best for C.G.E. The teams:

St. Paul's (42)—Centre, McArthur (4); forwards, Thorburn (6), Pulkinghorn (18); guards, McIntyre (8), Marsh (6). Sub, Dowson.

C.G.E. (25)— Centre, Edmonson (5); forwards, Holmes (1), Salvadge (8); guards, Bradley (11), Cameron.

Referee—W. Ferris. Umpire—D. Sedgewick.

Heclas Win.

Heclas came back from a 17-11 deficit at the half to go ahead, and then scored twice in the dying minutes to break a 29-29 tie and win 32-29.

The losers scored twice near the end of the first half, and had a 17-11 margin then, but Heclas came back strong and led 29-26 with a minute and a half to go. St. John's scored a basket and free throw to tie it up, but Hecla players swarmed around the losers' basket and scored twice in quick succession in the final minutes to win by a nose. St. John's were guilty of 7 fouls and the winners but 6, Heclas making 4 points from the free throw line and the Anglicans 3. Turner and Sedgewick led the winners, with Gillespie and Ascott best for St. John's.

The teams:

St. John's (29)—Centre, Craig (4); forwards, Marshall (7), Gillespie (10); guards, Dyer (2), Ascott (4). Subs, Jefries (2).

Heclas (33)—Centre, Turner (6); forwards, West (6), Dougherty (8); guards, White (6), Sedgewick (7).

Referee—W. Ferris. Umpire, B. Harle.

'Diver' Unveiled As Dempsey's Heavy 'Hope'

NEW YORK, March 2—(AP)—Jack Dempsey unveiled a "diver" as his heavyweight fight prospect today, and New York boxing writers gasped when they heard Wild Bill Floyd, the fighter in question, admit it

"But don't get me wrong, boys," the 24-year-old ex-sailor man hastened to add. "All my diving is done in a swimming tank I'm pretty good at it, too I had ambitions to go places as a swimmer and diver before I turned to fighting"

After thus putting minds at ease, Boyd went on to tell of his boxing "career." It's still young, having started professionally less than two years ago, but to date it's blossoming quite nicely His record shows 23 victories, including 18 knockouts, in 24 pro starts.

"And the one he lost," a member of the Boyd cheering and chowder society explained, "was by a sucker punch against Eddie Simms of Cleveland. Simms rushed out at the bell for the first round and belted Bill with a right hand shot before he was half off his stool. Boyd went down, but he came up and kept right on fighting the whole 10 rounds. That punch, though, ruined his evening"

Queen At Theatre

LONDON, March 2.—(CP-Havas)—Queen Mary attended last night's performance by the Comedie Francaise, accompanied by her brother, the Earl of Athlone, and his wife, Princess Alice.

The Earl of Besborough, president of the Franco-British Art Society and former governor general of Canada, welcomed the royal party at the theatre.

Senior Squads Getting Set For Playdowns

There is going to be a real old-fashioned dog fight among the Senior championship teams of Eastern Canada before a winner is declared for the grand final wind-up of Senior Hockey in the Allan Cup series. No doubt the fact that this year's winner qualifies for the Olympic games of next winter has had much to do with the general strengthening of the Senior Hockey situation in Eastern Canada.

The Prince Edward Island Branch is enthusiastically behind the Charlottetown Rangers, while in Nova Scotia the fans of the Bluenose province are rooting for the Sydney Millionaires as their most favored crew to go through the long trail. Saint John Beavers are the team that has the whole-hearted support of the Senior Hockey fans in New Brunswick.

Two Ontario teams playing in Quebec leagues may cause the biggest upset of all. The famous Cornwall Flyers, who won the Eastern Canadian Senior championship last season and went into the Allan Cup finals against the Trail Smoke Eaters, are leaders in the Quebec Provincial League, having completed their regular season with a commendable margin over the rest of the circuit. Like everybody else, the Cornwall Flyers are engaged in their league play-offs. They lost but nine games during the past season and several of those setbacks came when the team was riddled with illness and injuries. The Flyers lost about eight players from last year's team, but to the credit of Coach Don Penniston they have done a fine job of rebuilding.

Ottawa League

Under the leadership of the Ottawa and District Branch, the Ottawa Senior League is enjoying a real season. La Salle, Hull Volants and the Flyers have provided keen competition. Hull and La Salle are in the midst of an exciting play-off series. The winners of the Ottawa Senior League will meet the all-Ontario Senior winner in the first round of the C. A. H. A. playdowns.

In the Quebec Senior League, Montreal Royals finished on top, just one point ahead of the Ottawa Senators. It is going to be a real argument as to which team comes out on top of the play-off scrap. Concordias and Verdun, who also qualified for the play-offs in the Quebec League, are rated as the "dark horses" by many of the experts.

In Ontario there are two Senior teams, like the Quebec situation, that are expected to go places. Right now Toronto Goodyears, who won their regular Senior "A" O.H.A. schedule without a defeat, winning 15 games and playing 5 overtime ties, are engaged in a final play-off series with the improved G. M. Men of Oshawa. Toronto Goodyears won the first game of the final best-three-out-of-five games by a 3-1 score. However, Oshawa is still very much in the picture. While Toronto Goodyears are favorites to win the Senior "A" O. H. A. crown, they hardly expected to down the Oshawa opposition in less than five games.

Lake Shore Going

In Northern Ontario the Lake Shore Blue Devils of Kirkland Lake are rated the best Senior team to play in the North for some time. Sammy Rothchild, who coached the Falconbridge Falcons of last season has a carload of all-star material, and the Ontario fans are waiting for such a series between Goodyears and Lake Shore, if and when it happens. Sudbury, always a contender in the play-off picture, has Creighton Mines and Frood Mines in their Nickel Belt play-offs. Fans of the Sudbury district resent the claim that Lake Shore will win the N. O. H. A. title. "They have to beat us first" are the challenging words from the many supporters of the Nickel Belt League in the Sudbury district.

From the Thunder Bay branch, the Geraldton team looms as their big threat. This crew have won their games in championship fashion and may cause a few upsets before they are finished.

HOTSPURS WIN

LONDON.—Tottenham Hotspurs defeated Newcastle United 1-0 in an English Football League, second division match played on the latter's ground Wednesday. In a northern section, third division contest Chester, before a home crowd, whipped Carlisle United 6-1.

Digging up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

Bud Clarke of the Monarchs' hockey executive gave us the local juniors' side of the mixup with Lindsay Midgets. Pointed out that the 'flu had hit the Monarchs hard and they had to default their return game in Lindsay that evening, and so informed Lindsay. Well, the Scugog ossifers were quite upset, figuring a sellout crowd with no game. So they urged Clarke to bring up some sort of a squad—even if the game was defaulted—and have an exhibition tilt. But Lindsay was told that, while the Monarchs wanted nothing, the other players would need expenses in the way of transportation and food. So $20 was asked, or $8 for transportation and let Lindsay provide a feed, if they preferred that. Nope, Lindsay officials said they'd give a flat $20, and to bring the club.

* * * * * *

No talk of a holdup, or anything like that—Lindsay wanting to hold that big crowd and get the shillings. There was no kick about paying the money for the Colts and other players—with the Monarchs getting nothing. So why all the press kicks from Lindsay? We thought the whole thing looked funny, as Lindsay didn't need to pay any $20 if they didn't want to, and Bud Clarke assures us this is the right story. He says he is not worrying about Lindsay criticism but doesn't want local folk to get the wrong impression of the Monarchs, a scrappy young outfit which paid its own way on all trips this season. And that's good enough for us—and it looks like someone in Lindsay is holding out on the Scugog scribes, too.

The Kingston Slant

This from Kingston the other day: "Kingston seniors invade Peterborough on Friday with a two-goal deficit on a total point round. Kingston players slipped Monday night at the Jock Harty Arena after having the better of play over the Petes for two periods. The Petes, following decisive wins over Trenton and Belleville in group competition, were figured strong favorites to trim the Kingston collection, but they were fortunate to finish so much in front. Kingston put on a scrappy display and held an edge until the last frame when they faded and the invaders collected their winning margin." He feels it'll be tight here, too.

* * * * * *

Yep, the speedy and battling Limestone Citizens will hustle the homesters like all get-out at the Brock tomorrow eve. They'll gang up and crowd the Buckland lads from start to finish, but we still like the locals' chances. It is bound to be a redhot, rousing playoff session and ought to pack in the customers; there are plenty of reserved-seats gone already. The flashy Petes can't afford to get careless now, with just a two-goal edge to work on and their big chance at a provincial senior "B" pennant coming closer. But they don't want to forget how soon a two-goal bulge dissolves at times—remember what happened that two-counter margin the locals toted to Niagara Falls last semester! Yeah, it'll be a swell scrap between two fast puck outfits who know all the answers and play open, exciting hockey.

* * * * * *

Plans have been practically completed, we hear, for the Petes—provided they can rub out Kingston here tomorrow—to step into a round-robin series against other senior "B" survivors to declare an Ontario champion. Niagara Falls would be one, Waterloo another and the winner of that Western Ontario group. Along with the Petes. Not likely to be a Toronto team this season. It would mean a home game for the locals against each of these other three clubs, with the Petes playing in each town once. Top team in this round-robin serial would take the title. A swell break for the Petes, and the fans here, if it works out—meaning three of the best teams in the province coming here—with first game likely on Monday.

* * * * * *

A couple C.G.E. shop puck playoffs last p.m. at the Brock. Fractionals defaulted to Test Dept., so Switchgears and Test had a semi-final tangle, the latter taking a 6-5 nod to cop the duke. And now Test will play the Wiremen Saturday aft at the Brock in the first of their two-game senior finals. In the junior section, Drafting defeated Toolroom by a 2-1 margin, the first of their two-game finals, return being at the same rink Saturday afternoon. So one section of this lively loop will be ended Saturday and the other one sometime next week. And we hope none of our O.H.A. senior "B" players on these teams will get banged up in shop tilts ere the start of their Ontario struggles.

Passes Not Lifted

Vern DeGeer, sports editor of the Toronto Globe and Mail writes us to point out a correction. Says: "A couple of weeks ago I got a clipping from your column from Peterborough. In it was a paragraph of yours which told that my passes to Maple Leaf Gardens pro hockey games had been cancelled because of criticism in my column of the Leafs. I imagine the idea came out of a radio comment of a local sports' announcer, who suggested that my passes might be lifted because of criticism I had made. The pass-lifting is untrue and in fairness to the Gardens I think deserves correction. Perhaps the pass-lifting will come later, although I am not anticipating such action." Okay, Vern, we're glad to clear it up.

Two men's senior cage tilts were moved up from next Saturday to last night, St. Paul's pulling out a 42-25 victory over C.G.E. and Heclas halting St. John's winning streak with a 33-29 halter. Quakers and Dominions will play at the "Y" Saturday eve, while an intermediate O.C.B.A. tussle is also listed that night there. And St. John's play in Fort Perry on Saturday. Two P.C.I. hoop outfits journey to Lindsay on the morrow, with two games listed for P.C.I. gym here tonight. Belleville girls and Orfuns meet at eight in a group semi-final, followed at nine by C.G.E. and Port Hope in an exhibition joust. Heavy hoop activity here lately, eh?

CURLING

By HERB. MARTIN

The finals in both events of the Neill trophy will be played this evening at 7.30 p.m.

Both games will be 12 ends and the spectators should see two fine games.

Primary Event

R. Downey, Peterborough, vs T. McArthur, Peterborough.

Consolation Event

G. Cairns, Peterborough, vs E. Northey, Lakefield.

Continuing in the Leads and Seconds 'spiel last night the game were such that No. 8 could hardly follow them all. Right across the rink, from one ice to another, the brand of curling put up by those newcomers was a revelation to many an oldtimer. In nearly every game one little piece of luck might have easily turned the tide either way. In three cases the game depended on the last stone played. These games will continue this evening.

Norwood Edges Madoc 5-4 In School Tilt

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, Mar. 2.—Norwood High School defeated Madoc High School 5-4 in the first game of the home-and-home series for the championship of the Bay of Quinte division C.O.S.S.A., giving the Norwood scholars one goal lead to take home for the return game on Saturday night.

The visitors were by far the best team in the first two frames, outscoring the homesters 2-1 in the first and 4-2 in the second. Only the sensational work of Bill Hawthorne prevented a whitewashing for the locals, as the Norwood lads showed more teamwork both offensively and defensively. Puffer was the outstanding player for Norwood, being the spearhead of the the attack, and while notching four of the visitors' counts he also found time to play a fine game on the defence. Gill Stevenson and Petticrew, along with Puffer, were the pick of the visitors.

Hawthorne in the local twine was probably the star of the game, as he was left wide open most of the first two frames and successfully staved off shots that were tagged for counts and really earned by the fine combination of the visitors. On the defence, Munro, replacing Moon who is sick, played a heady game and missed the tying count in the last ten seconds, as he had the goalie beaten from close in, only to nick the post.

Keller was the pick of the forwards, being in on all the locals" counts while chalking one up for himself.

The Game.

Puffer opened the scoring in the first. A minute later Keller drove into the goalie's pads, Naylor flipped in the rebound. Fully two-thirds of the period was played on Madoc half of the ice as Hawthorne kicked and baeed ou a dozen sure ones.

T. Hawthorne was chased for using his knee, and Norwood ganged in. In a scramble in front of the net, Bill Hawthorne stopped four shots, lost his stick, and Puffer flipped it in over his prone body.

Puffer notched the third through the legs of the whole team in the third period. A minute later Puffer again counted.

Gill was yanked for tripping and Keller batted in a passout from the corner. Puffer got the gate for boarding and Hawthorne for tripping.

W. Thompson backhanded Keller's pass to cut the lead. On the next play Stewart coasted round the defence to drift one in from deep in the corner, and tie the score. Norwood got the fifth as Gill and Munro strained for possession at the crease on a passout.

Iniss of Norwood and Watson of Madoc handled the game.

The teams:

Norwood — Goal, Bongard; defence, Puffer, Morris; centre, Stevenson; wings, Sargent, Petticrew; alternates, Gill, Godin, Buck, Warr.

Madoc — Goal, W. Hawthorne; defence, Munro, T. Hawthorne; centre, Keller; wings, Stewart, Naylor; alternates, J. Thompson, W. Thompson, McCaw.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

BRADENTON, Fla.—It looks like old-timers' week for the Bees. Casey Stengel, no spring flower himself, praised the practice efforts of such veterans as Al Simmons, who clouted balls all over Florida in the first two drills; Danny MacFayden, who as usual is in better condition than the other hurlers; Tony Cuccinello, who couldn't resist some batting practice in civilian clothes, and who may shift over to third base this season.

SARASOTA, Fla. — The first 90-minute drill for the Red Sox hampered the golf playing, because many of the players picked up numerous aches and twinges from the exercises. Manager Joe Cronin was in a rhapsodizing mood, praising his rookies and the weather. He paid particular attention to freshmen Ted Williams and Jim Tabor, who are slated for regular service.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Although 14 hurlers took part in first spring drill of St. Louis Browns, club officials appeared quite anxious today to obtain signatures of several veterans, including Buck Newsom. Conferences scheduled today with Fred Johnson and Russ Van Atta to iron out contract difficulties. Besides Newsom, Howard Mills is still missing.

AVALON, Calif. — In camp one week, Manager Gabby Hartnett estimated he probably would carry three catchers, 11 pitchers, six infielders and five outfielders when the 25-man player limit goes into effect in May. He is set on most pitchers and, of the newcomers, is depending on Earl Whitehill, Ray Harrell and rookie Kirby Higbe. They, he says are "up to stay this time."

Kingston Here To Play Petes

Kingston City Club is here tomorrow (Friday) at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink to play the Petes the return game of their O. H. A. senior "B" playdown series. It is a two-game series, goals to count, with the locals two up from their 6-4 triumph in Kingston last Monday. The loser on the round is out for the season while the victor goes into the Ontario semi-finals, possibly against Niagara Falls. It will be the first senior struggle seen here in some weeks, and should pack in the fans again, as it is a highly important fixture and should be loaded with action and exciteiment all through.

The Kingston crew surprised the locals with their speed and class, the Petes being lucky to gain a two-goal edge. They had to twice come from behind and their margin was tainted as one Peterborough goal was scored on a deflected shot off a Kingston player's stick and another came on a last-minute breakaway as the homesters ganged up. The visitors here tomorrow will turn it on desperately throughout and might well eliminate the Petes right on their own ice. However, the locals feel they can win this round and advance in playdowns, and it will be a game well worth seeing on local ice.

Bill Pinkerton Upsets Emslie Long

By Allen Nickleson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Ont., Mar. 2—(CP)—Bashing Bill Pinkerton of Toronto, chief aspirant so far to the title of giant killer at the Canadian badminton championships, seemed surer of reaching the quarter-finals today than he did of getting past the first round.

Pinkerton was pitted today against Jim Stevenson of London, not rated nearly as tough an opponent as the man Pinkerton kocked off as the championships began yesterday. In a startling first-round match, dapper Bill upset Emslie Long of Winnipeg, the country's sixth-ranked player, 15-10, 6-15, 15-7 players at the Toronto Badminton and Racquet Club revealed that Pinkerton has beaten Jack Storey of Toronto, 1938 Ontario champion, several times recently in practice matches.

In another second-round match, Vancouver's Johnny Samis, defending single titlist, faces L. Purvis, Ottawa, and is expected to advance to quarter finals without too much trouble.

Quebec Aces Out

Third-round play in the other four divisions began today but the men's doubles competition was not graced by Quebec's No 1 entry, Len Schlemn and Ken Reynolds, Montreal.

The Montrealers ran up against a hard-hitting and determined Toronto team of Howland Smith and Tim Lownsbrough and lost in two straight sets, 15-6, 15-6, in the only other opening-day upset

All 1938 champions are defending their titles with the exception of Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., Toronto, who is abroad in an attempt to gain the all-England championship.

Favored to take over Mrs. Walton's throne is Mrs. Guy Perodeau, Ottawa matron, who was runner-up at the national championships at Quebec last season. In her only match yesterday, Mrs. Perodeau showed championship form, whipping Mrs. George Hees, Toronto, 11-0, 11-1.

Toronto's national titular doubles team of Jack Sibbald and Rod Phelan humbled Bill Seagram and Ken Kennedy, Toronto, 15-6, 15-7, in a second-round affair.

BERT HALL'S KITCHENER RINK CAPTURES ONTARIO TANKARD

Glen Ross Tops Hastings Rural League

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 2.—With elimination staring them in the face Zion, of the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League, went after a win with all they had in the first game of Tuesday night's twin bill, played on soft ice, but lost out by a goal to Cannifton, 3-2.

The first period showed them to have a slight edge on the short-handed Greyhounds, and they were robbed of several good scoring chances. After four minutes of the middle chucker, Eddy Simmons went through alone for the first tally and repeated a minute later to make it 2 to 0 for Zion.

Cannifton rallied in the final period and L. Jarrel climaxed a nice combination play, batting in Collins' pass. Thirty seconds later Russ Collins soloed to tie the score and Lorne Jarrel accounted for the winning goal. The game ended with Zion swarming in on Ross, but was unable to beat him. Eddy Sims was the pick of the Irishers, with Ray Dickey Ketcheson, and Brough working well. L. Jarrel and Collins went well for Cannifton, as did E. Jarrel and Farquharson.

Lineurs:

Cannifton.—Goal, Ross; defence, Farquharson, E. Jarrel; centre, R. Collins; wings, L. Jarrel, Gough, Wannamaker.

Zion. — Goal, Clifford; defence, Simms, Dickey; centre, J. Ray; wings, Ketcheson, Brough; subs., Trimmon Brothers, Ray.

Referee.—Sinfield, Belleville.

Glen Ross Wins.

The second game of the evening was a sparkling display of fast hockey with Glen Ross trouncing Foxboro, 3-0. Doug. Martin scored for the Glen Ross Sailors in the first period, Wesley Brooks and Harry Brooks were responsible for the other two counters. Both Glen Ross and Foxboro played fast, clean hockey with the losers being greatly handicapped by being short-handed Line-ups:

Glen Ross.—Goal, Hagerman; defence, Brown and G. Fraser; centre, Armstrong; wings, H. Brooks, W. Brooks; subs., Richardson, Martin, Conley and McDonnell.

Foxboro.—Goal, Gay; defence, V. Guay, N. Guay; centre, Gough; wings, Norm Guay and Dafoe.

Final League Standing:

Remember When—

Quebec Bulldogs equalled the National Hockey League record 26 years ago tonight by winning their tenth straight game. Present record is 14 made by Boston Bruins in the 1929-30 season. Led by Joe Malone, most prolific scorer of all hockey leagues, the Bulldogs won the Stanley Cup but withdrew from the league in 1920.

Holzabaughs Meet N.Y. Rovers Next

DETROIT, March 2—(CP).—Detroit Holzbaugh hockey team has been knocked out of the Michigan-Ontario amateur hockey league play-offs already, but their season isn't over

Holzbaugh topped the regular season's play in the first international league, so they won the right as the leading United States team to meet the New York Rovers of the Eastern Amateur league for the United States championship.

WIMBLEDON BANNED

CANBERRA—(CP).—As in 1938 members of the Australian Davis Cup tennis team will not be allowed to compete in the Wimbledon championships.

New Brunswick's Best

Sproule's Four From Toronto Badly Defeated

By Louis V. Hunter
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—A Kitchener rink skipped by a man who learned his curling as a boy at Plattsville, Ont., by sneaking into the club and playing while the boss was away, has stamped itself as an outstanding contender for the Dominion curling championship and the Macdonald's Brier.

The Hall rink, with a former professional hockey star and a cricket player on it, defended last night the Ontario Tankard it won last year and advanced to the Brier play here next week. The Kitchener rink played a smooth game in the final at the Granite Club to force Harvey Sproule's veterans of Toronto High Park to concede the match at the end of the ninth end with the score 14-4.

Hall's men weren't far from the top in last year's Brier play and with another season's play behind them they consider they have at least an even chance of coming out on top against the nine other competing rinks from each of the provinces and Northern Ontario.

All Over 55

Hall and Sproule, members of whose rink all are over 55, won their way into the final by defeating Tankard divisional winners from Toronto, Kingston, Galt, Oshawa, Sarnia and Barrie. The Sproule rink has been playing together a little more than a month, one player joining the rink only yesterday as a substitute.

With one exception last night's final was the most one-sided match of the seven played yesterday. In a first-round match Dan Kelly's Toronto Granites smothered W. J. Brownlee's four from Oshawa 13-2.

At the start of the duel last night, it appeared as if the age and experience of the Sproule men would carry them to victory but the deadly accuracy of Hall and his sharpshooters soon began to tell. They dropped two of the first three ends but then went on to the finish without losing an end.

High Parks led 4-1 going into the fourth end but Hall scored three points to knot the count. Then he got a two-end and two one-ends before piling his stones for four points— to curling what a two-base hit is to baseball. The next end brought Hall two more points and High Parks conceded the match.

Galt A Surprise

Hall's four-end last night wasn't his best of the day. In a first-round match against N. H. Sternall of Galt he was pressed for victory. Galt led 6-0 after Hall got away to a bad start. But the Kitchener skip drew even to tie the score 8-8 and went ahead 14-8 in succeeding ends. Sternall rallied and scored two more points before the match ended.

Hall said he was "fairly fortunate to pull out." The tussle was a tough one, he admitted, and Galt surprised his rink. "They curled awfully well and our six-end was the only reason we won."

The Kitchener four had a narrow escape against Dan Kelly's Toronto Granites in the semi-final. They won 11-10 but Kelly extended them toward the end to win three of the last four ends to pull their score up from four points.

Hall's rink is a decidedly athletic one. C. A. Seagram, his lead, is an all-round athlete and went to England a few years ago with a Canadian cricket club. The second, G. E. Parkes, played hockey with the Kitchener Allan Cup champions of 1916 and turned pro in 1920 with Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League. P. G. Hall, the skip's brother and his third, always have been interested in sport.

Indian Riverites Whitewash Elgin By 5-0

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 2.—Indian River blanked Elgin by a 5-0 score in a hard-fought tussle at the Norwood arena last evening. The match was one of several postponed in the East Peterborough Rural League, which the teams are endeavoring to finish up by Saturday, so that the playoffs may commence next week. A special meeting of the E.P.R.L. executive has been called for Friday evening at 8.00 p.m. in the Norwood council chamber.

Both teams were forced to do a little hiking in order to get out for last night's game. Bad roads have slowed up the E.P.R.L. schedule considerably during the past few weeks, so as a last resort they have started to do some walking.

Minus the services of three of their strongest players, Shearer, Holmes and M. Tedford, the Indian River squad nevertheless were decidedly superior to the usually aggressive Elgins. Faced by their high-scoring centre star, Vic Brown, who spent the entire sixty minutes on the ice, the winners pressed the play throughout, keeping the losers bottled up in their own territory most of the game. Doherty, credited with a shutout in the nets, handled the few hard ones that came his way, very efficiently. There were no individual stars on the Indian River squad, every member turning in a good performance.

Failure of Roy Richardson, sparkplug of the Elgin team, to properly hit his stride, seemed to effect the entire line-up. The team as a whole were disorganized all evening, with Lumsden, Metcalfe and J. Richardson showing an occasional flash of their usual game.

Play was close in the initial stanza, neither team hitting the scoring column. Indian River fairly bombarded Preston with shots in the last half but failed to dent the twine. Brown missed several times close in.

Shortly after the start of the second Brown tallied directly from a face-off at the Elgin blue line, going swiftly in on the right side to beat Preston cold. Four minutes later Neil Clark collected their second counter, on a shot from the opposite angle, and then Brown notched their last of this period on a pass from Tedford.

Play roughened up a little going into the third, but no penalties were given to mar the clean play in the first two session. Elgin tried hard to score, having several chances in the first few minutes of the stanza. Indian River seemed to hold the upper hand however and checked their opponents dizzy. Pressing continuously they picked up two more goals before the end of the world. Jim Cavanaugh scored on Hogan's pass, and Brown made the play for Jim Clark's goal. The teams:

Indian River—Goal, Doherty; defence, J. Clark, N. Clark; centre, Brown; wings, R. Tedford, Green; alternates, Hogan, John Cavanaugh and Jim Cavanaugh.

Elgin—Goal, E. Preston; defence, Sheppard, O'Grady; centre, R. Richardson; wings, Lumsden, Metcalfe; alternates, Fleming, R. Richardson, J. Richardson, J. Preston.

Referee—J. Rathwell, Norwood.

Canadiens Easy Top Contenders For N.H.L. "Surprise" Cup

By Robert Clarke
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

MONTREAL, March 2.—(CP)—In case anyone has the inclination to put up an award to the surprise team of this almost-completed National Hockey League season, it seems as good a time as any today to advance the name of Montreal Canadiens as leading contenders.

Last November most of the experts had the Stanley Cup wrapped and bearing a label for delivery to Montreal. But as game after game ticked by, the Habitants fell behind the pace-setters. In fact, it was only a few nights ago, after four months of play, that they managed to slip into sixth place from the cellar spot they had occupied all season.

But that four-month collapse of the Canadiens isn't the only surprise they have managed to give the customers. The others, however, were more agreeable from a Montreal standpoint. In the first place they have the leading point-getter in the league in Hector (Tce) Blake, their stocky left wingman. They have the best point-making line in Blake, Paul Haynes and Johnny Gagnon. And they have the best playmaker in the league, according to statistics, in Haynes.

Best Line In League?

The Haynes-Gagnon-Blake combine, with only a little more than two weeks of the schedule remaining, is well in front of any other lines in the N.H.L. Blake is tied, through 18 goals, with Roy Conacher of Boston and Alex Shibicky of Rangers for top goal-getting honors, and has 21 assists. The ace Montreal line has accounted for 32 goals and 66 assists for 98 points.

Only recently in the Montreal dressing room, however, Haynes paid tribute to the Rangers line of Shibicky and the two Colvilles, Neil and Mac, as the best in hockey today. It was in a conversation with Bill Summerhill, a teammate, after a game against Boston Bruins and their famed sauerkraut line of Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Porky Duart.

"That Kraut line certainly can step," said Summerhill. "I think they are as good a line as you can find in hockey now."

"Well, my money goes on the Colvilles and Shibicky," replied Haynes. "They're so smooth and their passes click so nicely. You have to go a long way before you can find a line like that. I'll bet they're almost as good as the Cook brothers and Frankie Boucher used to be with Rangers."

"Big John" Blames Murdered Girl For Starting Him Drinking

SUBURY, Ont., March 2.—(CP)—"Big John" Ungurian, Sudbury restaurant proprietor, accused of the murder Jan. 10 of Alice Kroitor, 18, former waitress for him, told an assize court yesterday he remembered nothing about the slaying.

"I'm sorry—she was a nice girl—but I don't remember that I did it," said Ungurian who in earlier testimony had said there was no reason why he should have taken the girl's life.

Liquor was responsible for his memory being a blank concerning the time from an hour before the slaying until he woke in Sudbury jail the next morning, Ungurian said. He remembered getting in Eddie Lower's taxi but after that he could recall nothing.

It was the pretty 18-year-old former Saskatchewan radio singer, with whose death he is charged, who started him drinking after he quit once, Ungurian said.

"I had stopped for two years, but when she came to town I started again. She asked me to get her a drink and I drank quite often with her."

Smelled Of Liquor

Detective John Adams, Sudbury, called by the defence, said Ungurian smelled of liquor when arrested. He had known accused for five years. The day of the shooting he saw him between three and four o'clock.

"He told me about Alice Kroitor, and said there had been some trouble between the girl and himself," said the detective. "He wanted to know what he could do about it. I told him he had better see a lawyer."

Olga, 15-year-old daughter of accused, said her father was "crazy" when he was drunk. "When my father was under the influence, he would do things. When he was sober again he wouldn't remember doing them."

Ungurian said he went to war with the Austrian army when only 15 years old. He fought until 1919, the latter period in Russia, and was wounded three times. In 1924 he came to Canada and in 1930 brought his wife from Europe to Falconbridge, Ont.

"Did you imbibe liquor at these places?" asked Defence Counsel Leo Landreville.

"Yes, but it affected me badly."

"How did it affect you?"

"I didn't know what I was doing."

Quit Drinking 2 Years

Mrs. Ungurian left him in 1934 accused said. He stopped drinking for two years because he wanted his wife back. He didn't start drinking again until Miss Kroitor asked him for a drink and he didn't like to refuse.

Before the taxi ride the night of the slaying, he had a glass of whisky and a bottle of beer.

"The taxi came. I got in and felt very hot and that's all I remember," Ungurian said.

"Do you know any reason why you should have taken Alice Kroitor's life," Mr. Landreville asked.

"I do not," accused replied hesitatingly. "Because I don't remember, I'm sorry...she was a good girl...but I don't remember that I did it."

Captive Bald Eagle Is Growing Tame

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 2—Carl Fleming's captured eagle at present caged in his barn on the 7th Concession of the township of Rawdon, is rapidly becoming tame, and lately has been viewed by many residents of the district and visiting amateur naturalists, who have described the bird as being of the American bald eagle specie. Wounded in the wing at the time of its capture, the rare bird is recovering, and struts contentedly about the farm granary, feeding regularly on the carcas of a lamb.

A Cockburn Challenge

Local friends of Russell Cockburn, Moosonee guide and rtapper who made the front pages of a metropolitan newspaper today, with his offer to pit his team of huskies against the wolf team of famous Joe LaFlamme now in Boston with his squad of pets, or to wrestle with him or compete in any game LaFlamme can name, are watching the outcome of his challenge with interest.

For Cockbuprn, who is well known in Hastings County, was formerly stationed in this district with the Game and Fisheries Department. He was in charge of the Combermere district in that capacity some ten years ago.

30 Inches of Snow

The heaviest snowfall of the current winter in this district occurred during the month of February, with a total snowfall of 30.9 inches during the month, to bring the total snowfall of the winter to 69 inches. Total precipitation for the month was 4.32 inches, being 3.58 inches above the monthly average. In reviewing the monthly temperatures, both the average maximum of 28 degrees and average minimum of 2 degrees were wel below the 1938 average of 31 degrees and 11 degrees respectively.

As a result of the heavy rain on Tuesday, roads have become frozen, and traffic in the rural districts is being made by means of the reliable sleigh and old dobbin.

Veteran Of Two Wars Passes At Age Of 95

MIAMI, Fla., March 2—(AP).—Hon. W. Boucher, a veteran of the United States civil and great wars, died in a hospital yesterday at the age of 95.

Boucher ran away from his home at Port Maitland, Ont., at the age of 20 and enlisted in the 26th Michigan Infantry. He participated in campaigns around Nashville.

When the great war broke out, Boucher was 70 but hale. When the age limit was increased to 48 he gave that as his age and was accepted.

As a private in the engineering corps he saw service at Ypres and Amiens. But after six months his age was discovered and he was returned to Canada.

On Charity 5 Years Hermit Leaves $12,000

WELLSBURG, W.Va., Mar. 2 (AP) — Authorities pondered today over the distribution of the $12,000 estate of a 70-year-old recluse who, until his death a week ago in his one-room shanty, subsisted on charity.

Sheriff Robert Traubert, who said the money was found in Wheeling and Wellsburg banks, identified the man as Charles Carlson.

The sheriff said the man who had lived a hermit-like existence in his shack at Power, W.Va.

Carlson had worked 20 years in an electric power plant but quit five years ago. Neighbors and a relief association contributed to his needs until a state relief investigator found him dead last week.

HASTINGS

Rev. Stillman Kemp and son Kenneth of Oshawa were in the village Monday and Tuesday owing to the death of the former's aunt, the late Mrs. Jane Johnston. Mr. Eric Insley of Rochester, N.Y., motored from that city to Hastings on Sunday, planning to stay for the funeral but uncertain road conditions prompted him to return home Monday.

Miss Helen McGee spent Sunday with her mother, Mrs. Samuel McGee.

Mr. Roy Scott spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

Dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Oliver were: Mrs. J. H. Hess, Mrs. A. B. Smith, Mrs. L. E. Kelley, Mrs. R. M. Montgomery, Mrs. J. N. Lucas, Mrs. Howard Fife, Mrs. Bert Preston.

Master Gerald and Leonard Metcalfe spent the weekend with friends in Toronto.

Mrs. Peter Gillespie of Keene is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Humphries.

Among those who attended the Bruins-Leafs hockey game in Toronto last Saturday night were: Reeve Lewis Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Thompson, Miss Pauline Scriver, Nelson Scriver, Lewis Scriver, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Brownell, Miss Marcella Sullivan, Mary Walsh, Mary Collins, Mrs. Grover Kerr and Dorothy, Mrs. Aubrey Clapper, M. A. Shea, Paul Coughlin, Vernon Phillips, Raymond and Earl Boyle, C. H. Gillespie, Howard Fife, Scott Fife, Jack Keogan, Jack Cleary, Vincent Gibson, George Bonds, Cecil Scriver, William Clapper, Walter M. Fowlds, Harry Anderson, Vernon Mellville, Russel Jones, Bert Montgomery, Cleveland Smith, Gordon Richardson of Smithville and Gordon Fairman of Whitby.

China will develop small industrial enterprises in Western Provinces.

NO MORE PILES

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles cannot be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money, if just one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. McDermid & Jury and Bond's Drug Stores, or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

Collective Action To Nip Japan Advocated By British Labor

LONDON, Mar. 2 — (CP Cable).—Collective action against Japan was urged in the House of Lords to-day by Lord Strabolgi, Labor, on the grounds of Japanese commercial practices in China.

"If the British Government," he declared, "would seek the means of bringing collective pressure to bear first diplomatic and then, if necessary, economic and financial, that would be enough. A lesson to aggressors is long overdue. A lesson is needed that brute force, terrorism, and bestial cruelty do not pay and bring sure punishment.'"

Japan wants full control over the whole of China, Lord Strabolgi asserted. If successful, it would be a threat to Australia. He listed India, Australia, New Zealand, the United States, Russia, France and Holland as nations which should stand together with Great Britain against Japan. After two years of intense struggle in China, he argued, Japan would be particularly vulnerable to economic pressure.

Britain Watching

Replying to the government, the Earl of Plymouth, under-secretary for foreign affairs, said a careful watch was being kept on Sino-Japanese affairs. Consideration was being given to renewed pressure on Tokyo to open the Pearl River in South China.

"In any event," Lord Plymouth declared, "I can assure the House that the government propose to continue to all that is possible to secure British trade and shipping in the occupied areas of China from discrimination in favor of Japanese or other interests."

Lord Plymouth said the government was checking reports that the Japanese-controlled government at Nanking had announced a "silent declaration of war" against the international settlement in Shanghai and British and French shipping for aiding General Chiang Kai-Shek. Meanwhile the British government, which did not recognize the right of the Nanking administration to make any declaration of that sort, did not take the threat seriously.

Dealing with the general situation, Lord Plymouth said Great Britain was in close touch with other powers with a view to protecting their joint interests in China. Great Britain also was willing to act as intermediary between Japan and China to effect peace but he admitted there appeared to be slight chance for this.

No Japanese Reply

Great Britain's Far East policy was based on the Washington treaty, Lord Plymouth stated. In a note January 14 Japan was told the British Government "cannot recognize changes involving infringments of, or derogations from the provisions of this treaty which are brought about by force or unilateral modification or its terms." So far Tokyo has not replied to the note.

Lord Plymouth said if economic sanctions were to be applied against Japan, it would be necessary "that action should be taken by all the interested parties at the same time." This was an extremely difficult question.

On the other hand Great Britain had given assistance in various forms to China. These included keeping Hong Kong open as a means of communication to China, although it could not be used after the fall of Canton.

In addition a road was built from Burma to the China border, providing a backdoor route to the interior. Finally Great Britain granted export credits to China, enabling her to buy necessary goods in this country, on long-term financial arrangements.

Drunk Asleep In Drift Comes To Light As Street Is Ploughed

Winona, Minn., March 2 (AP)

A SNOWPLOUGH manned by two city employees bucked along a city street, rolling off great slices of drift from its blade. "Hey," shouted the driver, "that looks like a hand sticking out of the drift." It was a hand—and just under it a face. Further digging revealed an intoxicated man, none the worse for his snow burial.

Crippling Rheumatism

Rheumatism leaves in its train distorted joints, crooked limbs, crippled hands, and the intense pain is almost unendurable.

In the beginning rheumatism is often due to dyspepsia or indigestion, for if the digestive organs did their duty there would not be any poisonous uric acid in the blood to sow the seeds of rheumatism.

Burdock Blood Bitters invigorates the system, and helps to eradicate the uric acid from the blood which is the cause of the inflammation and pain.

To Make Atlantic Airways Safer.

This summer regular transatlantic flight service will be opened, and to prevent such disasters as befell the Cavalier recently, floating weather stations are being established to gather weather data which will be sent to weather stations and to planes in the air. Two U.S. coast guard boats, the Chelan and the Champlain are to be used for the purpose. A balloon to which is attached a highly sensitive meteorograph is about to be released from the Chelan. It will soar higher than a plane can fly. Finally in the upper atmosphere it will burst, but not before the valuable information has been recorded by radio.

Half Billion For War Department Approved By U.S. Committee

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP).—The House of Representatives Appropriations committee approved yesterday a $499,857,936 appropriation for the United States' War Department. It included the first funds to carry out President Roosevelt's proposed $300,000,000 expansion of the army air corps.

Purchase of 784 additional planes woud be made possible by the measure, the total of which was $39,656,682 greater than the sum provided to operate the department for the current fiscal year. Most of the new planes would be combat types.

The bill carried a total of $94,737,281 for the air corps, including $30,494,012 of the $50,000,000 which President Roosevelt asked be made available immediately from the $300,000,000 emergency program for the air corps to take up the lag in aircraft production due to idle plants.

Along with the appropriation bill, the committee made public detailed information about present armaments.

House committee hearings on the war department appropriation bill contained this testimony:

1. Major General Henry H. Arnold, chief of the air corps, said the army has only 879 fighting planes in actual service.

2. The army has worked out plants with private industry to make bombs by new methods which promise greatly increased production.

3. The budget bureau believes $25,000 should be added to the annual outlay for the military intelligence service.

4. The war department has approved plans for compete re-organization of the infantry regiment to give it more powerful and mobile armament.

5. The Army believes its planes should stand out in the open—to save $11,550,000 annually in the cost of hangars and to offer less attractive targets to enemy bombers.

1,200,000 Gas Helmets Now Ready For British Babies

London, March 2 (AP)

BRITAIN'S air raid precautions organization today prepared for distribution of 1,200,000 free gas helmets to infants as wartime protection against gas attacks.

The organization's headquarters said distribution would start in three weeks and urged that parents teach babies to treat the helmets as toys until they reach the age of two, when they will be old enough for gas masks.

With mica fronts, the helmets are made to fit snugly over babies' heads during the time their parents would be rushing them to air raid refuge in case of air attack.

A bellows attachment would supply air to the wearer. Experts were said to have tried them on 300 babies without injurious effect.

Rev. Parr Addresses Norwood Society

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, March 2.—The literary group of Young People of the United Church held their meeting in the Sunday School room on Monday night.

In spite of the bad roads there was a good turn out. The meeting opened with a hymn and a prayer, after which M. I. Robinson introduced the main speaker of the evening, Rev. M. C. Parr of Peterborough, who gave an illustrated travelogue of his recent trip through England, Scotland, Holland, Belgium and France. The slides were much enjoyed, and as well as being interesting, were educational also.

In the intermission a duet by Margaret Marks, Rita Ferguson, Earl Bongard and Jack Stewart was much appreciated.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and prayer by Mr. Robinson.

New Democracy Is Launched

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP)—A New Democracy movement which will seek to organize a committee in every Federal constituency to endorse reform candidates and rally the progressive vote in the next general election was announced here last night by Hon. W. D. Herridge, Ottawa lawyer and former Canadian Minister to Washington.

Speaking in the Little Theatre at a meeting called by a local forum committee which has "demanded to know what I would do to get prosperity," Mr. Herridge said the first big job of the movement will be to turn out the old political parties, Liberal and Conservative, and elect a people's parliament. "Political reform comes before economic reform. Just now our job is political reform," he said.

At many points in Canada the New Democracy movement is already mobilizing, he continued. "There are groups everywhere; groups and combinations of groups. And they are all heading toward this definite objective: to pack the next Parliament with men and women free from the political machine."

Plans Speaking Tour

Mr. Herridge, brother-in-law of Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, former Conservative Prime Minister, had hinted in previous speeches that a new political movement was being launched. He is expected to follow up tonight's announcement with an extensive speaking tour.

Declaring that the Liberal and Conservative Parties were on the side of reaction, he said the Canadian people would have to decide between the old parties and democracy.

"For if the old parties are left in control of Parliament I believe they will unite. After the next election or perhaps before, the Liberal and Conservative Parties will become one party. Its government in name will be a national government. In fact it will be a Fascist government," he said.

The coming election is the last opportunity Canadians will have to obtain security with freedom, he said. He meant to give the New Democracy movement his best. "I will make it the purpose of my life," he added, and apealed to Canadians, "who are not afraid," to join him.

Contending this was a movement springing from the people, he said it would be impossible for any individual to call this New Democracy into being. "Only our national need and our national opportunity can do that. Only the consciousness of the shameful difference between what we have and what we should have can do that. Only the knowledge that at last we can have prosperity can do that. And believe me they have done it. The majority mind in Canada is determined upon economic change."

The New Democracy platform will be built around the resolution which Mr. Herridge unsuccessfully sought to have the National Conservative Convention adopt last July.

It was a pledge "to undertake whatever economic and monetary reforms may be required to stabilize production upon its maximum level and to raise purchasing power to that level, recognizing that such reforms will involve a measure of government planning and control of the economic and monetary systems and the support of all vital elements in an efficient economic system such as collective bargaining, co-operative buying and selling, establishment of minimum prices and wages, control of monopolies, regulation of bank and mortgage rates."

mitted to the Public Accounts Committee.

The shell contract, given the Montreal firm headed by A. Janin, who Mr. MacNeil said was a strong supporter of the Liberal Government, was similar to the Bren gun contract. It was given a selected firm without competitive bids and on a cost plus basis. The machinery was being provided by the Government.

Company Not Listed

The company receiving the contract was not listed in engineering directories as one having facilities for the machining of shells, said Mr. MacNeil. Many other established companies had machine shops suitable for the work. The committee should examine carefully the reasons for the selection of such a company and also the provisions of the contract. In it the Government undertook to supply free of charge to the company all billets and forgings and also certain machinery.

If the Government already owned such machinery, Mr. MacNeil wondered why it was not used for manufacture of the shells in Government plants.

"I think it rests with the Government to explain why there has been delay in the delivery of these shells," said Mr. MacNeil. Deliveries should have started March 15, 1938, but almost a year had elapsed and no deliveries had yet been made. There should also be a statement on the rumor that there was a dispute about the contract which was holding up deliveries.

In view of the fact the Government was following a policy of assisting in the equipment of munitions and armament plans the Government should explain why it was creating a monopoly in the hands of favored contractors. By supplying machinery and supplies to favored contractors a virtual monopoly was created as the tendency would be to place future orders with the same companies.

"I accept with the utmost pleasure the motion to have this contract referred to committee," Mr. Mackenzie said. "Members who were in this House a year ago wil lrecall that I offered to have all contracts referred to the Public Accounts Committee. If the only desire of the member for Vancouver North was to have a fair examination of this contract all he need have done was to speak to the minister."

In the Public Interests

The minister declared Mr. MacNeil had been "compelled in the interests of propanda and of creating suspicion and distrust," to make a public demand on the floor of the House.

Mr. Mackenzie said he had tabled documents relative to the contract and was sure any members reading them would be convinced "this contract is definitely in the public interests."

In negotiating the contract, the department had followed the practice of the British war office of establishing the necessary machinery in the plant of a selected company on a cost-plus basis. The contract had been considered fair and reasonable by the interdepartmental committee of civil servants created to curtail profiteering in munitions contracts.

"Did the interdepartmental committee recommend the Janin company?" asked Conservative leader Manion.

The minister replied that "what probably happened" was that the proposed contract with the Montreal firm was submitted to the committee and approved.

"Were any other companies submitted to the committee?" Dr. Manion asked.

Mr. Mackenzie replied that two other companies had been investigated but their proposition had not been considered satisfactory to the department of National Defence.

The expenditure on the contract would be $147,500 and the maximum profit would be $13,410 for six months work.

"Will anyone in this House say there is profiteering in that?" asked Mr. Mackenzie.

740 Shells Finished

To date 740 shells had been completed under the contract, tested and found equal to the best shells turned out by the Dominion Arsenal, the minister said. It was a cost plus contract and profit was payable only on wages and supervision costs. No profit was payable on overhead. Wage rates were controlled by the government, machining operations and accounting for supervised by the government.

The contract was for the production of 18-pounder shells and 4.5 howitzer shells. The cost of 18-pounders in Great Britain was one pound sterling and deliverd in Canada they would cost $5.85. The estimated price of shells under the contract would be $6.14, only 29 cents more for having the shells made in Canada by Canadian labor. The British price for 4.5 shells was $9.25. It cost $1.46 more to forge such shells in Canada than in Great Britain. The cost of shells under the contract was placed at $9.89 or 63 cents more than the cost of British shells delivered in Canada if British shells could be obtained.

It had been said the cost of machining 18-pounder shells during the war came down to $1.23. Actually, however, the lowest figure reached during the war was $1.50 per shell on a production of 1,200,000 shells, and with the same mass production the same price could be equalled now.

The lowest price obtained on howitzer shells in the was was $3 on a production of 3,000,000. The present contract called for a production of only 10,000 shells.

Lindsay Plant in Reserve.

The Lindsay Arsenal was not used because at the time the contract was made the policy of the Department was to reserve that plants for production of small arm ammunition. In the Great War many companies had been able to make shells, but only one could make small arms ammunition, so with the importance of machine guns now, it was desirable to make provision for small arms ammunition.

Mr. Mackenzie said he now hoped the Lindsay Arsenal would be used for both small arms ammunition and shells.

Dr. Manion said the terms of the contract were "rather extreme" in his opinion. The firm had been selected by the Department of National Defence, a contract prepared and submitted to the Interdepartmental Committee. There had been no competition.

"Why should a construction company, the same company which under another name is building the Ottawa Post Office, be chosen to make shells?" There were many other companies better equipped to handle the contract.

Extraordinary Procedure.

"I don't see why the government should lay itself open to the charge it is picking its political friends for those contracts, unless there is some motive not yet disclosed," Dr. Manion said.

"Why pick a company not in the remotest degree associated with arms making? It strikes me as a most extraordinary procedure."

Dr. Manion wondered why the contract had not been tabled until more than 14 months after it was signed.

"There is no obligation to table them," said a government supporter.

"Why shouldn't all munitions contracts be tabled?" Dr. Manion asked.

"If that is the will of the House it will be done," Mr. Mackenzie said.

"Then, so far as I am concerned that is the will of the House," Dr. Manion retorted.

"Was it done during the last war?" asked a Liberal member.

"I don't care what was done in the last war," Dr. Manion exclaimed, "don't let us repeat mistakes that were made then." Dr. Manion urged the government not to place itself in the position that the government and parliament could be described as "a lot of money collectors for the purpose of running elections."

There was no richer prize than Canada for any world conqueror, "or a Hitler," Dr. Manion declared, and he supported the government fully in its defence plans. "We must be ready to defend ourselves and not trust to England or the United States."

For the $70,000,000 spent on defence in the past two years, Dr. Manion was of the opinion there was nothing to show in return. "I believe we should get something for our money. I don't think there should be any more of this business of picking friends for contracts.

"I ask the Prime Minister to tell me if he believes it right one company should be chosen as this one was, to the exclusion of others. All qualified companies should have a right to bid for these contracts. Let us have no more of this hole-in-the-corner business."

Mexicans At "Denunciation Dinner"

Citizens of Mexico have acquired a measure of fame for their ready use of bullets to achieve or deter their desired ends in elections, but in this instance it was a case of bread instead of lead. Opponents of President Cardenas staged this huge open-air lunch in Mexico City in preparation for the approaching presidential elections. While they dined they heard the President's social innovations condemned.

OBITUARY

JOHN M. ARNOLD

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 2. — A former school teacher and a man who took a keen interest in the civic affairs of both the town and township John McKillop Arnold passed away at his home on Kent street late Tuesday evening. In his eightieth year Mr. Arnold had been in failing health for several months. Surviving besides his widow are two daughters, Ada at home and Ona of New York City. Funeral service will be conducted from his late residence on Friday afternoon by Rev. Harold B. Neal.

CHRISTOPHER AKEY

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 2—The funeral of Christopher Akey took place on Tuesday afternoon from his late residence, in the township of Sydney. The service in the home and at the graveside in Tweed cemetery was conducted by the Rev. L. M. Sharpe.

The late Mr. Akey was a member of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 274, and the last rites of the order were conducted in the home by Worthy Master Clayton Phillips and Acting Chaplain Bert Mason.

The bearers were Messrs. Frank Reid, Bert Mason, Miller Armstrong, Fraser Paul, William Kennedy and Clayton Phillips.

MRS. ALBERT LUCAS.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

DOWNEYVILLE, March 2—Word was received here of the death of Mrs. Albert Lucas of Montana, following an operation.

The late Mrs. Lucas was Mary OConnell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George O'Connell, and was born here 45 years ago. She was a school teacher, having taught in two of the schools, and lived here until about five years ago, when she moved to Montana, and her sudden death at an early age was a great shock to her friends and family.

Last year she was married to Mr. Lucas, who survives her in Montana, also two brothers, Morgan in Montana and Vincent O'Connell at Downeyville.

The funeral was held in Montana. The sympathy of the community is extended to her husband and brothers in their hour of bereavement.

ty. There might have been some leaning toward political supporters but it would be a queer group that wouldn't give a little favor to its friends, all other things being equal.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King more strongly denounced the Citizen editorials and said many other newspapers were guilty of publishment activities. But he would not agree that the editor should be haled before the bar of the house.

To do that, the prime minister said, would be to make a "martyr" of the newspaper editor and would be playing into his hands. He urged, however, that the editor be called before the public accounts committee when the shell contract was under investigation."

The Offending Editorial

The editorial in The Ottawa Citizen, which Mr. Mackenzie had mentioned earlier and to which Dr. Manion presumably referred read as follows:

"About a month ago C. Grant MacNeil, member for North Vancouver, asked for information about the placing of shell contracts in Canada by the Department of National Defence. The Department answered that one contract had been placed with Messrs. Montreal Construction Supply and Equipment Company, Limited. This firm is known in the contracting business, but the House of Commons must surely want to know some better reason for the placing of this shell contract without competitive bidding. The Department placed an order for 20,000 18-pounder shells and for 10,000 4.5-inch howitzer shells.

"There should be more light on the meaning of this departmental answer:

"'The contract was placed on a cost plus basis at an upset manufacturing cost of $4 per shell for 20,000 shells, quick-firing, 18-pounder high explosive, and $6.75 for 10,000 shells, quick-firing, 4.5 howitzer high explosive.'

"During the last war, after Sir Robert Borden succeeded in having politics divorced from munition contracts, the cost of machining 18-pounder shells came down to $1.20 per shell. Before the Imperial Munitions Board took charge, however, contracts were being placed for hundreds of thousands of 18-pounder shells at the profiteering rate of $5.15 per shell. In some scandalous instances the contracts were awarded to firms without any of the necessary machinery to do the manufacturing.

"Under Ian Mackenzie as the political head of the Department of National Defence, as well as awarding adequate equipment, Government workshops are being stripped of machinery to equip the private contractors. But surely members of Parliament, irrespective of party, must want to know more about this shell contracting business. It is hardly possible that members are willing to connive by silence in the revival of war profiteering.' There should be more light on the meaning of $4.00 per 18-pounder shell when the price during the last war under inflated costs came down from $5.15 to $1.20 per shell."

Cardinals Cast

Domini,"—in the Chapel, Lords—they summoned the princes of the Church for Mass in Pauline Chapel, celebrated by Cardinal Granito-Di Belmonte, Dean of the College.

Tradition required that he give Communion to each Cardinal and deliver to each a discourse. The secrecy of the conclave kept its text from being known to the outside world.

Then, following breakfast in their cells, they entered the Sistine Chapel, there alone to make the most momentous decision of their lives.

Commendatore Augusto Milani, Dean of the Consistorial Advocates and Commissioner of the Conclave, continually inspected the gates to the chapel with the assistance of many attendants.

The task before the Cardinals was to choose one of their own number, at that moment on an equal with them ,to become their absolute ruler in the church.

Since the Pope's rule over the Church is supreme, it was their objective to choose a Cardinal—although they could choose from outside that rank—to fill the post whose genious or ability would advance the fortunes of a two-millenium old institution.

RETURNS TO CITY

Paddy Cook of Trenton, formerly of Peterborough, is one of the three projecting machine operators engaged at the New Centre Theatre.

HAVELOCK COURT

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., went to Havelock this afternoon for the purpose of holding court. Two traffic cases were on docket for this session.

BACK IN COURT

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who has been absent for over a week by reason of the death in Guelph of his mother, was back on the job in police court this morning and was welcomed by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C.

A BUSY SEASON.

This is a busy season for the Board of Works staff. Not only are the employees hard at work getting rid of the accumulation from the last snow storm and sanding slippery streets, but in addition frozen catch basins are being thawed out in readiness for the expected break-up.

KNOW OF PETERBORO' MEET

Phillip Black has returned from a recent trip through Ohio and Michigan, and he reports having heard many favorable comments upon the provincial ski meet held last month in Peterborough. Ski followers of Detroit, Pontiac and Toledo spoke of Peterborough as being one of the ski centres of Ontario, Mr. Black remarked.

THEIR FIRST ROBIN

Dan Whetung may be a true prophet of a "draggy" Spring, although folks hope he will be utterly confounded, but he didn't hear the robin's song that made this morning brighter and the sky a deeper blue to Robert Snelgrove and Arthur Bennett. Their first robin of the year was warbling on Argyle street near John Patte's home.

HE DID NOT CARE

A young man sat in the front seat of an automobile parked on George street Wednesday afternoon and nonchalantly shaved himself with an electric razor operated from the car battery. It was an unusual place for the tonsorial operation to be performed but a glance at the license plates of the car explained the reason for the shaver's indifference to the gaze of passersby. The car was from British Columbia, so he probably figured he was far enough away from home to defy convention.

FINED ON DRUNK COUNT

"This man went to the place where his wife was employed and after causing a disturbance almost tore the night clothes off her," Chief Constable Newhall stated in police court this morning after a local man had pleaded guilty to being drunk on Weller street. Arraigned before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., Wednesday, the accused had entered a plea of not guilty, but today he reversed his opinion, much to the disgust of the night constables, who had been called out of bed to give evidence and found that no testimony was necessary. Magistrate Langley imposed a fine of $10 and $4.50 costs with the alternative of ten days in jail.

"Swap" Ads In Examiner Cost 5 Cents

Boys and girls of Peterborough district who have gadgets they want to buy, sell, or swap can put some big deals across within the next few days, at almost no cost at all, through the medium of The Examiner's Want Ad department.

Must Write Ad.

The idea is this: Youngsters under the age of 16 who have a yen to buy, sell or trade some personal article may set the transaction in motion by writing a want ad of not more than 20 words for insertion in the classified section on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week.

The cost for the three days is only five cents.

There are a few things though, that prospective advertisers must remember. All ads must be in The Examiner office not later than 6 p.m. Saturday; the name and address of the boy or girl advertising must appear on the ad; and all ads must be brought directly to The Examiner ofice.

Only articles boys and girls use may be bought, sold or exchanged under this plan. In other words, the one can offer daddy's vacant lot, mother's old fur coat, or big brother's automobile for sale in these ads.

Articles, however, that are the exclusive possession of the young advertiser are eligible.

Swap Your Skates.

For example, Johnny Jones notes the feeling of spring that's in the air, and decides that since his skates are going to be too small for him next winter he'd better get busy and exchange them for some baseball gear.

Similarly, Mary Jones decides that roller skates will be the rage this spring and that she can supply this growing need if she can only sell the ukulele Santa gave her a few months back. Presto! Through the medium of a couple of want ads a pair of roller skates and a ukulele change hands.

Here are some of the things that will be advertised during one or more of the three days this special ofer lasts.

Who Wants What.

"Will sell or exchange for boy's bicycle: Desk, rifle, Persian kitten; wagon, scooter."

"Pony saddle, $25; pony harness, $10; doll carriage, $2.50."

"Girl's books in good condition; swap or sell; six for 75 cents."

"Trade: English doll's pram for girl's bicycle."

"For sale: Large dog house, nearly new; moderately priced."

"Will swap: Ice skates for set of bicycle forks or will sell for 75c."

"Wanted: Package carrier for bicycle. Must be reasonable."

"Brand new Gibbons stamp album. Beginner's collection. Cost $1.50. Will sell for 75c.

"Tricycle for sale or exchange."

"Wanted: Bicycle for ten-year old."

And so it goes! These and many other ads will appear next week.

As a parting reminder, advertisers are asked to cancel their ads when a deal goes across after the first or second insertion.

ANOTHER SIGN

Spring may seem to be a long way off yet but there are hopeful signs nevertheless. One of them is the fact that marbles have made their appearance among the small boys.

Mrs. M. B. Annis Dies Suddenly

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 2.—A collision took place on Wednesday near Cameron when a large truck driven by an employee of the National Grocers, Limited and a Shell Oil truck came together on the highway. Weather conditions were responsible for the accident. Both trucks were badly damaged, but the drivers escaped unhurt.

Woman Dies Suddenly

Death came with tragic suddenness to Emma Arnott, wife of Dr. M. B. Annis on Wednesday. When Miss Mildred Annis entered her mother's room she discovered her in an unconscious condition from which she never recovered. Her brother the late Fred Arnott, died about a fortnight ago, having been found in an unconscious condition on the verandah of his home.

Renovating Post Office.

The Post Office Department is making extensive alterations to the local Post Office. J. W. McMillan has the contract. When completed the building will have only one entrance instead of two as at present.

Dr. George Armstrong of Oshawa, who died suddenly in that city on Sunday, was a brother of the late Ed. Armstrong of Lindsay. The doctor was a former resident of Peterborough, living with his parents for a number of years in Ashburnham.

The village of Kinmount will play host to the Orangemen of the north country next Twelfth of July.

Gates Bound Over To Keep The Peace

Half way through the hearing Wednesday afternoon of a charge against James Gates, Sr., of assaulting Mrs. Stanley Clark on February 11, Acting Crown Attorney F. D. Kerr, K.C., suggested that the crown would be satisfied if the defendent were willing to be bound over to keep the peace.

Gates consented and accordingly was bound over for a year. Charges of assault against James Gates, Jr., and William Gates were withdrawn.

At Wednesday afternoon's session Mr. and Mrs. Clark had testified that James Gates, Sr., had struck Mrs. Clark on the breast and knocked down, and Gates in turn had denied striking the woman; in fact said he did not see her where she said she had been standing.

James Gates, Jr., was just about to take the witness stand when Mr. Kerr made his suggestion and the case came to an abrupt end.

W. J. Arthur Fair was defence counsel.

Ice Cutting Operations Have Been Suspended In Hastings Area When Water Floods Ice

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 2.—Unless conditions improve greatly, this village may face an ice shortage before the summer is over, ice cutters and haulers here believe. Ice cutting operation on small lakes in this area have been suspended due to several inches of water flooding the lakes. They explained there is such a weight of snow that as soon as a cut is made and the cake removed, the water gushes through and makes removal of ice impossible.

Some ice has been cut on the Trent River east of here but merchants are not favorable to the conditions as set down by a land owner, across whose property they must cross in order to reach the village. For each cake, which crosses his property, the land owner collects 1 cent royalty. Excellent ice could be had a mile west of here on the river if the roads were open, they said. They are considering hiring the provincial plow to remove snow for a distance of one mile if it can be had. Failing this, ice may be hauled in six miles from Norwood.

Appointing Assistant Assessor Is Discussed By City Aldermen

Appointment of an assitant assessor will likely be made by the council within the next month. A dozen or more applications have already been received, and others are expected to reply to an advertisement to be published in The Examiner during the next few days advertising the position.

Mayor Hamilton said he had hoped it would not be necessary to replace the late Arthur Ringer at once, and W. J. Henry, assessor, was asked about the possibilities of carrying on with a part time assistant.

"I think it should be a permanent position," Alderman Glover recommended, and Aldermen Gordon and Stocker urged that the appointment be made at once.

"I advised several men I know will apply that they need not do so just now, because I thought we might wait a little while," said Mayor Hamilton, "and it is only fair that an opportunity should be given them and any others to put in their applications."

Asks For Increase.

A request from James Burgess, Street Commissioner, for an increase of $100 in his salary was filed for action at the council meeting Monday night. Members expressed their satisfaction with the progress of work being done in the streets department, and the tenor of their comments was that Mr. Burgess had well earned an increase.

Prices for an automobile that is to be bought for City Engineer Parsons were referred by the Board of Works to a special committee composed of Aldermen Wilson, Cotton and Dutton and Mayor Hamilton, who are expected to recommend a purchase Monday night. For years the City Engineer has received an allowance for the use of his own car.

The finance committee authorized payment of $200 a month to the Nicholls Hospital Board.

The idea of pensions of municipal employees was approved by the committee on Alderman Gordon's motion, seconded by Alderman Glover.

It has been passed by the Legislature, but the act has not been promulgated. The council of Port Arthur sent along a resolution proposing that the legislation be made operative. "I assume that such pensions would be on a contributory basis," Alderman Dutton said. "I'd like to see it given some consideration."

Symphony Orchestra To Give Concert

Only two of the members of the Peterborough Symphony Orchestra were laid up with flu at the final rehearsal last night in preparation for the concert to be given at the Collegiate Institute Friday night under the direction of A. E. Paterson. Their program includes "The Sleeping Beauty" waltz of Tschaikowsky; overture to "The Barber of Seville"; overture to "Masaniello" by Auber; two short numbers "Le Cygne and a gavotte from "Mignon"; song and czardas from "Countess Maritza"; medley of Victor Herbert's songs; and other numbers. The orchestra will be assisted by Mrs. Dorothy Sager Goldie and George Coleman. New members are Miss R. Fisher and Mr. J. Doran in the violin section; C. Crowley, flute; H. Wilson, trumpet; E. Dolman, formerly of Campbellford, and C. Kennedy, trombones; A. Cillison, horn; L. Wells and R. Graham, clarients; H. Hutchinson, tuba; Mrs. R. C. Searles, piano; Sam Smith, percussion instruments.

JUDGE O'CONNELL RETIRING

Judge Daniel O'Connell is retiring from the county court bench, Toronto, on his seventy-fifth birthday, March 17. Judge O'Connell practiced law in Peterborough for years before going to Toronto. Ask $200 Grant

A letter from Ken Kingston, president, asking the council for a grant of $200 for the Peterborough Lacrosse Club was left for consideration later in the season by the finance committee Wednesday night. "The council will do the right thing when the time comes," Ald. Stocker remarked. The club won the Senior "B", O.L.A., title last year, had eighty boys playing in a juvenile league, and provided a summer sport for thousands of fans of the city and district last year.

Nepheline Road Remains Closed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 2.—The road from the village to the Canadian Nepheline Company's mine was still unopened to traffic this morning. Three teams and six men in addition to the snow plow crew, have been working steadily since Tuesday morning to dig a path for the trucks bringing out the raw material from the quarry. Evie Dunford, who has the contract for getting traffic over this road going again expected to reach the mine Tuesday night, but the shovelling and plowing job will not be finished until this evening at the earliest. On Tuesday the plow got as far as Ed. Hamblin's farm, and on Wednesday it had reached the turn to Crowe's Landing.

Young Man Faces Assault Charge

"This young man does not look capable of conducting his own defence," Magistrate Langley stated in police court this morning, when a Young's Point laborer wa sarraigned on a charge of indecently assaulting a young girl.

The accused elected summary trial and pleaded not guilty to the charge.

The crown was not ready to go ahead this morning and there was a remand until next Wednesday, bail being fixed at $1,000.

The boy's father was in court and was asked by Magistrate Langley if the accused would be defended by a lawyer.

"Do you advise one?" asked the father and Magistrate Langley replied that it was not his place to give advice but rather to act as trial judge. He expressed the opinion, however, that the accused did not appear to be competent to conduct his defence.

OBITUARY

SAMUEL S. McCOMB

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BONARLAW, March 2 — The death of Samuel S. McComb, widely known in the Marmora district as a cheesemaker and farmer, occurred at his home at Bonarlaw shortly before noon today. Mr. McComb was 70 years of age.

Surviving is his widow, formerly Delia McMullen; four sons, Percy, William, and Allen, all at home, and Clarence in Toronto; and one daughter, Mrs. Hugh Jones of Marmora.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

JOSEPH SPENCER.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 2. — Joseph Spencer, of Smith Township, died at the home of his brother, William Spencer, here at 4 p.m. Wednesday, March 1. He was born in Burleigh Township, son of the late Thomas Spencer and Mary McMurray, and had spent most of his life in Burleigh and the district around Lakefield. At the time of his death his home was in Smith, near Lakefield, where he had farmed for the last ten years or more. He was stricken with a paralytic attack on Wednesday, February 22, and was brought to his brother's home in the village for medical attention. Mr. Spencer was a member of St. Paul's Church and of its Holy Name Society. He is survived by his widow, one son John, two sisters, one in Saskatchewan, and Mrs. John Tiveron of Toronto, and seven brothers: Leo and Richard of Smith, John and Garnet of Peterborough, William of Lakefield, and Daniel and Thomas of British Columbia. Funeral arrangements were not completed this morning.

Expenses Are Charged Against Peel

Expenses incurred in connection with the arrest of two armed bandits by Peterborough police, are being charged to Wilbert Peel, garage proprietor who was their victim, it was learned today. The information did not come to the Examiner in the form of a complaint from Mr. Peel, who apparently is satisfied to recover $208 of the $216 which the robbers took from his person.

When police turned over the money to Mr. Peel this morning, ten dollars was held back for expenses. Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., admitted he knew something of the matter, but not its details. He admitted, too, that expenses incurred in conection with the capture of thieves are not ordinarily charged to persons who have been robbed.

Out of Pocket Expenses

"When I returned $208 of the stolen money to Mr. Peel," Chief Constable Samuel Newhall stated, "I explained to him that I was retaining $10 to cover out-of-pocket expenditures in connection with the case incurred outside our jurisdiction. I was not sure of the exact amount of those expenses at the time and told Mr. Peel if there was any balance left from the $10 it would be turned over to him. He seemed entirely satisfied with that when he left and I feel that he should be seeing that he had recovered $13 more than he had reported stolen."

"These expenses included $6 to the farmer who drove the police in to Manvers Station and back to his home again and also the cost of gas for a provincial officer's own car which was used in the capture of the two holdup men. They were outside our jurisdiction; in fact we could have sat down and left the capture of the robbers to outside police in which case they probably would have made good their escape and Mr. Peel would not have recovered a cent of his money."

"It is not unusual to collect extra expenses for services outside the city. When a car is reported stolen and telephone messages and telegrams are sent out to police all over the country we charge the expense against the owner of the car and if officers are sent to bring back the recovered machine that cost is also charged against the owner. Similarly when police take persons to the Ontario Hospital at Whitby, relatives pay the expenses involved. We do not feel that the ratepayers of Peterborough should have to pay such expenses for outside service especially as in this Peel case when there has been a recovery of the stolen property—in this instance $23 more than the man himself reported stolen."

Hastings Road Is Being Plowed

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 2.—The provincial snow plow and a crew of seven men left here yesterday afternoon about two o'clock for Cobourg but four hours later they had succeeded in gaining only 13 miles to Roseneath. The road from Norwood to Hastings was opened yesterday morning and is in good shape for travel. Men on the plow said that the road from Roseneath to Cobourg could be travelled by car bu they added it was quite rough. The gang will continue to work on this road, known as Highway 45, until it is in good shape.

The roads in and about this village may be plowed out by the provincial plow in the near future, it was learned last night. Reeve Lewis Kelley said the council were considering the proposal but they would have to wait until the mainn roads in this district were in good shape before they could expect the plow here. Whether or not the village roads will be plowed out depends on their condition when the plow is available, he said.

Turnip Seed Is Found Stored In Farmer's Radio

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Mount Julian, March 2.

EVIDENTLY jitterbug mice are not confined to Peterborough. Recently a nearby farmer was about to change a tube in his radio set when mysterious rattlings were heard in the machine and an investigation disclosed a quantity of turnip seeds stored in every available space within the radio. The set had been in use every day and the unusual contents seemed to have no effect upon the operation of the machine. Mice are blamed for storing the seed in this novel cache.

Eight Mailmen Are Off Duty

Epidemic colds and influenza knocked eight of Postmaster Lachuer's city letter carriers off duty this morning, requiring emergency shifts for temporary replacements. Some of the men took the count last week, and men from the inside posts were sent out in their places. Eight of the carriers were missing at this morning's roll call, but only one outside man had to be engaged to bring the courier crew up to strength.

James Jackson, on the southwest end route collapsed Tuesday morning in Bert McLeod's store, and was unable to continued his mail delivery. He was driven to his home by Mr. McLeod.

While the city carriers have been fighting 'flu, and none too successfully, the rural delivery men have been fighting abnormal traffic conditions. Between the snow and the sniffle epidemic the Postmaster has had more than the ordinary problems to contend with. Some of the country couriers found many a road that was simply impassable, and they might never have finished their recent rounds if they hadn't received the help of farmers who came out to meet them.

Work In Africa Is Shown In Pictures

Gospel Hall was filled with an audience gathered to view an interesting selection of pictures portraying conditions in Africa and the people in their natural state, Wednesday night. The message gave evidence of the fact that the heathen who are brought under the power of Christ through the preaching of the Gospel, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, are unmistakably changed.

Mr. Hess gave an inspiring account of the mission work in Africa which is being carried on in connection with the Christian Missions in Many Lands. He is on his way to Kingston and expects to return to Africa in the fall.

Fire Protection Asked For House In Smith

Alderman E. R. Wilson lost a committee argument Wednesday night, but "we'll come to your rescue Monday night" Alderman Stocker promised him. It related to a request from O. L. Dagleish, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, for fire protection to his new home, the old Walton place on the north side of Park Hill Road (Smith Street) between the north end of Park Street and Jackson Park.

Alderman Wilson contended that Mr. Dagleish should be charged the stipulated rates for fire department trips out of the city, $100 for the first hour and $50 for each succeeding hour. Alderman Glover said the house was just across the boundary line, and added the humorous note "only the hose nozzle will be outside the city, if they ever had a fire up there." It was said the charge in North Monaghan was $50 a call, but otherwise the $100 touch applied. "That is if you can get it," said Alderman McIntyre, chairman.

Alderman Stocker was simply a spectator while the Fire, Water and Light Committee was in session. He was not a member of that committee, but he promised aid for Ald. Wilson when the committee's report reaches the council Monday night.

Scalded Child Is Making Progress

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HASTINGS, March 2.—Shirley Blackbourne, victim of a scalding accident here Tuesday, was reported as progressing favorably last night. She is a four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Blackbourne, Dr. Campbell said her injuries were not quite as bad as they first seemed but he had been unable to determine the extent until yesterday afternoon when he dressed the burns. She will probably spend some time in bed until healing is well under way, he added.

The brethren of Peterborough Lodge No. 155 A. F. and A. M. are requested to assemble at Comstock's Funeral Home at 2.00 p.m. on Friday, March 3 for the purpose of attending the funeral of our late Wor. Bro. George Evans. Brethren of sister lodges are invited.

Civil Defence Schedule 2 Years Ahead

LONDON, March 2 (CP-Havas).—Figures designed to show the speeding up of Britain's civilian defence plans since the Czecho-slovak crisis, cited by Sir John Anderson, Lord Privy Seal, in the House of Commons last night, today set the tone for continuation of debate centering around the budget for the new civilian defence department that he directs. He said civil defence plans are almost two years ahead of schedule.

The air raids precautions personnel, Sir John said, has more than doubled during recent months. 50,000,000 gas masks have been distributed to the population, and 940,000 of a more complicated type for A.R.P. volunteers have been turned out.

When an Opposition member objected that the gas masks were only "for show," the Minister replied that experts had pronounced them perfectly adequate.

The government has ordered 1,400,000 special masks for protection of infants, he said further, and 1,300,000 for children more than two years old. Delivery of the masks will soon begin, he said.

He revealed that 127,000,000 sacks of sand for protection of public buildings and houses had been distributed and 200,000,000 more ordered. Special model fire engines are now under construction.

Organization Set-Up.

As for the civilian defence administration, Sir John said Britain had been divided into 12 regional organizations, with the personnel for each already chosen.

The regional commissioners—yet to be appointed—in peace-time will keep in close contact with the local authorities and in time of war will derive their powers exclusively from the central government, he said. He observed, however, that nothing would be done "which any reasonable or impartial critic might regard as savoring of militarism."

Sir John admitted the air-raid shelters problems appeared most difficult of solution. Latest plans under consideration, he said, were based on the lessons learned from the Spanish war. He pointed out that the general principle of protection remains that of dispersion of the population, since there is no such thing, he said, as absolutely bomb-proof shelters.

As for mass shelters, he said the government would soon decide whether these would be built or not.

Typical Loblaw Fruit and Vegetable Department.

Fruit from every section of the country and food from every corner of the world lie in long lines in Loblaw's new Peterborough store in readiness for the opening on Friday. The view here is typical of the Peterborough store, with choice fruits and vegetables forming pleasing patterns of color and form. Keynote of the success of Loblaw stores has been absolute cleanliness, which is evident in this picture.

Up For Murder

CORNWALL, Ont., March 2.—(CP)—Dan McDonald, charged with the murder of Captain F. J. Cameron on Cameron's Island east of here last Nov. 21, appeared before Ovila Laurin, justice of the peace, here yesterday and was remanded a week for hearing. Held by Malone, N.Y., authorities pending extradition proceedings, McDonald was brought to Cornwall a week ago.

GIVEN TWO YEARS

SARNIA.—Gordon Gill, 33, Sarnia township, to-day was sentenced by Magistrate C. S. Woodrow to two years in penitentiary for the robbery of $15 from John Johnston, 66-year-old Plympton farmer.

Screams Then Death

Guests on the upper flat had little chance to escape Some forms appeared at the upper windows. There were screams for help and then the forms would disappear, engulfed by the inferno that sent giant clouds of smoke seeping through the narrow streets. A sweeping, bitter wind added fury to the flames and at the same time kept the thick smoke so low in the streets it was impossible at times to see.

The front of the 50-year-old structure collapsed and tumbled into the street and let loose a mass of flames that soon spread to another half-dozen smaller buildings housing a liquor store, clothing shop, restaurant. The places were gutted within an hour.

Over the piles of smoking debris, firemen scrambled to place hoses at strategic spots, seeking to stem progress of the flames that shot with explosive force through the broken walls, serving as an open door to a huge furnace.

Between the heat, smoke and danger of tumbling walls, it was impossible to get within survey distance of the interior. Nothing could be seen except the flaming mass. And behind them lay the apparent fate of at least a score of men and women.

Fanned by a brisk 25-mile wind the fire spread quickly to buildings beside the hotel. To the north a brick block housing the Nova Scotia Liquor Commission's Hollis street store, and another containing Lohnes Restaurant and Star's Clothing Shop, quickly were ablaze and fell prey.

The flames spread then to the four-storey brick Canadian General Electric building on the corner of Sackville and Hollis streets, and the National Drug Company's five-storey brick structure on Sackville street. At the rear of the hotel flames began eating into wooden buildings on Halifax's historic Water street.

"Awful" Scenes

Police Sergeant Charles Judge, who made five trips to Victoria General Hospital with injured persons, described the situation as "awful."

"I never want to see anything like it again. I saw two men stand screaming at windows until they fell back into the flames."

Thomas Richardson, night watchman of the next-door Halifax hotel, said he saw persons hanging from "every window of the Queen."

"When the engines came we got a ladder and threw three kids into a fire net and then took down a man and woman," said Richardson. "The kids were from six to 10 years old. I saw a woman jump from the first floor and land on the marquee above the hotel's front entrance. Firemen took her down from there."

Fears Son is Dead

A. S. Dewar of Wallace, N.S., said his 20-year-old son, Don, was missing.

"I don't see how he could have gotten out. We were in separate rooms on the third floor and when I awoke the hotel was shaking. I couldn't get out into the hall. I couldn't open the door. Finally, I got out a window."

Officials at Victoria General Hospital said many persons had been taken there, but they did not know the number. "We haven't time to count them," the switchboard girl at the hospital reported, "but we have been told to expect 15 more."

The Halifax Infirmary reported only one person, a Mrs. Weir, had been brought there. Sisters said she apparently was not seriously burned.

"My God I don't believe we got half of them out," one fireman said. In the confusion there was no possibility of an immediate check up either of how many escaped or how many were in the hotel when the fire broke out.

Clare Chipman of Montreal, a Mantz (steamship) Line employee, said he had been awakened by flames bursting into his room and had escaped.

Peter Costello, Charlottetown, a Canadian National Telegraphs installation man, was posted as missing. Mrs. Manda Hubley, Lunenburg, N.S., hotelkeeper, also was missing at the first check-up.

E. L. Macdonald, Moncton, NB., said he had ordered a call made to his room at seven o'clock but had awakened sometime before.

Norman Eliff, Montreal, saved his three children by throwing them into a fire net.

Worst Since 1917 Tragedy.

It was the worst tragedy in Halifax since the explosion of December, 1917, in which 2,000 persons lost their lives, and another 10,000 were made homeless.

At 10.30 a.m., the flames still raged in almost an entire block, but they were believed under control.

V. L. MacDonald, Moncton commercial traveller, said he was awakened by shouts of "help" and found flames roaring down the hall. His room was filled with smoke and he went down the stairs with a coat over his head. He was accompanied by a man and a woman. They groped their way to the ladies' entrance only to find the door locked. MacDonald said he smashed the glass with a jar and crawled through.

MacDonald said he later helped hold a life net while children were thrown from second and third floor windows.

Douglas Duffy, known throughout the Maritimes for his ice carnivals, said when he awoke and smelled smoke he "hollered for Jean Sherwood (star of the carnival) who was in the next room."

"Then I could not get back to my bed as the flames were so bad. I wanted to tie my bedclothes together, but it was too hot for me."

Firemen rescued them.

Many Fall 20 or 30 Feet.

Mrs. Howard Earl, an aged woman, was rescued from a second-floor room. She called hysterically for her husband. It was later found he had been taken to Victoria General Hospital.

Constable Cleary was among the first police detachment to arrive. He said people were climbing from rear windows and a number jumped or lost their hold on ledges. Some fell 20 or 30 feet.

One woman was rescued from the cross arms of a 30-foot Hydro pole, near an "ell" of the building. She had apparently leaped from the roof.

Victor Boufafrd, hotel fireman, said he was in his room in the basement when the fire broke out. When he gave the alarm, Edward Weaver, night porter, telephoned the fire department.

Weaver and Boufafrd and other staff members went to upper floors to warn guests. Then they went to rear and hurled rocks through windows to awaken them.

Old Cobourg Boy Dies

VANCOUVER, March 2 (CP).—Charles M. Webster, 56, former commissioner of the Vancouver Tourist Association, died in hospital yesterday.

Mr. Webster resigned from the tourist association in 1936 and since then had been connected with the promotion of automobile travel in British Columbia. He was manager of the Good Roads League. Born in Cobourg, Ont., he came west as a young man and was secretary of the Calgary Board of Trade before the war. From 1916 to 1920 he served as industrial commissioner in Winnipeg.

He was appointed publicity commissioner of the Vancouver Tourist Bureau in 1925.

TAKE THE "LEAD" FEELING OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get More Oxygen In Your Blood and Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery — you tire quickly — feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These world-famous pills help make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist. See for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G. T. Pulford Co., Ltd.

U.S. Cattle Quota Rap At Mexico

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Mexico stands to lose considerably by the new cattle quota proclaimed by President Roosevelt. The new quota increases Canada's share in the United States market.

Trade experts said today that by choosing 1936 and 1927 as "representative of the trade in heavy cattle" the presidential proclamation would cut radically into Mexico's exports of cattle into the United States, in Canada's favor.

Under the quota allocation contained in the proclamation, Mexico can send to the United States whatever she can of the total of 31,050 allocated to all foreign countries other than Canada, which is given 193,950 head. The percentages are 86.2 for Canada and 13.8 for all other foreign countries.

Last year, Mexico's exports of heavy cattle (weighing 700 pounds or more each, which is the type brought into the quota) was 48,496. This was nearly a 100 per cent increase over her exports in this category in 1937, which were 24,606, and more than a 100 per cent increase over those in 1936, which were 21,119.

The jump in Mexico's exports was believed due to the wider development in Mexico of a heavier type of cattle.

On the other hand, Canada's exports to the United States of this type of cattle dropped in 1938 to 76,407 head as compared with 157,468 head in 1937, and 136,533 head in 1936.

If, therefore, the year 1938 had been chosen as a "representative" year or had been combined with 1936 and 1937. The resulting ratios for the fixing of the quotas would have been considerably different.

Awaiting Cheque In "Movie Quiz"

Fortune lightly touched Miss Alice Reid, 358 Aylmer Street, in winning one of the prizes in the "movie-quiz," but it had deserted her today as the prevalent influenza chased her to bed. It was reported that Miss Reid has not yet received the letter containing her cheque, the amount of which she will not know until the mail man arrives with it. All over town new victims of the epidemic were mentioned in today's casualty list. An office employee of C.P.C. was said to have collapsed at his desk and fainted again when being taken to his home in an automobile, and half a dozen others of the staff were missing. Both E. F. Mason, president, and E. B. Fowler, Secretary, of the Nicholls Hospital Board, were reported at home with colds today.

LONDON—(CP).—Tests are being made here to determine if heat from coke fires is beneficial in driving fog from flying fields.

Growth Of Business In 12 Years Made Old Store Too Small And New One Had To Be Erected

Spotless cleanliness and long, shining rows of enticing foods from every land under the sun: those are keynotes in the new Loblaw store that opens here on Friday, next door to the establishment in which the popular management has conducted an ever-increasing business during the past twelve years.

For days now, crowds of shoppers have paused outside the immaculate new building, watching the show cases fill and overflow with merchandise of all kinds. Every single item of stock is new—more than 65 tons of every conceivable food and household requirement. Not a single can or candy has been taken from the store next door. All has come from the great company's warehouses to give a completely new opening on Friday. In the glistening white compartments of a new and larger meat department will be sold meats from animals specially slaughtered for the occasion by the Canada Packers, Limited.

The growth of Loblaw's in Peterborough during the past 12 years has been nothing short of phenomenal. The popularity of the store and its employees has been such that the staff has had to be increased many times its original number, and now at last its custom has outgrown its quarters. For the new quarters are much enlarged. Customers entering the store on its opening day will see quarters that appear to be fully twice as wide as the former ones and much deeper. Actually the store is some 17 feet wider, but is the same length. The illusion of greater length is due largely to a new idea in shelves. From one end of the store to the other the eye is met by a bewildering array of goods, with not a single shelf partition to break the picture, making much more attractive the arrangement of those thousands of articles. The additional rows of shelves and their increased depth, together with more table showing, permits a far greater display of goods than was formerly possible.

The customer, too, will find most attractive the wall pattern and lighting of the new building. The walls are finished in a soft cream, trimmed with orange, and with a double aluminum strip circling the entire building. This is in opposition to the old style of hard white walls, and gives rest to one's eyes. The store is completely and efficiently lighted by indirect means. No longer do direct lights from overhanging lamps give harsh brilliance to the goods, but all is lighted evenly and softly.

Larger Meat Market

One of the most pleasing parts of the store will be the new and enlarged meat market. Its counter and electrically cooled display unit, measures twenty feet in length, is of the most modern nature possible. It is backed with white masonite, giving the department a glittering tile appearance. Back of this department is the cutting room, and behind that is a spotless meat cooler, where large quantities of meats are kept electrically cooled. All is of spotless white, the last word in efficiency and cleanliness.

But if many are the changes to be found by customers, they will find familiar faces in the staff of the old store, all of whom will be working in the new, together with added employees, most of whom have now been selected, and who are all local men and women.

The staff will still be headed by P. E. Moore as manager; H. McConkey, district meat superintendent, and J. McCartney, district manager. The opening will see the presence in Peterborough of Justine Cork, assistant general manager of Loblaw stores. Mr. Cork was in Peterborough this week, together with J. M. Frain, chief of operations, and C. H. Loblaw, district chief supervisor, overlooking perparations for the store's opening.

An additional checking counter has been added to the number in use in the old store, and a new means of reaching them will eliminate crowding of incoming and outgoing patrons, it is believed.

Another feature of the new quarters is a storage room on the second floor for sugar and raw cereals. Bags and barrels are taken immediately on delivery to this room and the product needed is emptied into a huge hopper that extends to the main floor where wrapping operations are carried out. By such a plan rodents are unable to reach the product, nor is it handled at any time. The lower opening of the hopper is small and bags are fitted over it to fill.

Another feature is an auxiliary heating plant in the balcony near the manager's office. By turning a button and setting a fan in motion, heated air is driven all through the building. In the same fashion cold air can be circulated in summer.

In the basement a well has been driven and water will be pumped in summer weather for use in the cooling system. Officials have found from experience that tap water is not cool enough in summer for such use.

Unhurt In Blast

Blackened and temporarily befuddled, Michael Stesky sits on the curb of Pike St., in New York and wonders what hit him. Michael was blown up in a boiler blast that made a lot of noise, shattere winds and sent neighbors scurrying in confusion. Police restored calm and found that no serious damage had been done.

NAZI GIRLS FOR BOATS

Because of the shortage of boys in Germany, the Prussian Office for Water Traffic has announced that captains on small boats may hire girls, preferably relatives or dependents over 16 years old, to be cabin boys.

Here's a way to make cleaning easier. Avoid harsh gritty cleansers. Remember scratches on bathtub, washbasin, and sink, catch dirt and stains and make cleaning harder. Use only Old Dutch, the cleanser that doesn't scratch, because it is made with Seismotite.

And here's another time-saving, step-saving suggestion: keep a package of Old Dutch in your kitchen, bathroom, laundry and garage. Then you have this safe cleanser handy for cleaning porcelain, enamel, painted woodwork, linoleum, and pots and pans. MADE IN CANADA

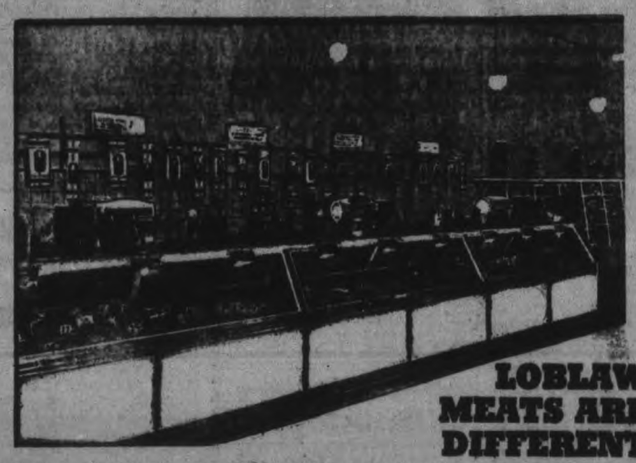
NEW PETERBORO MARKET

(NEXT DOOR TO OUR PRESENT MARKET)

OPENS Tomorrow Friday Mar. 3rd



LOBLAW MEATS ARE DIFFERENT

First, our experts pay strict attention to the selection of meat for superior quality. Secondly, our method of cutting and preparing retail cuts eliminates a large proportion of unnecessary fat, gristle and bone by which you get more MEAT to the pound. Lastly, you will always find our prices LOW considering the quality. "We will not sacrifice quality for price."

Having outgrown our old facilities, we purchased adjoining land and have erected this spacious modern market with the object of bettering the service to our Peterboro customers. It also expresses LOBLAW'S confidence in Peterboro's future, and we are proud of our position as a property owner and taxpayer of Peterboro.

DEATH AT THE MANOR

By M. E. CORNE

CHAPTER FORTY-TWO

"WHERE DOES Miss Lemoine fit into the picture?" Mac demanded of Mr. Richard.

"I didn't have a thing to do with it!" Toots insisted loudly.

"She saw me take the jewels," Mr. Richard admitted reluctantly. "She was coming into the salon for something or other—"

"It's a lie!" screamed Toots, writhing in Mac's grasp. "He was crazy about me, and he couldn't get me any other way!"

Richard stared at her: "Yes, I was crazy," he said, and his upper lip curled back from his teeth.

The detective persisted. "Blackmailed you, didn't she?"

Mr. Richard lit a fresh cigaret. Poor kid! I guess he hated to admit he had played the fool for such a woman. Mac, however, to whom gold-digging blondes were an old story, helped him over the rough spots.

"She made you hand over the emeralds or else, eh?"

"Yes."

"He's a liar!" shrieked Toots.

"Can it, sister!" Mac shoved her into a chair. "You're up to your neck in this, and you know it! Now about this money," he went on. "How'd you get in such a mess, son?"

"I—I gambled. I had to pay. I got the money from Beeman. He was going to come here and tell father—"

"Hum-m-m — did your sister know of this debt of yours?"

"I had to tell her," the boy said, ashamed. "I had to tell someone."

"And the telegram you sent Beeman?"

"After the will was read and I found I was — was rich, I wired him I could pay."

"I see. Now one more question. Why did you agree to the engagement between yourself and Miss Lemoine?"

Mr. Richard looked more and more ashamed. "I—I was scared," he mumbled. "I wanted to buy back the emeralds, but she wouldn't sell them. When mother died," he choked suddenly, "well—I didn't see anything else to do."

Chief Ellis entered the conversation. "How did you get mixed up with this blonde dame?" he wanted to know.

"She—she was at the gambling place."

"Where?"

"In New York."

"Go ahead!" scoffed Toots. "Go ahead and tell him you begged me to marry you! How nuts you were about me!"

"I thought she was on the level," the boy said with bitterness. "I didn't know she was a come-on girl."

"Sap!" Toots' voice was scornful. "I knew you for a sucker the minute I laid eyes on you! A softie, that's what I called you! A softie!"

Mac queried: "Did you invite Miss Lemoine to the Manor?"

"I—I had to invite her. The—the man who runs the gambling joint sent her here to collect. Then I got the money from Beeman. He said I could have thirty days to pay. I didn't know he was crooked."

"I see."

Mr. Richard burst out: "I know I've been a fool! I know I committed a crime scaling! But, before God, that's the only crime of which I'm guilty! I'm willing to pay! I'm willing to take my medicine!"

"Sap!" Toots snarled. "Sap!"

"Sure he was a sap!" Mac whirled upon her. "Better pickings next time, Miss Lemoine—if there is a next time. Hand over the emeralds."

For a full second she glared venomously at the detective. Then sullenly, and without words, she dived into her dress and brought forth a small chamois bag. Mac pulled the drawstring and the emeralds, green and glittering, spilled to the table.

"Listen, you!" Toots was not beaten yet. "I'm not taking the rap alone, and don't you forget that!" She pointed a crimson fingernail at Richard Witherspoon. "You won't have any fun where you're going either, big boy!"

"Miss Lemoine!" McIntyre's tone was not nice. "I'm giving you an hour to pack and get out of here! If you're still around at the end of sixty minutes — well — you'll damn well wish you weren't!"

"You said it!" added the chief, and smacked his fist for emphasis.

"Get out?" For once Toots was flabbergasted. "You mean—out?"

"I said 'out' and I mean 'out'! Scram!"

"Sure." She scrambled to her feet. "I'm not anxious to stay!" And with a swish of her skirts she was gone.

"You aren't going to arrest us?" Mr. Richard was incredulous.

"Boy," said Mac, gruffly, "we're investigating murder! If your father wishes to prosecute for theft, it's up to him."

"Oh!" I thought he would burst into tears.

"Take it easy," Mac said kindly. "And remember, the next time you get to New York keep away from the night spots—and blonde come-on girls!"

Mr. Richard laughed and blinked his eyes fiercely. "You don't have to tell me! I never want to see New York again!"

"All right, son. Run along!"

"And now, Miss Ritter," he said sternly, when Mr. Richard had jubilantly departed, "there's a few things I'd like to ask you!"

"Oh!" I blushed hotly. "What-t?"

"About this time business. You say you left the salon at nine-thirty and returned at ten?"

"Yes. It struck ten while Phil and I were in the pantry. I ran up the stairs as fast as I could and into the salon."

"And Mrs. Witherspoon was dead when you got there?"

"Yes."

"And she was alive when you left?"

"Why—" I started. I had not thought of that possibility. "Why, I guess so!"

"So she might have been dead before you left?"

I knit my brows. "I don't see how. I was doing her nails and—oh!—" I broke off.

"Oh what?" Mac urged impatiently. "Now what have you suddenly remembered?"

I said slowly: "I just remembered that while I was doing her nails Mr. Horace came into the lobby, and he startled me so that I cut a gash in Mrs. Witherspoon's finger—"

"Well?"

"She didn't move when I cut her! She didn't move at all!"

"Ah!" he said softly. "Ah!"

BENSFORT

Mrs. Byron Wood has returned to her home at Fraserville after spending a few days at the home of Mrs. Everett Wood.

Fred Patton has sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to return home from Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. W. C. Dawson is visiting friends in Peterborough.

Friends will be pleased to hear that Audrey Beebe, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beebe, is slowly recovering from a very serious illness. She is still confined to Nicholls Hospital.

Mrs. H. C. Howson has returned home from Warkworth where she was present for the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Sykes.

A miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Finnie in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Harris who recently received a severe loss from fire when their household effects were burned in the hotel on Jubilee. Mr. and Mrs. Harris also received a large shower from their Gore's Landing friends.

Fred Perrin was a visitor to Ballieboro on Saturday.

Roy Armour of Peterborough spent the past three weeks at the home of Arthur Andrews.

GOODNIGHT STORY

By MAX TRELL

"I have the strangest story to tell you," Ting-a-Ling said to Knarf and Hanid when the shadow-children went down into the Blue China Plate to pay him a visit the other afternoon. They sat in his pretty little parlor eating rice-cakes.

"What is the story about?" Knarf wanted to know.

"It's about how the pond on the other side of the hill got frozen. You see," Tin-a-Ling went on, "my two little nieces, Ting-a-Lingle and Lingle-a-Ting, wanted to go ice-skating on their new skates. But I said to them: 'Darlings, you can't go ice-skating unless the top of the pond is covered with ice. It's a rule.' Well, the dear children were very disappointed when they heard that.

"I blew on it with all my might."

They said: 'Uncle Ting-a-Ling, please do us a favor. Cover the top of the pond with ice'."

Said He Would.

"And what did you do then?" Hanid asked.

Ting-a-Ling smiled. "I told them I would, of course. There isn't anything in the world I wouldn't do for my sweet little nieces. But it turned out to be a great deal harder than I expected. Do you know what I did first?"

"What did you do first?"

"Well, first, I tried putting the pond in my little ice-box. But dear me! It ran out as quickly as I put it in, and almost flooded my house."

"My goodness!"

Did No Good.

"Then I decided to do it little by little. So I filled up little saucers with bits of the pond. The bits froze all right. But the moment I threw them back in the pond—why, they simply melted and the pond wasn't any more frozen than it was before."

"Oh! that was too bad!" the two shadows said.

"But I didn't give up," said Ting-a-Ling. "Oh, no! I had another idea. I went down to the edge of the pond and blew on it with all my might."

"Blew on it!"

"Yes. When tea is too hot you blow on it to make it cool. I was sure if I blew on the pond long enough, it would get cool and freeze."

"And did it?"

Ting-a-Ling smiled. "Yes, I think it did. You see, I blew so hard that finally I just closed my eyes and fell asleep. But all the blowing just kept on. And it blew and blew and blew—colder and colder and colder—until all at once I woke up. My ears were tingling with the cold. And what do you think? All my blowing had turned into the North Wind, and the top of the pond was frozen! Now isn't that the strangest story you've ever heard?"

DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX—What about a husband who spends every night going to meetings, but who is always too tired to do anything around home? What about one who never has money to take his wife out, but can always afford to buy uniforms and dance tickets for his organizations and gas for his car? What about a man who leaves his wife to sit home, night after night, by herself because she won't go to parties where there is a drinking bunch? What about a man's manners? Can't a wife say something when her husband leans his elbows all over the table and eats with his knife and talks with his mouth full? What about a husband who sends money home to his people when he is in debt? Is it necessary always to be in debt by giving in-laws money? How am I going to get said husband to read what you write about it? It is only when you write something about the wives that he reads your articles and says how good they are.

THE WIFE.

ANSWER:

Oh, he will read it all right, though he will never admit it to you, but I'll get a letter telling me how little I know about wives and how aggravating they can be, always nagging a man about his manners and his morals so that he can't even eat in peace or bring his stenographer home in his car without her getting green-eyed. But perhaps, anyway, a few words may sink in and some day you may be sitting under the tree that has sprung from the few seeds of advice that I scattered.

Certainly any woman who is married to a "joiner" who puts his lodges before his home has a just grievance. But many men are like that. They just have a constitutional yen to be grand potentates or high exalted rulers or whatnot. They like to dike themselves out in gaudy uniforms and parade around and go to conventions. They can always find the money for this whether they can pay the butcher and baker and candlestick-maker or not.

All of us know men who can never afford to buy the wife a new dress, but who always head the subscription lists in getting up money to buy a silver loving cup as a testimonial for an ex-president. Or to send flowers to somebody's funeral. Or to pay the college expenses of some other boy, when they can't send their own sons even through high school.

These are the men who, as the old French proverb puts it, "are the joy of the street and the sorrow of the home." They are tremendously popular abroad, but they don't get three cheers from their wives and children, who have to pinch and scrimp to save the money with which Papa makes the gesture of liberality in public.

I am one who believes that charity begins at home. That whatever money a man makes his family is entitled to, and that he has no right to deny them in order to support his grafting relatives. The only exception I would make to this rule is his mother. He should divide his last penny with her, but turn a deaf ear to the able-bodied relatives who are chronic borrowers or beggars.

I grant you that it gets on a wife's nerves to have to sit opposite a man at meals who is a sword-swallower and a soup-gargler. But I can't be as sympathetic as I could wish, because you must have known what kind of table manners he had before you married him. Nevertheless, in the interests of domestic peace, and also because the way a man eats has a lot to do with his success or failure in the world, I would urge your husband to listen to your criticisms and profit by them.

Also I would ask him to remember that it is even more profitable to a man to be a member in good and regular standing at home than it is in a lodge, and to spend as many evenings with his family as he does in communion with his brethren at the temple.

DEAR MISS DIX—How should 14-year-olds act? The minute we begin to behave somewhat as grown-ups do our elders tell us to snap out of it and be our age. If we act like children they tell us to please grow up sometimes. What is our age, anyway?

14 YEARS OLD.

ANSWER:

The old phrase for it describes the 14-year-old as a hobbledehoy, neither man nor boy. It is a trying age for both the one who is 14 and his parents.

The adolescent doesn't know how to handle himself because he is midway between a child and a man and has the impulses of both. One minute he feels as old as Methuselah and as wise as Solomon. The next he wants somebody to hold him by the hand and baby him and tell him what to do, as they did when he was 5 years old.

And parents are equally bewildered about how to treat the 14-year-older. When they look at Johnny, who has suddenly shot up in growth until he is half a head taller than Father, they think he is a man and should have the poise and judgment of a man. They expect him to act with the self-control and intelligence of a man.

Yet it was only yesterday that Johnny was a pink-and-white baby in a bassinet, and only this morning, it seems to me, he was a small boy whistling through his teeth and champing on all-day suckers. So they still think of him as being nothing but a child who should have no more freedom and privileges than a child.

Thus parents are often very unjust to their adolescent children because they expect them to be both grown-ups and babies and act like both and neither. Probably there is no remedy for the situation except time.

* * * *

DEAR MISS DIX—Don't you think that when a man of 40 considers marriage for the second time he should pick out a woman who is attractive, intelligent, refined, who would be a good companion and a capable manager, rather than try to recapture the glamor of love by marrying a 20-year-old girl? Surely a genuine fondness and compatibility are more enduring than a fancy that may burn out.

E. C. T.

ANSWER:

Surely, but when do men ever use their heads when picking out their wives? A man of 40 should have seen enough of matrimony to know suitability is the basis of every happy union, but, despite that, they still marry for their fancie and pick out their wives for their pretty faces instead of their ability to be homemakers.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, March 3.

A drastic stirring of events, with sudden and surprising denouements, is presaged by this day's plentary operations. A breaking-up of long-stagnant or crystallized conditions, with thrilling reorientation of the life along new and unforeseen lines, may demand much sagacity, calm judgment and vigilance against snares, deception and intriguing or doubtful circumstances. In this, strangers and elders figure. Be careful in untried places and make decisions with forethought. Look before you leap, and all should flourish surprisingly.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very important year in which the breaking away from old obstacles and congestions may make way for the very alluring and spectacular reorientation of the life and its major objectives. Be ready for the unexpected from strange sources, possibly perilous plots, intrigues, and treachery. Elders, however, or old affiliations may be depended upon for profitable contacts. Be prudent and careful.

A child born on this day, although being deep, studious and industrious, with much sturdiness and dependability, may also have certain restless, erratic or radical traits which may lead to strange adventures. Yet, it may attain responsible and conspicuous public position by its inherent nobilities of character.

Looking Back
On This Date

Although the Bagot-Rush agreement limiting armaments on the Great Lakes, which has produced the more than 120 years of peace between Canada and the United States, was signed in 1817, the great Duke of Wellington evidently had little faith in its permanence, because on this date (March 2) in 1819, he drafted a very elaborate report upon the defence of Canada. The Iron Duke had taken so much interest in Canada that he had in 1814 expressed a willingness to abandon his campaigns in Europe and come out here to "finish the war." Perhaps it is just as well that the peace of Ghent was negotiated in December of that year and thus avoided Wellington's coming. It is interesting to speculate as to what might have happened if he had come. Napoleon might have won the battle at Waterloo, and the whole course of history changed.

One result of the Wellington report was the construction of the Rideau canal, from Kingston to Bytown (Ottawa), at a cost of thousands of pounds, purely as a military route, safe from attack by the Americans on the upper St. Lawrence. The duke had little faith in Toronto as a military or naval base and urged that the capital of Upper Canada should be moved from York to Kingston, but if that were not possible, he urged that the capital be strongly fortified so as to be able to resist attack from an enemy fleet. He also outlined an easy plan for defending the Niagara frontier and of connecting Lakes Huron, Erie and Simcoe, advised the creation of a naval station at Penetanguishene, and stressed the importance of so evolving plans that at no time would a moving military force be many miles from lake or river water.

Improvement of the militia and education of the Canadians to their duty to defend their own country were emphasized. As for the sea coast, the British navy could defend Nova Scotia and New Brunswick and bombard New York and Boston and other coastal cities.

Now! A Revolutionary New Ingredient Makes

NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

UP TO 25% WHITER WASHING

Women Everywhere Astonished to Find That High-Test Oxydol Also Gives up to TWICE THE SUDS of Old-fashioned Soaps Tested—Safe As Ever for Washable Colors, Fabrics and Hands

JOIN THE NATION-WIDE SWING TO THIS AMAZING NEW SOAP

For Still EASIER Washdays, Still WHITER Clothes

ONCE you try new High-Test Oxydol—once you see it wash white clothes far whiter than old-style soaps—you'll know why millions of women have changed to it almost overnight!

High-Test Oxydol is a new-type "no-scrub" soap—fortified by a revolutionary new ingredient. An ingredient that combines whiter washing and safety in a way scientists have sought for years.

Hence new High-Test Oxydol is not only much whiter washing than old-style soaps. It is actually so SAFE that even washable colored prints stay amazingly bright and fresh, wash after wash.

Due to this new ingredient, High-Test Oxydol does these remarkable things when tested against less efficient bar and package soaps, even in hard water. (1) Washes white clothes up to 25% whiter, as proved by scientific Tintometer readings. (2) Gives up to twice the suds—thick, lively suds that stand up 2 to 3 times longer.

Equally important, High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Without boiling, without scrubbing. Saves clothes, so they last 2 to 3 times longer—from the standpoint of washday wear and tear—than clothes scrubbed old-fashioned ways.

High-Test Oxydol is economical, too. Each cup goes up to ¼ again as far—does up to 25% more work—than the same amount of old-style soap.

So try High-Test Oxydol, today. See if clothes don't come whiter, cleaner than you have ever dreamed, quickly and SAFELY. Now on sale at your dealer's.

Mrs. P. Van Nest Cuts Birthday Cake

Mrs. J. M. Arnold, Morrow street, was hostess Wednesday night to members of the King's Own Bible Class of St. James' Sunday School, when a jolly birthday party was staged.

Mrs. Hess led the worship period, and a brief business session followed, which included a very satisfactory report of the class play held recently.

The lovely birthday cake which graced the table, was made and decorated with many candles, by Mrs. A. Meeks, and was cut by Mrs. P. Van Nest, the president. The party realized over seven dollars from the birthday givings. Plans for a national tea to be held in May, were made with much reference to the visit of their Majesties at that time.

The evening's program was in charge of Mrs. A. Rosborough, with the contest prizes going to Miss E. Rosborough and Mrs. Hess, Mrs. G. Rowe and her capable committee dispensed freshments and a jolly social time ensued. Thanks to the hostess and the committee responsible for the happy evening were expressed by Mrs. A. Davis and Mrs. E. Eakins, to which all responded in the usual way.

The next meeting was announced to be held at Mrs. Bert Pitchford's home, McGill street, at the usual time. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Work Among New Canadians Is Explained

Illustrating his remarks with lantern slides showing the work that is being done by the church for the New Canadians in the cities of Fort William, Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Vancouver, Dr. E. W. Young, speaking in the absence of Mr. R. G. Kitchen, who is unfortunately ill, gave an interesting address based on the subject of "Learning to Live Together," taken from chapter four of the study book, at the weekly meeting of St. Andrew's United Church Young People's Society.

Mr. Harry Vass, president, was in the chair. A request was brought in by Miss Frances Clark for the use of the church on Friday, April 14, when the Presbytery convention of young people is to be held in the city. This request was referred by the Y.P.S. to the session for decision. A delightful solo was given by Miss Dorothy Ridyard.

At the close of the meeting Mrs. E. W. Young conducted a brief sewing class for the Y.P.S. girls, and bowling was enjoyed afterwards by all the members.

Miss J. Hair Hostess To Frances Watt Circle

Learning to live together was the theme taken by the "Frances Watt" Mission Circle at a meeting held at the home of Miss Jean Hair, 541 Bolivar street. The topic proved to be both interesting and beneficial, and presented a question which every true Canadian should consider — "Are we learning to live together?" In a land where numerous nationalities are represented, neighborliness and brotherly love should be foremost in the minds of citizens if they are to make Canada a better place in which to live.

The meeting was opened with one verse of the hymn "Lord of the Lands." A short business period followed with Miss Irma Darling in charge. A delightful solo, "Thanks be to God," accompanied at the piano by Miss Marie Armstrong, was sung by Miss Jean Ralston.

The study period was in charge of Mrs. O. Smith, assisted by Miss R. Milburn, Miss G. Gerrard, Miss M. Elliott, Miss H. Bradley, Miss G. Lockie and Miss I. Darling. The devotional period theme was taken from the January Missionary Monthly. A social hour, with Miss M. Elliott and Miss G. Lockie in charge of arrangements, followed the meeting.

Capable Men and Women At Head of Government Needed Institute Told

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 2.—Mrs. H. R. Howden, Lakefield, in delivering an address on "Legislation," at the March meeting of the Women's Institute, held in the Memorial Hall here Wednesday, stated, "Each time that those who represent us in the legislature indulge in frivolous remarks and stupid argument, there is a waste of hundreds of dollars of the money provided for purposes of government, by taxes paid by you and me.

"We should regard the government of our country as a business venture in which every single one of us has a financial interest. So the man or woman who fails to take an interest in an election is in a sense neglecting his or her investment."

"We must have capable men and women at the head of the business of government. And in this age there is a wonderful opportunity for women. It is not necessary or possible for all women to be actively engaged in public matters. But there is something which every single one of us can do, and that is to make it our business to understand the questions of the day, and to see to it that only men who are capable and sincere in their desire for public position represent us in the legislature of Ontario, and in the Dominion government.

"We have serious problems in Canada today, and the sooner we send capable and clever minds to deal with these problems, the sooner they will be solved," Mrs. Howden said.

The B.N.A. Act

In her talk, Mrs. Howden mentioned the British North America Act, saying that it is so framed that in many instances it is difficult to be certain whether Federal or Provincial government has the right to legislate with regard to certain matters.

"It is this clashing which has proved the stumbling block to social reform in Canada," she said. For example, unemployment insurance cannot be dealt with by the Federal government because it deals with property and civil rights, and that is a matter for Provincial legislation only. Matters have reached such an inpasse, the speaker said, that a commission headed by Chief Justice Rowell was appointed to look into the matter. Hearings were held across the whole of Canada. "The report of this commission will do much to help those who are attempting to remedy the defects which the past twenty-five years have shown to be apparent in the B.N.A. Act. But the amendment of this act will be a long process," Mrs. Howden stated.

Address On Birds

Miss Florence Atwood addressed the meeting on the subject "Birds."

In response to the roll call, those present replied by naming a favorite bird and a municipal law that would help the country.

The robin and the wren proved to be favorites with the ladies, while among the suggested laws were "that the cutting of trees on public highways be stopped as far as possible" or "that care be taken when making roads, so that the best trees would be left to beautify the road"; "that the keeping of cats be restricted as they are injurious to birds."

Mrs. Stanley Higgins, president, presided for the business session. A clipping was read telling of the proposed visit to the Kawartha Lakes of the "Scottish Rurals." Some members of this society—the name by which the Women's Institute is known north of the Tweed—will visit Canada in July and they proposed to take a trip through the Kawartha Lakes district, the clipping stated. Further details as to the date of heir arrival will be received later, Mrs. Higgins explained.

"Dick, the amateur gardener" will speak in the Memorial Hall on Wednesday, March 8, and final arrangements for the entertainment were made. A committee composed of Mesdames S. Higgins, R. Bullock and Miss M. Sanderson was appointed to look after final details. The speaker is one of the most popular lecturers on Horticulture in the province. He will give an illustrated lecture on "Your Garden for 1939," and will answer all problems brought up. The Institute suggests that plant problems be written out, ready to drop into a question box at the door.

"We will be pleased to have all persons interested in Horticulture at this open meeting on Wednesday evening next," Mrs. Higgins stated.

Committee Reports

Standing committees were asked to bring their reports to the next meeting, when there will be the election of officers. It was decided to hold the election in April instead of May because the local Institute is entertaining the district here at the disrict annual meeting in May.

I.O.D.E. To Aid In Drive For Ton of Coppers

Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. members held their March meeting at the home of Mrs. D. V. Canning, Gilmour street, on Wednesday evening with the regent, Mrs. D. Loucks presiding.

It was decided to purchase records from the R.C.A. Victor Company to be sent to the Northern school at Allenwater, Ontario. Mrs. I. H Keefer gave a splendid report of the work done in equipping the small kitchen at the Y.W.C.A.

Mrs. T. J. Carley gave a very interesting talk on current events; Mrs. F. Hooper read a paper on "The Aims and Objects of Our Order"; Mrs. S. J. Graham brought before the members statements revealing certain facts enlightening them on the reason for the need of the new addition to Nicholls Hospital; plans to help the Women's Hospital Auxiliary with its collection of the ton of coppers were discussed, and the regent outlined plans for several activities for the coming year.

Mrs. C. Graham expressed the thanks of the chapter to Mrs. Canning, the hostess of the evening, for her kind hospitality, and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, and the serving of refreshments by Mrs. Canning and her group.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

The purpose and work of the Home and School Associations were outlined by Mrs. E. Wand at the monthly meeting of the Association, with Mrs. Ellis, vice-president, presiding. A display of books in connection with the Association were on display following Mrs. Wand's interesting address.

In honor of Founder's Day, a candle lighting service was held, with Mrs. G. Harris reading the purpose of the celebration, and the following members taking part. Miss Ruby Easson, child, memory candle; Miss Robinson, candle, National Federation Home and School; Miss C. Adams, teacher, provincial; Mrs. Ellis, King Edward Home and School.

A report of the first meeting organized by the King Edward Home and School on May 22, 1919, read by Mrs. L. Gibson, was of great interest to the present members.

The meeting was opened with the Lord's Prayer in unison. Reports were given by the secretary and treasurer, and arrangements were made for a Fathers' Night to be held during March, with Mr. Dearborn and Mr. Crawford in charge. A piano solo was given by Mrs. G. Wallace, and a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. H. Turner.

The meeting closed with "God Save the King," and refreshments were served by Mrs. G. Harris and her committee.

MISSING TYPIST

BRISBANE—(CP). — Nearly the whole of Queensland's police force was engaged in the unsuccessful search for Marjorie Rose Norval, 30, typist in the state premier's office, and one of the best known young women in Queensland, who left her hotel one night and disappeared.

Newest Wallpapers Distinctive In Color and Design

The interesting Wallpaper Style Show which Coleman Brothers' store is presenting this week, was opened Tuesday evening at a meeting of decorators and paper-hangers, held in their attractive store. While the meeting was arranged especially for the purpose of demonstrating to the decorators what was newest and smartest in wallpaper, there were also several points of general interest to the home owner.

It was pointed out by the speaker of the evening, a factory representative from Toronto, that plain, uninteresting walls are being replaced now by pattern in many lovely color combinations. One of the most noteworthy features of the show was the number of patterns of distinctive design that were shown.

Ceilings are again getting more attention, the trend being definitely toward colors that contrast with the patterned walls. Bright yellow ceilings were shown with powder blue walls; soft rose ceilings with oyster colored walls, as well as many other striking contrasts.

To sum up the impression gained by looking at the new styles in wallpaper, it appears that color in almost every known shade is the important feature of the newest idea in decoration, with the walls carrying the pattern, and drapes going plain or self-toned. The most popular colors appear to be all shades of red, from the softest of powder pink to the deeper tones of rust. Even the most vivid of reds are shown for some rooms, in a big range of patterns.

The wallpaper style show is open to the public on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week, and the store is open evenings for those who cannot be down town in the day time. Mr. Bert Edwards will be present during this time to discuss decorating problems with those who call.

Drafting Squad Beats Toolroom

In the first game of the C.G.E. second division shop hockey finals last night, Drafting took a 2-1 nod over Tool Room. It was a highly-exciting fray between well-matched squads, with a one-goal margin a slim one to hold on Saturday. The winners scored twice in the first heat, Cadd and Palmer tallying, while King got the losers' lone one also in the first. Mason, Cadd and Hough stood out for Drafting; while Shaughnessy, King and Williams starred for the other side. The teams:

Drafting — Goal, Mason; defence, Palmer, Cadd; centre, Hough; wings, Dunfield, Condon; subs., Preston, Shiner, Pakenham, Edmondson.

Tool Room — Goal, Shaughnessy; defence, Earle, Self; centre, Williams; wings, King, Conroy; sub., Stinson.

Referee—Red Creighton.

Ski Notes

To-night at 7.30 p.m. at the Jackson Park cabin we are holding another club run. These Thursday night "do's" have been very popular all winter and as this one will again have the refreshments "on the house," a large crowd is expected.

All junior members are reminded that the junior club championship sare scheduled for this Saturday afternoon. Transportation will be provided, leaving the Duffus garage at 1.30 p.m. The events will be as follows: Downhill, slalom, jumping, cross country. There should be keen competition in each event, and also for the combined events. Lou Brooks has kindly donated a trophy for the junior club champion.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

A packed house of bowlers from the Westclox office, Bell Telephone Co. C.G.E., Quaker Oats and Automobile League teams rolled off their weekly scheduled games at Duffus' Academy last night. Bill Naish, of Hood & Cummings Motors, pulled off a last minute drive in the Automobile loop when he mixed in ten strikes with a couple of standing corner pins in his first game to crack off a 390 single. It sent Gray Copping's long standing 380 to the ash can for this year.

Big scores fell in all directions. E. Wood, Bob Clyde, R. Dixon and Ray Clifford pounded off 757, 707, 704 and 701 for the C.G.E. with Frank Doris and Clyde injecting 322 and 304 singles. A. Guerin of the Quaker Oats walked out with 730 and a 313 game. Dudley of the Bell Telephone had 721 and Walton had 317 in his 697. In the Motor League Vern Reid flattened 742 pins. Naish's big single helped him pile up 715 while Arnold Worboy counted 709.

With the exception of two postponed games the Automobile leaguers were on hand with fifty men for their last schelude game this season. Three shut-outs were recorded when the Chrysler, Graham and Buick teams did the trick to the Chevrolet, Auto No. 2 and Auto No. 1 squads. Hudson coasted in on top for the year when they crushed their nearest rivals, Nash, by 6 to 2 count, while Ford rolled the best team total to take 6 points from Pontiac.

Westclox Office League—R. H. Simmons 619; H. Yelland 618; S. Pammett 614; O. Martin 606; P. Hayden 601; Mary Sisson 501; Viola Martin 473; Doris Ackford 479; Georgina Pakenham 466; Phyllis Webster 445 and F. Scott 410.

The C.G.E. League—J. Playford 685; F. Doris 685; T. Busby 685; A. Sanderson 650; V. Shaughnessy 641; F. Wood 639; F. Maloney 636 and C. A. Lister 609.

The Quaker Oats League—O. Perdue 683; W. Howes 670; J. McTeague 650; A. Ferguson 648; A. Delpellaro 613; J. O'Leary 601 and L. Galley and Essen 488, and 426 each for two games.

The Bell Telephone League—Walton 697; Steve Elliot 675; White 633 and Barrett 608.

The Automobile League—Clayt. Ruth 652; Jack Ashmore 643; Ken Shadgett 644; Alex aWtson 635; O. Fallis 620; Frank Dracup 618; Bill Pinn 613; Hec Grey 612, and Harold Minion 605.

Test Team Wins Over Switchgear

Test Dept. last night earned the right to meet Wire in C.G.E. shop hockey finals by taking a 6-5 win over the Switchgears in a fast clean tussle. The winners got two in the first and four in the second, as the others notched two each in the second. Gray, Pryde and Primeau first and third, and a single in the got one goal each and Archibald three for the Test; as Tompkins scored three and Leggitt two for Switchgears. Archibald, Pryde, and Gray went best for the victors; and Tompkins, Weir and Leggitt for the losing crew. The teams:

Switchgear — Goal, McNabb; defence, Mowry, Ashmore; centre, Tompkins; wings, Weir, Macdonald; subs., Leggitt, Abraham, Mackey.

Test — Goal, Miller; defence, Gray, Tollington; centre, Primeau; wings, Pryde, Archibald; subs., Boyle and Krug.

Referee—Red Creighton.

Many business leaders in France are optimistic over this year's prospects.

Woman Aged With Sciatica

Now Praises Kruschen

When sciatica attacked this woman six years ago, she couldn't move without great pain. Treatment after treatment failed to help her. She tried Kruschen and got quick relief.

"Six years ago, I suffered terribly from sciatica," she writes. "I tried everything, but to no avail. Then I took Kruschen Salts. The first few doses gave quick relief. At the end of a few weeks my sciatica had gone. Now I always begin the day with a pinch of Kruschen in a glass of water. I live a strenuous life, being widowed four years ago, and having a son to keep. I run a boarding-house, rise at 6 a.m., and retire at 11 p.m. I am 52, but everyone says I look 32—thanks to Kruschen Salts" —(Mrs.) F.E.R.

The severe pain which is characteristic of sciatica is often due to needle-pointed uric acid crystals in the sheath of the great sciatic nerve. Two of the ingredient salts of Kruschen dissolve uric acid crystals. Other salts in Kruschen help Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channels.—advt.

Village Of Keene 88 Years Curling

(Globe and Mail)

Writes T. Rogers from Cobourg, Ontario: "It may be interesting to lovers of the besom and stane in Ontario to know that just eighty-eight years ago the settlers in the village of Keene and thereabouts, many of them of Scotch descent, organized a Curling Club. This was the second club of its kind to be organized in the province, Fergus having the distinction of introducing the first one. How did they go about it? Well, there was a visitor to Keene shortly before, who came from Scotland to visit his brother. Accustomed to the game in the Old Country, he aroused the curling enthusiasm of the entire district. There were no curling stones to be bought in Ontario, but the hardy woodsmen of those days knew something about the solidity of a beech log. A staunch beech was cut down and enthusiastic workmen sawed out block about 18 inches in diameter, to which rude handles were attached. Birch besoms were made, and with the wide expanse of Rice Lake available to choose a suitable rink from, they were ready for the good old game, which they played with much gusto."

❖ ❖ ❖

He adds: "The first real curling stone used by this second oldest curling club in Ontario was handmade also. It was laboriously fashioned by William Lang out of a block of stone. Members of Mr. Lang's family told in after years of the hours tediously spent in grinding and polishing this stane. When the late King Edward visited Peterborough in 1860, Mr. Lang, then warden of his county, was one of those who received him, and bore himself with all the dignity and courtesy of a knight of the besom and stane, and a true Scottish gentleman. By the year 1861 the Keene curlers had put the name of their community on the map of Ontario, and so a club was duly organized. An enclosed rink became available by use of one of the Agricultural Society buildings. However, it was in the fifties that the game was first played here with beech blocks and birch besoms.

"Nearly ninety years of curling is some record for any place!"

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

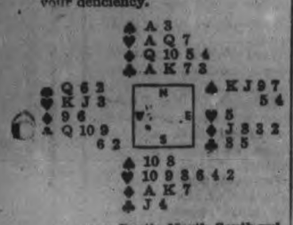
WRITTEN FOR THE EXAMINER

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

"The Authority on Authorities"

CHOOSE LESSER EVILS

IF YOU HAVE opened the bidding with a hand on which you later feel you really should have passed, you are likely to have a difficult problem put up to you, especially if your partner shows great power with some kind of a forcing bid. You have to choose between carrying on just as if your first bid was sound, and backing down because you don't quite possess what you advertised. Usually the lesser evil is in accepting the force he puts on you, hoping he has the slight bit of extra strength which will make up for your deficiency.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

It was sad to see what happened on this deal at one table of a tournament. South opened lightly with 1-Heart, West made what amounted to a semi-psychic 1-No trump, North doubled and East bid 2-Spades. When this reached North he called 3-Spades to proclaim his powerhouse. When East doubled, South decided to let this ride to his mate. North then called 4-Clubs and South, after long study, passed. It was down two after a lead of the heart 5.

At another table South got to 6-Hearts, doubled by West, and made a grand slam. West led the spade Q, and on the tenth trick, when South played his last heart, East had to choose between throwing off his spade K to make the 10 good for South, or one of his diamonds, which would build up an extra diamond trick in the dummy. It was a perfect "backward squeeze."

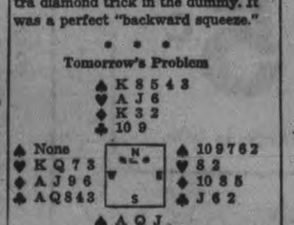
Tomorrow's Problem



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

What natural bidding of this deal makes it clear to North and South that all of the spades held against them are in East's hand?

Producers Vote Thursday Cheese Boards

OTTAWA, Mar. 2—(CP). — Delegates at the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association annual convention voted unanimously here to-day to change the time of the weekly cheese boards from Saturday to Thursday in Central and Eastern Ontario.

The change in days for the weekly auction of cheese in each district was made at request of E. H. Hodgson of the Montreal Provision Trades Association, who said that if the boards met on Thursday there would be more time available for handling and selling of the cheese on the Montreal markets. There was no immediate need of a change in Western Ontario, he said, because Western Ontario was not strictly an export market.

Mr. Hodgson urged milk producers to get as much surplus milk as possible into the manufacture of cheese, as there was little possibility of selling Canadian butter in the United Kingdom at present except at sacrifice prices.

There was, however, a ready premium market for cheese. Reviewing 1938, Mr. Hodgson said it had been a difficult year for the produce merchants, owing largely to foreign exchange difficulties. There were times when money exchange rates accounted for a difference of 1¼ cents a pound on cheese prices.

Quality of Canadian cheese was of greater importance than ever as the only means of keeping the premium price on United Kingdom markets, he said. Unless quality of Canadian cheese was kept high it would come into direct competition on British markets with low-grade New Zealand cheese several shillings beneath the premium price.

Mr. Hodgson appealed to cheese producers for co-operation in seeing that their cheese went to market in the best possible condition, free from such faults as overheating and damage by rats.

The meeting took up resolutions, opening with a recommendation that the association, in conjunction with the Dairy Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture maintain district inspectors to test milk and thus relieve the dairy instructors, who could then spend more time in the factories.

Cecil McAllister, Pendleton, Ont., moved an amendment that the matter be left in the hands of the Dairy Branch, but President A. W. MacIntyre, Finch, Ont., moved a sub-amendment suggesting the question be referred to the incoming executive.

The meeting followed the president's suggestion, referring the whole matter to the incoming executive after C. E. Lackner, director of the Ontario Dairy Branch, had said his department would be unable to appoint additional men. The executive was instructed to study the matter and take what steps were necessary after conference with the branch.

U.S. Nears Showdown On Plane Vote

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP).—Opposing factions moved today toward a showdown vote in the United States Senate on the most controversial point in the $358,000,000 army expansion bill—the maximum strength of the Army Air Corps.

Senator Clark (Dem., Missouri) predicted a close vote on a committee amendment increasing the limit on planes from 5,500, as approved by the House, to 6,000.

Clark, who has opposed the increase, said that if it were adopted he would seek to limit expenditures for new planes to $170,000,000 in the next three years. Chairman Sheppard (Dem., Texas) of the military committee previously told the Senate this was the amount intended to be spent under the administration program.

Countering Clark's move, Senator Russell (Dem., Georgia) said he would push for adoption of his amendment to remove the 6,000 maximum and permit the Secretary of War to fix the number of planes to be acquired.

While the debate went on apace, 12 senators joined in introducing a measure which would require a popular vote before declaration of a war that would be fought outside the western hemisphere.

Tweed Still Digging Its Roads Out

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 2. — While the majority of the main roads of the county system are open to traffic, practically all the cross roads and concession rights-of-way are still plugged. In some cases traffic is maintained by means of sleighs and cutters but motor passage is practically at a standstill in the rural districts.

The downpour of rain that fell Tuesday added but further difficulties to plough and shovel gangs. Wet heavy snow, that adheres to ploughs is making the work of clearance doubly difficult.

Rural residents viewed with more or less alarm the possibility of frost following in the wake of the rainstorm, which left a covering of ice over the countryside. If a heavy cold spell sets in, many of the side roads will remain blocked until the spring. Due to the bad conditions of roads, it has been necessary to bring a corpse into the village through fields, as the roads were impassable.

In many of the smaller centres medical men are still being forced to use cutters and sleighs to attend patients.

Railroader Honored

As the Quinte rolled into C.N.R. station on Monday evening, Conductor S. J. Kitchen completed 47 years of service in the Canadian National Railways, and entered into retirement on his 65th birthday.

His fellow workers on the train gathered in the waiting room, and Mr. Kitchen was presented by Station Master Mr. Reynolds with an electric razor and a card case, while Mrs. Kitchen received a bouquet of roses.

Following the presentation a birthday party was held.

Friends At Harwood Honor Frank Arthurs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HARWOOD, March 2. — About seventy friends and neighbors gathered in the hall on Saturday evening in honor of Mr. Frank Arthurs, who is leaving the village. Mr. Arthurs has carried on a blacksmith business here for the past twenty-six years and has recently sold his business to Mr. Kenard Harvie of Centreton.

The young folks enjoyed the evening in dancing, while others played progressive euchre, Mrs. Eric Kelly and Mr. Frank Shearer being the winners.

Mr. Jack Robson called Mr. Arthurs to the platform and read an appropriate address, as Mr. L. R. Isaac presented him with a handsome wrist watch. Although taken by surprise, he made a suitable reply, after which everyone sang, "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Japs Prepare To Clear Russians Off Island

TOKYO, March 2—(CP-Havas)—Japan has "completed preparations for dealing efficiently with an emergency" resulting from the alleged installation of 5,000 Russian "Ogpu (secret police) troops" on Sakhalin Island in violation of the Portsmouth treaty, a War Office spokesman told the House of Peers today.

The nature of the Japanese preparations was discussed in a private meeting after the Upper House had debated budget questions.

The questin of Soviet forces on the island, divided between Japan and Russia by the treaty of Portsmouth, was brought up in the House by Baron Watanabe Charging that about 5,000 "Ogpu troops" equipped with modern arms were stationed in the northern part of the island, whereas the southern region controlled by Japan was guarded by only 600 police, he asked the government what measures the War Office contemplated to deal with the situation.

Party at Fleming's School

During education week, Arnold Bates, teacher at Fleming's School, directed a concert and a demonstration of the new course of study. The program was as follows: Boys' chorus, "Sailing," "Capital Ship"; reading, Julia McConnell; girls' quartette, "Crooked Spectacles"; recitation, Don Wynn.

Mr. Bates explained the new system of school work, including the enterprise on sound and with the help of some of the pupils crude telephone and telegraph instruments were displayed (the work of the pupils).

Girls' chorus, "Santa Lucia"; radio quiz, led by the teacher, in which the pupils won, competing with six visiting ladies. Phylis Johnston and Wilma Beamish won the presentation of the highest health marks for December and January.

Refreshments were served at the close of the program, which proved highly instructive.

Ring-necked pheasants have been seen in this district in quest of food Due to the heavy snow fall they were unable to get their supply in the woods and felds.

Women's Institute

The February Seymour West Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Garnet Curle. Roll call was responded to by "Something I would like to accomplish this year." Mrs. Howard Clarke spoke on "Buymanship," with particular reference to the rayon product; also gave a brief talk on hosiery. The members discussed matters regarding the Institute thrift exhibit. Mrs. James Watters and Mrs. Garnet Curle were appointed to look after this. The ladies, who took charge of the oyster supper held recently, were tendered a vote of thanks. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Locke.

Miss Ferne Longmuir of Toronto, was a week-end visitor at home.

Mrs. John Scott is confined to bed at her home suffering from the effects of a fall, sustaining two fractured ribs. Her many friends wish her a quick recovery.

Miss Bertha Carnrite has secured employment at Campbellford.

Mrs. Primrose is a visitor with relatives at Toronto.

Kai-Shek Rebuilds Airforce Up To 150

SHANGHAI, March 2—(AP). — Despite intensive Japanese air raids designed to crush any revival of Chinese air power, foreign military observers today expressed belief that General Chiang Kai-Shek is making some headway in rebuilding his air force.

They estimated the Chinese now have 150 planes based at a dozen airdromes while the Central Chinese government is trying to build the force up to 500 planes and maintain that level. Chinese say they had 300 first line craft when the war broke out July 7, 1937, and an aviation personnel of 1,200.

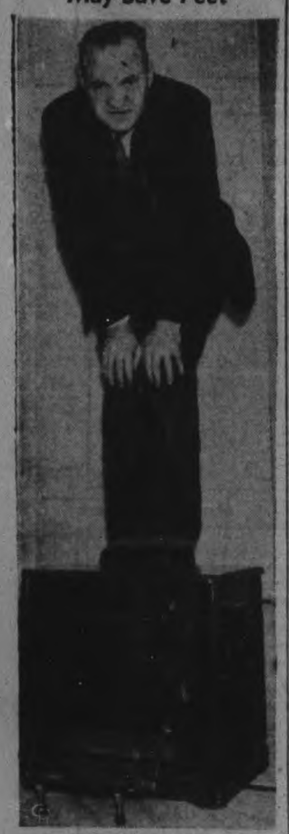
One-Woman War

PONTIAC, Mich., March 2 — (C. P.). — Miss Lorraine Geyer waged a one-woman war on the German-American Bund to-day as she circulated petitions to be sent to Congress asking a ban on the organization. The Bund is an association of former Germans and those of German descent living in the United States.

"I am ordinarily a peaceful citizen, but newspaper reports of the Bund meeting in New York recently so irritated me that I resolved to see what could be done on my account to protest," Miss Geyer said.

When its cherry crop failed last fall Belgium turned to the United States for a supply of the fruit.

May Save Feet



Alfred Scadding, who is faced with the possible loss of his feet as a result of the Moose River mine disaster, hopes to beat the surgeon's knife by using a new vibrator, invented by a Toronto mining man. The vibrator was originally built to sift mine ore, but has proved beneficial in restoring blood circulation.

Reduce Varicose Or Swollen Veins

A Simple Home Treatment.

The world progresses. To-day many minor ailments that took weeks to overcome can be helped much more quickly. If you have varicose veins or bunches, start to-day to bring them back to normal size and if you are wise you will do so.

Just get an original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil at any dispensing pharmacist and apply it night and morning to the enlarged veins. In a short time the veins should begin to grow smaller and by regular use soon approach normal.

People who want to reduce varicose veins or swellings, should not hesitate to try a bottle at once. It is so penetrating and economical that a small bottle lasts a long time.

3000 Sudetens Aim To Farm In Peace River Area, Bringing $2,000,000 Cash

British Loans To Czechs Provide Cash For Families Refusing To Join Nazis; First Group Expected To Arrive In April

By J. F. Sanderson (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 3 (CP Cable).—Arrangements have been completed for the transportation of 3,000 Sudeten Germans to Canada, it was reported tonight. They will be settled in the Peace River district and in Northern Saskatchewan.

The Czech Government has agreed to provide $2,000,000 which the settlers will take to Canada to establish themselves in farming communities. The money came from loans and gifts made by the Munich settlement.

Arrive In April.

Canadian railway companies, it is reported, have completed arrangements to take the first group of settlers early in April.

It is understood an agreement has been reached between the Canadian and Czech governments calling for each family to take a minimum of $1,500.

The new settlers will be Germans who refused to become citizens of the Reich after the Munich agreement transformed their homes from under the control of Czechoslovakia to that of Germany. They refused to be Nazified and voluntarily gave up their homes.

Since the German occupation of the Sudeten areas the men and their women and children have been living under conditions of extreme hardship, with the Czech Government providing refugee camps for them.

It is understood a majority of the new settlers are experienced farmers. They will be chosen carefully on behalf of the Canadian government but the total is not expected to exceed 3,000.

Hensall Swept By $3,000 Fire

HENSALL, Ont., March 3.—(CP)—Two buildings were burned and three persons made homeless in an early morning fire here today. Loss was estimated at $3,000. Hensall is 35 miles north of London.

The fire started in Orville Twitchell's garage and service station and spread to a one-storey block next door, destroying both buildings. The block was formerly three stores. These lately have been used as dwellings.

Mrs. T. W. Parimer, dressmaker, lives in one of the dwellings and Mrs. James Dick and her son, Arthur, in another. The centre dwelling was vacant. Also destroyed was a one-storey frame lean-to attached to the garage and used once a week as a law office by Gladman and Stanbury, Exeter.

Windows in the town hall were cracked by the heat. A telephone pole in front of the garage burned and service on rural lines was interrupted. Volunteer firemen from Zurich aided the Hensall department.

Rumor Madrid Group Opposing Negrin

AVILA, Spain, March 3.—(AP)—The Spanish Nationalists have received reports that political leaders opposed to Premier Juan Negrin's Republican government are attempting to form a new government in Madrid.

The Nationalists regard this situation as holding the possibility of unconditional surrender which General Franco has demanded as an alternative to a Nationalist offensive against the Madrid-Valencia-Alicante zone.

The leaders of the so-called Republican dissidents are said to be opposed to Communists, which form much of Negrin's support, and to represent a large part of Madrid's population which Nationalists said had been calling for "bread or surrender."

The Nationalists found other immediate signs of Republican collapse—report of mass desertions despite stringent control to prevent the light of Madrilenos to Nationalist siege lines half-way around the city.

Lad Braves Fire To Rescue 2 Baby Sisters

NEWMARKET, Ont., March 3.—(CP). — Braving fast - spreading flames, a 10-year-old boy yesterday saved his two small sisters and a pet puppy from death in his blazing Newmarket home. Twice Francis Moore dared the hazard of the burning frame house.

The first time he saw two-year-old Arlene and five-year-old Jacqueline lying in a corner of the room, with flames licking toward them. His small arms lifted the baby. Jacqueline clutched his coat. Slowly the three of them, with the boy interposing his body between the girls and the flames, moved to the door and safety.

Francis drew a deep breath as he made sure his small sisters were well clear of danger. He ran back to the house. Inside was "Toby," his pet puppy.

The boy dashed once again into the house. The flames had a surer hold and were licking up walls and spreading across the floor. "Toby," helpless with fear, quiveringly ran to his young master. The two retreated from the danger.

Francis was not yet through. His small legs carried him to the nearest neighbor, and his treble voice shrieked out the alarm of fire.

William Broughton, the neighbor, relieved the small boy of his worries. He turned in the fire alarm and dashed over to care for the three children, whose parents had been away from the house when the fire broke out.

When Newmarket firemen arrived they found the house a mass of flames. By quick action they were able to save the back kitchen and its contents. All furnishings and contents of the front part of the house are a total loss.

New Pope Seen Shock To Nazis

LONDON, March 3.—(CP-Havas)—British newspapers, commenting on the election of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli to the Papacy, today speculated on its effect on the political affairs of the world.

"There can be little doubt," said the diplomatic correspondent of the Manchester Guardian (Liberal): "That the election will cause the gravest misgivings in Berlin, where it was ardently desired that the new Pope should be as innocent of politics as possible.

"The new Pope, Pius XII, will certainly be a man of vast political experience. It may be well that he had the votes of the French, British and North and South American cardinals. The offensive against the Roman Catholic church, which has so long been in preparation in Germany, will hardly be made easier by the result of the election."

"The exceptional anxieties of the times," said the Yorkshire Post (Conservative), "are reflected in exceptional circumstances of the election. It has been highly unusual that the papal secretary of state should succeed to the Papacy.

"His election will be welcomed by all religious communities where there is a realization of the need for light and confident faith in what must appear an age of growing doubt and in many cases almost despair."

The Times (Independent) said the election of Cardinal Pacelli may have "owed something to the known wishes of the last Pope."

Germany and Japan have arranged for a barter exchange of books.

Rigid Law Enforcement On Puritanical Basis Frowned On By Court In Church Bingo Test

TRENTON, N.J., March 3—(AP).—Law enforcement on "a puritanical basis" was viewed by the Mercer county grand jury as "neither wise nor practicable" in a presentment upholding bingo games played for merchandise prizes.

The jury investigation followed the holding of games by several secretary of the Peterborough group, county-wide bingo ban ordered by prosecutor Andrew Duch.

Distinguishing between professional games attended by "practices of questionable honesty" and games "under wholesome auspices and as a means of supporting educational and charitable purposes," the presentment yesterday to county judge James Turp said:

"It is the opinion of the grand jury that police action against those engaged in the promotion of bingo games can be justified only if there is evidence of abuses or evils or if there is to be rigid enforcement of all law on a puritanical basis. It is the belief of the grand jury that this latter course would be neither wise nor practicable."

Permanent National Youth Administration Advocated

OTTAWA, March 3.—(CP).—Establishment of a permanent youth administration in the Labor Department to provide effective leadership in a program for the better fitting of Canadian youth into the community and the nation, was urged upon Labor Minister Norman Rogers to-day by the National committee of the Canadian Youth Congress.

The committee laid before the Minister a comprehensive program which might be applied by such an administration, as an intensification and broadening out of the current youth training projects.

The delegation stressed the "relative permanency" of the unemployment situation as far as absorption by private industry was concerned. It accordingly submitted that youth training projects should be viewed as a permanent part of the work of educating the younger generation and helping them take their place in the working force of the country.

It likewise submitted that "relatively permanent methods must be developed to absorb into the economic life of the nation, those who canot be absorbed into private industry."

In outlining its proposals, the delegation expressed gratitude for the present youth training projects, although it noted certain provincial governments had failed to take adequate advantage of available provisions.

Other Methods Opposed.

Opposition was voiced against introduction of "other methods (of training) less in keeping with our democratic principles and with the need to develop young men and women within the healthy influences of the community at large."

"We are emphatically of the opinion that future development and success of a program to aid youth must lie to a much greater extent along the lines of providing employment. Training projects are

Fox Outsmarts Dogs Then Lets Farmer Catch Her Alive

Caledonia, Ont., March 3 (CP)

AFTER eluding hunters' guns and dogs here all winter, a full grown female red fox walked into the farm yard of Parvis Cox in Seneca township, four miles from Caledonia, and was caught alive yesterday by Mr. Cox. He slipped up behind the animal and grabbed it by the hind legs while it was watching a dog.

Man Who Found Tut's Tomb, Carter Is Dead

LONDON, March 3.—(AP)—Howard Carter, who with Lord Carnarvon was the first man in 32 centuries to cast eyes on the burial chamber of the boy King Tut-Ankh-Amen, is dead.

Last night, after 16 years after the tomb of the Egyptian Pharaoh was opened in disregard of an ancient curse—"Death shall come on swift wings to him that toucheth the tomb of a Pharaoh"—the Egyptologist died.

He had been ill for some time and it was understood heart disease caused his death. He was 66-years-old.

Carter scoffed at the curse, recalled when Lord Carnarvon, who financed the Tut-Ankh-Amen expedition, died six weeks after the crypt was opened. A mosquito bite caused his death.

About a score of others connected with the opening of the tomb have died in recent years. Several were workmen who helped remove 2,000 tons of earth to reach the burial place.

Carter found the tomb on Nov. 30, 1922, in the Valley of Kings on the west bank of the Nile at Luxor, and summoned Lord Carnarvon so that his backer might join him in the first peep into a long hidden repository of Egyptian antiquity.

Candles Reveal Treasure

Candles were carried into the tomb. Their flicker caught the glitter of treasures piled up near the mummified body of the boy king, supposed to have ruled Egypt about the time Moses led the children of Israel from bondage.

Tut-Ankh-Amen's mummy was encased in three sarcophagi, the innermost of gold.

The discovery delighted Egyptologists and caught the imagination of laymen because of the lavish way in which it retouched a picture of the past.

To Carter the Pharaohs' curse was "tommyrot."

"If anybody was exposed to the curse I was. I slept in the tomb for two weeks and even had my meals there and never felt better in my life," he said.

Swinging Door Ends Barber Shop's Head-Perching Robin

Baltimore, March 3 (AP)

PETE, a robin trained by Walter Long to sit on customers' heads while they were shaved, is dead. A swinging door killed him. Pete was trained to perch on foreheads and chirp an accompaniment to Long's talk of baseball and politics. Long said he plans to have Pete stuffed for display in the barber shop "so I won't feel lonely."

Slaght Attacks Herridge As New 'Moses'

OTTAWA, March 3 (CP)—Resentment at statements made here by Hon. W. D. Herridge in launching the "New Democracy Movement" Wednesday night found vigorous expression in the House of Commons yesterday. Liberals and Conservatives applauded as Arthur Slaght (Lib. Parry Sound) described Mr. Herridge as "a new Moses in his own eyes," a "political mountebank" and "the greatest patronage monger in Canada."

Some objection to Mr. Slaght's statement, made on a question of privilege at the opening of the sitting, came from members of the social Credit group but Justice Minister Lapointe described one of Mr. Herridge's utterances as "a slanderous statement."

Mr. Slaght said the Herridge speech was an attack on all members of the House and a charge of conspiracy of a criminal character against them.

In particular he objected to statements that parliament was not free to serve the people, that the old parties were about to unite in forming a national government which would be a Fascist government and which would indulge in "empire-destroying practices."

All Fascists?

"This indicates," said Mr. Slaght, "that this gentleman, a new found Moses in his own eyes, who in my view is a political mountebank, has charged every member of the House with being ready to conspire to form a Fascist government."

Mr. Herridge had railed at political patronage but he had been a

Beer, Wine Broadcasts In Quebec End This Month

Ottawa, March 3 (CP)

AFTER the end of March, the broadcasting of beer and wine advertising will not be permitted in the Province of Quebec, L. W. Brockington, chairman of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, announced today during his appearance before the House of Commons radio broadcasting committee.

Such broadcast advertising has been permitted in the past unless provincial liquor laws prohibited it, varying in each province. The broadcast advertising of "hard" liquors has not been permitted.

Pope Shoulders Vast Burden, Hopes For Peace

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 3 — (AP).—Pope Pius XII. opened his Pontificate to-day with a strong plea for peace broadcast to the entire Christian world.

Speaking from the Sistine Chapel in Latin, His Holiness called for peace with justice and understanding. Earlier he set his coronation for Sunday, March 12.

So sudden and unexpected was the Pontiff's decision to address the world less than 24 hours after his election yesterday that even Vatican authorities were not prepared for it.

Pope Pius appealed for peace which, he said, according to an Italian summary, "we all must ardently desire, peace joined with justice and charity, peace in the family, within nations and in all men, peace which signifies mutual understanding and cordial collaboration."

Like his predecessor, Pius XI., Pius XII. made peace the keystone of his policy, saying the first message of the Vicar of Christ must be one of peace.

The Pontiff, speaking in Sistine Chapel, urged all men to devote themselves to "peace, faith, charity and love of Jesus Christ."

The message concluded with his Apostolic Benediction.

The Pontiff, raised to the vicarage of Christ by what many believe was the unanimous vote of 61 cardinals, received this morning the third obeisance of his electors.

The entire College of Cardinals, which became 61 with the elevation of Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, former Vatican Secretary of State, gathered in the Sistine Chapel at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EST) to kiss the Pope's slippered foot to receive his embrace and to hear a brief discourse.

After the cardinals, headed by their dean, Cardinal Grainto Pignatelli di Belonte, had knelt before the Pontiff in turn in the Sistein Chaptel, the pontifical choir sang the Te Deum.

Elaborate Ceremony Coming

The March 12 ceremonies of the coronation for the first native Roman Pontiff in 218 years may be more elaborate than any held in almost a century.

Pius XII will be the first Pope elected since the Lateran Treaty adjusted difference between the Vatican and the Italian Government ten

Nazis Register Germans In Canada, Deny Sending Any Home To Army

OTTAWA, March 3—(CP).—Germany registers all young German nationals of military age in Canada but has not sent a single one back to Germany for military service, Dr. H. U. Grumow, Nazi Vice-Consul, said here to-day.

Dr. Grumow said a statement made at Calgary by Alex Walker, President of the Alberta Command of the Canadian Legion, that Heinrich Neunzlinger, Didsubry district farm hand had been ordered back to Germany or his parents would suffer was "stupid."

"Malicious reports like that do nothing toward fostering international friendship," said the vice-consul. "Do you think the German Government would be foolish enough to make such threats when there are men waiting to pounce upon such an incident to stir up animosity against Germans?" he asked.

Dr. Grumow said the German consulate some time ago had received instructions from home to "draft" all German nationals of military age in Canada. In accordance with those instructions, a circular was sent to all known German nationals born in 1919 or earlier. They were requested to register at the nearest German consulate.

"We don't send them back to Germany,' said the vice-consul. "If a young German has established his home in Canada, there is no sense in sending him back to Germany for military service. He might not be able to re-enter Canada and would have to forfeit his career in this country. No, we merely put his name on our books as a German national of military age, and grant him an exemption from military service."

In the case of a German national of military age who refused to register at his consulate, the refusal would be communicated to the German Government, which would decide whether the man was worthy to be a German subject.

Early September Decided On For Federal Election Toronto Report Claims

Likely Date Said Monday After Labor Day, Liberal Heads, Returning Officers Already Warned To Prepare For Event

TORONTO, March 3 (CP).—A Toronto paper today published a report from its Ottawa correspondent that the Dominion Government is reported to have tentatively decided to go to the country early in September.

The story said:

"Accompanying the official and unofficial orders which have gone out to the returning officers and to Liberal association riding executives to prepare for a Federal general election, is a report that the government has tentatively decided to go to the country early in September.

"The day may be September 11, the Monday following Labor Day.

"Returning officers have already been warned to prepare for an election. The Liberal executives have likewise been quietly tipped off that an election may take place any time after June."

During a Japanese air raid on the frontier British territory was bombed and an Indian constable and 11 Chinese residents of Hong Kong killed.

Representatives of the Japanese expeditionary forces in South China yesterday called on the Governor of Hong Kong, Sir Geoffry Northcote, and expressed regret at the incident, agreeing to pay the $20,000 as compensation.

Church In Napanee Urges Dissolution

NAPANEE, Ont., March 3.—(CP).—At special meeting of the congregation of St. Andrews' United church here last night it was decided to request the Belleville Presbytery to take steps to dissolve the congregation es from the last Sunday in March and also to enquire if either Grace United or Trinity United Church would be interested in taking over the church property.

Rev. A. J. Wilson, recently appoint editor of the new United Church paper, was pastor of St. Andrews for 23 years before resigning the office the first of the year.

Already a number of applications for the pastorate had been received in the event it had been decided to continue as a church body.

Gandhi Off Upon New Fast For Reforms

RAJKOT, India, March 3 (AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi sipped a cup of hot goat's milk today and then foreswore food in a hunger strike to obtain administrative reforms for the people of the tiny native state of Rajkot.

He said it would be a "fast unto death" unless the native ruler, Thakore Saheb Shri Dharmendrasinhji, gives the people "a voice in the government."

The town of Rajkot lies in the interior of the Kathiawar peninsula, 110 miles west of Cambay. It is famous for its dyes.

A crowd of spectators watched Gandhi's final preparations for the hunger strike, which recalled his "unconditional and irrevocable" in three other fasts he went with-three-week fast of May, 1933, on behalf of India's untouchables, out food for six days in September, 1932, a week in August, 1933, and a week in August, 1934.

The 69-year-old Nationalist leader chatted cheerfully with his followers as he began another important day in his demonstrative career. First there was his usual routine of massages and ablutions after which he looked at his mail.

His Final Meal

Shortly before noon he took his last meal—whole wheat bread, tomatoes, cooked vegetables and oranges and finally a cup of hot goat's milk just before the zero hour of his hunger strike ultimatum.

Gandhi accused Thakore Saheb of breaking a promise to introduce democratic reforms in Rajkot. An hour and a half after Gandhi started fasting the native ruler maintained his stand in a letter to the Nationalist leader.

Gandhi tossed it aside with the remark that "it merely is adding fuel to the flames."

The rigors of previous fasts had left Gandhi emaciated and shrunken. He had disregarded his recently failing health, however, to push his fight with the ruler of Rajkot, whom Gandhi called "my son." The leader said he hoped by "self-suffering" to "evoke his (the ruler's) best nature."

Toronto Mayor Writes Stevens For Particulars In Charge Of Organized Crime In Cities

TORONTO, March 3 (CP) — Mayor Ralph C. Day said today he had written Hon. H. H. Stevens, Conservative member of parliament for Kootenay East asking him to submit any information he possesses on crime conditions in Toronto.

Mr. Stevens said in the House of Commons last night crime has become an "organized racket" in some Canadian cities and cited the recent murder here of James Windsor, a bookmaker. Windsor was slain by one of four men who invaded his home Jan. 7.

"The record of crime in this city will bear favorable comparison with any other large centre in Canada," said Mr. Day. "Crimes of major importance are rare and almost without exception the criminals have been apprehended."

Penitentiary Reform Coming Following Report Of Proposed Commission

Lapointe Introduces Bill To Create Group Despite Argument Of Expense, Claims More Officials Real Necessity

OTTAWA, March 3 (CP).—Reform of Canada's penitentiary system will come after the proposed penitentiaries commission has made a careful study of the system and recommended legislation to parliament. Justice Minister Lapointe made this clear in the House of Commons yesterday as he introduced a bill to create the commission which will manage Federal penal institutions.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, expressed disappointment the bill did not go further than the setting up of the commission. He said it should undertake certain reforms which he thought were needed. Mr. Lapointe stated that he believed the object Mr. Woodsworth had in mind would be accomplished more effectively if the commission were set up first and allowed to make its recommendations.

This was the procedure suggested by the Archambault Royal Commission upon whose recommendations the bill was based. The same measure passed the House last session but was rejected in the Senate. Under it a three-man commission would operate the penitentiaries in place of the present set-up of a superintendent and three inspectors.

Mr. Lapointe insisted the commission was necessary to the proper administration of the penitentiary system despite misgivings on the part of several members at the setting up of "another commission." These men argued commissions were expensive and lacked responsibility to parliament.

Whatever might be said of other departments, Mr. Lapointe said the Justice Department was undermanned. Its work had increased greatly and it had not increased the staff. More officials were needed for the penitentiaries branch and to him it mattered little whether they were called commissioners or something else.

Three Instead Of One

"They have had a prison commission in England since 1877," said Mr. Lapointe, "and they have had a federal prison board in the United States since 1930. The only difference will be that instead of one man there will be three.

"These men will not be selected because of political affiliations. We will try to have men who are expert in this work. It has been argued

Kitchener Police Morality Scored

KITCHENER, Ont., March 3. — (CP).—Ald. Joseph Meinzinger, who recently laid before the police commission charges brought to him concerning drinking and immorality on part of certain iKtchener policemen, to-day replied to a commission statement.

Ald. Meinzinger said:

"I cannot agree with the policy outlined in the police commission statement regarding tolerance of private immorality on the part of a police officer so long as it does not interfere with the performance of his duty, or so long as it does not cause the loss of respect from a 'substantial portion of the public.'

"The private life of an officer, in my estimation, establishes his character and an immoral citizen is certainly not the kind of a man that the community looks to to carry the responsibility of police duty.

"I agree with the commission statement that citizens are in the wrong when they offer intoxicating drink to police officers on duty, but I must insist that an officer who has no more intelligence than to accept liquor while on duty is hardly intelligent enough to carry out the duties of a constable.

"The fact that citizens should realize the 'gradual process by which this habit has become prevalent' is no excuse for an intelligent officer to fall for the temptation.

"It takes a clear head to be a policeman. An officer is expected to think fast when an emergency comes up but if he cannot think fast enough to refuse liquor when it is offered to him on duty, his ability to think is not good enough for police work."

Roads Cleaned For Funeral Of Dr. Johnstone

FENELON FALLS, Mar. 3.—Special provision for the funeral cortege of Dr. H. B. Johnstone over a 100-mile stretch of highway and 5 of county road from Fenelon Falls to Vernonville ensured undelayed arrival at the point of destination after the seasen's heaviest storm, in four hours' time.

The ever-efficient management of C. P. David H. Gordon, Fenelon Falls, brought the co-operation of Mr. Sears, county engineer, resident of Port Hope, whose response in the instance is highly commendable. The provincial plough cleared the highway from Peterborough on to Cobourg, and the small sledge, thence to Vernonville.

The cortege included the motor carrying Rev. W. W. Fleischer to complete the burial service, and the six pall-bearers who officiated at Fenelon Falls, motors carrying the masses of floral tributes. Masonic brethren numbering forty-six accompanied the cortege to the end of the bridges.

150 Sealers Bail On Sinking Ship

HALIFAX, March 3—(CP).—Two vessels were standing by the Newfoundland sealing vessel Ranger today, ready to take the members of the crew off the leaking ship should it prove necessary. The 354-ton Ranger sent out a message early yesterday, saying she was leaking badly, and it was "impossible to keep afloat."

Eighteen members of the Ranger's crew of 160 were reported to have been taken aboard the steamship Newfoundland, and men aboard the 67-year-old sealer were attempting to keep her afloat by bailing with buckets and barrels. The heavy seas were said to be moderating.

Standing by the Ranger also was the Newfoundland sealer Imogene, but reports reaching here said officers aboard the vessels were waiting for daylight before taking any action.

U.S. Navy Opens Bids On Tiny Dirigible

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP).—The United States navy begins a new chapter in its airship experiments by opening bids today for construction of its first dirigible in more than a decade.

The dirigible's length will not exceed 325 feet and the capacity will be under 1,000,000 cubic feet—less than a sixth the size of the ill-starred naval airships Akron and Macon.

The new dirigible, the navy said, will be used for training. Its operation will prevent further scattering of the lighter-than-air experts who were developed when the Akron and the Macon were scouts for the fleet.

The navy is resuming tests with dirigibles somewhat dubiously after a four-year lapse following the destruction of the Macon off the California coast. The projected new ship, to some officials, represents the dirigible's "last chance."

Suspect Reliefers In Girl's Murder

OKLAHOMA CITY, Mar. 3 — (AP). — Police prepared to question 100 relief workers to-day in search of clues to the brutal garroting and bludgeoning of Haseltеen Black, slender 13-year-old junior high school girl.

Detective Charles Ryan planned to question the relief workers who labored in a park across the street from the brick cottage in which the girl's body, clad in pink pyjamas and a blue housecoat, was found.

Ryan said he hoped to find a lead to the three men neighboring housewives saw near the girl's home. He said the girl, who had gone home ill from school early yesterday, may have been the victim of a house prowler.

Her blood-stained hands, a bloody towel and blood on a bookcase doorknob gave evidence of a desperate attempt to fight off her attacker.

Dr. John Roddy, a city physician, said examination showed "no evidence of rape." He said the girl was struck 22 crushing blows on the head.

A bullet found embedded in the edge of the dining-room table heightened the mystery. It was only a few feet from where the girl's mother found her daughter's body in a pool of blood, a white cord around the throat.

essentially subsidiary to employment and programs must be designed to grestly increase employment opportunities."

A youth administration was held necessary, based on Dominion-Provincial cooperation, to provide more comprehensive and highly-developed machinery to operate a broader plan.

Such an administration would study youth problems, opportunities for training and employment, for recreational and cultural improvement of youth. It would organize academic and technical training courses for youth and plan employment projects in conjunction with provincial authorities. It would collaborate with a reorganized employment service, educational institutions and private agencies to secure suitable employment for youth and to provide vocational guidance.

A voluntary national advisory committee, broadly representative would work closely with the National Youth Administration, under the Congress' plan.

Provincial youth administration would decide upon programs within provincial jurisdiction, co-operating with the national administration.

Some Ideas Suggested

As to program, the Youth Congress committee suggested schemes of both educational and employment projects. The former would include a system of scholarships for students in "secondary, higher and graduate studies," allocated on a sliding scale according to need, to supplement private sources.

Special works projects linked to educational institutions would also be used to assist such students. A system of national scholarships for outstanding students financially unable to continue their education, would slo be set up.

The committee favored extension of "learnership" and apprentice training projects in industry. It felt much more could be done in studying industrial needs, as a prelude to establishing training projects.

The committee submitted "far greater effort must be made to study the possibilities of training for young women in industrial and professional pursuits."

The committee suggested there were opportunities in industry which could be opened up, but emphasized that the ultimate success of the program depended on development of works projects. "A thorough-going works program, by stimulating consumption and production generally, should ultimately go far in aiding private industry.

In Other Fields.

Development of opportunities in primary industries was advocated, with loans being made available to young people desiring to enter the fisheries and agricultural fields.

Public works projects on a federal-provincial-municipal basis would include such socially necessary facilities as roads, hospitals, schools, parks. Long term projects such as rehabilitation of western drought areas, reforestation, land conservation, surveying and opening new areas, were also suggested.

"The promotion of recreational programs is particularly necessary with reference to the larger social problems of community health, physical and moral. The dangers are too apparent in increasing juvenile delinquency and other evidences of demoralization among youth."

Establishment of community youth centres was advocated for the promotion of such programs.

The program submitted could only be developed over a period of years, the committee said. It suggested financing by increased taxation on large incomes, private and corporate, gifts and inheritances, rather than by taxes falling upon the general public.

Only 4 Bodies Of 25 Missing Found As Hotel Ruins Are Combed For Victims

Firemen Pour Water On Debris Far Into Night While Police Lines Hold Back Curious; Staff Survivors Questioned But None Held

By Harold J. Fair (Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

HALIFAX, March 3 (CP).—Firemen proceeded today with the grim task of probing ice-coated ruins of the fire-swept Queen Hotel for an unestimated number of bodies, victims of yesterday's disastrous fire that gutted the almost century-old structure and two adjoining buildings.

Unofficial compilations placed a minimum death toll of 25, based on a list of persons known to have been in the hotel and unreported. It was feared, however, the list would mount. The hotel register, locked in a safe buried under tons of debris, was unavailable for an exact check of the 87 guests. There were 30 employees in the hotel.

Hospital patients reached 20, the patients suffering from injuries ranging from bruises and slight burns to compound fractures. Two firemen, Deputy Chief J. E. Keefe and Captain John Ryan, were injured.

Fear More Missing.

Other hotels and private homes cared for uninjured survivors. A list of 25 known missing was compiled by police and newspapermen. Police warned many on the list might be found but said also there was the possibility of many more missing than were recorded.

Only four bodies were recovered yesterday and these were taken from the fourth floor of the part of the building left standing. The ruins were too hot for police and firemen to probe for more victims.

Dr. F. V. Woodbury, city medical examiner, was unable to identify the bodies. He said two were men, one a woman and the sex of the fourth could not be determined.

Staff Is Questioned

Working in collaboration with city police, J. A. Rudland, Nova Scotia fire marshal, has launched an inquiry nito the blaze. Damage was estimated at $800,000. Police and fire marshal's officials were known to have questioned hotel staff members last night on the fire's origin. Details were not disclosed. Authorities said no one was detained.

Firemen poured streams of water on the smouldering ruins last night, while police lines held back crowds of sighseers from the debris-strewn Hollis street block. A secondary business section, it is a block below Barrington, the city's main business thoroughfare.

Heaviest loss of life was believed to have occurred in the hotel's collapsed northern section. One man said he had seen four men climb to the roof of this section only a few moments before it fell in.

Demand for a thorough probe was made in the provincial legislature yesterday by Conservative leader Percy Black, who seconded Premier Angus L. Macdonald's resolution of sympathy.

Many of the injured were hurt jumping from upper floors. Firemen and police said the confusion when they arrived at the fire was indescribable. Spectators told of hearing

Canada Loses New $45,000 Fighter As Flier Loses Control

VANCOUVER, March 3.—(CP)—The Royal Canadian Air Force yesterday lost one of its new Hawker Hurricane fighting planes when the machine crashed and burned in a takeoff at Sea Island civic airport. Pilot Sergeant R. L. Davis of No. 1 (Fighter) squadron, Calgary, escaped when he jumped from the plane.

While taxiing for a takeoff the pilot apparently lost control. He jumped from the machine before it struck a Yukon Southern Airways transport plane but was stunned and had to be assisted off the field.

A wing of the transport was ripped off and the army craft raced ahead 50 yards, nosed over and burst into flames. The plane, one of six purchased in Great Britain, was valued at $45,000.

Spectators said the Hawker seemed to be travelling along the runway about 60 miles an hour when Sergeant Davis hurled himself from the cramped, one-man cockpit of the eight-gun fighter.

Prices Higher At Victoria Shorthorn Sale

LINDSAY, March 3. — The 29th annual sale of Shorthorn cattle sponsored by the Victoria County Shorthorn Breeders' Association was held in Lindsay on Thursday afternoon.

Prices ranged from $55 to $150. The highest bid came from John Miller of Ashburn, who bought "Bunbrae," a roan two-year-old registered bull for $150. This animal owned by Milton Jenkins of Little Britain, brought the highest price of the sale. Twenty-two cattle were sold at auction and brought an average price of $85. Of this number the sixteen bulls sold averaged $95, as compared with an average price of $88 last year.

Bidding was draggy and the auctioneer was hard-pressed at times to get more than one or two offers. The sale was largely attended by farmers of this district who were given an opportunity of buying purebred cattle from registered herds at prices which, in some cases, were lower than offered by private buyers at the owner's farm.

M. H. Winter, district agricultural representative, speaking on behalf of the Association, expressed the opinion that the various sellers were satisfied with the results of the sale.

Market Review

TORONTO, March 3 — (CP). — The Toronto Stock Market maintained a firm price tone to-day despite a dull buying demand and at the close gains were showing for the industrial and the base metal groups. The Western oils were up at the opening but they failed to hold and the golds finished the session practically unchanged. Aggregate turnover was off to about 325,000 shades.

The market was again bogged down from the opening with buyers mainly on the side lines awaiting leadership from Wall street or elsewhere. Only 233,000 shares changed hands in the first three hours.

Strong spots in the base metal group were International Nickel, Smelters, Ventures and Sherritt and they had the support of higher metal prices in London.

Western oils were unchanged at noon, home oil having lost all of an early 14-cent advance.

Wall Street Close

NEW YORK, March 3.—(AP). — Industrials led the stock market on an advance to-day that carried many issues to 1 to 2 points and landed a number in high territory for the past year.

Dealings, rather fast in the forenoon, subsequently slackened. Near the final hour leaders were near the top marks of the day. Transfers were about 900,000 shares.

Broadcasting of birthday greetings has been banned in South Africa.

400 Coliseum Jobless To Hunger Strike For Better Meals

Toronto, March 3 (CP)

SIDNEY BROWN, president of the Single Men's Unemployed Association, said today 400 single men quartered at the Coliseum, livestock palace at the Canadian National Exhibition Grounds, have decided to go on a hunger strike to demand better food.

The hunger strike was decided on at a regular meeting of the association today.

Lakefield YWMS Hears Fine Talk

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 3—"Planting the church" was the subject of an address by Mrs. E. H. Northy at the monthly meeting of the Young Women's Missionary and Service club of Lakefield United church, which was held on Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. W. Leonard.

The ladies devoted the first part of the meeting to sewing on a layette, after which the program was presented with the president, Mrs. Charles Hunter, occupying the chair. Mrs. D. A. Allan read the scripture lesson and Miss Eva Hendren led in prayer. Mrs. Norman Lemay gave a missionary reading, after which Mrs. Dora MacMillan sang a solo.

The members decided to send five dollars to Dr. Margaret Forrester, a missionary in China, to assist her in supporting a child who has come under her care. The child was left helpless and parentless and knocked at the hospital gate for admission. Her condition was so pitiful that Dr. Forrester took her in and cared for her through a serious illness. The child became so attached to Dr. Forrester that she called her "auntie" and said she was going to stay with her for the rest of her life. Funds sent from the homeland help with her support, and the $5.00 was donated with this idea in mind.

Mrs. Northey's talk on "Planting the Church" dealt with the second chapter of the study book, "The World in Canada."

Following the program refreshments were served.

Chicago Gives Kelly 300,000 Majority

CHICAGO, March 3 — (AP). — Mayor Edward Kelly, backed by a powerful Democratic party organization, polled the largest primary election vote in Chicago's history to win renomination Thursday.

Mayor Kelly not only received a majority of nearly 300,000 over State Attorney Thomas Courtney, but also rolled up more than 50 per cent of all votes cast in both the Republican and Democratic primaries.

His opponent in the April 4 election will be Dwight Green, former United States District Attorney who gained wide notice as the prosecutor of Al Capone and other gangsters.

Green captured the Republican nomination by defeating Will Hale (Big Bill) Thompson, a veteran of Chicago politics who was thrice mayor. Green's victory margin was better than three to one.

The Republican nominee, backed by the regular party organization, is making his first bid for elective office. Twenty years the mayor's junior, Green promised a vigorous campaign to "smash the Kelly-Nash machine." P. A. Nash is Democratic national committeeman.

St. Paul's Ladies' Guild held their regular meeting in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening.

It was with regret that residents learned on Thursady afternoon of the passing of S. S. McComb of Rawdon township, who was well known in this village.

Open Meeting Held By Roseneath W.I.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Mar. 3. — Mrs. A. Halstead won the prize at the open meeting of the Women's Institute for progressive euchre and Miss Audrey Mouncey won the progressive crokinole prize. It was open day for the society, when members invite guests and entertain them. Ten table of progressive euchre and two tables of progressive crokinole were played. The meeting was held on Thursday afternoon in the Town Hall.

A brief business session was presided over by the president, Mrs. B. Thackeray, followed by a short program. Mrs. C. W. Varcoe played a piano slo. "The Fairest Rose," and Mrs. E. Carew's piano solo was entitled "Moonbeams on the Lake." Miss Leila Taylor recited "Especially Jim," and Mrs. Austin Sherwin conducted a contest.

Supper was served at the conclusion of the game period. Mrs. Austin Sherwin and Mrs. L. Turner were the committee in charge.

Personals.

At the Valentine social sponsored by the Y.P.U. of the United Church, Mrs. L. W. Scott won the prize at progressive crokinole.

Commander Dies

TORONTO, March 3—(CP).—Lt.-Col. Alex. Laurence Saunders, commander in France of the Eighth Battalion, the Little Black Devils, died yesterday in Christie Street Hospital, where he had been a patient since December.

He was born in 1887, at Kingston, Ont., where he was educated. He was for many years in the securities business in Winnipeg, when he went overseas in 1914 with the Black Devils. He was wounded in France, but served with his regiment to the close of the campaign, rising from the ranks to the command.

MILLBROOK

Young People's Union Resumes Meetings

MILLBROOK, March 3—Meetings of the Young People's Union were resumed Tuesday, after being discontinued for the past two weeks owing to unfavorable roads and weather and the prevailing colds and flu.

Beatrice McDowell led in the recreational period, and the devotional service was in charge of Marjorie McDowell, assisted by Mary Dawson, who offered prayer; Jean Fisher, who read the lesson; Leatha Edworthy and Bea McDowell who gave the worship poems; the leader developed the topic, "Worshipping in Faith."

A helpful discussion period followed, with a general participation, on the subjects of communism and socialism, with Marjorie leading, others who took part in presenting the main thoughts on these topics including Mary Smith, Eleanor Bigelow, Earle Edworthy, with the latter, who is president of the Y.P.U., closing the meeting with the benediction.

Stubbs Comes Out As A Socialist

WINNIPEG, March 3—(CP).—L. St. George Stubbs (Ind. Winnipeg) proclaimed himself a Socialist in the Manitoba legislature yesterday and said Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett had revealed himself as a Fascist in a speech at Toronto before the former Conservative leader left to reside in England.

"Listen to what that great democrat, Richard Bedford Bennett, had to say about democracy in his farewell speech at Toronto prior to leaving Canada: 'Democracy in essence is the rule of those less fit to rule. Democracy, the will of the majority, regardless of their training or equipment, has brought about such conditions that from the standpoint of pure administration we have greater efficiency under a dictatorship.'

"There spoke the Fascist," said Mr. Stubbs, "the Bennett of the iron heel of ruthlessness, not the democrat. And there spoke the true Bennett — not the Bennett of the five radio speeches in 1935 advocating his particular brand of Socialism for pre-election purposes."

Mr. Stubbs predicted a new kind of society will evolve out of the "chaos" of the present. The people of Canada would carve out a new democracy if they had "the will and courage to do it."

Spy Trial Reveals Mysterious Acid

LOS ANGELES, March 3 (AP).—A mysterious acid—capable of damaging the metal hulls of battleships—figured sensationally today in the trial of two men and a woman accused of peace-time espionage in the United States.

The acid, said Federal Attorney Ben Harrison, was obtained from a German freighter by a Japanese fishing boat in 1937 and stored under the guard of an Italian at the Mexican port of Ensenada, 70 miles south of the California border.

The storehouse, Harrison said, burned down in a fire of undetermined origin the day before an American immigration officer was shot while trying to stop two men from crossing into the United States.

All this information, the prosecutor asserted, was contained in one of the 69 secret reports of the naval intelligence service which Hafis Salich, former operative, is accused of selling for $1,700 to Mikhail Gorin, manager of a Soviet travel bureau, and his wife, Natasha.

Harrison asserted a quantity of the acid had been obtained and tested. When mixed with salt water, it turned to minute bubbles just under the surface. It attacked metals, further investigation showed, with a rapid corrosive action.

Map Of Canada Proves Attraction For King

LONDON, March 3 (CP-Havas).—Paying his third visit in four days to the British Industries Fair the King to-day spent a long time at the Canadian stand, viewing exhibits representative of the life and industry of the Dominion.

His Majesty was accompanied by Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner in the United Kingdom. He took particular interest in a large-scale map of Canada, showing in black and red the route of the royal tour this summer.

Mr. Massey traced the itinerary across the Dominion, halting at Sault Ste. Marie to explain that the mayor of the town had arranged for the whole township to be transported to Franz to greet Their Majesties en route west.

Parking In Havelock Costs Driver $14.50

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 3.—Presiding at the Havelock police court, held Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the local council chamber, Magistrate O. A. Langley of Peterborough disposed of two minor traffic cases.

A Campbellford man pleading guilty to parking in the centre of the street without lights, was fined $14.50 including costs.

A Warkworth resident was assessed $7.50 for failing to observe stop signs within the village.

Both charges were laid by Havelock's recently appointed night constable, Wm. Laing, who has been checking up heavily on reckless driving, in addition to his other official duties.

Barnabe Maisonville Pal Of Edison Dies

WINDSOR, Ont., March 4 (CP).—Barnabe Maisonville, 90, a close friend of Thomas A. Edison, died here today after a lengthy illness.

Edison, the famous inventor, hired Maisonville, then 13, to act as assistant news butcher to sell peanuts and magazines in passenger coaches, while Edison retired from his news butcher role to the baggage car to carry out scientific experiments. Maisonville aided him in many of his early experiments.

He well recalled the day when the irate conductor on the train running between Fort Gratiot, two miles from Port Huron and Detroit, put Edison and himself off the train after one of Edison's experiments set fire to the baggage car.

Henry Ford once said Maisonville was the outstanding authority on Edison's early life. Maisonville said Edison's name always was mispronounced in later years. "We knew him as Ee-dison, not Ed-ison," Maisonville said.

Maisonville built the first car ferries, on the Detroit River and was co-owner of two famous Border Cities hotels.

He was survived by a half-sister, Mrs. A. F. Currier of Boston; two nephews, Francis Maisonville of Detroit and Oliver Maisonville, somewhere in British Columbia.

British Shipping Finds More Competition

LONDON, March 3—(CP Cable).—Annual report of the British chamber of shipping, issued today, stressed the increasing difficulty of British freighters in competing with foreign ships as a result of subsidies by other powers.

A considerable increase in subsidies was noted during the past year, the report said, with 28 nations now advancing funds to shipping companies to aid them in obtaining a better proportion of world ocean freight.

Germany and Italy now are using their imports, the report said, adding that British coal for Italian railroads formerly carried by British ships now is carried exclusively by Italian freighters. The same situation prevails in connection with coal imported by France.

The report said Japan probably is paying larger subsidies to its shipping companies than any other power and warned that with the end of the war in China a large number of Japanese ships will be liberated for an unprecedented campaign for world trade.

New Starling Traps

RIDGETOWN, Ont., Mar. 3 — (CP). — Tin pans, scare crows, and other devices used here to scare away starlings are to be replaced with traps developed by Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. The traps will be built here by students, after which James Neilson, a vocational school instructor, will destroy the birds caught.

You Can Have a HEALTHY STOMACH

Maybe it seems to be just too good to be true—but between you and a healthy stomach there is only one small, easily-beaten trouble! Yes, even though you have become almost afraid to eat because of the almost certain penalty of pain to follow, the relief of that condition is simple. It is treatment by the same four alkalies prescribed by stomach specialists.

These powerful alkalies are perfectly balanced in Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. And this is what they do. Those gruelling pains you suffer are caused by excess acidity, biting into and inflaming stomach walls. When you take Maclean Brand Stomach Powder you neutralize this excess acidity at once. At the same time the powder coats your stomach walls, soothes the acid-bitten tissues, and helps health come back. Start this treatment now. Do not accept an inferior substitute, but ask for Maclean Brand Stomach Powder, which is only genuine if the signature "Alex. C. Maclean" appears on bottle and carton. Sold only in bottles, in cartons, 75c, family size $1.75. Never sold loose. 128

Marmora Laymen Enjoy Lantern Slides

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 3—St. Paul's Laymen's Association held its bi-monthly meeting in the parish hall on Wednesday evening, H. B. Smith presiding.

The secretary-treasurer after reading correspondence called the attention of the association to the sacred picture, "The Crown of Thorns," which with vocal numbers, in which two lady soloists from Peterborough will take part, will be held in the town hall on March 22 in aid of the choir funds.

Owing to bad roads and illnesses, a Belleville men's group which was to have furnished the program could not be present. As a substitute program a lantern lecture, "Missions in the Arctic" was given. Rural Dean Caldwell manipulating the lantern and W. J. Cottrell giving the reading. Harold Osborne gave a clever recitation on "Cars" which he had written himself.

Refreshments and a social hour completed the evening's program.

Havelock Attendance Shows 172 Average

HAVELOCK, March 3.— Holding their February meeting, Wednesday evening in the school, all members of the Public School Board were present, with Chairman Bernard Smith presiding.

Caretaker Robert Buchanan in his report said that the return pipes on the hot water heating system were in a bad condition.

Principal W. D. Duncan reported an average atetndance of 172. He was authorized to purchase the supplies which he requested on motion of Trustees Price and Roche.

The motion appointing G. Ames as temporary attendance officer was rescinded on motion of Trustees Roche and Iles, and Night Constable Laing was appointed to fill this position until Mr. John Evans is able to return to his duties. The secretary was requested to inform Constable Laing of the appointment.

Inspector L. W. Copp's report was read with the remainder of the correspondence ordered filed.

Trustee Mrs. C. Price was appointed as delegate to the annual meeting of the Ontario Trustees and Ratepayers' Association, with Mrs. V. Brisbin as alternate.

The accounts were ordered paid on motion of Trustees Roche-Brisbin. The meeting was then adjourned, till Tuesday, March 7th.

Pot Luck Supper

Each member of the Havelock Branch Junior Women's Institute brought a guest to their social evening and "pot-luck" supper, on Wednesday night in the Albion Club rooms. Following the refreshment an enjoyable time was spent playing different group games.

Progressive Chinese checks were played during the evening, prizes being won by Miss Hazel McCutcheon and William Brunton.

TRENT BRIDGE

March came in like the proverbial lion with high winds throughout the day.

Mrs. Roy Burgess arrived from Toronto Wednesday night, owing to the sudden death of his father, Mr. James Paget.

Mr. Fred Alley, who has been employed in Peterborough, has returned to the parental home for an indefinite time.

Mr. William Thain received news of the illness of his sister, Mrs. George Dunn, of Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD

Mrs. J. E. Birks and Mr. Bennett Morton left Wednesday on a motor trip to Los Angeles, California. They are expected to return early in April.

Mrs. Raymond Dunk, who recently underwent an operation in a Belleville hospital, is making a favorable recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. John Peeling are spending a few days with relatives and friends in Ottawa.

Among those from town who attended the Young People's rally at St. Paul's church in Peterborough were Rev. B. Simpson Black, Mrs. M. McFarlane, and Miss Violet Patrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Beatty, of Rockwood, are guests of Mrs. H. T. Free, Seymour township.

Mr. Stuart A. Anderson, who has been in Toronto and Hamilton for the past few days, returned on Tuesday.

Neighbors Honor Centreville Man

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CENTREVILLE, March 3—A large and representative gathering of friends and neighbors on Monday evening gave a farewell party to E. E. Anderson and his daughters, Mary and Dorothy in the municipal hall. Rev. D. A. McKenzie was chairman.

The program opened with "O Canada," after which Homer Oulette led in community singing, Miss Gwent Hutchinson presiding at the piano.

Miss Jean Holden gave a splendid reading and responded with an encore.

The chairman called Mr. Anderson and the Misses Anderson to the platform, where McIntosh Bradshaw read an address, and Jay Whittington and Dick Hutchison made the presentation of a beautiful studio couch. Mr. Anderson thanked his friends for their kindness and generosity.

Following a beautiful piano selection and encore by Miss Robena Tate there was more community singing after which the National Anthem was sung. Refreshments were served and dancing was enjoyed.

Mr. Anderson had a sale of stock and implements on Monday and is moving to Peterborough.

Mrs. John McKague is spending a few weks visiting her son at Kitchener.

Library For Music

STRATFORD, Ont., Mar. 3 — (CP). — A public library can be a boon to music students, Adjudicator Arthur Benjamin told competitors at the Music Festival here. He said it would help their musical studies if they read about the periods during which exemplary music was written.

Crime, Business In Large Cities

OTTAWA, March 3 (CP)—Crime has become an organized business in large Canadian cities and the men at the head of the rackets practice "very skilful business principles in their administration," Hon. H. H. Stevens (Con. Kootenay East) told the Commons yesterday during the debate on the penitentiaries bill.

"Crime is an organized racket, but I would go even further and say that it is an organized business. Those at the head of these rackets practice very skilful business principles in their administration, and of course use criminal methods to enforce their will. This condition has been aggravated by the unemployment and idleness of so many young people and it causes me a good deal of alarm at this time.

"Perhaps later on when the bill has been brought down the minister will give us accurate figures for Canada, but the figures for the United States—I am not holding up that country as a horrible example by any means—show that one out of 37 of the population is in the criminal class.

"I think the percentage is much less in Canada as we have not the congested areas they have in the UnitedStates, but the incident in Toronto, to which I referred, and the other incident in Windsor, Ont., about six or eight months ago, indicate that this condition has spread into Canada, in the same organized form as it has in the United States."

Crew Leaps In Time As Engine Is Ditched

KITCHENER, Ont., March 3 (CP)—Engineer Chris Reinhart and Fireman Percy Martin, both of Stratford, leaped from a Canadian National Railways locomotive yesterday after the engine and tender had skidded off the icy rails near St. Jacob's.

Just after the engine crew leaped, the locomotive plunged nose down into a four-foot earth bank and then turned over on its side. Two cars on the train remained on the track.

The line was still tied up today. The tender was lifted from the ditch at 11 p.m. last night. Work then started on the locomotive. The engine was raised about five feet and a platform built under it. At nine o'clock this morning the platform collapsed and back in the ditch went the engine.

A Changed Attitude

The official attitude in Old London seems to change about the same as it does elsewhere. There was a reception given at the Soviet Embassy by Ambassador Ivan Maisky.

And Prime Minister Chamberlain was among those present.

Nor did he go alone. Robert Hutson was present, and he is Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade, who is going to Moscow shortly to look for business. Labor Minister Brown, War Secretary Hore-Belisha—they were also there.

It was plain as anything could be there was a desire to show officially that Britain was quite favorably disposed toward Soviet Russia.

It must be about ten years ago that London was in somewhat of a dither about the Soviet people having an office in that city from which they desired to carry on business under the name of the Amtorg. Police raided the place, seized all the books and documents they could find, believing apparently that plotting was going on there and must be stopped. The action of the police was regarded at the time by a good many thorough-going Britishers as a good example of official nonsense. If they wanted to sell anything to Russia they would do so, and if Russia had anything they wished to buy they would look upon it as they would at any other sort of business.

And it must be admitted there is quite a differnce between raiding the headquarters of the Russian trading company a few years ago and having the Prime Minister and a number of his cabinet colleagues attending a reception at the Soviet embassy. It is about as complete a reversal of form and opinion as one could find.

It Was Quickly Done

Cardinal Pacelli, former Papal Secretary of State, is today Pope Pius XII., the spiritual head of 331,000,000 Roman Catholics. His election came on the third ballot of the first day, and thereby was confusion given to writers who had been making many columns predicting that it would take a long time to reach a decision. Admittedly it was fast work, and not since 1621 has there been anything so quickly concluded.

Pius XII. was closely associated with Pius XI., and the fact that he elected to be known by the same name is accepted as evidence that his policy and outlook and desire are much in accord with those of Pius XI. On this point there had been a degree of speculation, the claim being advanced that the Vatican might have an occupant who would have a different outlook on the governments of Italy and of Germany in particular. It looks at the moment that the policy of Pius XI. will be that of Pius XII.

Should Mr. Peel Pay?

Wilbert Peel was held up and robbed by two men who were afterward captured and then sent to prison. The money taken from Mr. Peel was also recovered, but when it was paid to him $10 had been deducted by the chief of police for what he termed out-of-pocket expenses in connection with the case. There was $5 for the farmer who drove the police to Manvers station where the arrests were made, and there was money for gas used in the private car of a provincial police officer. The chief states such expenses should be charged against Mr. Peel because the men who were arrested had moved out of the jurisdiction of city police. It is also asserted that when a car is stolen and it is necessary to send telegrams and telephone messages to several points such costs are charged to the owner of the car.

We do not know whether such argument holds good in the case of Mr. Peel or not. If one turns the matter around a little it looks different. Put in this way: Supposing by the time the police arrived at Manvers station they found the men had departed, in which case the stolen money would not have been recovered. To whom then would the expenses of the chase have been charged? Certainly not to Mr. Peel, because as a citizen he would have been entitled to all the service the police could give him.

It Cannot Be Done

Police Commission in Kitchener has something on its hands. At a recent meeting of City Council one of the aldermen had a long list of complaints to make about members of the police department, and wound up by claiming Kitchener had the worst department in the country. His charges were given wide publicity and the Police Commission considered them at a closed meeting following which a prepared statement was issued. One paragraph stated:

"Private immorality within the life of an officer does not fall within the concern of the commission unless it interferes with the performance of his duty, or results in his forfeiting the respect of a substantial portion of the public."

And that is about as fine a piece of nonsense as has yet been issued in the way of an official statement. It means that a man who is a member of the police force can be as immoral as he pleases so long as he can get away with it.

Mr. John Blank may be a policeman in Kitchener and his day's work may be over at six in the evening. During his working hours he is under control of his chief and the rules of the commission, but when he is through for the day he can do as he pleases. He can be a regular rotter if he desires but he must manage "to retain the respect of a substantial portion of the public."

But things do not work out that way. Not for a minute. John Blank takes his uniform off and starts out for the night and his quest is immoral. It is quite conceivable he would be doing things in his off-hours which we would have to arrest people for doing if he were on duty. His wild actions are giving a plain demonstration to the people he meets of what a policeman actually thinks of the law which he is supposed to enforce.

There is more to it than that. When this John Blank is off duty he is still known as a member of the Kitchener police force, and if his actions are immoral or highly questionable then it is a plain enough fact that a man of such standing is tolerated on the force and the entire force suffers in consequence. We do not believe it is possible to be a good policeman part of the day and a bad man the rest of the time.

In The Yorkshire Post

Looking at a recent issue of the Yorkshire Post, published at Leeds, England, one finds that dwelling houses are rented on a different basis than is customary in Canada. One place is described as modernized, 3 bedrooms, hot and cold water, garage, garden, etc. The rent is 14 shillings per week "and rates." The word "rates" means that the tenant has also to pay the taxes, so in this case the tenant would pay $3.36 per week for rent and pay the taxes as well.

In the classified advertising pages there is evidence of demand for skilled workers to an extent which we have not experienced for some time. Most of the men wanted are those with experience in engineering or allied industries. Under the heading of "Workpeople Wanted" we notice one calling for men experienced in universal grinding machines, and only those accustomed to working to "very fine dimensions" are asked to apply. The wages are given as 79 shillings for 47 hours, which would mean $18.96 for a full week's work.

A number of draughtsmen are required at various places, and even more startling is the announcement of some firm in London which will teach shorthand in a week with the first lesson free.

The Yorkshire Post announces the charge for many of its announcements as 1s 6d per line, which in our currency is 36 cents. By actual measurement there are 14 lines to the inch, which would make $5.04 for one inch of space. And that of course would be something which would bring joy to the accounting department of the average newspaper in this country.

The Price Of Gasoline

Hon. S. S. Garson, provincial treasurer of Manitoba, announces the government will enact legislation giving to municipalities the right to enter the retail gasoline business. Gasoline sells in Manitoba at from 27 to 33 cents per gallon and the government informed the companies it wanted the prices brought down. The answer was a reduction of one cent per gallon, where it had been anticipated the reduction would be three cents. That is the reason for the latest move to allow municipalities to invest funds in the retail gas trade.

Mr. Garson may have a good deal of information about which we know nothing at all, but our belief is he is starting at the wrong place. We do not believe those in the retail business make any great amount of money by selling gasoline. They are not the producers and they must buy their supply and pay for it at the rate which is laid down before them. If the municipally-owned stations had to secure their supply from the same source they would have to pay the same price and their only hope of bringing down prices would be to cut their own profits.

If Mr. Garson carried his war back to the producing companies they would produce records to show that the governments are now making more out of the gasoline business through taxation than are the producers.

States The Case Plainly

When James Hines was found guilty of being a political racketeer in New York a few days ago it probably made little difference to people in our country. But it should make quite a difference to United States if the people there want to get their political situation cleaned up. Hines was the boss of Tammany Hall, New York, which meant he was the big stick in his political organization. He would be the man who "fixed things"; he would be the person to "see" if there was trouble with the police, and in his time he could "break" any policeman who was trying his best to do his duty if he interfered with Hines' political friends.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York, a rather outspoken person, was speaking to a group of policemen about the conviction of Hines, and he used these words: "It must be a great feeling to all you men when you know you do not have to take off your hats to any lousy political leader. I've seen high police officials stand at attention to Jimmy Hines."

And that tells the whole story in a few words—the story of how corrupt administration can become when politicians of the scheming sort seize control of the situation to make it pay revenue to them.

Whether New York or any other large American city can keep the situation clean is something we do not know. Their municipal elections are entirely different to ours; they are on straight party lines and all the civic officials are elected on that basis. Such an office as clerk or treasurer, etc., as well as those who sit in council are on the party ballot. It is a system which has proved itself to be wrong, and against which we in this country must remain firmly opposed. The only attempt made to bring part of the system here has been in the suggestion made in several places that members of the police commission should be elected by the people. It has always failed of accomplishment and we hope it always will.

NOTE AND COMMENT

This business of making the world safe for democracy is getting to be full-time occupation.

An inventor has filed suit against the Ford Motor Co. for $6,000,000. He must be a patriot who has in mind paying off the national debt.

In a local court case it was reported that a hockey stick was used as a weapon in a war between neighbors. Now and then one comes across a hockey game where players seem to have the same general idea of why the stick was invented.

Woodstock entertained a number of C.N.R. officials at dinner, and then proceeded to show them all the factory sites in the city hoping of course that the C.N.R. men would proceed to putting people at work in them. The only known result so far is that Woodstock people paid for the dinner.

The deputy reeve of Amherstburg believes the chief of police does not make sufficient reports to council. There have been 41 recent robberies which have not been cleared up and perhaps the chief considers that making ample report on them all would be too much like writing a book.

TRUE STORY

(By A.R.K.)

¶ Now Mr. A missed Mr. B, a chap who every day he'd see, he knew not what to do; he asked just what the reason was, and some one told him then the cause, for B had caught the flu.

¶ Two days went by and Mr. A, inquired if C had gone away, his place was vacant now; the flu had seized on Mr. C, he was as sick as man could be, and pain was on his brow.

¶ Then A dropped in on Mr. D, a man he often went to see, he met his wife instead; for Mr. D had caught the flu, and thought the wisest thing to do, was bundle off to bed.

¶ Then Mr. A felt very strange, and sat beside the kitchen range, was sure that he felt sick; he drank some heated lemonade, before his bed was fixed and made, he usd a heated brick.

¶ He thought he'd need some pills and stuff, was sure that he was feeling tough, he feared he had the flu; he thought he'd have the doctor in, find what was taking place within, so he'd know what to do.

¶ His pulse was working nice and sure, he didn't have a temperature, nor did his nerve spots jerk; the doctor moved the brick away, and told him when come on next day—he better go to work.

Drawer Filled With Material

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I think the hon. member is wandering from the subject. What we are dealing with is the following proposed resolution:

That, in the opinion of this house, this parliament should immediately take such steps as are necessary to insure the farmers of Canada a fixed price of ninety-five cents per bushel for No. 1 northern wheat at their local elevator.

The hon. member should confine himself to the resolution.

Mr. BLACKMORE: I have said that the particular aspect of the subject which I wish to discuss is where the money is to come from to pay this fixed price. Is that not in order?

Mr. SPEAKER: I think it is too far from the subject.

Mr. BLACKMORE: I trust my next remarks will be nearer the subject, Mr. Speaker. If it is the desire of the house that I should give a lot of statistics I can give them, just like other hon. members. I can show that farmers in western Canada are in absolutely impossible position, if that is of more value than showing how they can be got out of that position. But surely it is of far greater value to hon. members that I tell them how the farmers of Canada can be got out of that position. Would that be in order?

Mr. SPEAKER: There will be many other opportunities for the hon. member to discuss the subject of monetary reform, but I think he should not do so on this motion.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Then it is not in order for me to discuss how we can get the money to pay this fixed price?

Mr. SPEAKER: I do not think so.

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): If my hon. friend is in order in discussing monetary reform on this motion, because he says the money will have to be found somewhere, he could discuss it on every matter that comes before the house. I believe he should deal with that subject in a discussion by itself, and confine himself now to the question of a fixed price for wheat.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Well, it never once entered my mind that answering the everlasting and incessant question that is raised in connection with any proposal whatsoever, where is the money coming from? would not be relevant to this question. I would suppose that in the minds of hon. members, as it certainly is in the mind of every person in Canada with whom I have talked about this subject, the all important question is, "Where are you going to get the money? The idea is fine, it is good, it is right, they ought to have it," they say, "but where are you going to get the money? If you can tell us where you are going to get it, surely they should get $1.50 a bushel." That is the attitude they take. For us to come here and advocate a fixed price of $1.25 a bushel for wheat, which is what we ought to advocate, and to advocate a just price for meat, wool, honey, butter, milk, cream, eggs, hides, everything that the farmer produces; for us to urge that that just price be given but not to tell the people how the mopey is to be raised is for us to advocate an absurdity.

Mr. SPEAKER: After my decision I do not think the hon. member should proceed to give an elaborate statement of how to get the money. The question before the house is the motion which I have just read, and I think the hon. member should not wander so far from it.

Mr. BLACKMORE: This is the first time it ever dawned upon me that it would not be in order to discuss this question in connection with such a subject. Ever since I was old enough to understand English the very first question that came up whenever I wanted anything was how I was going to pay for it; for, if you cannot pay for a thing, you cannot have it. So, in deciding whether or not we should give the farmers of Canada a just price for their products, the whole question depends upon whether or not we can get the money without taxation and without borrowing. Of course if you, Mr. Speaker, feel that to be out of order—

Mr. SPEAKER: I think it is.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Very well.

Mr. HANSELL: In rising to that point of order, Mr. Speaker—

Mr. SPEAKER: I have given my decision and have said that the hon. member should confine his remarks strictly to the resolution now before the house. Otherwise we could discuss all sorts of things.

Mr. BLACKMORE: Well, Mr. Speaker, if I had only known this five minutes ago I would have had plenty of material here to go on with, because I have a whole drawerful of material similar to that which was brought forward by the hon. member for Bow River (Mr. Johnston) and the hon. member for Battle River (Mr. Fair).

SYSTEMATIC GIVING.

There is a movement in some churches to interest its congregations in the matter of systematic giving on Sundays by means of the envelope system. It astonishes one when this matter is considered. Ten cents given weekly amounts to a greater sum in a year than seventy-five per cent. of present church-goers think of giving. And that is only the price of one cigar, a dish of ice cream, or two bottles of pop, any one of which purchases never makes us bat an eyelash, yet, most people hesitate if they are asked to promise to give the church of their choice ten cents a Sunday. If every church attendant in Amherstburg gave a dime weekly there would be no occasion for church organizatins having to go into so many schemes for raising money for the upkeep of the organization.— (Amherstburg Echo)

BOOMERANG.

YET violence in propaganda never pays. During the War the Germans flooded Persia with colored posters depicting the British blowing sepoys from cannon. "This", ran the superscription, "is how the English treat Moslems." "My eyes", said the Persians, "if that is what is going to happen to us, we must be very careful indeed not to annoy the English."—London Spectator.

Patronage Gets An Airing

(From Parliamentary Debates)

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I rise to a point of order. If I understand aright the motion, it is to appoint a committee. What is being said may be very interesting indeed from the political point of view, but I cannot see how it can bear on a motion to appoint a certain committee to consider civil service matters.

Mr. POULIOT: Speaking to the point of order, we have only to see that the motion is for the appointment of a committee of the house "to inquire into the operation of the Civil Service Act, and all matters pertaining thereto, with power to call for persons," et cetera. It is the operation of the Civil Service Act that is being inquired into, and the foundation of the Civil Service Act is the merit system. Therefore I am perfectly in order in continuing to relate what happened in the past.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Mr. Speaker, I ask for your ruling. Do we need to have the history of the Civil Service Act from time immemorial brought before the house on this occasion? I fail to see it, and I ask for your ruling.

Mr. SPEAKER: I am of the opinion that the hon. member is in order in the remarks he has been making. The motion is that a special committee of the house be appointed to inquire into the operation of the Civil Service Act, and all matters pertaining thereto, and I do not think that up to the present moment the hon. member has discussed any matters that are irrelevant to the motion. I would ask him, however, to confine what he has to say to such questions as are strictly within the scope of the motion.

Mr. POULIOT: I am not going to go as far back as the deluge, but as we are considering the operation of the Civil Service Act it is important to know what progress has been made during the past twenty years under the merit system.

PROMISED NO JOBS

Mr. M. J. COLDWELL (Rosetown-Biggar): The other evening I was glad to compliment the Minister of National Revenue (Mr. Ilsley) when he said that he had not used his powers under the national revenue act to make appointments. I think that is something which should be commended by all those who desire good government. In my opinion political patronage is a form of corruption. Promises of jobs are made prior to an election, and to my mind that is only a form of bribery.

Mr. TOMLINSON: That is just the hon. member's opinion?

Mr. COLDWELL: It is my opinion that the promise of a position as payment for support is bribery and corruption. I do not think you can get away from it.

Mr. O'NEILL: Who does it?

Mr. COLDWELL, I ask the hon. gentleman to ask some of his friends.

Mr. O'NEILL: Did the hon. member ever make such a promise?

Mr. COLDWELL: No, I have never done it and I am very proud of that fact. I have been in public life, municipally and provincially, for a long time and I have made no promises of jobs.

Mr. FLEMING: I heard the hon. gentleman make several promises last year.

Mr. COLDWELL: The hon. member for Humboldt (Mr. Fleming) says that I made several promises during the provincial by-election in his constituency. He is quite right, but they were not promises of appointments; they were promises of good government and promises to further certain policies. That is entirely different from political patronage.

✧ ✧ ✧

ASKING FOR FAVORS

Mr. W. R. TOMLINSON (Bruce): I did not come down prepared to speak on this subject. However, I do not like the insinuations from the third party in this house in connection with patronage. Nobody in my riding can accuse me of patronage.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. TOMLINSON: Let them prove it. Not one of them can. I do not like that insinuation from parties who have never had the responsibility of government. They have never had that responsibility. But they desire to spread throughout this dominion the idea that they never ask for a favor. Let them stand in their place and tell me they have not asked a favor on behalf of their constituents; I would tell them that if they do not look after their constituents they are not representing their ridings as they should.

Miss MACPHAIL: I should like to ask the hon. member a question. What does he mean when he says that hon. members do not carry the responsibility of their constituencies, do not look after their constituencies?

Mr. TOMLINSON: I did not say that. I said if they stand in their place and say they never asked a favor on behalf of their constituents —

Mr. COLDWELL: A right.

Mr. TOMLINSON: —a right, whatever you wish to call it, they are not looking after their constituents. Correct? I say that.

Miss MACPHAIL: What would be the use of asking a favor when the defeated candidate in each constituency has complete control over even the smallest appointment?

Mr. TOMLINSON: I do not know about the hon. member for Grey-Bruce—

Mr. TAYLOR (Nanaimo): If we are called upon to rise in our places I rise in mine and say that I have never asked anything for my constituency.

Mr. TOMLINSON: The hon. member can speak after I have finished.

• Reduce Legislature's Size Now

SINCE his return from Autralia Premier Hepburn has commented briefly on the current topic of reducing the costs of government in Canada. He has suggested notes The St. Thomas Times-Journal, the amalgamation of the Prairie provinces and the Maritime provinces, declared in favor of reducing the size of the House of Commons and expressed his readiness to consider the abolition of the Senate. Not any of these proposals are new; all have been extensively debated and from appearances none are any closer to being adopted than when first made. All are outside the jurisdiction of the province of Ontario. In view of this, Mr. Hepburn's suggestions, while interesting, can have no more than an indirect bearing on ahy move that may ultimately be made along these lines.

In another matter of reducing costs of government—cutting the size of the Ontario Legislature—Mr. Hepburn is in a position to secure prompt action, but from his remarks at Toronto on Friday we fear that this oft-advocated move on his part is many years away from fulfillment. In reiterating his stand for bringing the membership down from 90 to about 72, Mr. Hepburn said it would be unwise to do anything until after the 1941 census. In this, we take issue with the Premier. We agree that redistribution of ridings, Federal and Provincial, are usually made after the taking of each ten-year census, but if we recall that the original proposition made by Mr. Hepburn after he found fault with the Henry administration's redistribution plan and reduction in the number of members from 112 to 90, was to get back to recognition of county lines, it must be admitted that the few alterations in population figures since the 1931 census can have little bearing on carrying out the Hepburn plan of 1934. Therefore there is no need for delay.

It would be quite a simple matter for a committee of the Legislature or even for department officials, to prepare a plan of redistribution, based along something like the following lines: County lines to be respected absolutely; one member for each county with a certain population; additional members for the larger counties, especially where medium-sized urban centres can be included; members for the large urban centres to be based on population, but with figures greater than for rural areas; consideration to be given the larger northern areas where population is sparse and development work being carried out. A brief investigation of this plan will show that it works out at just about the figure—72—mentioned by Mr. Hepburn as the size of the reduced Legislature.

If a plan to go back to county lines is as popular with the electors in other counties as it is in Elgin, where since the Henry redistribution two large townships and three large villages have been grouped with East Kent, Mr. Hepburn should lose no time in getting his new redistribution plans under way so that when the next general election rolls around—in 1940 or 1941 (before the next census results are announced)—the people can vote under it.

A Bible Message For Today . . . .

And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another? When the men were come unto him, they said, John Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that should come? or look we for another? And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto many that were blind he gave sight.

Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard: how that the blind see, the lame walk, tife lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. And blessed is he, whosoever shall not be offended in me.—Luke iii, 2-4; vii, 19-23.

To The Editor

UNCERTAINTY

Editor Examiner:

Sir,—The more I think of the state of affairs in this country, the more I am appalled, terrified, and horror stricken.

Real financial worth is in land, farms, homes, factories, mines, forests, fisheries, etc, and of course in the character of our people to use them savely.

But men are gathering money, putting it into government bonds (a safe place) getting a piece of paper—a promise. But what of a promise if there is no way of paying, no resources behind the promise.

In what way is the money being used? Guns—to injure—then widows and orphans to provide for in some manner. Boats to destroy, railway stations nobody needs, highways said to be where most votes can be hooked?) Would any wise man lend money to another individual knowing he (the borrower) was going deeper and deeper in debt? Why then do you lend?

Would you lend money to an individual who borrows from Peter to pay Paul? Why then put money in bonds? You say they are the last thing to go. How long before they go? Until security is again here: until farming is a profitable or liveable enterprise: until people want a home, strive for a home, and are not penalized because one is possessed, this country will continue in chaos.

Let us act before it is too late. People are clinging to new threads of hope, but will these stand?

Give your opinion and let governments know your attitude as you are part of Canada and you and I are responsible.

Huntingdon Farmer Bags Big Wolf Using His Companion As "Bait"

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 3.—Showing an absolute lack of fear in its first contact with human beings, a large wolf's curiosity led to its subsequent demise when a blast from a gun in the hands of Joseph Wickens, West Huntingdon Township farmer ended its career.

Wickens and a companion, George Prest, were walking to work in the woods when they noticed a strange animal that looked like a wild dog, and resembled a silver fox, prowling about in an open field.

Sniffing curiously, the wolf gradually approached Prest, after Wickens decided to fetch his gun, until it came within a few feet of where he was standing. Prest had little difficulty in retaining the curious animal's attention until Wickens returned with his weapon. A few minutes later, the wolf, as it is claimed to be, lay dead at Wicken's feet.

The pelt will be forwarded to Toronto for identification together with an application for the $15 bounty paid by the government for the pelts of adult wolves.

Many Deer in Eldorado.

Deer must be plentiful in the Eldorado district, as residents who were out strolling in the countryside sighted a doe and fawn which came out of the bush on the road, trotted ahead ,then ran off into the woods, and later another deer was noticed cornered by a dog, which was driven away, permitting the deer to escape.

Tough Driving

Two young Meyers' Cave folk will hesitate before they start out via motor over snow-filled roads again It seems they left the northern village for Kingston following a recent storm and managed to get as far as Centreville where the car stalled in a drift. They called on a district farmer who hitched up his team and took the couple to Tamworth, where they were marooned. Their car was finally located beneath a huge drift, where it was put in running order again and they reached Cloyne after a rather eventful journey.

Foundry Collapses.

Considerable damage occurred at The Tweed Foundries on Wednesday morning, when the roof of the moulding shop collapsed under the heavy weight of snow. Unfortunately, the walls of the building were almost completely destroyed. The los will be a serious one for Mr. W. S. Gordon, who was absent from the village at the time of the collapse. Spring orders, recently received, would have resulted in the return of several employees to work, all of whom have been idle since Christmas. However, it is expected that repairs will be made as quickly as possible, when operations will be resumed at the plant.

Truck Sideswceps Car

A car driven by Bill Deline, Tweed, was sideswiped at 8.15 p.m. on Highway No. 37 on Wednesday night, four miles south of Tweed, by a truck owned by the York Trading Company of Belleville. Considerable damage resulted to the Deline car ,and charges will be laid against the York Trading Company for permitting a truck to be driven on the highway without the proper lights, as well as two other infractions of The Motor Vehicles Act. No one was injured.

COE HILL

The Canadian Girls in Training held their monthly social evening on Monday. A splendid program of solos and readings followed by games and refreshments, was enjoyed by all.

The young people of the United church met on Tuesday for a social evening. After a short program, games and contests were enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the close.

During Lenten season the prayer group of the United church will meet on Wednesday afternoon instead of evening, in order that all may attend the Lenten service at the Anglican church.

Mr. Howard Forbes, of Glen Alda, was a Wednesday visitor a the home of his sisters, Mrs. William McCaw.

Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME.

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distresing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.—(Advt.)

Burglars Use Hearse To Move Safes After 50 Robberies

Detroit, March 3 (AP)

ARREST of six men accused of transporting stolen safes in an undertaker's hearse to an Oakland county cottage where the strongboxes were opened at leisure was disclosed by police today.

Police said the gang had committed 50 burglaries in which the loot totalled more than $50,000 within less than a year. They said the safes were dropped into deep water of Stoney Lake, near Oxford, Mich., after their contents had been removed.

Adopt New Plan To Raise Fund

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, Mer. 3. — Mrs. P. I. Bentley was hostess for the March meeting of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Church, the meeting being at her home, Cavan Street, on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the hostess, who is also president, occupying the chair.

Mrs. J. W. Hamilton read the lesson in the worship period, Mrs. W. E. Ball gave the talk on the theme, Aspiration and Holiness, and Mrs. G. O. Fallis led in prayer, after which the secretary, Mrs. W. C. Fallis gave a report showing one hundred dollars paid to the church Board of Stewards, and read letters of thanks from recently bereaved members.

A number of members were reported ill, and the treasurer, Mrs. J. McKnight reported sale of articles left from the bazaar amounting to $2.50, a donation of $5.00 from Mrs. J. Hatherly, and $34.50 received from the four pot-luck suppers already held, with four more of these popular events yet to take place.

Under the heading of new business, the matter of publishing a W. A. Cook Book was taken up, Mrs. W.R. Howard reporting on prices secured for printing, advertising, etc. No action will be taken at present, but the motion to have a "Travelling Basket" started on a round of the members was adopted unanimously. The basket will contain a number of articles, must not be retained in any home after the third day, each recipient purchasing one parcel, entering the amount paid in th book provided for that purpose, and donating one article, on which the price ticket will be pinned.

An enclosed bank will have an opening in the lid for the money, and as the basket reaches the end of each street, it will be taken to th president, who will empty the money, and pass it on to the treasurer. The committee to secure the basket and start it on its travels is: Mrs. W. R. Howard, rMs. W. E. Ball, Mrs. J. McKnight ,and Mrs. F. L. Edworthy.

Mrs. H. D. Bigelow's invitation for the April meeting was gratefully accepted, and the donation of lilies for the church on Easter Sunday by Mrs. F. W. Smith and Mrs. A. L. Sisco and family, was acknowledged with thanks. A hostess tea will be held in May, and the hostess served candy during the social half-hour at the close of the meeting.

Buying Department To Save Millions

QUEBEC, March 3 — (CP). — Economy of "millions" is expected by the Union Nationale government to result from the establishment of a special department to handle all provincial purchases.

Premier Duplessis predicted the saving when the legislative assembly approved on division last night a measure to set up the "general service."

The Quebec premier told the lower house it was "reasonable in the interests of efficiency and economy" to build the new department and he pointed to big business firms he said all had centralized buying. Opposition members disapproved of the bill on the ground "patronage" might prevent economy and purchasing could be carried out more efficiently by government departments individually.

Liberal leader T. D. Bouchard said establishment of the purchasing service aimed at "supervision, direction and control" of all departmental buying, printing and advertising would mean "too much centralization."

Calgary Probing Fatal Operation

CALGARY, March 3.— (CP)— Coroner George R. Johnson of Calgary and jury began investigation last night into the death of two women, Mrs. Mabel Anne Watson, 25, Ardenode, Alta., and Mrs. Alice Duxbury, 46, Calgary, who died in General Hospital this week while undergoing operations.

Medical and pathological evidence was recorded in regard to Mrs. Watson's death Monday while under an anaesthetic for removal of a cyst, or goitre, on the thyroid gland.

Prior to the inquest the jury visited No. 1 operating room where Mrs. Watson received an anaesthetic and then room No. 4 where Mrs. Duxbury received an anaesthetic. Anaesthetic for machines in both rooms was supplied from the common source at the hospital.

Evidence in connection with Mrs. Watson's death was given by Dr. W. A. Lincoln, operating surgeon, Dr. A. E. Wilson, assisting surgeon, Dr. J. L. Allen, anaesthetist, Dr. Lola McLatchie, Alberta pathologist, and James Young, city chemist.

Dr. McLatchie said she had performed an autopsy on the body of Mrs. Watson and "did not find the cause of death" "One might express as an opinion, that it was a brain death from shock whether produced by the anaesthetic or the operation itself," she added.

Window Shattered By Runaway Team

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, Mar. 3. — While Thomas Hickey of Birds' Creek was fitting a new collar on one of his horses in front of Laundry's harness shop, the team took fright and bolted across the street and stopped with their heads and front feet inside Frank Towle's furniture and undertaking store. An upholstered chair sitting inside the window was torn by a horse shoe. No one was injured, and the horses were not cut by the glass.

George Davy fell on the icy street and injured his shoulder.

Mrs. Lorne Reid is in Belleville to-day attending a meeting of the Old-Age Pensions Board .

Daniel Bronson is engaged in clearing away the debris following the fire on the corner of Hastings and Bridge Streets, where the Bank of Nova Scotia and the Carlisle drug store were burned.

OBITUARY

MRS. GEORGE P. DUNN.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Mar. 3. — Mary Jane Thain, wife of George P. Dunn, died at the family residence, Front Street, on Wednesday afternoon following a brief illness. Mrs. Dunn, who with her husband has been a resident of Campbellford for more than fifty years, was born in Seymour Township. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Thain, and was in her sixty-eighth year. Married in Hastings fifty years ago, they have resided in Campbellford ever since. Surviving besides her husband are two sons, William J. of Kingston, James E. of town, and one daughter, Mrs. Walter Irven, town; also a sister, Mrs. William Blakely of town, and three brothers, Jonathan, town, William at Trent River, and James of Woodstock.

The funeral service was conducted from her late residence on Front Street on Friday afternoon by the Rev. B. Simpson Black of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, of which she was a lifelong member. Interment was made in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

THOMAS RIVERS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 3—It was with deepest sorrow that friends and relatives in Tweed and Madoc, learned of the sudden passing of Thomas Rivers on Sunday afternoon, in Detroit General Hospital Mr. Rivers, with his wife, had been visiting with their son, Francis, for the past three months. The late Mr. Rivers, who had been in apparent good health, contracted a cold, following which, pneumonia set in. A few days later he was stricken with a heart attack and his condition gradually grew worse.

In his sixty-seventh year, he was born in Hungerford township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rivers. He was always a resident of this community and adjoining township, where he was a successful farmer. His farm home was located about five miles from Madoc village, where he had made his home for the past twenty years. He was a member of Sacred Heart church, Madoc. The remains arrived in Tweed on Tuesday at noon from Detroit and were conveyed to his home.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, who was formerly Lillian Courneyea; two daughter, Mrs. Ernest Cassidy, Bogart, and Mrs. Dan Bowie, Detroit; and five sons, Peter on the homestead, Boniface of Marmora, Francis of Detroit, Thomas and Stafford, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; one sister, Mrs. D. Morrison, resides in Tweed and two brothers, Edward of Tweed, and John of Thomasburg.

Jap Royal House Adds Daughter

TOKYO, March 3—(AP). — The Imperial household announced today that a daughter was born to Empress Nagako yesterday.

The baby was the seventh child of Emperor Hirohito and Her Imperial Highness. Only six of the children are still alive, however. The second, Princess Hisa, died in 1928 when she was one year old.

Modern science and ancient ritual had mingled closely in the elaborate preparations for the birth, which occurred at 4.35 p.m. (2.35 a. m. EST) Wednesday. Late last September, the Imperial household department formally announced to the nation that a baby was expected.

Immediately thereafter thousands of Japanese began making pilgrimages to Tokyo to bow at the palace gates. They prayed for the safety of the Imperial mother and child. Her Highness will be 36 years old next Monday. In October the Empress formally donned the maternity belt.

Six women were chosen for the roles of wet-nurses. After examinations by prefectural physicians, 19 women in the finest physical condition were brought to Tokyo and from the group the six were chosen—two to be nurses and the other four to be substitute nurses.

With the birth of a girl, the family of Emperor Hirohito now includes four daughters and two sons. The others and their birthdays are: Princess Teru, December 6, 1925; Princess Taka, September 30, 1929; Princess Yori, March 7, 1931; Crown Prince Akihito, December 23, 1933; and Prince Yoshi, November 28, 1935.

LOCAL ACES WIN DISTRICT PUCK TITLE OVER OMEMEE CREW

Aces Now Enter The O.H.A. Playdown Series

Peterborough Aces won the championship of the District Hockey League over Omemee last night by a 14-4 score, to earn the right to advance into O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns. It was the deciding game of their playoff series, staged on a fair sheet of ice before a noisy crowd of rooters.

The Aces were in top form and turned in a fine game to earn the decision handily, while the homesters looked off in this tilt and failed to click as in their previous game, when they beat the Aces to sew up the final series. It was a speedy, wide-open and rough encounter all the way, with Referee LeBarr handing out 19 penalties, one a misconduct to a player for arguing back. A fight broke out once but was soon quelled.

All Went Good

While all the winners turned in a bangup performance going and coming for 60 minutes, Wright, Heal, Hill and R. Cournyea were probably the pick of the champions. All the losing crew battled hard and never quit trying, with none being outstanding over the entire route. Aces took a 5-1 lead in the first frame and had a 9-3 edge going into the third stanza to always look the better team.

The teams:

Aces: Goal, Currie; defence, White and Vitarelli; centre, R. Cournyea; wings, Heal and Wright; alternates, Williams, O'Leary, Hill and A. Cournyea.

Omemee: Goal, Fisher; defence, T. Parsons and F. Parsons; centre, Gilbert; wings, Weir and Jamieson; alternates, Prete, Williamson, Ellis, Brooks and Brockley.

Referee—Lou LeBarr.

Summary:

First Period

Bud Weese Bowls Eleven Strikes For Score Of 441

A SPEEDING 12th bowl that wavered just a trifle in its course toward five pins on the Duffus bowling alleys last night, cost Bud Weese a hundred dollars and several prizes of merchants. For Weese, member of the crack Knights of Columbus team, had just finished bowling eleven straight strikes when the 12th one wavered just a fraction of an inch off its course and picked the four and the two pin. Had he bowled twelve strikes for a perfect game of 450, he would have collected the firm's standing prize of one hundred dollars, and several other prizes. As it was, his total was 441, highest of the season. Last man to collect for a perfect score was Tom Curvin, who bowled twelve straight strikes three years ago.

Albions Handed 2-0 Shutout By Indian River

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 3.—Blanking the Havelock "Albions" 2-0 in a fast tussle at the Norwood arena last evening, the Indian River squad moved into a first place tie with Hastings for leadership of the East Peterborough Rural Hockey League. The game was very clean, only one penalty being handed out and that to Lade, Havelock defenceman, for tripping.

Doherty, Indian River netminder, collected his third shut-out of the season, and although threatened only occasionally in last night's game, handled those shots with ease. Hill in the local net, rated about tops in the league, came through with another fine performance, kicking out plenty of hot ones during the encounter.

Short-handed again, every member of the Indian River line-up turned in a great game. Holmes and J. Clark provided a stout defence, while N. Clark, Green, and Jim Cavanagh went especially good up front. J. Hagerman, Lade, Hamilton and E. Ellis went best for the Albions.

Indian River started strong in the first stanza, pressing continually and tossing plenty of rubber at Hill, the latter making some nice stops to keep them off the score-sheet. The penalty to Lade gave them the chance for their first goal, Jim Cavanaugh notching one in a ganging attack, while the Albions were short-handed. This ended the scoring for the initial round, and close-checking by both squads held the count the same throughout the second.

With a one-goal lead going into the third, Indian River again pressed the attack, J. Clark finally notching their second and last of the evening on W. Green's pass. Havelock strived hard to dent the twine during the last few minutes of this session, but failed to get in a good scoring position.

The Albions visit Westwood tonight for their last regular game of the season, the play-offs scheduled to commence next week.

The teams:

Indian River—Goal, Doherty; defence, Holmes, J. Clark; centre, N. Clark; wings, J. Cavanaugh, Green; alternates: H. Walsh, John Cavanaugh, Hogan.

Havelock — Goal, Hill; defence, Lade, Hamilton; centre, Hagerman; wings, E. Gordon, E. Ellis; alternates: C. Pollock, H. Gordon, Green, Williams, Varty.

Referee: P. Voyer, Havelock.

Summary.

1st Period—
Indian River—J'm Cavanaugh (John Cavanaugh) 10.24
Penalty—Lade.
2nd Period—
No score.
3rd Period—
Indian River—J. Clark (Green) 10.53

Wolves Favored To Finish Everton Hopes

LONDON, March 3.—(CP Cable)—Wolverhampton Wanderers and Everton clash in a sixth-round English cup match that features the United Kingdom's football program tomorrow. Eight cup battles will be fought in England and Scotland and attractive league games round out the schedule.

On the crest of a drive that has kept them in the forefront in both cup and league play, the Wolves are expected to end Everton's Cup hopes at Molineux Park. In a league encounter on the same ground last week Wolverhampton smashed the Toffee Makers 7-0 to become prime favorite for cup honors.

In other cup contests Chelsea opposed Grimsby town at Stamford bridge with the Pensioners favored in pre-game speculation, ground advantage being regarded as the deciding factor. Huddersfield Town is likely to advance to the semi-finals at the expense of Blackburn Rovers, the only second division team still in the running, while Portsmouth may spring a surprise on Preston North End, the cup-holder, in a tight struggle at Fratton Park.

Glasgow fans, not yet recovered from the shock occasioned by Clyde's 4-1 victory over Rangers in the last round of the Scottish Cup, will swarm to Shawfield Park where the light blues' conquerors meet third Lanark, another neighboring squad in a fourth-round Cuptie. Clyde is favored to repeat.

Other Cup Tilts

Three other cup matches are carded. Celtic, victorious over Hearts after two encounters, goes to Motherwell; Queen of the South travels north to Aberdeen, and Alloa, sole survivor of the second division, will play Hibernians at Easter Road, Edinburgh. Hibs are considered likely winners, but the other matches should prove hard-fought tussles between evenly-matched teams.

In English league play Arsenal is host to Bolton Wanderers, who will be strengthened by the inclusion of R. W. Westwood, famous inside-left. He has been out of the game since last November when he underwent a cartilage operation.

Neighboring rivals clash in Aston Villa and Birmingham, and Sheffield Wednesday and Sheffield United. The United needs only one point to go ahead of Blackburn Rovers at the top of the second division scramble.

Outstanding Scottish League match finds Rangers pitted against Raith Rovers at Kirkcaldy. In view of their desperate position at the bottom of the league the Rovers may force the famous Light Blues to concede a point. Rangers, potential champions, now have an 11-point advantage over Celtic and Aberdeen, co-occupants of the runner-up position.

MUSSING UP THE MAPLES

Bud Weese, of the City League, gave the boys a thrill at Duffus' Academy last night when he rolled off a 441 single game for the K. of C. bowling team. It was a heart-breaker for Weese as he draped the alleys with hard wood in his first eleven times up, his twelfth and $100 ball was off like a streak of lightning, as only Bud can do it, but it shaved the head pin and only cut down the four and two. Roy Penrose's Mercantile 416 and Tom Cupoli's 400 were shattered for this season.

High scores were piled up all evening, with Weese's 899 being the best of six 700 men from the City League and 16 C.G.E. 600 trundlers, four of whom were in the 700's. Dick Pearson led the C.G.E. with 740. Bill Carter hit 727, Joe Marsden 720, Bill Cowling 711, Bill Harris 683, Dick Mason 677 (310), Bill Masters 675, Tom McPhaie 639, A. Sands 639, G. So it comes up playoffs tonight in the Brock. Between the Kingston and the Peterboroughs at 8.30 by your wrist watch. This is the return tilt of their O.H.A. senior "B" playdown round, and the losers tonight can park their skates 'way up in the attic with the ex-fur coats, moth balls and picture of Aunty Matilda—the one with the big brass frame (the picture, not Aunty, of course)! So it looks like a heck of a large crowd of fans bulging the sides of the arena this p.m. and making enough noise to disturb all the neighbors for blocks around till 11 or 11.15 of the clock. When it comes up senior playoff time in this man's town, the lid is pried off and the anti-noise law is plenty violated.

Ye Petes have a two-goal lead to nurse here this eve, owing to their nifty 6-4 win in the Limestone City on Monday night. If they can hang onto that slim margin on local ice, the locals will step into a final O.H.A. round-robin series with Niagara Falls, Waterloo and Chatham next week—first fray being here Monday 'gainst the Waterloo Tigers. But if they can't, then Kingston will proceed to wallow around in the heavy gravy and the locals can read about it in the papers. So it is highly important to the Petes, you see.

Calling The Petes

From our warped judgment of the first Kingston-Peterborough puck scrap, we'd call the locals to win. They have a two-goal edge and are on home ice tonight. Yet that doesn't always mean so much. For one thing, a team that makes the provincial playdowns must have something, and for another the locals might try to protect that little lead instead of going out and playing their real hockey. Also, a squad can have an off night at times, but it's fatal at this time of year. The Kingstons have plenty of speed, condition, experience and fight, so they're far from a setup. They will be facing elimination and therefore ganging up and trying bitterly all the way through—and the speedy Petes will have to be at their best to weather this storm. It shapes up as the best senior struggle seen here this semester. We hope the better team wins, so long as it isn't Kingston!

This is the likely lineup for the visitors, with numbers: Goal, Hewitt (1); defence, Roberts (2), Nicholson (3); centre, Gordon (7); wings, Gow (9), Scrutton (10); alternates, Hagen (12), Crawford (14), Boyd (6), Kosick (15), Stoness (11). Watch Gow, a nifty forward, and Scrutton and Boyd (of the ex-Ponies) as well as Kosick, a bespectacled Queen's student. The Petes' lineup may be: Goal, Harding; defence, Gray, Gardner; centre, Kingdon; wings, Starr, Tompkins; alternates, Coughlin, Creighton, Nicholl, Weir, Crowe. With McNulty or McDougall possibly replacing one or two of these. Don't pass up the fun and fury, folks, it'll be a wide-open redhot sizzler all the way.

P.C.I. puckists aren't entering the secondary schools hockey playoffs, starting in Ottawa on March 10th and 11th. Norwood and Madoc are battling it out for the district, Norwood nursing a 5-4 edge for the return in Norwood on Saturday. They topped their group of Campbellford, Havelock and Lakefield, last two tied, while Campbellford had to forego group playoffs owing to a scarlet fever school quarantine. Madoc beat Stirling and Tweed in their group and eliminated Albert Collitch of Belleville, while Marmora—who won out over Norwood a year ago—were rubbed out by Albert Collitch. It's the second year for Norwood to take group honors, and the winnah Saturday meets Oshawa to declare a Central Ontario high school champ. The Norwood players are: Bongard, Puffer, Morris, Stevenson, Sargent, Petticrew, Gill, Godin, Buck and Warr.

Church puck playoffs passed another milestone last night at All Saints' rink with a triple-header. St. Paul's and All Saints Juniors are still tied up in a hectic series with two nods apiece and two draws. St. Paul's took a 2-1 win last p.m. in overtime, the third overtime fray for 'em. Mark St. retained their juvenile title by copping a 6-5 nod o'er George St., their second in a row. George St. Bantams forced a third playoff game by last night trimming St. John's 3-1, and the third one will be tomorrow at seven p.m. Dunno when the next junior joust is. Ice was nothing to brag about last e'en. Jack Platt of All Saints' seniors, who was carried off the ice Monday, has a double fracture of the wrist, result of a legal bodycheck.

The Aces Win Out

Peterborough Aces won the District Hockey League title with a 14-4 flurry over Omemee last e'en on the O's ice before a goodly gathering of noisy rooters. It was the deciding tilt of the pla yoffs, and the Aces were in top form while the Omemee boys had an off night—a costly one. No less than 19 penalties handed out as the players bounced each other about with abandon, one being a misconduct sentence. Currie was hurt once and a first-aid man tore to his rescue but slipped and emptied his kit on the ice, busting a coupla bottles—a tough break. Aces now go into the O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns, probably playing next game at the Brock.

Local Orfuns bowed out before Belleville gal cagers here last eve in an I.O.B.A. group semi-final ,and now C.G.E. lasses have a sudden-death group final in the Quinte town on Tuesday twilight. Two P.C.I. teams are off for Lindsay this evening, and our St. John's boys' squad opens its O.C.B.A. series tomorrow in Port Perry. Meantime, a Toronto team has an intermediate O.C.B.A.—meaning Ontario Church Basketball Assoc.—opener here tomorrow night at the "Y" against St. Paul's good outfit. Dr. Worton of Toronto is referee, and St. Paul's play a practice game tonight in Cobourg. Also a men's senior City Loop fracas tomorrow p.m. at the "Y".

Northeners Lay Their Cash On Blue Devils

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Mar. 3—(CP). — The Blue Devils from Kirkland Lake, a hockey club with tremendous offensive and defensive power, are riding high on the northern hockey trails these days with all this mining community's residents banking on them winning the Allan Cup. Optimism is high that they will bring the North its second national senior championship in three years.

There still is one obstacle the Blue Devils must overcome before entering the cup playdowns against the Ontario Hockey Association champions. But Kirkland Lake, a hockey hotbed since the team began compiling its brilliant record this season, feels sure the Devils will defeat Frood in the Northern final.

Though the team's supporters undoubtedly are slightly biased in their acclaim of the Devils, the team's record backs their optimism fully. Take for instance, the 161 goals Devils scored in 23 games against the 32 shot past the two goalies, Bill Durnan and Lyle Porter.

The team is one of experienced seniors, with no untried rookies or mediocre players on the line-up from goal out to the last substitute position. There is weight and power on the defence; speed and playmaking ability with the ranks up front. Behind the talent is the guiding finger of Coach Sammy Rothschild.

The Devils have been beaten only twice in 23 starts and both times in return games after they had whipped the other club handily. Toburn took a 27-0 pasting, believed to be a Canadian cscring record for a single game, before eking out a victory and Buffalo-Ankerite Bisons were licked 12-0 before they grabbed off a 5-3 win over Devils.

Whipped Trail in '38

The opposition for Blue Devils has not been hand-picked in their exhibition games. They took on Trail Smoke Eaters, last season's Allan Cup champions, and beat them 2-1. Toronto Goodyears, one of the classiest clubs in Southern Ontario, were shut out 4-0. Once the Devils played six teams 10 minutes each and shut them all out, scoring 10 goals themselves.

Three Devils—George Hastie, Don Grosso and Blink Bellinger—have tasted Allan Cup victory, with the Sudbury Tigers in 1936-37. All three have been scoring regularly and the offensive power is distributed fairly evenly through all the forwards.

Hal Cooper, Ottawa's Bobby Walton, El Campbell of Stratford, Ken Grivel of Toronto, Stu Smith of Port Arthur and Paul Pidcock of Montreal, one of the best forwards ever developed in the Intercollegiate League, are the other forwards.

On defence there is Doug Boston and Teddy Olliver of Toronto, Ray Milton of Port Arthur and Moose Porter, a brother of Lyle. Bill Brydges, a former National League star with New York Americans, is the manager.

Kirkland Lake unreservedly nominates their Devils—the citizens' hockey angels—for the Allan Cup to succeed the Smoke Easters.

TRAINING CAMP BRIEFS

(By The Associated Press)

TAMPA, Fla.—With 14 men out for three available infield posts and first base already sewed up by Frank McCormick, Les Scarsella asked and was given Manager Bill McKechnie's permission to try for Cincinnati Red's outfield. Scarsella, coming back for another try, had a good season as first baseman for Newark Bears last year.

SARASOTA, Fla. — Donie Bush, part-owner of the Red Sox farm at Louisville, has assured Joe Cronin that he will not miss Ben Chapman. "Ted Williams will more than fill your outfield vacancy," Bush told Cronin. "Williams is sure to stick for he is a wonderful hitter and has a world of confidence in himself."

Bradenton, Fla. — Boston Bees, who have been going through two stiff workouts a day since they opened camp, cheered when Casey Stengel told them Sunday would be their day of rest. Bradenton residents appear to have a prejudice against Sunday practice but not against Sunday games.

PASADENA, Calif. — With Chicago White Sox's signing of Shortstop Luke Appling, utility man Eric McNair shifted interest to second where a temporary opening looms due to the indefinite recuperation of Jackie Hayes. While Manager Jimmy Dykes favors McNair at second, he must also consider Ollie Bejma, former Brown purchased from St. Paul.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—Liniment was much in demand today after Manager Fred Haney's long sliding pit drill yesterday for pitchers and catchers, who were still sore from the first day's drill for St. Louis Browns. Pitchers Johnny Marcum and Jim Walkup, late arrivals, were ready for action.

LAKELAND, Fla. — Llynwood Rowe took another step along the comeback trail Thursday, taking a long turn in the pitcher's box in batting practice and coming out with flying colors. The Schoolboy was curving his throws and using speed. With nearly all the Detroit Tigers squad on hand another long workout was scheduled for Friday.

Birch And Samis Headed Into Finals

By Allan Nickelson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 3. —(CP)—Heavy-set Dick Birch can forget all about his loss in the Pacific Coast final if he gets another crack at Johnny Samis in the Canadian Badminton championships in progress at the Toronto Badminton and Racquet Club.

Samis succeeded Birch to the national title last year when Dick was unable to come east to defend his crown because of a recent pneumonia attack. But Birch thought he was headed for a complete comeback this winter until Johnny, 20-year-old schoolboy, defeated him 15-8, 15-10 in the Pacific Coast final a month ago.

Now Birch is in the dominion semi-finals and Samis is knocking at the door. By the way they are going, they will produce just about the hottest match in the tournament's history if they meet in the Dominion final.

Birch, looking stronger every time out, ousted Jimmy Forsythe of Winnipeg in two gruelling sets of the quarter-finals last night. Forsythe was Samis' finalist opponent in the national tourney last year and was seeded No. 2 to the champion this time.

Takes Forsythe.

Birch beat Forsythe 15-7 in the first set then went off his game. Trailing 1-8 in the second set, he stopped for a second, wound a handkerchief about his perspiring brow and went to work. Feathered firecrackers exploded in Forsythe's face and Birch's rally ran the score to 14-12 for Forsythe. The Winnipegger had three chances to win on game serves but failed and Birch tied the set 14-14. He quickly ran out three points in extra play as the packed gallery applauded.

Other quarter-finals in the singles, and all other divisions with the exception of the women's singles, are scheduled today. Women's singles have advanced to semi-finals which go on tonight. Champions of the four-day tourney will be crowned tomorrow.

Ousts Toronto Girl

Seeking the singles title left vacant by Mrs. W. R. Walton, Jr., Toronto, who is abroad in an effort to annex the all-England crown, Mrs. Guy Perodeau, Ottawa, runner up last year, clashes in the semi-finals tonight with Marjorie Delaney, Quebec. In the other bracket, Anne Boivin, Quebec, crosses racquets with Margaret Taylor, Kelowna, B.C., who won the Pacific Coast title without loss of a set.

Mrs. Perodeau eliminated Barbara Jarman of Toronto, formerly of Calgary, to reach the semi-finals. The scores were 11-6, 12-10. Miss Delaney edged out Margaret Robertson 11-4, 13-12; Miss Taylor downed Ruth Robertson, 11-7, 11-4, and Miss Boivin whipped Doreen Clapperton, Toronto, another former Calgarian, 11-7, 11-4.

Mrs. H. E. Allen and H. D. Bigelow, Millbrook, lost to Mrs. A. McBride and J. Moore, Port Hope.

Following the play adjournment was made to the club lounge upstairs, where a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served, the hostesses being Mrs. W. W. Kennedy and Miss Betty Montgomery; the table was lovely with lace cloth, centred with a black earthenware bowl of narcissi, with tall black tapers burning in silver holders, and at which Mrs. J. E. Allen poured coffee, the other members of the hostess club assisting with the service of the guests.

Millbrook will play a return game at Port Hope, it is expected, on Wednesday, March 15.

Star Goalie

RAY HARDING

When the Petes play Kingston here tonight in an important puck fray, Ray Harding (above) will have a lot to do with the result. He has been turning in a whale of a game in goal for the locals this season.

(Examiner Staff Photo.)

Do-or-Die Tilt For Petes Here

It's "do-or-die" for the Petes tonight when they clash with Kingston at 8.30 o'clock in the Brock St. rink. The locals face elimination if they don't maintain their two-goal lead from the 6-4 win they pulled out in Kingston Monday in the first of their O. H. A. senior "B" playdown round. One or the other team will be through for the year about 11 o'clock this evening, and the other one will step into a final round-robin series to declare a 1939 Ontario champion in the senior "B" setup. A big crowd of fans is expected for this important fixture as it promises to be the best game of hockey seen on local ice this winter.

Kingston has a fast squad of experienced puckists who battle hard every minute. They hustled the locals plenty in Kingston and had tough luck in not gaining at least a tie. The Petes will be facing a desperate gang tonight, one that will gang up plenty and fight bitterly to the very finish. The locals feel they can hang onto their slim margin but expect a real puck fray throughout. Both teams play a pleasing brand of hockey, hustling every minute of the game. The winner meets Waterloo on Monday in a round-robin series struggle.

Lebanon, Pa.—Rudy Dusek, 218, Omaha, threw Gino Garibaldi, 208, Illinois, 38:17.

LAKEFIELD

Murduff Rink Wins Laurels In Vice's 'Spiel

LAKEFIELD, March 3 — Reg. Murduff's rink defeated the squad skipped by James McGow by three points in the final game, to carry off the honors in the vice-skips' bonspiel, which was sponsored by the Lakefield Men's curling club. They won the E. A. Tanner cup, awarded for the event.

The 'spiel—a knock-out contest—was commenced about two weeks ago, with the final game postponed because of the Neill bonspiel in Peterborough. The vice-skips played the final rocks in their matches with the regular skips relegated to the position of first stone.

In the first round, W. Leonard defeated J. McKerchar; F. Wannamaker defeated W. Watson; R. Murduff defeated G. Scriver; and B. Kidd put G. Jackman out of the running.

In the second round, F. Wannamaker defeated W. Leonard; R. Murduff defeated B. Kidd; C. Payne defeated C. Hunter, and J. McGowan won from J. H. Payne.

In the third round, F. Wannamaker was put out by Murduff and McGowan eliminated C. Payne. Murduff's team, consisting of E. H. Northey, E. Waldon, E. Pearson and R. Murduff, skip, defeated D. H. Charlton, J. R. Hull, J. Knox and J. McGowan, skip, in the finals, by the score of 8 to 5.

Play in a mixed bonspiel commenced on Monday evening with only four games played up to date. The results of these games follow: B. Q. Dench 14, T. W. Chaplin 4; George Spence 14, E. W. Bailey 4; N. A. Moore 9, C. Stenner 5; F. L. Erskine 10, E. H. Northey 2.

HAVELOCK

United, Anglican Squads Nab Lead

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March —The four teams in the Norwood district "Sunday School Hockey League" commenced their elimination series last night at the Norwood arena to determine the winners of the championship cup. The teams, "Unite-ds," "Anglicans," "Westwood" and "Elgin" who finished in that order in their regular schedule were paired off in the first round, "Uniteds" vs. "Westwood" and "Anglicans" vs. "Elgin." They will each play two games, total goals to count, and the winners from these will engage in a best two-out-of three series for the cup.

The United and Anglicans carry one-goal leads into their second game to be played next Thursday, the former defeating Westwood by 4-3 score, and the latter taking Elgin 2-1.

Both games were close and packed with plenty of excitement. Two thirty minute periods were played in each case rather than the usual three twenty minutes sessions.

The United went into an early lead, in the first game, H. Rogers scoring from Johnson. Westwood retaliated by V. Warr's counter to tie it up, but the United again went ahead on Gardner's goal, which concluded the scoring for the first half. Westwood starting strong in the second, notched two quick counters, H. Fife and V. Warr being the goal-getters and for a time held the upper hand. With six minutes to go Cole tied it up again for the Uniteds and, with seconds remaining H. Rogers collected his second counter of the game.

Webb on a solo effort put the Anglicans ahead early in the second game. Bannon, however, notched one for Elgin to deadlock the count before the first half ended. Andrews' counter, the only one in the last half gave the Anglicans a one-goal lead to carry into the second match. The teams:

Uniteds—Goal, O'Brien; defence, Gardner, Brooks; centre, Johnson; wings, Rogers, Lochhead; alternates, R. Rogers, W. Cole, G. Longhurst.

Westwood—Goal, B. Warr; defence, V. Warr; Cardwell; centre, Cameron; wings, Heffernan, Renwick; alternates, L. Fife, H. Fife.

Anglicans—Goal, Parcells; defence, Innes, Andrews; centre, Webb; wings, Rousseau, Godin; alternates, D. Lemon, H. Lemon, R. Reynolds, D. Reynolds.

Elgin—Goal, G. Metcalfe; defence, Pacey, R. Lobb; centre, Bannon; wings, Buck, Davis; alternates, Matthews, P. Waters, C. Waters, L. Metcalfe.

Referee—C. Puffer, Norwood.

Whichcee Still Favorite In Santa Anita

LOS ANGELES, March 3.—(AP)—As a threat of rain again cropped up, the decks were cleared today for the next big step in the staging of the $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap—the naming of entries for the 1¼ mile classic.

Weather experts predicted showers and it was an even bet the track would be on the "off" side for tomorrow's running of the rich race.

Speculation over the number of entries ranged from 13 to 20. Most observers expected about 15 to compete in the fifth running of the event.

Heading the ranks of prospective candidates were Whichee, owned by Major A. C. Taylor of Vancouver; C. S. Howard's Argentine importations, Kayak II and Sorteado; the entry of Neil McCarthy's Today and Nelson Howard's Gosum; Tosend Martin's Cravat; Edward Friendly's Jacola, a four-year-old filly; A. A. Baroni's Specify; Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving, and Alfred G. Vanderbilt's once great Heelfly.

Nick Wall, leading money winner of 1938 from Glace Bay, N.S., will be up on Thanksgiving.

The War Admiral Fuss

MIAMI, Fla., March 3—(AP)—For two days now Hialeah Park has seethed with displeasure at Owner Samuel D. Riddle's action in withdrawing his great runner, War Admiral, from tomorrow's $50,000 Widener Cup race, the 1¼ mile classic that annually climaxes the winter season here.

His action undoubtedly was a blow to the quality of the race. The Admiral and Stagehand had looked as if they would go to the post about equal favorites. Interest has cooled right off, and Stagehand is an odds-on favorite to win. War Admiral was withdrawn because he had been running a slight fever.

Prospects are that Stagehand's admirers will back him down to about 7-10 favorite by post time tomorrow, with the co-entry of Sir Damion and Pasteurized second choices at approximately 7-2 and Bull Lea 4-1. Mythical King, Francesco and Teddy Weed merely are expected to round out the field.

Wings Smother Amerks By 7-3 Score

By Jack Calder
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Back in 1934-35, young Syd Howe was going like all get-out for the old St. Louis Flyers in the old United States division of the National Hockey League and they were calling him the greatest prospect to come up in years.

In the meantime a lot of ice has been chipped. St. Louis gave up its franchise that same year and there is no longer a United States' division. Syd Howe, at the good hockey age of 26, is with Detroit Red Wings and nobody has paid much attention to h'm lately.

But Ottawa Syd popped into the news again last night by banging in three goals and adding an assist as Detroit intensified its drive for a play-off spot by smothering New York Americans 7-3 on the Wings' ice. All at once it became evident that the ruddy-faced left-winger is helping to make his club a power again.

Improving Fast.

In that great season four years ago, Howe led his division with 22 goals and 28 assists... He hasn't come near that mark since, even in the two winters Detroit was overwhelming the rest of the league, but he's looking more like what his well-wishers hoped he would be.

Eddie Wares

His great burst against Americans shot him into sixth place in the League's individual point-making totals and created a strong possibility that Detroit will catch the fourth-place Toronto club or even the third-place Americans before the schedule ends. The Red Wings have played two games less than the Leafs and are only six points behind, while the Americans are two points up on Toronto and have played the same number of games.

Three players are tied with Howe in scoring, and one of them is Marty Barry, veteran centre who got a goal and an assist last night. It was one of the Wings' greatest power displays of the winter.

Eddie Wares sent Detroit ahead in the first period and Howe punched his first goal in the second, then helped Barry to his. Lorne Carr narrowed the margin with a New York score, but Alex. Motter made the lead 4-1 before the period ended. In the third Howe got hot, scoring twice and putting the Wings safely ahead.

Leafs Tumbled 3-1.

It was a night of upsets. The sixth-place Canadiens whipped the Maple Leafs 3-1 at Montreal and the last-place Chicago Black Hawks trimmed the second-place Rangers by the same score at New York.

But there will be no saliva tests. The trailing teams have been promising to start a war for the fifth and sixth places in the playoffs and it seems to be on.

Earl Robinson

Rod Lorrain, Lou Trudel, and Johnny Gagnon had given Canadiens a three-goal margin before Gus Marker finally scored for Toronto with only a minute to play. Toe Blake got an assist on Gagnon's goal to keep his three-point lead in the league scoring totals.

Chicago also had a 3-0 advantage before the opposition knocked. Bill Thoms, Earl Robinson, and Russ Blinco scored for the Hawks, Alex. Shibicky for the Rangers.

Hogs Slump 50 Calves $1 On Week's Sales

TORONTO, March 3 (CP)—Cattle prices were strong on Toronto livestock market this week with a liberal run cleared out, the Dominion lovestock branch reported. Calves opened steady but dropped $1 by the close. Hogs were down 50 cents as were lambs while sheep sold off.
